INTRODUCTION.

THIS Volume, which carries the Calendar down to the Session commencing on 7 Nov. 1693, begins with the meeting on 2 Jan. 1691-2, after the adjournment on 31 Dec. 1691, when the King, in his Speech inviting further supplies for prosecuting the War, had recommended the dispatch of business with a view to an early close of the Session. A variety of Bills were accordingly pushed forward in the Commons. Three of these—each emanating from the Whigs and laid aside by the Lords—are preserved. The two most important of them, for vesting the forfeited estates in England and Ireland in the Crown, to be applied to the use of the War, revive in part the provisions of the abortive Attainder Bill of 1690, as then amended by the Lords (Nos. 558 and 559). The third, which Ralph suggests was intended to “straiten the Ministry in their” borrowings on the public funds,” proposed to reduce to 5 per cent. the legal rate of interest, which had been already reduced from 8 to 6 per cent in 1660. It anticipates the Act of 1713, except in including bankers and in excluding loans to the Crown (No. 536). Two other Bills, which also failed to pass, are wanting, having been dropped in the Commons in consequence of the Lords’ amendments. One of these, which was brought into the Commons by Sir Christopher Musgrave, a Tory, was for reviving the Public Accounts Commission. It was lost, after a controversy between the two Houses, by the Lords adhering, by a majority of only 9, to their amendments, including the addition of four Commissioners, not members of the Commons, chosen by ballot from a list of 42, whose names are recorded (No. 539); but the substance of the Bill was saved, as is known, by means of a Proviso irregularly tacked to the Poll Act, and acquiesced in by the Lords. With regard to the other, a Bill “to prevent “ false musters and for the better paying of quarters,” which proposed to remedy an evil exposed by the Accounts Commissioners in their first Report,* by providing for the future payment of the Army according to the number of actual effectives, there is a curious proviso, which was offered but laid aside in the Lords, exempting from punishment for deserting or demanding his pay any non-commissioned officer or private who could prove that his pay was forty days in arrear (No. 553).

On 24 Feb. 1691-2 both Houses adjourned till 12 April, after which a series of prorogations by Commission, the last of them on 26 September, deferred the commencement of the new Session till 4 November, when the King, only recently returned from the Continent, opened Parliament in person on his birthday. The Lords, after adjourning for three days, as the Commons did for six—for what reason does not appear—took up at once, to the exclusion of other business, a complaint by the Earls of Huntingdon and Marlborough, which will be noticed later on among other cases of Privilege. The sequel to their proceedings was the introduction—after learning the King’s intention to discharge the Earl of Huntingdon’s recognizances—of a Bill to indemnify the Ministry for these and other commitments. It passed into law as originally drafted, the Lords abandoning the Clauses added in Committee and objected to by the Commons, as tending to hamper the Executive at a time of public danger. These Clauses are among the papers, and are instructive as showing traces of the dispute which preceded and probably occasioned the Act (No. 608). A later consequence of the fear of Jacobite designs will be found in an Abjuration Bill† brought into the Lords the next Session (17 Jan. 1692-3) by the Whig Earl of Devonshire, “to prevent dangers which “ may happen from persons disaffected to their Majesties’ “ Government,” which dropped, however, after being committed by a majority of 46 to 41. This Bill, which has passed unnoticed by historians, except Burnet,‡ who vaguely refers to it, enacted that all office-holders under the Crown, as well peers as commoners, should take, on pain of forfeiting their office, an Oath of Abjuration, promising to be faithful to William and Mary, to repudiate any former oath or obligation of allegiance to James II., and not to assist or hold any correspondence with him, but to assist William and Mary against him and all their enemies (No. 664).

On consideration, at length (28 Nov. 1692), of the Speech from the Throne, the Lords, taking advantage, like the Commons, of a conventional compliment in it to the "advice" of Parliament, went into a Grand Committee on the State of the Nation (No. 611), with the primary purpose of criticising the conduct of the War on land and sea. The record of proceedings explains clearly the course and character of a series of animated debates, the practical result of which—after a collapse, through a difference between the two Houses, of the enquiry into the naval miscarriages of the summer—was the presentation, on 18 Feb. 1692-3, of an Address of Advice to the King. As regards this Address, in the debates on which Marlborough, smarting possibly from his dismissal by the King and his still more recent commitment, took a prominent part, the main ground of complaint by the Lords was the King's employment of foreigners, as being subversive of discipline. The Resolution, recommending in effect the dismissal of Count Solmes, passed without a division, after an amendment to postpone its operation until his command-in-chief fell vacant had been negatived on the previous question. A scrutiny of the lists of the Ordnance Office and the Flanders Train showed, as will be seen from the papers, that nearly all the chief posts were held by foreigners. Two of them, each a Dutchman, were singled out for dismissal—namely, Col. Gore, the chief officer of the Train, and Meesters, the Comptroller, who was also a member of the incriminated Board of Ordnance, and Storekeeper at the Tower. As to Meesters, there was no division; but the motion necessitating Gore's removal by restricting his post to "one of their Majesties' subjects" was agreed to in Committee only after the previous question had been carried by a majority of 3, and was negatived on report by an equality of votes, produced by proxies, after a proposal to substitute native-born subjects had been rejected by a bare majority of 2. A Head for advising the King to ask for cautionary towns (Ostend and Nieuport were mentioned but not insisted on), "for the security of his troops,"* was rejected by 36 to 24; and the motion, ascribed to the Whig Earl of Warrington, for removing disaffected persons from the Lieutenancy of London, was reserved for a separate enquiry, which had no result beyond condemning as "insolent" a paper on that subject handed in at the door by a person who, according to Luttrell, fled to avoid arrest. The Address of Advice was finally agreed to, with the addition of a complaint concerning the impressing as seamen of men intended for land service.

The examination into the naval miscarriages of the summer began, on 29 Nov., with a motion to enquire into "the intended descent on France, and the reason of our ships being lost since the victory of La Hogue" on 19 May. It ended, after a trial of strength between the supporters of Nottingham in the Lords and the supporters of Admiral Russell in the Commons, in an indecisive Conference between the two Houses. As regards the failure of the descent on France, the statement put in by the Transport Commissioners adds little to what they delivered to the Commons. Nottingham's Case or Narrative, which was brought in by him on Dec. 6, communicated to the Commons at a Conference, and read by them in the House on the 20th,† and finally returned to the Lords, has also been printed in the Commons' Journal, but with many inaccuracies and two important omissions. One of these omissions is the absence of any reference in the narrative to Russell's remarkable letter of 29 July, which is stated to have been annexed to it, and is somewhat meagrely described there as containing "reflec-

* This note of the Clerk is ambiguous, but the object of the Head, which occasioned a "very long and fierce debate," was clearly not strategical, but financial, namely, that Spain and Holland, the assisted Powers, should give pledges for repayment of the expenses of such assistance, as they had offered to do when imploring the assistance of Queen Elizabeth. See Ralph, ii. 396.

† This is shown by the endorsement, which bears the initials of Paul Jodrell, the Clerk of the Commons, and disposes of Burnet's statement to the contrary. The original letters, from which the Narrative was compiled, were produced to the Lords and returned to Nottingham in the following March, but their number and dates are ascertained from a list taken down by the Clerk. There is nothing to show that they were ever communicated to the Commons.

tions upon the whole matter.”* The other omission is an extract from a letter from Nottingham to Russell of 26 July, enclosing a Queen’s Order of that day, urging an attempt on Brest, and, in particular, the burning of St. Malo, on the faith of some information brought by a Capt. Wilkins, which, as is now shown, turned out to be incorrect.†

The mass of Papers brought in by the Admiralty, consisting of official copies of Orders to and Letters from Russell, form a source of information hitherto untapped, except in part by Burchett, the only naval historian of the time. They cover a period extending, with breaks (two books of Russell’s Letters being wanting), from 2 April to 28 August 1692, and a digest of them will be found in this volume, arranged under various heads for the purpose of facilitating research. Some points come out clearly from this correspondence which deserve more than cursory notice. One of these is the actual strength of the Fleet which fought the French at La Hogue. Russell’s line-of-battle on 15 May gives a total of 64 ships of the line, but only 57 of these appear to have been then available, for he writes the same day, saying, “ the Dutch that are now with me are 22 in number, which “ is all we expect in any time, so that with those of our own “ we make up 79 sail,” instead of the 99 which has commonly been represented by historians as the combined strength of the Allied Fleet.‡ Speaking of the battle, Russell afterwards (23 May) writes: “ The enemy’s ships did not exceed 50 ships “ of war, of which number 18 of them had three decks, and “ but two so small as 56 guns. Though their number was “ inferior to ours, yet I can positively affirm that the ships “ of their Majesties which beat them did not exceed 40, for

* This letter, which is a powerful summing up of Russell’s case against Nottingham, has been printed in the Commons’ Journal, but among some other letters and papers brought in on 28 Nov. by the Admiralty (C. J., X. 717, 721-22), and not as part of Nottingham’s Narrative.

† See Russell’s Letters to the Admiralty of 24 July and 2 August. As to the state of things at St. Malo early in August, there is an interesting account, furnished by some prisoners retaken from the French.

‡ Ralph, like the List in Somers’ Tracts, makes the English total 63, by omitting the Tiger Prize, a fourth-rate of the Blue Squadron, and credits the Dutch with 36 more. The Dutch line-of-battle, as given by Russell in a letter of 9 May, consisted nominally, it is true, of 36 ships (besides fireships), but only 16 of them are marked in Russell’s List as being then with the Fleet, and 4 more of the 36 are marked as not being expected by Admiral Allemonde for at least three weeks.

“ the weather being so thick and quite calm, the Dutch, who “ led the van, could not come in to fight, and the Blue, who “ were in the rear, could not come up, except in the night,
 “ about 8 o'clock.”

The want of seamen, notwithstanding the severity of the press-gangs, is repeatedly complained of. Four days before the battle, Russell writes: “ Either a battle, sickness, or death, “ some or all of which must be expected this summer, will “ cause a great want of men, which I shall not be able to “ supply.” Out of the 64 ships of the line in the List of 15 May, which is dated from St. Helens, 55* show a net deficiency of 1,900 men then “ actually on board,” as compared with their aggregate complements of 25,590. The first-rates were the best off, some of them being overmanned, a proof of the popularity of the larger ships; and the third-rates were in the worst plight. As for the 24 fireships, Russell writes on 15 May, “ there is hardly one that has three seamen,† and “ whenever I chide an officer for not getting men, his answer “ is, ‘ All the men I met with were protected.’ ” The only remedy the Admiralty could find for this want of seamen was to order Russell to equalize the crews; but, considering that the 10 ships with more men than their complements on board had only a superfluity of 513 between them for disposal, the remedy was a very partial one; while, as only 2 ships—the St. Andrew and Ruby—had their exact complements on board, what men beyond the 513 were wanted for “ turning over” to other ships could only have been obtained by still further denuding ships already undermanned.

This “ turning over” system was, moreover, intensely unpopular. “ It will be very hard,” Russell writes (15 May), “ on “ the officers who, either out of diligence or being well-esteemed “ among the sea-faring men, have got their ships well manned, “ to spare them to the negligent. . . It is not to be expressed, “ the trouble I have about the men turned over at the “ Nore. . . These are complaints that require more patience * With regard to the remaining 9, the column of “ men on board” leaves blanks. If these blanks mean that the ships were unmanned, the deficiency, compared with complements, would be increased by 3,330.

† This probably refers to the quality, not to the quantity of the seamen, for the 24 fireships were short of their complements by only 92 men in all.

“ than I am blest with, not having one minute free from them.
 “ . . . The fighting part is by much the least trouble that an “ Admiral of the English Fleet meets with.” In a later letter (9 June) he adds that there was a general complaint among the commanders that the Vice-Admirals, Justices of the Peace, and other civil officers, so far from assisting, rather hindered, the officers employed in procuring men for their ships; and this, in his opinion, had been the chief cause that several ships, whose commanders had least interest among the seamen, were not so well manned as others. Of the quality of many of the men impressed he speaks in terms of contempt. Several of the ships have “numbers, but not the tenth man a seaman,” and again, “unless the civil officers send in better men than those “ I have seen on board the Cornwall, ’twere better they did “ not put the King to the charge of procuring them, for they “ are fitter to breed distempers on board the ships than to do “ anything that may be serviceable.”

The provision for the sick and wounded was miserably deficient. Only four days before the Battle, Russell had but one hospital-ship out of the four assigned to the Fleet, “and that “ one useless, having neither beds nor surgeon’s chests.” The townspeople of Portsmouth and Gosport who supplied with necessaries the sick sent ashore, complained, through a deputation headed by the Mayor, that they had to do so on credit, no money having been sent down to pay them. The Fleet was victualled nominally from 8 May to 27 August; but an Account, dated St. Helen’s, 15 May, shows “great quantities to be wanting of each species,” and on 9 May most of the pursers of the Fleet are missing. The deficiency of provisions was tardily supplied by the arrival of the victualling ships at Torbay (24 July); but, notwithstanding this, the Fleet had to be put on short allowance on 9 August “to lengthen out the victuals” beyond the 27th, and it was only the arrival of more provisions at St. Helens on 17 Aug. that enabled whole allowance to be resumed on the 26th. The want of ready money, besides crippling the departments, was a matter which caused “grievous complaints” among the seamen, as regards the non-payment not only of bounty money, but also of ordinary wages. “If money,” Russell writes (17 May), almost on the eve of the battle, “may be sent down to pay the “ ships which want it, as the rest have been, it will be a very great quiet to the minds of the men. The hopes of it brought many of their wives hither [to St. Helens], who are all gone railing to London, without money to support their families.”

This general discontent produced its natural result, and Russell, on 23 Aug., describes the deserting as “infamous.” The rumours of Jacobitism in the Fleet were, as is known, unfounded, and evoked an Address of Loyalty, signed by 64 commanders, whose names, strangely enough not printed in the Gazette, are now published for the first time and supply an acknowledged want. Carter’s name appears among them—an additional proof of his loyalty, which he afterwards sealed with his death. From an interesting letter of Russell’s, dated La Hogue, 23 May, and continuing the account of the battle given in his letter of the 20th to the Admiralty, a duplicate of which was sent to Nottingham and published in the Gazette, it appears, among other things, that Carter was killed “in a scuffle” during the pursuit of the French, and not, as stated by Macaulay,* at the beginning of the action. There is an interesting examination of Sir John Ashby with regard especially to his not pursuing the French through the Race of Alderney, the pilots refusing to take any first or second-rates that way in the fog. “The French,” he says, “ventured to do that in the night which we did not dare in the day.”

The English losses in the battle, as regards officers, were few in number; but, besides Carter, they included Capt. Hastings of the Sandwich, who received a public funeral. “The King,” Russell writes of him, “might better have spared a fourth-rate frigate, so much value I set upon him.” † Among others whom the Admiral recommended specially for promotion, were the captains of the fireships which did such brilliant service in La Hogue Bay. But he owns a difficulty in making a selection, “for those who had an opportunity of

* On the authority, apparently, of Clarke’s Life of James II. (ii. 493) or Luttrell, 26 May 1692. Russell’s statement confirms that in the London Gazette, No. 2768.

† His widow, Caroletta, daughter of Sir John Churchill, “a man very eminent and a great gainer in his profession,” figures as appellant in an appeal as to the jointure of her father’s widow, Dame Susannah Churchill (No. 637).

“ doing their duty during the fight did do it, but without its “ being attended with anything remarkable or extraordinary ;
 “ nor can I accuse those who could not come in to take their “ share, because I am of opinion they did their utmost.” The record is marred by only two cases of misconduct, one of these being on the part of a lieutenant, who was tried for running into the hold during the battle, and dismissed the service, after being carried round in a boat, with a halter round his neck, to each ship in the Fleet, where his crime was read.

With reference to the famous Land Tax Act of 1693, which marked an epoch in the history of taxation, the two provisos of the Lords, wrongly described by Burnet, and others after him, as an attempt of the Peers to “tax themselves,” have long been familiar from the Commons’ Journal, and show plainly, as first pointed out by Macaulay, that what the Lords proposed was, not to alter the amount of the taxation, which was fixed by the Bill at 4s. in the pound, but simply to appoint Commissioners of their own House to value their estates, and a Collector of their own choosing to receive the money. Strange to say, however, no historian has noticed * that these very provisos were taken by Godolphin verbatim, except as regards the names of some of the Commissioners,† from the Poll Act of 1689, when the Commons, who now resented them with such heat, had accepted them without a scruple, Bishop Burnet himself, who denounces them now as not to be defended, having then been one of the Commissioners appointed to execute them. The Lords, after negating by 50 votes to 36 a motion, supported by Mulgrave, to refer the matter to the Committee for Privileges for the examination of precedents, waived their amendments on the ground that affairs were urgent, and that there was more in them than was intended (a somewhat singular admission, considering their past history), but insisted on their right to make them, for reasons given to the Commons at a second Conference, but not entered by the latter on their Journals. As to the first Conference, the story, gravely told by Ralph, of the

* Dalrymple, indeed (Memoirs, iii. 20), speaks of these provisos as an “innovation.”

† The former Act named 36 Commissioners, of whom 12 reappear among the 26 named in these provisos.

Lords attempting to evade it by taking up the hearing of the Banbury Claim of Peerage, fades into a myth in the light of facts (No. 665).

The necessities of Supply, which had occasioned the Land Tax Act, will be found to be largely explained by the Report of the Accounts Commissioners (No. 610), whose duties, as already mentioned, had been revived by the Poll Act of the previous Session. This Report, which was laid on the table of both Houses on 28 Nov. 1692, forms the second of a series hitherto unpublished, the importance of which has been noticed in the last Calendar. Its contents* supply a significant comment on the public outcry against the squandering of the revenue and the inordinate gains of office-holders, which had filled the House of Commons with placemen, and given rise to the nickname of the "Officers' Parliament." Of the two abortive schemes of Parliamentary reform designed to remedy these distempers—namely, the Place Bill of the Tories and the Triennial Bill of the Whigs—the text of the former is preserved in the engrossment, as it came from the Commons, who passed it without a dissentient voice (No. 643). After a preamble reciting the corruption of members in "former" Parliaments, the Bill simply enacted that no member (except the Speaker) chosen after 1 February 1692–3 should accept any office under the Crown, on pain of forfeiting his seat; thus leaving all existing placemen in possession, and making no attempt to distinguish, as regards the future, between the heads of departments, whom it was absurd to exclude, and their subordinates, whose presence was the real abuse.† In the Lords, where the Bill was closely contested, it was proposed in Committee to include pensioners, as was done afterwards in the Act of Settlement, and to allow the member incapacitated by the Bill to be re-elected—an expedient which had formed part of a Bill rejected in the Commons on 29 April 1675,‡ was revived in the * Luttrell (1 Nov. 1692) speaks, apparently with satisfaction, of these Accounts bringing out a debt of only 2,000,000*l.* from the King to the Army, Navy and Transport services. No such debt is expressly disclosed in this Report.

† And yet, as Hatsell points out (ii. 61), this sweeping disqualification, to commence after the death of King William and Queen Anne, was inserted soon afterwards in the Act of Settlement (12–13 Will. III. c. 2. sect. 3), but was repealed before it took effect, by 4 & 5 Anne c. 20. sect. 28.

‡ 2 Hatsell 66, note, and Grey's Debates, iii. 53.

Act of 4-5 Anne c. 20. sect. 30, and is now in force by sect. 25 of 6 Anne c. 41. These two amendments were negatived by majorities of only 9 and 4, and the three clauses of the Bill were then carried by majorities of 7, 1 and 3. The question whether the Bill should pass gave rise to a novel incident. It was at first carried by a majority of 2; but the House having afterwards allowed—though not without debate and the challenge of a division—the addition of the proxies entered that day, these, on the proxies being reported by the Speaker, reversed the previous vote, and caused the Bill to be rejected by a majority of the same number.*

With regard to the "Triennial" Bill introduced by E. Shewsbury on 12 Jan. 1692-3, under the vague title of An Act for the frequent meeting of Parliaments (No. 660), its true history is now made known by the discovery, in particular, of the original draft. As introduced, it was not a Triennial Bill at all, but one, as described by Luttrell,† "for an annual Parliament," summoned by writs issued annually. Briefly stated, it provided (1) for the due observance of divers laws and statutes, for holding Parliament "at least once in every year,"‡ as enacted by the Triennial Act of 1640;§ (2) for the summoning every year of a new Parliament for a particular day, left blank; with a compulsory clause—suggested also (excepting the triennial period) by the Act of 1640—requiring the Lord Chancellor to issue the writs for that purpose, in default of direction from the Crown; and (3) for the dissolution, from and after that particular day,|| of any Parliament then in being.

* Macaulay, by misstating the proxies for the Bill 2 instead of 3, misstates also the ultimate result. As for the 7 proxies against it, "three," he adds, "were questioned, and were with difficulty admitted." He gives no authority, but his statement, as will be shown further on, is probably correct.

† Diary, 12 Jan. 1692-3.

‡ In Committee of the Whole House these statutes were specified as those of Edward III., but the words quoted above were left out.

§ The title of that Act, as brought into the Commons, was An Act for yearly holding of Parliaments (C. J., 24 Dec. 1640). It was reported from Committee and passed as An Act for the preventing of inconveniences happening by the long intermission of Parliaments.

|| The word ("in,") occurring, as may be seen, three times in the middle of a blank in Clauses ii. and iii. of the original draft, makes nonsense in connection with the words ("from henceforth.") But on a close inspection of the draft, the word in question is found to be in a different hand, and was no doubt inserted on the wrong assumption that the blank, thus divided, was meant to be filled up, as is commonly the case, with a particular year as well as month.

The Committee of the Whole House, on coming, after making some amendments, to consider the day for the annual meeting of Parliament, agreed to report in favour of provisions enacting that Parliaments should sit every year, and a new Parliament every three years,* that there should be no compulsory clause, and that a time should be fixed for the determination of the present Parliament. The House being then resumed, after a division, by 32 votes to 26, these Heads were reported, and were afterwards embodied in a new draft of four clauses by Justice Rokeby. This draft was adopted by the House in Committee, with Bishop Burnet in the Chair,† after fixing 1 January 1693-4 as the date of the next dissolution; and nothing was left of the old Bill except the title, which was amended.‡

The Commons returned the Bill, thus recast, with two amendments, the first of which has passed unnoticed. As Section i. required a Parliament to be holden every year, it was an absurdity on Rokeby's part to give three years after dissolving one Parliament for summoning the next one. This absurdity was removed by changing the three years in Section ii. to one year. The second amendment was to postpone the date of the next dissolution till 25 March 1694, thus giving time to complete a new Session.§ The Lords accepted these amendments, and the Bill in this shape was tendered to the King, who refused his Assent to it on the last day of the Session. It was revived totidem verbis

* This is the first appearance of the Triennial period in this Bill. Rokeby had no specific instruction to prevent the intermission of Parliament for more than three years, this being sufficiently provided against by Sect. i. But, inasmuch as his second instruction involved the question of intermission as well as of continuance, and the machinery had to be provided for summoning a new Parliament after discontinuing the old one, he gave effect to it by means of two Clauses, the first of which (Sect. ii), dealing with intermission, was taken almost verbatim from the Triennial Act of 1664.

† It is strange that Burnet, in his account of the Bill (iv. 106), makes no reference to the original draft, which must have been before him as Chairman. His description, like those of Ralph and Macaulay, applies entirely to Rokeby's new draft, which is wrongly attributed to E. Shrewsbury, the author, as Luttrell states, of the original draft (12 Jan. 1692-3).

‡ The first amendment, relating to the frequent "calling" (as well as "meeting") of Parliaments, marks the real object of the Bill. The second, which was struck out on report, expresses the same idea in other words.

§ Burnet (iv. 107), whom Macaulay follows, is not strictly accurate, for a new Session might have been held, though probably not completed, if the Lords' date of 1 Jan. 1693-4 had stood.

in December 1693, when, after being amended in Committee of the Lords, it was rejected by the Commons. In the Act of 1694, which remained law until repealed by the Septennial Act of 1716, its text reappears with two important variations, namely, the omission of all reference to the statutes of Edward III., and the substitution of triennial for annual periods in Sections i. and ii., thus making no provision for annual Sessions,* and leaving the country possibly without a Parliament for nearly three years.

Comparing this Bill with the Acts of 1640 and 1664, it is interesting to note how the different sense in which each of them was "Triennial" reflects the prevailing political feeling of the times. The Act of Charles I. provided for the yearly holding of Parliament, and was triennial in so far as it compelled the assembling of Parliament, if not summoned for three years. That of the Restoration left the King's hands free as to annual Sessions, and was triennial in "beseeching" him to summon Parliament at least once in three years. The present Bill, while reverting to annual Sessions, is triennial only in limiting the duration of Parliament to three years, thus being directed against an abuse of power, not by the Crown, but by Parliament itself.

A clause in an Expiring Laws Continuance Act (No. 724), which received the Royal Assent on the last day of the Session, gave a further lease of life to the famous Licensing Act, establishing the censorship of the Press, which dated back, with interruptions, to 1662, and was finally abolished in 1695. This Clause was opposed by the Booksellers, whose chief complaints were against the abuses of the Stationers' Company, as patentees and monopolists, but was carried in Committee with only one dissentient voice. The two provisos offered on third reading, the one forbidding peers' houses to be searched, without oath being first made—a proposal which the Commons had resisted in the Licensing Bill of 1661 †—and the other dispensing with a license, if the name of the author or printer were given—a suggestion due originally to Milton ‡— were rejected by majorities of 4 and 8. With reference to the anonymous pamphlet King William and Queen Mary Conquerors, which was burnt, like Burnet's Pastoral Letter, by the common hangman in Palace Yard, the Minute Book adds some further details to a literary episode first unveiled by Macaulay.* The papers relating to the enquiry into the alleged maladministration of Ireland by Lord Sydney, in the course of which enquiry a Clerk of the House was committed to prison for rudeness to an Irish witness, add nothing of importance to what is printed in the Journal (No. 718). It ended, as is known, in an Address of Remonstrance to the King on 9 March 1692-3. Five days later Parliament was prorogued, William declaring that the state of affairs on the Continent required his presence abroad.

The papers dealing with subjects of special rather than of general interest range themselves conveniently into separate groups. With regard to ecclesiastical and religious matters, a Commons' Bill of 2 Jan. 1691-2, for the recovery of small tithes (No. 511), supplies a further chapter in the history of a long standing subject of litigation and discontent, which, after a series of fruitless attempts to legislate, dating back to 1675, found a settlement by law in the Act of 1696. There are two proposals to relieve the Quakers, in respect of their scruples to take an oath. One of these is a Lords' Bill (No. 542), grounded evidently on a previous one of 1690,† and rejected by the Commons, which enabled them, on certain conditions, to make affirmation, as witnesses, in the Courts of Chancery and Exchequer, but only in causes "other than criminal." This obnoxious exception originated as an amendment to this Bill, and was retained in the Act of 1696, where it was stigmatised in later days by Lord Mansfield as a "strong prejudice in the minds of the great men "who introduced that statute."‡ The other, allowing a "solemn promise" before administering a will, was offered, but not accepted, as an addition to the Act of 30 Car. II. c. 7.

for the Administration of Estates, on its renewal, together with other statutes then expiring, by a Continuance Act already mentioned. A Bill making parishioners of a church united to another contributors to the repair and ornaments of the latter (No. 713), and one dividing the chapelries of North Chapell and Dington from the Parish of Petworth, and erecting them into new parishes (No. 676), both of which received the Royal Assent, complete the list of measures in this group.

Among other papers relating to trade and industry, a Commons' Bill of 16 Feb. 1691-2, for permitting English ships to be navigated with foreign seamen to and from the West Indies during the war, recites the crippling effects of the Navigation Act, in conjunction with the drain on English seamen for manning the Navy, on the trade with the English plantations in America* (No. 560); and in this connection may be mentioned a Bill to encourage the building of good ships by granting a rebate of Customs dues in respect of 600 ton ships carrying 30 guns, and with three decks (No. 555). Both these Bills dropped with the prorogation. Two further unsuccessful attempts to relieve the wool trade by transferring the collection of the ahuage duties from the Farmers under the Duchess of Richmond to the Custom House,† in regard to which some instructive particulars will be found, appear in a Bill of January 1691-2 (Nos. 532 and 533), and another of February 1692-3 (Nos. 686 and 692), which differs mainly from the previous one in prescribing a higher scale of duties. With regard to the butter and cheese trade, particularly with Norfolk and Suffolk, the chief centres of dairy-farming, some interesting evidence is disclosed. The London trade, it appears, was engrossed by a "ring" of Thames Street cheesemongers, or "wholesalers"—some 22 in number out of 250 in the whole of London—who bought, through their local factors or agents, from the farmer in the country at his house, where the butter was weighed, often with very primitive appliances; and it was then shipped, after packing, from Woodbridge, or other places, by hoys to the Thames side.

* A similar, but general, Bill had passed the Lords in January 1690-1, but was lost in the Commons. See No. 376 in last Calendar.

† See also No. 369 in last Calendar.

The use of fraudulent weights, and the mixing of old butter with new, had been provided against by the Act of 1662, at the instance of the London traders, who since then, however, under colour, and, as was now alleged, in contravention, of that Act, had appointed "searchers" of their own, and practically monopolised the market by the threat of boycotting the local warehouse-keepers and hoy-men, if they shipped and carried any farmers' produce for other traders. A Lords' Bill of 17 Nov. 1692, which dealt only with the farmer's grievance as to searches, applied the doctrine of caveat emptor by discharging him from all penalties for wrong weight and bad packing, after actual sale, but imposed a fine, if he changed the commodity between sale and delivery at the water-side (Nos. 563 and 564). This Bill, which the traders opposed, was laid aside in the Commons after a first reading; but a new and fuller one, retaining its provisions and supplementing them with others for securing free shipment and an open market, was brought in by Sir Samuel Barnardiston, and eventually became the Act of 1692 (Nos. 594 and 703). A Commons' measure of protection for a minor branch of industry appears in the Act for prohibiting the importation of foreign hair-buttons (No. 717), for which horse-hair was exported in large quantities to Holland, with the result of underselling the English maker, and which, being a recent invention, were not included in the Act of 1662. A Lords' Bill of 4 Feb. 1691-2, intended to facilitate the recovery of penalties imposed on butchers for selling live cattle, in contravention of an Act of Charles II., was rejected by the Commons without even a first reading (No. 545). Another and a more important Bill, which originated in the Commons, conceals under the title of "An Act to prevent the decay of trade in cities, corporations and market-towns" a measure against hawkers and pedlars, as interfering with "settled traders and shopkeepers," particularly the drapers, mercers, haberdashers, grocers, stationers and glass-sellers. They are forbidden, under heavy penalties, to carry about or sell the wares of those traders, except in open fair or market, or in a shop or warehouse; but provisos are inserted in favour of "real workers and makers," as well as tinkers, who carry about the materials for their trade, and packers or traders retailing manufactures for sale to shopkeepers only, or at fairs. This Bill (No. 708) was rejected by the Lords after a first reading, but several of its provisions will be found in the Act of 1696-7 (8-9 Will. III. c. 25.), which, with a view to making further provision for paying the interest of the Transport debt for the reducing of Ireland, gave a legal sanction to hawkers and pedlars, on condition of their paying for a license. In connection with the Act continuing the prohibition of trade with France (No. 730), the evidence in Committee and the Lords' amendments throw some light on the clauses for encouraging privateering, which formed the staple of its contents. Some Bills for the development of local industries may also be referred to here. One (No. 646) was to improve the navigation of the River Nene, for the benefit of the farmers, and another (Nos. 732 and 733) that of the River Salwerpe and its affluents, for the advantage of the Droitwich salt works, the improvement, in each case, being entrusted to private undertakers. A third (No. 613) was to repeal the Act of 30 Car. II., which restricted the size of nets in the Severn, below Gloucester Bridge. All these Bills were dropped after commitment. A Bill which restricted the quantity of gunpowder kept in private stores near the Tower and the Victualling Office, to allay the panic of tenants, who were leaving the neighbourhood for fear of explosions, did not get beyond a first reading (No. 547).

The text of the important Bill for ascertaining the commissions and salaries of the Judges is now published in full, and explains why the King put his veto, on this occasion, to a reform to which he assented, a few years later, in the Act of Settlement. It was not, as assumed, that he desired to keep the judges in a state of dependence (his commissions to them were quamdiu se bene gesserint), but that their salaries, as first detected by Macaulay,* were charged on the hereditary revenue without the previous constitutional sanction of the Crown. A clause, proposed in the * Hist. vi. 186, edit. 1864. The assumption was that of Burnet in the first instance (iv. 86), and was adopted by Hallam (Const. Hist. iii. 262, edit. 1832), who, unlike Macaulay, had not inspected the original parchment. As regards salaries, it appears from No. 610 that the 12 Judges got 8,641*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.* between them.

Lords, for enabling a party grieved by a corrupt judgment to bring an action against the Judge, without the interposition of a Noli prosecute, was lost by only a single vote (No. 565). A significant, but hitherto unnoticed, attempt to prohibit the sale of judicial offices, under colour of the patronage vested in the judges by the Act of Edward VI., appears in a Lords' Bill of 18 Feb. 1692-3, for explaining the previous statutes on that subject. The Bill, which dropped with the Session, after commitment, and was not afterwards revived, is of a drastic nature, and contains a strange provision granting the forfeited judicial office to the successful prosecutor, if he desired it and was qualified, and, if not, three years' value of the office paid to him in money for his reward (No. 710).

Of the two measures relating to the Court of Chancery, which had passed the Lords in 1691 but were lost in the Commons, namely, one relating to a general reform, and the other to rehearings and Bills of Review,* the latter reappears, with some variations as to procedure, in a Bill of 29 Nov. 1692, which was laid aside in the Lords after a first reading, leaving the jurisdiction of Chancery still untouched (No. 601). Two abortive attempts to prevent frauds by clandestine mortgages—the first originating in the Commons (No. 557), and the second in the Lords (No. 578)—anticipate the provisions of the Act of 1692. A Lords' Bill of 22 Dec. 1692, which possibly had reference to a case of some importance decided earlier in the year,† proposed to forfeit to the Crown all superstitious trusts and uses, the same “being much continued and kept up by secret gifts, grants and provisions.” It dropped, however, after partial amendment, the Committee reporting in favour of referring it to the Judges, on account of the many difficulties, and the question was not afterwards revived (No. 641). With regard to the Court of King's Bench, the substance of the Act of 1694 (5-6 W. & M. c. 11.), imposing conditions on the grant of Writs of Certiorari to defendants at Quarter Sessions, with a view to prevent evasion of justice and delay, will be found contained in a Bill of 1692-3 (No. 695), which dropped after an order for hearing Counsel on a Petition of the Clerks of the Crown Office (No. 706). Of the two Acts of this period dealing, among other things, with the abuses of procedure on outlawries, the first (No. 701) was aimed, also, primarily against the filing of malicious informations by the Master of the Court, in the exercise of powers which had been grossly abused before the Revolution, but which the Court of King's Bench had recently refused to declare illegal.* It passed into law unaltered (4 W. & M. c. 18.), the Commons rejecting a Clause, described by the Judges as a good one, which the Lords had transferred to it from another Bill of their own, then abandoned, but retained among the archives, for mitigating the vexatious process on writs of Quo Minus out of the Exchequer (No. 693). The second, which purported to rectify the proceedings of the Crown Office in relation to Charters of Pardon as well as Outlawries (4 W. & M. c. 22.), contained, as first introduced, some Clauses which were struck out by the Lords, but which, with one exception, are decipherable on the excised portion of the Commons' engrossment of the Bill (No. 731). In the case of persons pardoned for felony, the Act of 1694 (5-6 W. & M. c. 13.), dispensing with the six sureties required by a statute of Edward III.,† gave effect to a Lords' Bill of the previous year, which was rejected by the Commons after a first reading (No. 712). A minor measure of reform, known to lawyers as the Docket Act, was opposed by Chief Justice Holt, for reasons which are recorded (No. 702). Full particulars of a case of some legal importance as regards the amendment of judicial records,‡ and involving a charge of corruption against Jeffreys, as Lord Chancellor, will be found in No. 667. It was a Bill brought by Thomas, Earl of Pembroke, the Lord Privy Seal, to have the benefit of his Writs of Error in King's Bench for the reversal of a fine and two recoveries, in respect of his brother's, the late Earl's, estates in Glamorganshire, which he claimed under a remainder in tail male. The preamble recites that Jeffreys, who had married his son John to the late Earl's daughter, took advantage of his "exorbitant power" to overawe a Judge of the Grand Sessions in Wales into amending the writs in question, and thus altering the returns, so that no error might appear on the record. The Bill was rejected by the Commons, though approved by Holt and Treby and all the other Judges, except one, who were consulted by the Lords before giving it a second reading. A Commons' Bill (No. 516), constituting Commissioners of a Court of Requests in Westminster, for the recovery of debts under 40s., forms another in a series of measures establishing Courts of Conscience for that purpose, which have been noticed in previous Reports. It was opposed by Viscount Villiers and ultimately dropped.

* See last Calendar, Nos. 304 and 438. Parke, in his History of the Court of Chancery, pp. 255-6, has confused these two Bills, not knowing the contents of either, a common mistake with historians, who take their descriptions from the title alone. It may be noted that the abolition of the Chancery jurisdiction in Bills of Review was strongly urged by Chief Baron Atkyns (who sat Speaker both in 1691 and now) in his Inquiry into the Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery (p. 48), which was published in 1695.

The jurisdiction of the House of Commons in regard to controverted elections, a long-standing subject of dispute with the Crown, was confirmed, as is well known, by the Act of 1695-6 (7-8 Will. III. c. 7.), which declared that any return of a member "contrary to the last determination in the "House of Commons" should be adjudged a false return. The text of this Act will be found almost verbatim in a Commons' Bill of 1692-3 (No. 722), which contains, however, a Clause (not retained in the Act) providing that no such determination should be drawn into question in a Court of law.* The Bill was negatived by the Lords, without a division, on third reading, but not until they had affirmed the claim of the Commons; for, on report after recommitment, they rejected, by 25 votes to 17, the amendments to the contrary, and thereby restored the Bill to its original shape.

* The question, whether such determination must have actually been made by the Commons before an action for a false return could be brought against the Sheriff, was decided by the King's Bench per Holt in 1703 (Prideaux v. Morris, 2 Salkeld 503) in the affirmative, and by the Exchequer Chamber, per Willes, in 1745 in the negative (Wynne v. Middleton, 1 Wilson 125). The former was an action on the case and the latter on the Statute. The great case of Ashby v. White had reference to the question of jurisdiction in regard to the qualification of electors.

Three Bills, all sent up from the Commons, affect in various ways the revenues of the Crown. One of these reduced the fees payable on the grant of small leases in the Duchy of Cornwall, and only reached a first reading in the Lords (No. 562). On its being sent up again the following Session (No. 700), a Lords' amendment, though only restoring in part the existing scale of fees, was resisted by the Commons as laying a tax on the subject, and the Bill was lost. No. 690 gives the text of a Bill for removing "doubts and difficulties touching Royal Mines," which appear to have dated back to a leading case decided in the time of Elizabeth. The Bill confirmed against the Crown the rights of owners of mines of copper, tin, iron, or lead from which gold or silver may be extracted, but gave the Sovereign a right of pre-emption. The King refused his assent to this Bill, but granted it to a similar one passed in 1694 (5 & 6 W. & M. c. 6.). The third (No. 726) was for the prohibition of all Lotteries, which had led to many quarrels, riots and murders, and was directed especially against the Royal Oak Lottery, "more grievous and mischievous than any of the rest." It was opposed by grantees of lotteries, who had paid large sums into the Exchequer in advance for them, and by indigent officers, widows and others, who had been granted annuities upon them by the Crown (No. 727), and the third reading was negatived;* but its provisions were embodied in the Act of 1698 (10 Will. III. c. 23.), which, however, contained a saving for the Royal Oak Lottery for the remainder of its term.

A Bill restricting to the University of Oxford the provisions of an earlier measure affecting both Universities,† did not get beyond a first reading (No. 523), and, when re-introduced in the following Session, was dropped in Committee, though the town and University were stated to have come to an agreement in favour of its passing (No. 616). The alleged mismanagement of Birmingham Grammar School by the Governing Body was referred to in a debate on a Bill enlarging the area of selection for that Body and adding to the staff of masters (No. 540); and a dispute among the Governors touching the election of a schoolmaster culminated in a petition of some of them to the House for an order to replace them in possession of the school, which was refused, as being without precedent (No. 625).

With regard to four important cases of privilege, the Calendar contains some new matter of interest. One of these (No. 581) was that of the Earls of Huntingdon, Marlborough and Scarsdale, who had been accused of complicity in the alleged Jacobite plot. On the 6th of May 1692 Huntingdon and Marlborough were committed to the Tower, on warrants identical in terms though differently signed, as being "charged "with High Treason in abetting and adhering to their Majesties' "enemies."* Scarsdale, for whose arrest a warrant was out on the 5th of May, escaped. A Proclamation was issued on the 9th for his discovery and apprehension with a number of others, but he surrendered himself to the Secretary of State on 1st June, and on the 7th was bailed by the Duke of Somerset and Lord Macclesfield.† As regards the other two lords, the usual application to be released on bail, under the 6th section of the Habeas Corpus Act, was made on the 15th of June, and Marlborough's was allowed.‡ In the case of Huntingdon and several others, however, their release was successfully opposed by an affidavit of Aaron Smith, the Treasury Solicitor, stating that there was "evidence" against them severally, "but that the witnesses against them or any of them could "not be produced this term." Huntingdon was accordingly remanded, but on 17th August following he and the Earl of Middleton, Lord Dunmore and Sir Andrew Forester, who had also been included in Smith's affidavit, were brought from the Tower and bailed before Holt, at Serjeants' Inn.§ On * Luttrell is wrong in his statement (7 May) that "the warrant for Lord Marlborough's commitment is for conspiring the death of the Queen, and endeavouring to seduce the officers and soldiers of their Majesties' guards." He was accused by Young of having signed the "Association" to assist King James with men and money on his landing, and to seize the Princess of Orange. (Ralph, II. 388-9.)

† Luttrell, May 5, 10, June 2, 7. Luttrell also states (2 June) that "8 or 9 of those in the late proclamation have signified by letter they will surrender themselves in case they shall have their liberty on bail, and not be confined to prison."

§ Luttrell, 18 Aug.

7th November, the first available day after the meeting of the House, the three earls informed the House that they had been committed and were then under bail within the time of privilege of Parliament.* The consequent proceedings on this and following days, the entries of which in the Journals are extremely meagre, seem to have been conducted, as stated also by contemporary writers, with much heat.† A motion to appoint a day for the consideration of the matter, in the presence of the Judges, was met by one that the three Lords be discharged from their bail. The Judges were, however, sent for at once, and declared they could not, in justice, discharge the recognisances until the last day of the term. It was then proposed to order them to do so now. They were questioned as to whether the prisoners could have been bailed to appear in the House of Lords. They had already expressed the opinion that the recognisances could only be removed to the House by a Writ of Error, an opinion modified later in their statement that "by law this bail cannot be removed." Holt said that the Earl of Lincoln's case, which was cited, was a different one. It was between the Earl and himself, and a matter of discretion in him. Parliament was then sitting in law. "There was a certiorari out of Chancery to me to certify it hither, which I did." But he added that there is no discretion if an indictment has been found, and the Judges had no warrant in law to bail the prisoners to appear in the House even if Parliament had been actually sitting. The Committee for Privileges, to whom the matter had been referred, could come to no definite conclusion, and reported "that they found many difficulties in the case." The Lords next took up the question of the legality of Aaron Smith's affidavit, a question affecting in reality, not privilege of Peerage, but the liberty of the subject. Smith, after persistent pressing,‡ was at last forced * Lord Wolseley states (Life of Marlborough, II. 284) that Marlborough had petitioned the Court of King's Bench in vain in October to have his recognisances discharged.

† "Warm debates." "The House of Lords were high." "Very warm debates were." (Luttrell, Nov. 8, 12.) "The Lords passed some votes, asserting their privileges; and were offended with the Judges for detaining some in prison, though there was no reason nor colour for their displeasure. But where the privilege or the dignity of peerage is in question, it is not easy to keep the House within bounds." (Burnet, IV. 102-3.)

to confess that he could not say there were two witnesses upon oath for High Treason against Huntingdon. There was one upon oath, and other evidence. The Judges agreed that one witness only upon oath was insufficient ground for a remand, and that, if the other circumstances were not upon oath, they were not evidence; but that, though two witnesses upon oath were necessary for a conviction, the Act did not intend that, in order to justify a remand, they should be witnesses upon oath, but only persons capable of giving testimony. The affidavit conformed to the Act, and it was not the Judges' business to enquire into the King's evidence. It was their duty to remand. The House then passed a Resolution, which was based upon the opinions expressed by the Judges, and which is, in effect, a quasi-judicial interpretation of the Act. It requires that, in future, affidavits of this kind should state explicitly that there were two witnesses against each prisoner* in order to justify a remand. After a motion, which was not pressed, for an Address to the King to order the Earl's recognisances to be discharged, the King himself adopted that course, and so put an end to an incident which party historians have tortured, on the one side, into an undue assertion of privilege by the Lords, and, on the other, into an enunciation by the Judges of infamous legal doctrines worthy of a Jeffreys.

The three other cases of privilege above referred to each involved a charge of murder. The first is that of the Earl of Lincoln (No. 567), whose servants, in his presence, had beaten in the streets of Kensington, in November 1691, a boy named Webb, for what offence does not appear, unless Luttrell is right in saying that it was merely for "gazing at" his Lordship.† The boy died in the following February, and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder against the Earl and his servants. The latter were tried and acquitted, the jury—as appears from * Luttrell (10 Nov.) is mistaken in suggesting that this Resolution related only to Peers, and his mistake has been repeated by later writers.

† Diary, 28 Feb. 1691-2. During the proceedings on the Duke of Norfolk's first Divorce Bill (No. 524), the Earl, who had spoken words of heat to the Earl of Rochester, and been reprimanded by the Speaker, was excused from kneeling on account of his "unwieldiness." Luttrell, in mentioning his burial in Westminster Abbey on 28 Nov. 1692, refers to his great bulk. According to the same writer, the persons tried and acquitted were the Earl's coachman and footman. The Indictment describes them as "labourers." Luttrell adds (1 March) that "two physicians who opened the boy, are of opinion that he died of an imposthume."

the Record brought up to the House—finding the boy to have died of “a consumption.” The Earl appeared in the House (14 April 1692) in pursuance of his recognisance, entered into with sureties before Holt, and was admitted to a new recognisance of his own, in consequence of the acquittal of his servants, who were included in the same indictment.

Another well-known case was that of Lord Mohun (No. 658), who was charged with complicity in the murder of Mountford the actor, by Capt. Hill,* on the night of the 9th of December 1692. After the murder, Mohun waited quietly on the spot till arrested, and was taken, next day, before the Justices at Hicks’ Hall, who, after examining thirteen witnesses, admitted him to bail in 2,000*l.*, his sureties being the Lord Gerard of Brandon and Mr. Charles Montagu.† On the 12th, after the inquest, a fresh warrant was issued against him by the Lord Chief Justice, but, “to avoid a chargeable imprisonment, he withdrew himself.”‡ On 11th Jan. 1692–3 his case came before the House on his Petition, in which he offered to surrender to the House, and prayed for a speedy trial at the Bar, and to be admitted meanwhile to bail. On the 13th the Committee for Privileges reported on this Petition that there was no precedent§ for trying a Peer at the Bar, but only in Westminster Hall, and on the same day Mohun, “who was then walking in the “ antechamber expecting an answer to his Petition,” || surrendered, and was sent to the Tower. The peers summoned to try him in Westminster Hall were limited to those “in town or within 20 miles thereof.” Of the 116 thus summoned, 85 were accordingly present in the House on 31st January,¶ and * Luttrell’s account of the murder (Dec. 10) is inaccurate, as shown by the evidence at the trial, which is, on the whole, very fairly summarised by Macaulay (VI. 320–1). But the witnesses differed as to the tone of what passed between the watch and Mohun, and between the latter and Mountford, and also as to whether Mountford’s dying statement, that he was stabbed before he could draw, was true. (State Trials, XII. 950.)

† See Mohun’s Petition, and Luttrell, 13 Dec.

‡ See his Petition. Luttrell is wrong in saying (13 Dec.) that he was arrested under this warrant.

|| Ib. III. 11.

¶ Of the 31 who did not appear on 31st Jan., the Earls of Lincoln, Strafford and Berkeley were excused on account of sickness, but the Earl of Ailesbury was fined 100*l.* on 6 Feb. A motion to remit the fine was negatived on the 7th, but when he brought the money to the House on the 13th the fine was remitted, after two divisions. The consideration of what should be done to the rest was adjourned till after the trial, but never taken up.

these constituted the Court, though only 83 voted in the Judgment, the Earl of Sussex and Lord Sydney having been excused on the ground of sickness.* Almost the whole of the 31st of January was occupied in taking the evidence in Westminster Hall, the short notes of which, taken down by the Clerk, add nothing to the full report in the State Trials. On the Lords returning to their own House, the Bishops withdrew, and a motion was made to ensure the attendance of members of the Court, the terms of which suggest that the absence of certain lords had been noticed; and this motion gave rise to a debate which ended in a vote that the House shall not "now go on," 20 lords dissenting "because it may be of dangerous consequence in "cases of blood." The omission of this motion in the printed Journal seems to connect the adjournment of the trial with the withdrawal of the Bishops † instead of with the absence of some of the Court, who were, on the Court being called over, found to be Fauconberg, Newport, Lovelace and Leigh. A fine of 100*l.* was imposed upon them, which was afterwards remitted in their case; ‡ but the penalty was retained for future offenders, in substitution for an order requiring committal to the Tower. The greater part of the next two days of the trial was spent by the Lords in framing questions to be put to the Judges to ascertain the degree of guilt, if any, attaching to a person present at a murder, under different conditions of premeditation, sympathy with the murderer, and previous knowledge of his intention. In order to exclude from the purview of the Judges the matter of fact deducible from the evidence, the questions were all, with one exception, couched in abstract terms. The exception was a question, proposed * Macaulay (VI. 321) says that "as Parliament happened to be sitting, the culprit had the advantage of being judged by the whole body of the peerage." It was, no doubt, an unusually full House.

† Professor Thorold Rogers (Protests of the House of Lords, I. 108) appears to have been misled in this way by the Journal.

‡ Tindal (XIV. 71) says they were excused "on account of their being faint and quite spent with so long an attendance." The House met at 9 a.m., and Luttrell (Jan. 31) says the trial lasted till 6 at night, the High Steward having summed up the evidence about 3. On the other three days of the trial, Feb. 1, 3, and 4, the House met at 10 a.m., and adjourned on the 1st at about 8 p.m. (State Trials, XII. 1014), on the 3rd about 9 (Tindal, XIV. 72), and on the 4th they debated in the House till about 4 p.m. (5 o'clock, Tindal, ib.), before proceeding to Westminster Hall to vote and give judgment.

either by Willoughby d'Eresby or by Rochester,* "Whether, " in the eye of the law, Lord Mohun was aiding and abetting " in the murder"; but it was not agreed to by the House, and never put. The Calendar gives, from the MS. Minute Book, the terms of other questions, proposed by the Lord Chamberlain (Dorset), the Lord President (Carmarthen), the Lord Steward (Devonshire), and Warrington, which, in like manner, were never put to the Judges, and shows the gradual elaboration of some of those upon which the Judges pronounced their opinions. After Mohun's acquittal on 4 February by 69 votes to 14, a result not altogether unlooked for,† he presented a Petition complaining of a threatened prosecution, by Mountford's pretended widow, of a "Writ of Appeal" against him for the murder; but this Petition was dismissed on the ground that no such Appeal had been brought.‡

The third case of Privilege connected with a charge of murder was that of Charles Knowles, who claimed to be Earl of Banbury. On 6 Dec. 1692 he had killed his brother-in-law, Capt. Philip Lawson, of the Guards, in a duel fought behind Southampton House, and was seized and committed to Newgate. At the Old Bailey Sessions, where he pleaded peerage, two Bills of murder were found against him, one as a peer and the other as Charles Knowles, but Holt respited his trial till the Lords had decided whether he was a peer or not.§ Thereupon he petitioned the House on 13 Dec. (No. 631) for a trial by his peers and to be admitted to bail, on the ground that he was of right, by descent, the Earl of Baubury. On reading this Petition, the House ordered Counsel to be heard at the Bar on 9 Jan.|| The Clerk's Notes of the hearing, entered in the MS. Minute Book, are printed

* The letters E. r. in the margin, if referring to an earl whose title began with R., probably refer to Lord Rochester, the only other earls to whom they might refer being Rivers and Radnor, who took no prominent part in the trial.

† "Believed he will be acquitted." (Luttrell, 31 Jan.)

‡ Luttrell (4 Feb.) says Mrs. Mountford brought her appeal on 4 Feb., the very day of the acquittal.

§ Luttrell, Dec. 6, 10, 13.

|| Luttrell, Dec. 24, is wrong in stating "the Committee of Lords have agreed that E. Banbury was a peer, and ought to have the benefit thereof." This probably, through some confusion of mind, refers to the report to that effect made by the Committee for Privileges on 19 July 1661 on the claim of his father Nicholas for a Writ of Summons.

in the Report of the Committee for Privileges on the Banbury Peerage, of 13 April 1808, but so inaccurately, that they are reprinted in this Calendar, with the addition of the proceedings on four days on which the Lords, after having, on 17 Jan. 1692-3, rejected Charles Knowles' claim of Peerage, were engaged in an inquiry into the circumstances under which his trial below had not been proceeded with, Rochester having complained that "the Judges had misbehaved themselves to this House" in the matter;* but the question was dropped, after several adjournments. An incident of this case was the appearance of the Solicitor-General at the Bar, instead of the Attorney-General, when it was moved that the latter should always be an Assistant to the House, and the Committee for Privileges were ordered to prepare an Address to that effect.

Some minor cases connected with claims of Privilege of Parliament may be briefly noticed. Privilege was allowed to L. Grey in stay of a suit by E. Rochester for part of an estate given him by James II. after Monmouth's rebellion (No. 535), and to E. Mountague in respect of the cause célèbre in Chancery concerning the estate of the late Duke of Albemarle (No. 584). It was refused to L. Howard of Effingham in respect of his wife, the executrix of a trustee (No. 554), but allowed to L. Brooke, though an executor and trustee, on the ground that he had also a personal interest (No. 617). L. Gerard of Bromley's claim of privilege against a suit for recovery of dower was rejected by a resolution, embodied in a general Order, on the ground that he had not taken the Oaths (No. 561). The Standing Order that minor peers and widows of peers should not be allowed privilege of Parliament, saving their right of Peerage, was made after reading a Petition of Lady Mohun, complaining that her son, Charles, L. Mohun, had seized her jointure lands and the rest of her estate and threatened to insist on his privilege† (No. 715). Dr. Thomas Wood, Bishop of Coventry and Lich-

* Luttrell, III., 24 Jan. 1692-3, says, "This day L. Banbury was brought to the King's Bench bar, and pleaded his peerage; on which the Judges committed him to the King's Bench prison, and will consider of his plea."

† According to Luttrell (II., Dec. 13) Lady Mohun had, only two months before, been attempting to intercede with the King to pardon her son for his alleged complicity in the murder of Mountford.

field, by insisting on his privilege, delayed till after his death the prosecution of the well-known lawsuit, in which the Duke of Southampton, son of Charles II. by the Duchess of Cleveland, claimed an estate of 4,000*l.* a year, the property of his late wife, daughter of Sir Henry Wood, although he had had no issue by her. The King had promised to settle 2,000*l.* on the Duke, but had never done so (No. 597).* Dr. Thomas Watson, Bishop of St. David's, who had been excepted from the Act of Grace, was ordered to answer a Petition of inhabitants of his diocese, accusing him of oppressive and extortionate conduct. He was heard in the House, and declared that, as to the extortion, he would not insist on his privilege (No. 538). Privilege was waived also by the Earl of Suffolk, who, as Henry Howard, had been committed to the Fleet for non-payment of money which had come into his hands as a trustee (No. 513). The Surveyor-General of Woods begged pardon of the Duke of Bolton for having caused an Order to be served upon him relating to some timber in the New Forest, alleged to be ship timber, having been sold at an under value (No. 556). L. Abergavenny complained that on 13 March 1692-3 a constable, accompanied by a number of other persons, broke into his house (an upholsterer's, the whole of which he hired except the shop) without a warrant, about 6 o'clock in the morning, and rushed riotously into his room when he was in bed, on pretence of searching for a highwayman.† The evidence given at the Bar put a slightly different complexion on the incident, and his Lordship's petition was rejected (No. 734). A holograph Petition of Sir Robert Atkyns, the Speaker of the House, if indeed a case of Privilege of Parliament, may be noticed here. In this Petition, the spelling of which is curious, he claims, as Chief Baron, the right to sign the quarterly accounts of the Customs, and to receive the usual fee of 10*l.* for his signature, in preference to the four Barons of the Court of Exchequer, any one of whom the Comptroller-General claimed the liberty to attend for that purpose. Sir Robert, whose claim was disallowed, was heard in support of his Petition, and Mr. Lytcott, the Comptroller-General, and Parons Turton, Powell and Letchmere against it (No. 627). Sir Robert figures also in an Appeal, in which he offers to waive his privilege and go to a trial at Common Law. He had been charged by the Appellant, Thomas Tooke, whose guardian he was alleged to have been, of having misappropriated money during Tooke's minority. The Chief Baron had brought his Bill in the Exchequer, but had not sat as judge at the hearing; he sat uncovered among the Counsel, to whom he left his case to manage (No. 518).

The privilege of Peers to grant Protections to their servants occasioned, as usual, a variety of complaints, by persons so protected, of having been arrested for debt. In the case of John Smith, hunting groom to the Duke of Northumberland, the parties who arrested him were attached, though the House was informed that Smith received no wages (No. 657). John Beesley was ordered to attend the House on a charge of having distrained the cattle of some of E. Huntingdon's tenants. When remonstrated with, he replied, "My Lord is in the Tower, and may have his head chopped off; and then where must I have my money?" (No. 728). The abuses still connected with this Privilege, notwithstanding the regulations made by the House, are illustrated by a complaint against Lord Morley, a prominent offender,* for granting Protections without having them entered in the Parliament Office, which resulted in his committal to the Tower. It appears that the town of Hornby, where he lived, was nicknamed "the Whitefriars," no sheriff's officer venturing to serve a writ there without his leave, "and the men the blackguards" (No. 514). The failure of this regulation to suppress the practice of counterfeiting Protections is further shown in the case of John Slaughter, a plumber, of Rochester, who was ordered to be attached for counterfeiting E. Scarborough's Protection and having it entered in the Sheriff's Office (No. 618). Extracts from the MS. Minute Book of the proceedings of the House on the 17th of November 1692 and subsequent days, when several Protections were vacated, will be found under this number, and betray the entire ignorance and disregard of the Orders of the House on the part of individual lords granting Protections. The judgment of the House, granting costs against William Beaw, son of the Bishop of Llandaff, in an Appeal as to the validity of a grant of the Chancellorship of the Diocese jointly to two persons, was in danger of being frustrated by the bishop's Protection to his son as his Secretary (No. 522).* In connection with the privileges of the House may be mentioned the attachment of a person for assaulting the messenger sent to serve an Order of the House upon him (No. 585).

With regard to the King's servants, whose privileges, guarded by the Lord Chamberlain, still formed a matter of cognizance by the House, until their abolition in 1693, there are seven cases of Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber complaining of having been arrested for debt, and in six of these † privilege was allowed, the petition of the seventh, Richard Hargrave, being referred to the Committee for Privileges and not further proceeded with (No. 725). Privilege was allowed also to Mark Smith, one of the King's Watermen in Ordinary, who had been arrested on a pretended bail bond, and was ordered to be discharged (No. 709).

A considerable number of Estate Bills, mainly for the sale of lands for the payment of debts, were introduced during this period; but the great bulk of them became Acts with little or no alteration of any importance, and are thus of very little value as original records, the contents and schedules of rents annexed to some of them possessing interest only for the local historian. There are a few exceptions. The Bill for the sale of the Office of the Warden of the Fleet and thirteen adjoining houses and the custody of the Palaces at Westminster, the inheritance of which had descended to Thomas Bromhall, an infant under 7 years old, for payment of the debts of his uncle, the late Warden (No. 629), shows the numerous alterations made before it became an Act. It appears from the Papers that Richard Manlove, the Grantee of the Office, had forfeited it for extortion, and the King had granted it to Col. Baldwin Leighton, for his services; but a question had arisen whether, on forfeiture, it reverted to the Crown or to the person having the inheritance, and the Judges had decided in favour of the Reversioner, the assignee of Sir Jeremiah Whichcott, who was the original grantee. A Bill enables Thomas E. Sussex, by the sale of some of his property, to make provision for his wife and daughters, and to pay off a debt of 20,000*l*. "partly contracted by his "late father Francis, Lord Dacre, and partly occasioned by "the great expense he has been put to by his marriage" with Lady Anne, the 20,000*l*. promised him by Charles II. as her portion not having been paid, nor being likely to be paid* (No. 675). This Bill also reached only a First Reading, and does not appear to have been brought in again.† A Bill for the payment of the debts of John L. Stawell, which amounted to over 72,000*l*., exceeding the personal estate by nearly 27,000*l*., shows the protracted discussions, in the Lords' Select Committee, in a matter which created much public interest at the time (No. 682). The main dispute was whether the powers of sale should be extended to the whole real estate or not, and led to the abandonment of the Bill, William, the then L. Stawell, proposing to bring in another; and a Bill corresponding largely with this one was passed in 1694. A Bill, which became an Act, for an exchange of lands in Fulham between the Bishop of London and E. Monmouth (No. 699) contains, among others, a clause to let Great Hurlingham Field for building, and one relating to Hellbrook Common, "as being for the advantage of the poor." A Petition of John Bush (No. 681(b)) complains of having been kept out of his ancestral lands near Iford by Henry Baynton, who was then in possession, setting up his privilege as a Member of Parliament.

† Viz, Robert Fitz Gerald, William Killigrew, Thomas Waller, John Harrington, William Laycock and Sir John Ashfield (Nos. 583, 587, 626, 648, 705, and 714). Killigrew, according to Luttrell (III., 18 April 1693), was a favourite of the King, who gave him the coat in which he was shot in the shoulder at the Boyne, and which was exposed to view in the Tower.

* He married Lady Anne Palmer, alias Fitzroy, daughter of Lady Castlemaine by Charles II., who, says Brydges (Peerage, VI. 582), gave her 20,000*l*. on her marriage. He adds (ib. 581) that E. Sussex's embarrassments were caused by his extravagance, losses at play, and neglect of his affairs.

† Brydges, however, states that the Earl sold Hurstmonceaux and other lands in Sussex (ib. 581).

Of the other Private Bills, besides the Estates Bills, the most important were the two for D. Norfolk's divorce. The first (No. 24) was "opened" on 8 Jan. 1691-2 by E. Strafford, to whom the House had, the day before, given leave to "open the Bill,"* and the Duke himself was "heard as to the transaction of the business." The notes recorded in the MS. Minute Book are instructive as to the method of procedure. The arguments of Counsel on 12 Jan. suggest that the grounds of the protest of 19 Lords against the reception of the Bill were that it was unprecedented, as not being founded upon a previous trial, or an ecclesiastical sentence, as in the case of M. Northampton's Act. Some curious points in regard to the Divisions and the use of proxies on this Bill will be noticed later.† The Second Reading was finally negatived, but the objections taken to the Bill induced the Duke to bring an action of Trespass on the Case against Germaine in the King's Bench, in which the jury found for the Duke, with 100 marks damages, and were severely reprimanded by Chief Justice Holt for imposing so small and scandalous a fine. On 22 Dec. an almost identical Bill (No. 642) was offered to the House, but, after the Record of the trial below had been read, and the House had been informed that the Duchess, though willing to waive her privilege, had not been made a party, the motion to read the Bill was negatived. The Draft of the Act incorporating the Proprietors of the Waterworks at St. Paul's Shadwell (No. 531), and a Bill to restore to William Walcot his Patent for making sea water fresh (Nos. 723, 729), complete the list of strictly Private Bills.

* Clifford (Private Bill Legislation, I. 401) has been misled by the Index to the Lords' Journals, which connect with the Duke's divorce the proceedings on his petition of the previous month (last Calendar, No. 461) relating to the Office of Earl Marshal.

† An analysis of the entries in the Book of Proxies, taken in conjunction with the signatures to the Protest of 12 Jan., the names of the Tellers in the Divisions, and Bishop Burnet's comments on the proceedings on this Bill (Own Time, IV. 226-8), has revealed the names of almost all the Lords opposing the Bill, as well as those of some of its supporters, viz. :—

Besides the Appeals already mentioned, a few may be briefly noticed. No. 510 is an episode in the family history of the Northcotes of Hayne, the ancestors of the Earls of Iddesleigh. In No. 543 Lord Stawell is charged with having abused his position as a trustee, in defiance of an Order of Chancery obtained irregularly in 1688, "amidst the great " consternation, when L. Chancellor Jeffreys was hard to " be found." No. 579 relates to the disposition of the personal estate of William Earl of Meath. Penelope Mainstone, youngest daughter of Chief Justice Sir William Jones, and widow of an East India merchant, who had left her the residue of his property, is Respondent in an Appeal (No. 696) brought by her late husband's nephew, the son of a servant maid who afterwards married a country tailor, for his uncle's property. No. 720 terminates a lawsuit, as to the performance of a marriage settlement, between Charles Lord Baltimore, and his sister's husband, Sir William Blakiston, Bart., who had, by a Chancery Decree, obtained possession of his Lordship's manor of Danby Wiske during the latter's absence as Governor of Maryland. either in the MS. Minutes or in the printed Journal as present on that day. If they voted in the final Division, they bring up the number of opponents ascertained to 37, of whom 35 were among the 40 recorded as voting against the Second Reading. misfortune, whereby his life was in danger." No. 704 represents a quarrel over the personal estate left by Dr. Thomas Yate, late Principal of Brazenose College, Oxford. No. 650 gives some interesting particulars as to a ship sent to Algiers to ransom 48 English captives with money collected by charity, and paid for that purpose by the King and the Bishop of London. The money was embezzled by an English merchant at Algiers, and the ship would have been seized by the "bassaw," and its master enslaved, but for the forcible intervention of Lord Berkeley, who, with Sir Cloudesley Shovell, arrived with an English squadron under the command of the Duke of Grafton. In No. 669 the Appellants, West India planters, complain of extortion on the part of the African Company before granting them licence to trade with Africa for slaves; and No. 679 relates to the alleged concealment of prizes and prize goods by the East India Company, in order to defraud the Lord High Admiral of his tenths and the seamen's sixths promised by the Company in return for the help given them by the King's ships in their war with the Great Mogul. Nos. 606 and 636 relate to the ownership of a part of the royal forest of Duffield, called the Milkey, which Charles II. had granted to Thomas Eyre, stated to have been Counsel for one of the Commoners, as a reward for his reporting the damage done by the Commoners to the Crown property. In No. 698 the question turned on some old mills on the river of Merton Abbey having been deprived of water by the erection of a new mill. In No. 707 Sir Thomas Fitch, Bart., and John Fitch, the Appellant and Respondent, were partners in the work of building fortifications at Chatham, Portsmouth, and elsewhere, in which the latter was well skilled and was the active partner, the former being alleged to have taken fraudulent advantage of the money passing through his hands. No. 670 discloses a money bargain for the appointment of a Sworn Clerk in the Six Clerks' Office. No. 580 was occasioned by the competing claims of Shrewsbury Grammar School and Clive Chapel on the rectory of Cherbury, by a grant from Queen Elizabeth; and Nos. 716 and 590 were brought respectively in connection with Bennet's Charity, under which the tithes of Bourton were to be paid to the poor of Buckingham, Beachampton, Calverton and Stony Stratford, and Norton's (Bellamy's) Charity to the poor of Oundle and some other towns, the question in the latter being whether a purchaser of lands charged with the Charity, without notice of the charge, could be held liable to contribute.

With regard to the particulars of Divisions recorded in the MS. Minute Book, it should be observed, in the first place, that although the number of the Lords voting "Content" is always placed first, the order in which the names of the Tellers are entered affords no clue to the side on which they voted. The rule apparently followed by the Clerk was to enter them according to their precedence, invariably so when differing in rank, and with only a few exceptions when of the same rank, in which case the Clerk might often be uncertain as to their precedence without consulting Garter's Roll.

The unrestricted use of Proxies in Divisions appears at this period to have attracted the attention of the House. In the proceedings on D. Norfolk's first Divorce Bill (No. 524), which aroused a great deal of religious party feeling as well as personal partizanship,* in the first seven of the nine Divisions Proxies were used, which turned the scale against the Bill in five cases, in three only by an equality of votes, in accordance with the old rule, "semper præsumitur pro negante."† At length, on 16 Feb. 1691-2, it was moved to consider whether Proxies should "be used in the proceedings on this "Bill of the Duke of Norfolk," upon which the previous question was put and carried by only three votes, the majority using 9 Proxies against 17 counted by the minority. The main question was then voted upon without Proxies, and was carried against the further use of Proxies by 13 votes. The defeated party protested against this decision on three grounds, first, that voting by proxy was an inherent right of the Peers; secondly, that the persons interested had not been heard; and thirdly, that it was unreasonable to use Proxies in a vote directed against the use of Proxies, thus making, in effect, the Lords concerned to vote against themselves. The right asserted in the first of these objections has never been abolished, and it was not until 1868 that the practice of calling for proxies on a division was formally forbidden by a Standing Order which expressly contemplates its own possible suspension. The principle involved in this vote, which excluded Proxies from the decisive Division on the Bill, had already been embodied, in 1689, in a Standing Order allowing them to be used in preliminaries to private causes, but not in giving judgment;* but it was only in 1697 that, by Standing Order CIX., their use was prohibited in all judicial causes, "although the proceedings be by way of Bill." In the following Session Proxies were used in preliminary Divisions on the Banbury Peerage Claim, one being on the Previous Question to the main question as to the Petitioner's right (No. 631); and they were also used in the Division rejecting D. Norfolk's second Divorce Bill (No. 642).

* Burnet's Own Time, IV. 228.

† One of these Divisions was upon a proposal that the Speaker put off his hat when the Duchess comes in (to go to the chair set for her at the Table), and then sit down and speak to her with his hat on. After debate, this was agreed to, a proposal that he should stand with his hat off when speaking to her being negatived; and the same rule was ordered to be observed when he addressed any Lord or other person.

The germ of a further restriction of the use of Proxies is contained in the proceedings on the Place Bill (No. 643). Macaulay, in his account of the debates on this Bill, mentions that three out of the seven Proxies recorded against the passing of the Bill "were questioned, and were with difficulty admitted."† The Proxy Book shows that the three Proxies entered on the 3rd Jan. 1692-3, the day of the Division, were those of Huntingdon, Hatton and Essex, held by Scarsdale, Nottingham and Portland respectively, the first and last having been given only on that day. The House ultimately allowed these Proxies, without dividing, though it would appear that a Division was challenged but not persisted in; and it was not until four years afterwards, on 20 March 1696-7, that an Order was made "that no Proxy entered in the "Book after Prayers shall be made use of the same day," which was added to the Standing Orders on 16 Jan. 1702-3.

* Proxies were used in the Appeal of Englefield (No. 628), in the following Session, in deciding the question whether the Report should be then made, preparatory to giving judgment, thus adhering to the letter but disregarding the spirit of this Standing Order.

† Hist. England, VI. 354. His statement that there were only two Proxies for the Bill is wrong. The MS. Minute Book shows there were three. The Bill was lost by 2 votes, not, as he says, by 3.

510. Jan. 2. Northcote v. Northcote. — Amended Petition and Appeal of William Northcote, Esq., and Alice his wife, executrix of John Northcote, deceased. Sir John Northcote, of Hayin, co. Devon, in 24 Car. I. devised his estate, worth 30,000*l.*, to trustees for a term of 99 years, commencing at his death, for raising 4,000*l.* for the benefit of his younger children, as directed by his will, and settled the inheritance on his eldest son Arthur, with remainders in tail male. He paid debts, contracted by Arthur, amounting to 3,000*l.*, in addition to which he paid for him 600*l.* to Thomas Panton, Esq., and paid and secured 500*l.* to Henry Travers upon several judgments, whereof he procured assignments, to reimburse the same out of Arthur's estate, and stood bound for him for 200*l.* each, to the late D. Albemarle and Henry Northleigh, Esq., and promised to countersecure his sureties for 200*l.* each to Lady Clifford and Dr. Bidgood, and caused countersecurity for the said debts to be taken from him. In June 1675 he made his will, in which, on condition that Arthur should discharge his executors, namely, the Petitioner William and John Northcote, deceased, of the sums due to D. Albemarle and Northleigh, and of 200*l.* due to John, the testator's son, for which he stood bound, and also of Travers' judgment, whereof 100*l.* had been paid, he forgave Arthur all the other sums, except 100*l.*, which he bequeathed to Arthur's daughter Elizabeth. Sir John died on 24 June 1676, and his executors paid the debts to Lady Clifford and Dr. Bidgood, and what was due on Travers' judgments. Sir Arthur reimbursed them these sums and entered on the estate, and took all the profits thereof, without regard to the trust for 4,000*l.*, and never paid the debt to Northleigh nor the other debts mentioned in the will. An ejectment being brought under the title of the trustees, Sir Arthur brought a Bill in Chancery against the Petitioner William, as the surviving executor, and the legatees and trustees for relief touching the 4,000*l.*, and the sums paid by Sir John or out of the estate and referred to in his will, and particularly the debts to Lady Clifford and Bidgood and the judgments obtained by Panton and Travers, on pretence that Sir John had forgiven him all the debts except 160*l.* still due to Travers. Petitioner answered that Sir John had not released him from any of the debts otherwise than as mentioned in the will, and that Panton's judgment was never intended to be released, as the assignment contained an express covenant that satisfaction should not be acknowledged thereon, and an action of covenant brought for the breach thereof, and that the same and the money due on Travers' judgment were expressly intended not to be forgiven. The L. Keeper Guilford on 11 June, 35 Car. II., decreed to Sir Arthur the benefit of the will, though he had not performed the conditions, and ordered the executors to reimburse him; but before an account was taken, Sir Arthur died heavily in debt. His son Sir Francis brought a Bill in 1689 for relief against the ejectment at law, and to have the benefit of the account decreed to be made by his father, and of the money decreed to be reimbursed towards discharge of the 4,000*l.*, and in colour made Lady Elizabeth, Sir Arthur's widow and executrix, a Defendant, who has since obtained a report ex parte against Petitioner for 2,727*l.*, including moneys received by Lady Elizabeth of one George Joy upon the sale of Beauford, and paid to one Edward Roe upon the sale of the manor of Pyworthy. Appeal from the said Decree and proceedings thereon, and pray that Sir Francis and Lady Elizabeth may be ordered to answer, and all further proceedings stayed. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Jo. Hawes and John Rowe. L. J., XV. 31. [The Appeal was heard and dismissed on 16 Feb. 1691-2, the Solicitor-General and Mr. Rowe appearing for Appellants, and Mr. Trevor and Mr. Finch for Respondents. See also under date 10 Dec. 1702 and Colles' Cases in Parliament, p. 287.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 16 Jan. 1691-2. Answer of Sir Francis Northcote, Bart. Respondent believes there were three decrees made in the cause, but he was not a party to either of them. Sir Arthur and the Appellants and trustees have received more than the 4,000*l.* with interest out of the trust estate. The Appellants alone have received 3,000*l.*, and have a decree against Sir Arthur for an account of his receipts. Appellants, with the privity of the trustees, brought their action of ejectment against Respondent, simply to oppress him. He has brought his Bill against Appellants and others to stop proceedings on the ejectment, and hopes therefore that the Appeal will be dismissed against him, as not having been a party to the former decrees, but claiming under settlements made long before them. Appellants have appealed against the first decree and not against the subsequent ones, and also against a report and decree thereon to which Respondent was not a party. Signed by Respondent. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 16 Jan. 1691-2. Answer of Dame Elizabeth Northcote. Sir John's executors, under colour of some countersecurities given to Sir John and some assignments of judgments, unjustly compelled Sir Arthur to pay 1,600*l.* and upwards for debts from which Sir John had discharged him. As to the trust estate charged with raising the 4,000*l.*, the executors received part of the profits, and Sir Arthur the rest, and afterwards, the executor John Northcote being about to marry the Appellant Alice, and not being able to make any jointure, as no part of the estate had been allotted for Sir Arthur's support until the 4,000*l.* was raised, it was agreed by all parties, by articles of 30 Sept. 1677, that part of the trust estate should be exempted from the 4,000*l.* during Sir Arthur's life, the profits to go to the maintenance of Sir Arthur and his family, and another part, similarly exempted, to the maintenance of John Northcote. John afterwards died, and Appellants intermarrying endeavoured to set aside the articles, and evict Sir Arthur from the estate, whereupon the latter brought a Bill against them and the legatees and trustees to be repaid the 1,600*l.* with interest. A decree thereon was made on 11 June, 35 Car. II., another on a rehearing on 8 Nov., 36 Car. II., and a third, on a further rehearing by L. Chanecellor Jeffreys, on 3 June, 3 Jac. II., when Sir Arthur was ordered to pay to Mr. Northleigh a certain debt, not previously insisted on, and the former decrees were in all other respects confirmed. Respondent, after Sir Arthur's death, revived the decrees as his executrix, and on 31 March 1691 got the Master's report showing 2,727*l.* due to her from Appel-

511. Jan. 2. Small Tithes Recovery Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Act for the more speedy and easy recovery of Small Tithes.

The Bill, as brought from the Commons, consists of 15 clauses. It omits Sect. xiv. of the Act of 1696 (7-8 Will. III. c. 6.) and adds two clauses, Nos. 5 and 14, which are not in that Act, viz. :—

Clause 5. Provided also and be it enacted, that no person shall have any other suit or remedy for the recovery of any small tithes, offerings, oblations, obventions or compositions than is given or provided by this Act, unless the title be concerned, or the value of the tithes demanded of any one person in any one year shall exceed the value of forty shillings.

Clause 14. Provided also that this Act, nor anything herein-contained, shall extend to any Peer* of this realm, but such proceedings may be had against him or her as might have been before the making of this Act, anything herein-contained to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Clauses 3 and 13 are the same verbatim as Sections iv. and xiii. of the Act, and the remaining 11 clauses agree with the rest of the Act, except in the following passages, where the Act omits the words in square brackets and adds those in italics, viz. :—

Clause 1 (Sects. i. and ii.).

. . . detained, where the same do not amount to above the yearly value of forty shillings from any one person,† Be it enacted by the [King and Queen's] King's most excellent [Majesties'] Majesty† . . .

. . . [whereof] neither of [them] which Justices of Peace† is to be patron . . .

. . . obventions or compositions [as]† aforesaid, [who]. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if hereafter any suit or complaint shall be brought to two or more Justices of the Peace as aforesaid, concerning small tithes, offerings, oblations, obventions or compositions as aforesaid, the said Justices† are hereby authorized and required . . .

. . . as upon the merits of the [case]† cause shall appear just.

Clause 2 (Sect. iii.).

. . . detaining them by the space of [six] three days . . .

. . . shall and may make public† sale of the same . . .

Clause 4 (Sect. v.).

. . . that this Act, [nor] or anything herein-contained, shall not† extend . . .

Clause 6 (Sect. vi.).

. . . unless the complaint shall be made within the space of [one year] two years . . .

Clause 7 (Sect. vii.).

. . . county, riding,† city, town-corporate or division . . .

. . . [and] or† the major part of them shall find cause . . .

. . . writ out of [their Majesties']† his Majesty's courts . . .

* The words ("or Peeress") were here added by the Lords, and agreed to by the Commons (C. J., X. 658). The amendment is a purely verbal one, in view of the words ("or her") which occur later on.

Parchment Collection.—[The Bill was brought from the Commons this day (L. J., XV. 14), and referred on 14 Jan. to a Select Committee (Ib. 29). The Committee met, with the Bishop of London in the Chair, on Jan. 16, but only to adjourn, and again on the 18th, when, after reading the Bill, they agreed to postpone the clause relating to limitation of complaints (sect. vi. of Act), and adjourned till the 19th to hear the Archbishop of York. On the 19th, L. Cornwallis in the Chair, the Bill was amended by adding the Provisos X., A., and B., by inserting the words ("or Ecclesiastical Judge") after ("Justices of the Peace") in the places corresponding with Sect. vi., line 2; Sect. viii., lines 2, 6, 9; Sect. x., line 4; Sect. xi., line 3; and Sect. xii., line 1 of the Act (Fol. Ed.), and by making the two verbal alterations in Clause 9 (Sect. ix.) and Clause 14.‡ The Commons agreed to the two verbal alterations, disagreed to Proviso X., and agreed to Provisos A. and B., with amendments (C. J., X. 658). A Conference was had and reported on 22 Feb., and the Report ordered to be read the next day. (L. J., XV. 88.) No further proceedings, however, are recorded, and the Bill dropped with the Session; the House adjourning on 24 Feb. till 12 April, when the Prorogation supervened. (Ib. 94, 95.)] after such complaint made and any proceeding thereupon for the same matter or thing, have any further or other remedy in their Majesties' Courts Ecclesiastical within this Kingdom; and if at any time hereafter any such suit for such tithes, offerings, oblations or obventions shall be commenced in any Ecclesiastical Court, the proceedings in such suit shall be summarily and viva voce, without delay or vexation, and shall be heard and determined in one or two Court days at most; And that no person shall hereafter be excommunicated for not obeying the summons or sentence of the Ecclesiastical Court for such suit for Small Tithes. But if any person shall be cited before the Ordinary for not paying his tithes, oblations, offerings or other Ecclesiastical dues, and, upon return made of such citation, shall not appear at the time appointed, and shall wilfully abstain from appearing for one Court day after the said return, or, appearing, shall not make answer to the Petition or Libel of the Complainant, that then the Ordinary shall examine upon oath ex parte what Small Tithes or composition for the same, and what offerings, oblations and other ecclesiastical dues were justly due from the person or persons so summoned at the time of the said summons, and proceed to give sentence as if the said person had appeared and answered; and upon the disobedience of such person to the said sentence, the Ecclesiastical Judge shall certify the same unto two Justices of the Peace of the County where the cause of such suits or complaints shall arise, who shall have full power and authority by virtue of this Act, and are hereby required upon receipt of such certificate, to send their warrant or warrants under their hands and seals, directed to the Constable, Churchwardens, or Tythingmen of any such parish, township or village where the person or persons, whose disobedience to any such sentence shall be so certified, then hath or shall have any goods or chattels, thereby requiring them to levy all and every such sum and sums of money which shall be mentioned and expressed in such certificate by distress and sale of the said goods and chattels or any part thereof, restoring unto such person or persons the overplus of such goods or chattels over and above the said sum or sums of money, and the reasonable charges of making such distress, which he or they are to deduct out of the money raised by sale of such goods and chattels; which said constables, churchwardens and tythingmen are hereby authorised and required to levy the said money accordingly, and to pay the money so levied to such person or persons, his or their assigns, who first commenced the said suit in the Ecclesiastical Court; And in case the Ecclesiastical Judge shall proceed otherwise, then the suit is and shall be dismissed from the Ecclesiastical Court with costs. 512. Jan. 4. Bishopric of London Act.—Amended Draft of an Act to enable the Bishop of London and Trustees to sell the manor of Bushley, in the county of Worcester, part of the Bishopric of London, and to purchase other lands to be annexed to the said Bishopric, for the improvement thereof. The Lords' Amendments (Com. Book, 7 Jan.) are to leave out ("or three lives") after ("twenty-one years") in the first enacting Clause enabling the Bishop to grant leases of the lands to be purchased, and to fix the yearly rent to be reserved on such purchased lands at 80*l.* The Draft, as thus amended, is identical with the engrossed Act, the Commons' Amendments (C. J., X. 656) being corrections of errors in engrossing it. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; Royal Assent 24 Feb. (L. J., XV. 14, 93), 3-4 W. & M., c. 21. in Long Calendar.]

513. Jan. 4. V. Villiers v. E. Suffolk.—Petition of Edward, Lord Viscount Villiers, on the behalf of his sisters, daughters of Sir Edward Villiers, knight, deceased. Petitioner's father on 22 Dec. 1677, settled on Henry Howard, Esq. (now E. Suffolk), George V. Grandison and Richard Butt, Esq., certain lands in Kent, and a considerable sum of money, in trust to raise portions for Petitioner's sisters. 2,000*l.*, being part of this sum, was put into the hands of Sir Stephen Fox at interest, and security taken for it in trust as aforesaid in the names of Henry Howard and V. Grandison. The latter having got the 2,000*l.* out of Sir Stephen's hands, and neglecting to pay it, a Bill in Chancery was brought against them, and the Court on 1 July 1690, ordered them to pay the sum with interest. Howard neglecting to pay his share, the Court on 13 Dec. 1690, committed him to the Fleet prison, but as he is now an Earl, no further proceedings will be allowed in Chancery without an order from their Lordships. The Standing Order of 12 Nov. 1685, refuses privilege to Peers, as trustees. Prays to be allowed to proceed against the Earl. [Read this day and referred to Committee for Privileges. (L. J., XV. 15.) The Earl declared to the Committee that he waived all privilege. Priv. Book, 11 Jan.; L. J., XV. 25.]

514. Jan. 4. L. Morley's Privilege (G. Wilson). — Petition of George Wilson, junior, of Kendal in the county of Westmoreland, Gent. In the counties of Lancaster, York and Westmoreland there are above sixty persons (among whom are Thos. Powley, a woolstapler, Ralph Thompson, Baxter Young, John Buckley, Gent., Thos. Batty, clerk, John Shephard, Shearman Dyer, and William Kellett, inn-keeper) who pretend and produce protections from L. Morley, though none of them are entered by the Clerk of the House; and under colour of these protections, several of the said persons have been lately discharged from prison, and the rest are looked upon as men not subject to the law. And in the town of Hornby, where his Lordship lives, no sheriff's officer dare attempt to arrest any inhabitant without his Lordship's licence first had, several bailiffs, who have attempted to do so, having been whipt and put in the stocks by his Lordship's order. Thomas Powley, having been arrested in last Trinity vacation at the instance of Petitioner, as clerk to his father, an attorney, at the suit of John Pickering, for 500*l.* on a writ of capias issuing out of the Court of Common Pleas, produced a pretended protection from L. Morley, as steward and overseer of his Lordship's collieries, in and about London and Westminster, where Powley had never in fact been employed in his Lordship's service, but was a woolstapler, living with his family at Kendal. Petitioner was advised that this protection is void, not having been entered in the Parliament Office, as required by their Lordships' order of 28 March 1690, and he therefore was induced to hold Powley to bail. After his arrest, Powley, to colour his claim of privilege, went for a few days to live with L. Morley as his gardener. Complaint being made of the alleged breach of privilege, Petitioner was sent for 200 miles off by a messenger and is now in custody of Black Rod; and L. Morley has brought an action of scandalum magnatum against him for 1,000*l.* damages on pretence of Petitioner's saying that his Lordship was no Peer nor qualified to grant protections. Prays to be discharged and to be heard by Counsel at the Bar. L. J., XV. 10. [The House was first moved in this matter on 15 Dec. 1691. Thomas Powley (sworn) stated that he had served L. Morley the greater part of half a year, and received 20*l.* a year. George Jopson (sworn) said he saw Wilson arrest Powley. He had known Powley several years. Powley had served L. Morley half a year. L. Morley stated that Powley was his menial servant. The House then ordered Wilson to be brought in custody. (L. J., 687. MS. Min.) The above Petition being read this day, George Wilson was called in, and said that Powley was no servant of L. Morley's. He paid his club with L. Morley. Produced a certificate of the Borough of Kendal. Has an affidavit of three persons, that Powley is not a servant of his Lordship, nor was ever reputed so to be. Is an agent for several attorneys, and had been told by them that there are 100 persons protected in the county. L. Morley came and offered to discharge this person. L. Morley asked him why he was so hot, and deponent told him it would vex any man who had been sent for 200 miles. L. Morley's town is called the Whitefriars and the men the blackguards. L. Morley stated that the man was his servant. His Lordship's witnesses were then called in. George Jopson: Heard Powley say he was [L. Morley's servant] before he was arrested. Baxter Young: My Lord owned him to be his servant some time before the arrest. William Morland [or Morley]: Had heard Powley acknowledge he was L. Morley's servant. The parties having withdrawn, Question asked by Speaker: Whether the House is not of opinion this Powley was not L. Morley's servant? Agreed he was not. Proposed, That L. Morley ask the pardon of the House.

516. Jan. 4. Westminster (Small Debts) Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Act for recovering of Small Debts and for relieving of Small Debtors, in Westminster and the Liberties thereof. Whereas by an Act of Parliament made in the seven and twentieth year of Queen Elizabeth, intituled An Act for the Good Government of the City and Borough of Westminster, in the County of Middlesex, it is provided and enacted, That there shall be for ever established in the said City and Borough and within the Liberties of the same for the better government of the inhabitants thereof two high burgesses and ten other burgesses and twelve assistants to the said burgesses, to be from time to time elected and constituted as in the said Act is limited and appointed. And whereas by one other Act made in the thirtieth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled An Act for making part of the parish of St. Martin in the Fields a new parish, to be called the parish of St. Anne within the liberty of Westminster, It is enacted for the better government of the said parish, that the Dean of the Collegiate School of St. Peter in Westminster, or his successor, or the High Steward there, for the time being, or his lawful deputy, with the said burgesses and assistants or the major part of them, shall and are thereby authorised at a time in the said Act limited yearly, to elect two or more of the inhabitants of the said parish, and to be additional burgesses and assistants for the said parish. And by one other Act made in the first year of King James the Second, intituled An Act for erecting a new parish to be called the parish of St. James, within the liberty of Westminster, It is also enacted that the said Dean of St. Peter's in Westminster, or his successor, or the High Steward there for the time being, or his lawful deputy, shall yearly nominate two sufficient persons inhabiting within the said parish, to be additional burgesses for the said parish, and together with the burgesses of the city and borough then in being, or the major part of them, nominate and elect two other able persons inhabiting in the said parish, to be assistants to the said burgesses for the purposes in the said Act appointed. And, whereas, there are many poor debtors inhabiting within the said city and borough, who for want of some such like good order and provision for their relief, as hath been by divers Acts of Parliament provided in the like cases for poor debtors within the said City of London, are subject to great oppression and other distresses. Wherefore, to the intent that some full and ample provision may be made for the relief of such poor debtors, Be it enacted by the King and Queen's most Excellent Majesties, etc., That the said Dean of Westminster and the High Steward and his Deputy and the two chief burgesses and other the burgesses of the said city and borough of Westminster and the liberty thereof, appointed or to be appointed by virtue of the said recited Acts, or any twelve of them (whereof the said Dean and High Steward, or his deputy, or one of the two chief burgesses to be one, from time to time for ever to be appointed during their office) shall and are hereby authorized and required, monthly to assign six of the said burgesses and six of the assistants of the burgesses of the said city and borough to be Commissioners of a Court of Requests, and they or any three or more of them so assigned, shall meet and sit once or oftener in every week, at nine of the clock in the morning, in the Town Court House at Westminster, or in some other convenient place, there to hear and determine all matters brought before them between party and party, as herein and hereby it is directed and appointed, and from time to time to appoint some fit and able person to be Registrar of the said Court, and some such other person to be a messenger or beadle, of the same, and to hold the first meeting on the first or second Monday of the month which shall happen after the first of the four usual Feasts, videlicet, the Feast of the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary, the Nativity of Saint John the Baptist, Saint Michael the Archangel, and the birth of Our Lord God after the Royal Assent given to this Act.

And be it further enacted, That every person and persons inhabiting or that shall inhabit within the said city and borough, or the liberties thereof, being a tradesman, victualler, or labouring man, or the widow of such which now have, or hereafter shall have, any debt or debts owing to him, her, or them, not amounting to forty shillings by any person or persons being a victualler, tradesman, or labouring man, inhabiting or that shall inhabit within the said city and borough and the liberties thereof, shall or may cause such debtor or debtors to be warned or summoned by the beadle or Officer of the said Courts of Requests holden in the place aforesaid. And that the said Commissioners, or any three or more of them shall have full power and authority by virtue of this Act from time to time to set down such order or orders between such party or parties, plaintiffs, and his, her, or their debtor or debtors, defendants, touching such debts, not amounting to the value of forty shillings, in question before them, as they shall find to stand with equity and good conscience. All such their order or orders to be registered in a book, in like manner as they are or have been accustomed to be registered in the Court of Requests, held in the Guildhall of the City of London. And as well the party plaintiff and debtor or defendant shall, and is hereby required to observe, perform and keep the same in all points. And that for the more due proceeding herein, It shall be lawful for the same Commissioners, or any three or more of them, to minister an oath to the plaintiff or defendant, and also to such witnesses as shall be produced on each party, if the same Commissioners, or any three or more of them, shall so think meet.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if in any action of debt, or action upon the case upon an assumpsit for the recovery of any debt to be sued or prosecuted against any person or persons aforesaid in any of their Majesty's Courts at Westminster, or elsewhere out of the said Court of Requests, it shall appear to the Judges of the Court where such action shall be sued or prosecuted that the debt to be recovered by the plaintiff in such action doth not amount to the sum of forty shillings, and the defendant in such action shall duly prove either by sufficient testimony, or by his, her, or their own oath to be allowed by any the judge or judges of the said Court where such action shall depend, that at the time of the commencing of such action such defendant or defendants was or were inhabiting and residing in the city or borough of Westminster or the liberties thereof as aforesaid, that in such case the said judge or judges shall not allow to the said plaintiff or plaintiffs any costs of suit, but shall award that the same plaintiff or plaintiffs shall pay so much ordinary costs to the party defendant as the said defendant shall justly prove before the said judge or judges it hath truly cost him, her or them in defence of the said suit. And be it enacted, that if any such plaintiff or creditor, defendant or debtor, after warning given him, her or them in manner and form before in this Act mentioned by the said Officer of the said Court of Requests, shall without some just or reasonable cause of excuse, refuse to appear in the said Court before the said Commissioners, or shall not perform such order as the said Commissioners or any three or more of them shall set down, for or concerning such debts as aforesaid, That then it shall be lawful for the said Officer of the said Court, or any of the Constables of the said city or borough of Westminster or the liberties thereof, by order of the said Commissioners or any three or more of them, by warrant under their hands and seals, to commit such party or parties to prison in the common gaol there, to remain until he, she, or they shall perform the order of the said Commissioners in that behalf.

Provided always and be it enacted, that the like fees for the order, commons, and other process of this Court shall be paid to the officers and ministers thereof as are paid to the like officers of the Court of Conscience called the Court of Requests sitting in the Guildhall in London and no other.

Provided also that this Act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to any debt for any rent upon any lease of lands or tenement, or any other real contracts, nor to any other debts that shall arise by reason of any cause concerning testaments or matrimony, or anything concerning or properly belonging to the Ecclesiastical Courts, albeit the same shall be under forty shillings, anything herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

518. Jan. 9. Tooke v. Sir R. Atkyns.—Petition and Appeal of Thomas Tooke, Esq. Sir Robt. Atkyns, Knight of the Bath, L. Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer, as guardian of Petitioner and executor to his great-grandfather, received large sums during Petitioner's minority, and Petitioner having brought a Bill in Chancery against him and Petitioner's mother Mrs. Elizabeth Reynell and others, the Court, on 19 April 1687, decreed an account.* Sir Robert proposed at the hearing to refer the matter as to himself to the Lord Commissioner (then Mr. Serjeant) Rawlinson, whose decision should be binding, and Petitioner consented. The referee awarded Sir Robert to pay 600*l.* in satisfaction of all demands. Sir Robert, after informing the Court that he was content to comply with the award, delayed payment, and imposed certain articles on Petitioner, then in great distress and a prisoner in the Fleet, binding them to assist each other to recover 1,800*l.* from Petitioner's mother, viz., 1,200*l.* for Petitioner and 600*l.* for Sir Robert, who was to pay his share of the costs of the recovery, and Petitioner was not to release his mother, though the award itself contained no such direction. Petitioner spent above 200*l.* in prosecuting his mother, and she above 400*l.* in her defence, and Sir Robert, whom she called as a witness, testified his belief that she had spent much more for Petitioner's education and maintenance than ever she had received of his estate, all which Sir Robert must have known, when he imposed the articles on Petitioner. Sir Robert afterwards, having lent Petitioner 220*l.* on a mortgage of the reversion of some houses in London, included the 600*l.* awarded money in the mortgage, making it one for 820*l.*, and then brought a Bill in Exchequer to compel Petitioner to pay the 820*l.* or foreclose, and the Court on 2 July 1691 decreed in his favour. Appeals against this decree. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and John Squibb. L. J., XV. 22. [At the hearing of this Appeal, M. Halifax was chosen Speaker pro tem., in place of the Respondent (ib. 71, 77, 92). On 11 Feb. Counsel called in. Sir W. Williams (for Appellant): We hope this Decree shall be corrected. It may stand good for the 200*l.*, but not for the rest. Mr. Finch (for Appellant): The money lent was but 220*l.* Sir Robert Atkyns was charged with this. The Court of Chancery made a decree that they should all go to an account. The L. Chief Baron referred his part to Serjeant Rawlinson. Upon that reference, proposed by Sir Robert, Counsel were heard, and it was awarded that Sir Robert should pay Mr. Tooke

600*l*. There was a confirmation of this award. Upon Sir Robert's lending the 200*l*., there were new Articles agreed on, that he should prosecute Mrs. Reynell. Sir Robert was examined as a witness for Mrs. Reynell, and said that he verily believed she had spent more on bringing him up than ever she had out of the estate. We have a bundle of receipts under Sir Robert's hand. He received the rents and profits of the estate. The money was paid, pursuant to the award, but Tooke was in the Fleet when he got the Articles and was in hope to get some of it again. [Counsel propose to read an evidence, and the other side oppose it, not having been read below.] If we do not satisfy your Lordships that this was an unjust award, there is no colour for this decree. The Articles are read. Mr. Dodd (for Respondent): Reads the words of the decree. Upon this decree Sir Robert thought himself safe. I agree he referred it to Serjeant Rawlinson. Mr. Tooke, when he saw Sir Robert would controvert this award, said "I believe your Lordship never received one penny." Mr. Tooke proposed the security, if Sir Robert would advance the money. This we have in proof. Mr. Finch was heard in reply, and proposed to read Sir Robert's receipts for moneys received out of the estate. Counsel withdrew on the point, whether they shall be read or not, the same not having been read or offered in the Exchequer. Proposed, to ask the Barons of the Exchequer whether the award was before them? Turton, B.: The proceedings in one Court ought not to be read in another Court, without an order. The award was before us and was debated some time before us. Then, after debate, Question put, Whether the Counsel for the Appellant shall be permitted to read the Receipts offered by them, and said to be subscribed by the L. Chief Baron? Previous Question put and resolved in the Negative. Counsel called in and asked what they had to say more. Mr. Finch said they had no more, and withdrew. The Speaker then reported, and, after debate, further debate adjourned to the 15th inst. (MS. Min.)—On 13 Feb. the House ordered the L. Commissioner Rawlinson to attend on the 15th (L. J., XV. 75), and also, at the desire of Sir Robert Atkins, that the Receipts offered to be read, should be then read. (MS. Min.)—On 15 Feb. the House went on with the debate about the points of fact, not agreed how it was stated by the Counsel, and concerning the L. Commissioner Rawlinson's being called in, pursuant to the order, to give an account of the award made by him, and after some time spent therein, it was Resolved by 29 votes to 19 not to call him in. Counsel were then called in, one on each side. Mr. Finch: Mr. Tooke being in the Fleet, Sir Robert lends the money, and before he lets him have it, makes articles for Mr. Tooke to sign. The young man must make a woman reimburse money again, which she could not do, being married. Either the mother received it or not, so either way there was nothing to be had. Sir Robert takes a security from the young man. Mr. Dodd: The question is whether we shall have the 820*l*. or lose the 600*l*. It is insinuated as if Mr. Tooke were a weak man. He was not. He was not in prison at that time at Sir Robert's suit. Mr. Tooke said he never believed Sir Robert received any of the 600*l*. He paid the 600*l*. upon articles. I cannot say there is proof Mr. Tooke looked into the particulars. Mr. Finch was heard in reply. Counsel withdrew. Lechmere, B. was heard: It was to us an ordinary ease upon Bill and Answer. Turton, B. was heard. The L. C. Baron insisted he was injured by the award. Mr. Tooke by Articles agreed the 600*l*. should be paid. Nothing appeared before us upon what ground Serjeant Rawlinson made his award. After debate, the House ordered that precedents should be searched, of affirming part of a decree and reversing the rest; and if, upon new evidence being offered, a new trial below has not been ordered, and of a decree having been affirmed and a release set aside. (L. J., XV. 77, MS. Min.)—On 19 Feb. Sir Robert Atkyns was heard to speak himself out of his place. He proposed to leave it to a trial at law, and some proposals were made to him.* He then withdrew, and Mr. Halifax was chosen Speaker pro. tem. After some time spent in debate, it was Moved That Mr. Tooke's Counsel be called in and asked whether he will accept of what the L. C. Baron offers.† Ordered, That the debate on this matter be adjourned till to-morrow. (L. J., XV. 85. MS. Min.)—On 20 Feb. the debate was further adjourned till the 23rd (L. J., XV. 86), on which day it was again adjourned till the 24th (ib. 89).—On 24 Feb., the debate being resumed, the proposals on either side were read. The cause of Zouch and his wife, 22 Nov. 1670,‡ and several other precedents were read, wherein the Lords have done more than affirm or reverse upon hearing Counsel upon Appeals. After debate, the Question was put, Whether this Cause shall not be referred to the Exchequer in order to be heard upon all the proofs that were produced or used in Chancery? Resolved in the Affirmative. Contents 22; Not-Contents 17. Tellers, E. Stamford and L. Cornwallis. (L. J., XV. 92. MS. Min.) (a.) 16 Jan. 1691-2. Answer of Sir Robert Atkyns. Respondent was not sole executor to Appellant's great grandfather, Thomas Tooke, Esq., but co-executor with his brother Sir Edward Atkyns, and one Stephen Ewer, deceased. Thomas Tooke died about 20 years since, and Respondent living at a distance and having no leisure, owing to his duties as a judge, left the receipt of his estate to his co-executors, and Ewer, a near neighbour and attorney, who survived the testator about six years, exhibited his account into Chancery, which has yet to be produced. Respondent was never guardian to Appellant, nor did he ever receive a penny as such, but Appellant's mother, now Elizabeth Reynell, widow, was his guardian till he was 14; only Respondent allowed her to employ one Thomas Pooke, a very honest man and receiver of Respondent's own money and living among the tenants, to receive Appellant's rents for her, and sometimes received some for her himself, but never without paying them at once to her, and never since Appellant was 14, which was 15 years ago. The 1,800*l.* which Appellant charged Respondent and Sir Edward with having received, among other sums, as a portion with Appellant's wife, on his marriage with Sir Richard Atkyns' daughter, was not a portion at all, but was given by Sir Richard in trust for Appellant's mother, she being destitute of maintenance, and Respondent and one Brighthouse were made trustees, to prevent her then husband, Carew Reynell, from touching the money. The L. Chancellor Jeffreys, on 19 April, 3 Jac. II., decreed an account by such of the defendants as had received the money in dispute, including the 1,800*l.* Respondent offered the reference merely to save expense and time, and named Serjeant Rawlinson, his principal lawyer and chiefly employed by him in that cause. He never informed the Court he was content to comply with the award, except on terms agreed between them, being extremely dissatisfied with it, and resolved to stand it out to the utmost. Appellant's imprisonment in the Fleet was not due to any act of Respondent, and so far from being imposed on, he declared it to be unjust that Respondent should pay any part of the 1,800*l.*, never having received any of it, and voluntarily came to articles, in Respondent's absence, that Respondent should pay him the 600*l.*, and be reimbursed out of the moneys then due to Appellant from his mother, whom Appellant covenanted not to release without Respondent's consent, and gave Respondent a bond of 1,000*l.* to perform the articles, which were confirmed by the Court of Chancery. Soon after, Appellant, being wheedled into it by his mother, gave her a general release, without informing Respondent, although the Master had reported nearly 4,000*l.* due from her, and thus forfeited the bond and was in contempt of court. It is Appellant's mother who now prosecutes this Appeal, in hope to gain her son's estate for herself and her children by her second husband, Appellant having no children, or brother or sister of the whole blood. Appellant being sensible of this wrong, and having borrowed 220*l.* more of Respondent, freely gave Respondent a new security by mortgage of certain houses in Castle Yard, Holborn, for the two sums; but the houses stand charged, prior to this mortgage, with 200*l.* a year separate maintenance to Appellant's wife, which is to be made up to 300*l.* a year if she survive him, and she is now 30 years old, and the whole revenue does not arise to pay her the 200*l.* a year by much, besides which the reversion is much encumbered. Respondent not being paid a penny to this day, and his security being so small, brought his Bill in the Exchequer, having the privilege, as a Judge of that Court, of suing and being sued there only, and obtained the decree complained of, but he neither sat nor acted as a judge at the hearing, but sate uncovered among the Counsel, and left his case for Counsel to manage. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by R. Atkins; Countersigned by P. Davies. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 22 Jan. 1691-2. Petition of Appellant that Respondent may be ordered to produce at the hearing certain documents, including the articles of agreement relating to the 600*l.*, and a deed relating to 1,800*l.* made by Sir Richard Atkins; and that Petitioner may have a copy of the Articles and give a third person security to prosecute the Appeal. Endorsed as read this day. L. J., XV. 44.

(c.) 19 Feb. 1691-2. Paper endorsed "Proposal offered between Thomas Tooke and the L. C. Baron Atkins," as follows: "To waive the award and set aside the release given to him, pursuant to it. To waive the privilege and give security to pay what shall be owing upon the account, and to proceed to take the account before the Master, pursuant to the Decree in Chancery." Noted in the Clerk's hand, is the following: "I would go to a trial at Common Law in an action of account against the Chief Baron, as guardian to the Appellant, to be tried the next term in the King's Bench or Common Pleas, the Appellant first paying the 820*l.* and interest. Then I am willing to waive my privilege and set aside the release and the award."* [Offered this day, and read on 24 Feb. MS. Min. of date.]

522. Jan. 11. Beaw v. Jones.—Petition and Appeal of William Beaw, LL.B. On the death of Sir Richard Lloyd, Knt., late Chancellor of the diocese of Llandaff, in 1686, the then Bishop granted the office to Dr Stafford, in trust for Appellant, who, on reaching the age required by the Canon, received on 14 May 1687 a new patent for himself, the former one being surrendered with Stafford's consent. The Respondent, Dr. John Jones, claimed the office as the survivor of Lloyd, under a grant made on 7 Sept. 1671 by Francis Davies, the then Bishop of Llandaff, and applied to William Beaw, Bishop of Llandaff, to be admitted, but the latter refused, on the ground that the patent of 1671 was void, being made to two persons, and that Lloyd had surrendered it and taken a new one for his own life only. Respondent urged that he had never joined in the surrender, and in 1689 brought a Bill in Chancery against William Beaw, Bishop of Llandaff, William Lloyd, his predecessor, afterwards Bishop of Norwich, Appellant, and others, for a discovery of the surrender and an account of profits since Sir Richard Lloyd's death. (a.) 27 Jan. 1691-2. Answer of Dr. John Jones. The office was granted in September 1671 to Sir Richard Lloyd and Respondent jointly and severally and to the longest liver of them. Dr. Francis Davies, the Bishop who granted it, was succeeded in the bishopric, on his death in 1674, by Dr. William Lloyd, who on his removal to Norwich was succeeded by Dr. William Beaw, the present Bishop of Llandaff. The last-named constituted Commissioners, on Lloyd's death, to execute the offices of Chancellor and Vicar-General, without the privity or consent of Respondent, and afterwards made a grant to Stafford and Appellant of the same kind as that which he refused to recognise in the case of Lloyd and Respondent, and as indeed is usual and has been customarily granted time out of mind both in that and in several other places in England. Dr. Lloyd never surrendered the Patent with the privity or consent of Respondent, nor did Respondent ever join in any surrender. The decree was made after due notice to Appellant, without the least surprise, and after hearing counsel on both sides. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tremaine. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 27 Jan. 1691-2. Petition of Respondent for an early day for hearing. Unsigned. L. J., XV. 51.

(c.) 19 Nov. 1692. Petition of Appellant. The costs, amounting to 40*l.*, adjudged to be paid to Respondent, in respect of the Appeal, are more than Respondent could reasonably expend, having had only two counsel and one solicitor, who attended their Lordships but one day of hearing, and being at no charges of a journey to attend the hearing, as he lived in the City of London. Prays that the costs, which will ruin Respondent and his family, may be remitted. Endorsed as read this day and rejected. L. J., XV. 116.

(d.) 9 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Respondent. Their Lordships dismissed Beaw's Appeal as frivolous, with exemplary costs, but Sir Adam Ottley, Knt., the Master in Chancery who was to tax Petitioner's costs, and Petitioner, having knowledge that Beaw is protected as Secretary to his father, the Lord Bishop of Llandaff, are unwilling to proceed in the matter without Prays that the Protection may be discharged. [Read this day and referred to the Committee for Privileges. L. J., XV. 222. No entry of proceedings in Priv. Book.]

(e.) 14 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Same. Petitioner's last Petition was referred to the Committee for Privileges, who were to meet on the 13th inst., but there was not a sufficient number of Peers present on that day to make a Committee. Prays to be heard at the Bar. Endorsed as read this day. Nothing done on it. MS. Min. No entry in L. J.

524. Jan. 12. D. Norfolk's Divoree Bill—Draft of an Act to dissolve the marriage of Henry, Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal of England, with the Lady Mary Mordant, and to enable the said Duke to marry again. "Forasmuch as Henry, Duke of Norfolk and Earl Marshal of England, having been married to the Lady Mary Mordant, hath made full proof that his said wife is guilty of and hath committed adultery on her part; and forasmuch as the said Henry, Duke of Norfolk hath no issue, nor can have any probable expectation of posterity to succeed him in his honours, dignities, and estate, unless the said marriage be declared void by authority of Parliament, and the said Duke be enabled to marry any other woman, the King and Queen's most Excellent Majesties, upon the humble Petition of the said Henry, Duke of Norfolk, having taken the premises into their Royal consideration, for divers weighty reasons are pleased that it be enacted, and be it enacted by the King and Queen's most Excellent Majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said marriage between the said Henry, Duke of Norfolk, and the said Lady Mary his wife shall from henceforth be null and void, and is by authority of this present Parliament declared, adjudged and enacted to be null and void to all intents, constructions and purposes whatsoever, And that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Henry, Duke of Norfolk at any time or times hereafter to contract matrimony." The rest of the Bill is identical with the Act of 1700 (12 Will. III. c. 26. in Long Calendar),† except in omitting here the words ("so far as concerns the said Lady Mary or any issue of her body, or any interest for her or them") and the whole of the last section of the Act relating to the 10,000*l.* marriage portion &c. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day. (L. J., XV. 25.) The first reference to this Bill occurs on 7 Jan., when the House gave leave to E. Strafford to "open the Bill" the next day. (L. J., XV. 20.) Jan. 14. Civilians called in, and informed of the Bill and of the Duchess's Petition, and desired to state the method. Sir Richard Raynes: The Plaintiff brings in a Libel setting forth the full fact, with all the circumstances of adultery. The other party is to answer the circumstances. Then the Plaintiff is to produce witnesses to prove the Libel, and the adverse party has a note of the witnesses' names. The Defendant has time to cross-examine. If the witnesses are obscure, then time is given for drawing Interrogatories. The witnesses are to be produced before the adverse party. The party never has more than three weeks to prove the Libel. If it be a matrimonial case, the Judge is to examine by himself, and there he can view the face of the witnesses. When these depositions are ended, then she has the like time for examining her witnesses. Then by this time it is probable the cause is full ready and founded. Then comes the publication of the witnesses. Then the pleading comes of exceptions to these witnesses, and they are kept private for fear of subornation. Now this may be effected in two or three terms at most; if beyond, say then, in respect of wind and weather, a longer time. Sometimes such Commissions are asked out of delay. Sir Charles Hedges: Speaks to the charge and the witnesses' names. The charge is always given. The witnesses' names are not given until sworn and publication. The charge must be certain, as to time and place. If a Commission be asked beyond sea, then the Court judges

Jan. 19. Sir Thomas Pinfold was called in and delivered the Duchess's Answer,§ objecting to the Charge as too general. The Answer read. Sir Charles Hedges being called in, the Charge and Answer are read again, and he is asked whether they are according to the forms of their Court. He says: This Charge is not so particular as is usual. As to ("June and December") it is particular enough; but as to ("several times since") it is too large. I do not conceive she is to give any Answer but Guilty or Not Guilty. After debate, Agreed that the Charge is defective, and that the Duke be at liberty to amend it. [Later on in the sitting *D. Jan. 20. A Petition of the Duchess¶ being read, she is ordered peremptorily to answer the next day. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 40.)

Jan 21. House informed that the Duchess is at the door. Agreed, that a chair be set for her at the Table. Proposed, that the Speaker put off his hat when she comes in, and then sit down and speak to her with his hat on. Jan. 22. The Civilians called in. Sir Charles Hedges has the Duke's Charge read to him, and is asked whether it is a perfect Charge according to the method of the Court. He says: We should not draw it so. It is not according to our form. Q. Whether the Charge would be admitted in their Court? A. I conceive it would not, it being deficient in form. He withdraws. After debate, he is recalled, and asked, whether upon observing the Answer, he observed any other defect in the Duke's Charge? A. If she makes exceptions, it is nothing to it. She says she is Not Guilty, and denies it. That is sufficient. Q. Whether it amounts to a litis contestatio? A. He thinks it is. He withdraws. On Question, Resolved that the Duke shall produce his witnesses to-morrow, and that the Duchess attend in person or by her Proctor. Ordered, that both parties have orders for such witnesses as they desire.* (MS. Then the witness being examined by him to the said questions, Margaret Ellwood is sworn. Mr. Franklyn offers another Protestation in Latin,‡ which he reads. He withdraws, and being recalled, is asked whether the rest of the witnesses might not be sworn without prejudice to the Protestation. He says: You may swear them, reserving the right of the Protestation to me. The Speaker told him that what he brought in should be in English. The witnesses§ having been examined, Mr. Franklyn prays for a copy of their evidence, as taken by the Clerk. He withdraws. Moved that the papers of the Protestation be translated into English. Question, Whether the Protestation shall be translated into English by Mr. Franklyn before any further step be made in the business. Jan. 28. Witnesses for the Duchess ordered to attend the next day.† (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 54.)

Jan. 29. Petition of the Duchess for further time till Feb. 1 to make her defence, read.‡ Counsel called in and told what she desires. Sir W. Williams (for the Duchess): We looked into the evidence against her, and we have not the witnesses, and doubt not but they will be here by Monday next. Robert Welborne (sworn) says he was with the Counsel last night, and the Counsel agreed it was impossible for them to be ready, and that one, who is the Duchess's woman, is in Hertfordshire, and they cannot find her. The Petition accordingly granted. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 54.)

Feb. 1. Counsel called in. The Proctor (for the Duchess) moves that the Duchess having given a personal Answer, the Duke might be obliged to give an Answer in writing. He conceives the Duchess has a right to it. Counsel (for the Duke): Issue has been joined, and it is unusual. Counsel (for the Duchess): We are ready to go on with our defence as to the adultery, so it be not prejudicial to the Duchess, as to the Civilians being precluded that if since the Duke and Duchess have been reconciled since the time (sic). They withdraw. Ordered, that the Speaker tell the Counsel that they should proceed to make the defence, and that, if there is anything else, [if] they have anything to offer in point of law, they shall not be precluded. Counsel called in again and told this. Sir W. Williams (for the Duchess): We shall follow them in their own steps. We desire that what was taken on the Duke's behalf may be read. [The evidence of the first witness read.] We shall call witnesses to prove this fellow to be a common street porter, and that there was but one key, and that kept by a particular person. [Frances Knight and Henry Reyner were then sworn and examined, and Rowland Owen re-examined.]§ Counsel (for the Duke): We have other witnesses to confront Rayner. [Deposition of Margaret Ellwood, taken the other day, is read.] Counsel (for the Duchess): This woman was a poor, mean cobbler's wife. [Deposition of Simon Verelst read.] John Rothmell, John Hall and Hosea Grimsley† examined. Sir W. Williams (for the Duchess): We have further evidence to prove my Lady's innocence, and a great deal we have from the Duke himself, and that the Duke was reconciled since. Sir Thomas Powys goes on. Sir W. Thompson being asked if they have any more witnesses, says: We have witnesses to support our witnesses. Mr. Ward says the same. Witnesses examined, viz., Edward Sylvester‡ and John Jones, Thos. Cook (to support Rowland Owen), Capt. Chas. Potts, John Fawcett, Lawrence Purcell (to support Margaret Ellwood), Peter Scriber and Thos. Lloyd. Moved that Mr. John Germaine attend the House on (sic). Further witnesses examined, viz., Andrew Anderson, Robert Hemming, John Reynolds, Margaret Forster, and Jane Wadsworth. Francis Knight† re-examined. *Sir W. They withdraw. Ordered that Counsel for the Duchess proceed in their defence on 6 Feb. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 61.)

Feb. 6. Counsel called in. Sir W. Williams (for the Duchess): We shall speak to two of the witnesses the last day. [Deposition of Thos. Lloyd read.] Witnesses examined,* viz., Alexander Herman and Anthony Moree (against Thos. Lloyd), and Grace Cook, John Hall, Margaret Condy, Alexander Herman, Mary Pennington and Frances Knight (against Jane Wadsworth). Sir W. Williams: We have done with examination as to falsifying their witnesses. The matter upon the Duke's case was examined by L. Peterborough, and Mr. Sherrington was at the examination. Some of these witnesses were then examined. The Duke went with his Lady into France. There they parted with great assurance of true love, and the Duke came to Lady Peterborough and showed it. The Duke paid alimony. Whether we can send a Commission into France is the question. The Duke sent to her to join in the sale of Castle Rising, which she refused to do, and then he said he would be uneasy to her, and to this I shall call witnesses, and I hope this will make things fair. Witnesses examined, viz., Judith Stourton, Elizabeth Camell, Matthew Scott and Robert Welborne. Mr. Ward: We desire time to examine witnesses to support the credit of our testimony and to answer some new matter that they have now examined to. Counsel withdraw. Ordered that the Duke's Counsel proceed to examine witnesses on the 9th. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 65.)

Feb 9. Counsel called in. Mr. Welborne's Information read. The following witnesses examined for the Duke, viz., John Prince, Emery Arguis, Robert Elmes, Charles Read and Henry Dagley, Senior (to the credit of Jane Wadsworth), and Henry Dagley, Junior, and John Hoskins (to discredit John Hall). Ordered that Counsel on both sides sum up on the 11th, and that Mrs. Sawbridge and Mrs. Stourton then attend to be heard. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 69.)

Feb. 11. Order of 9th inst. renewed for the 12th. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 72.)

Feb. 12. Counsel called in. On motion by Counsel for the Duke, Edith Sawbridge and Judith Stourton are called in and examined.* Counsel (for the Duke): We have given our evidence, and it is for Sir W. Williams to begin. Serjeant Thompson (for the Duke): The Bill is brought for a divorce. The cause is adultery. We have given as great an evidence as may be. We have positive and other evidence. (Reads evidence of Owen.) He is very positive. (Reads evidence of Ellwood). This is positive and presumptive too. (Reads evidence of Hudson, Burton and Verelst.) No man can doubt of this in 1685, I think, in the least. The Duchess in her Answer says she was at Drayton, and Mr. Reyner [also]. The Civilian for the Duke is heard, and speaks much to the corroborating evidence, and recites those things. The business of the shirt is so strong and presumptive a proof, that nothing can be more so. Sir W. Williams (for the Duchess): They call it full proof and there are but two witnesses. They say it is hard to prove adultery, and therefore you must take conjectural evidence. Therefore, if these two witnesses were out of the case, there is not the least shadow or umbrage in the case. The most innocent lady in the world may be in a person of honour's company. Speaks to all the particulars in the evidence against and for the Duchess. Counsel withdraw. Proposed that the House should be adjourned now and the others heard on the next day appointed for this business. After debate, Question: Whether the further hearing of this Cause shall be adjourned to another day? Resolved in the Negative. Contents, 42 (including 10 Proxies); Not-Contents, 44 (including 14 Proxies). Tellers, L. Chandos and L. Howard of Effingham.† Moved, that but two Counsel be heard on either side. Moved, that the Speaker order the Counsel to repeat nothing that has been said. Counsel called in again. Sir Thomas Powys (for the Duchess) went on. The time is great in this matter. It is of marvellous consequence to all parents. The Duke had this under examination, and since acquiesced under it for six years, and now the Duchess is to answer for it. The Duchess is under great disadvantage in this defence. His Grace has been three years preparing, and we have but three days to answer. He examined 24 witnesses to confound us; nay, one witness gave herself by a wrong name. This was hard upon us. Many things we have been denied. We had not the Duke's answer. We have not had time by a Commission or otherwise to examine witnesses; yet it so happens we have made a very great defence. I hope you will not judge her otherwise than you would for her life. We were told your Lordships would fully hear all before you passed the Bill. (He then speaks to the evidence.) We suppose Mr. Knifton is kept from us. Sir Thomas Pinfold: This is out of time. It lay upon the Duke to prove this, and he ought to have done it before. Now it is no evidence at all. Sir W. Thompson, and a Civilian heard to reply. Counsel withdraw. Ordered that the House proceed further in the debate on the 16th; all Lords to attend, unless they can give a reasonable excuse. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 73.)

Feb. 16. Order for the adjourned debate read. Moved, that the Bishops be heard as to the Divine law in this case. Moved, that the Depositions be read. (2.) Objected to by the witnesses examined on behalf of the Duchess. (3.) Witnesses to support the Duke's evidence.

* This Deposition reads "He knows not where Keymer was." Howell has "that Reyner (sic) was."

‡ An expunged entry in this Deposition states that the wine-merchant, who took the house, "had a red face and light hair." In the MS. Min. the witness is made to say of Germaine, "I have seen him several times. He was a portly man, and wore his own hair." The words below in italics occur in this Deposition, but are not in Howell : "If he could see him now, he could tell whether it was he. He has not seen him since the lady went away. He believes Germaine was there every month in both summers."

Wilkinson and Matth. Smelt. [Read in Committee this day. (Com. Book.) The Bill was brought from the Commons on 24 Dec. 1691; Royal Assent, 24 Feb. 1691-2. (L. 526. Jan. 13. Browne v. Mercer.—Petition and Appeal of Edward Browne, Merchant. John Austen, being indebted 362*l.* to Appellant, became a bankrupt, and having effects in Spain in the hands of Power and Hill, Appellant sent his procuration to Spain to attach 18,000 Ryalls plate in their hands, which was done. Thereupon Mercer and others, Austen's assignees in bankruptcy, brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant, Power and Hill for an account of Austen's estate and to have the attachment discharged. Appellant had no effects of Austen's in his hands. On 4 Dec. 1689 the Lords Commissioners decreed an account against Power and Hill, and that Appellant should give the proper authority for enabling the plaintiffs to demand the money so attached and for transmitting the estate and effects in the hands of Power and Hill to England; and on a rehearing on 3 March 1691 they decreed Appellant to pay the Plaintiffs the value of 18,000 Ryalls by him attached for 450*l.*, and on payment thereof, Power and Hill to consent that Appellant should receive the 18,000 Ryalls and take the same out of the Court at Cadiz. Appellant has since been prosecuted for payment of the 18,000 Ryalls although he has not received one penny thereof, and probably never may, but certain it is that if he had not caused the attachment to be made, Austen himself might by the custom of Spain have forced Power and Hill to deliver the said effects to him. Prays that the Decree, so far as regards himself, may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by W. Whitelocke and Thos. Filmer. L. J., XV. 26. [The Cause was heard on 13 Feb., when the last Decree was reversed and the first affirmed (ib. 75). Mr. Sloane and Mr. Dobyns appeared for Appellant, and Mr. Trevor and Sir Ambrose Phillips for Respondents. (MS. Min.)]

a.) 23 Jan. 1691-2. Answer of John Knapp and George Cole, Merchants. John Austen, a dyer, being a debtor to Respondents, as well as Sir John Buckworth, Daniel Mercer, Edward Sherwood and others, fraudulently and to defeat his creditors, consigned large effects of his estate to Power and Hill to Cadiz in 1683, with orders to transfer them to one Walter Ryan, which was done. The Commissioners of Bankrupts assigned these effects to Respondents and Buckworth, Mercer and Sherwood in trust for them and Austen's other creditors, and Ryan and Austen also assigned them to Buckworth, the Respondent Knapp and others in trust for Austen's creditors, of all which Power and Hill had notice, and promised in writing to have the effects at the disposal of the assignees. No attachment ought to lie against them, the same having been duly assigned and transferred, and Austen had not the power to take them out of the hands of Power and Hill. Appellant, after claiming in 1684 to be a creditor of Austen, and coming in and paying his contribution money to George Cole, the treasurer of the Commissioners, in 1686, when the assignees were expecting the returns of the said effects by Power and Hill for the benefit of the creditors, caused the 18,000

Ryalls to be attached for a pretended debt of 450*l.*, and compelled Power and Hill to pay them into the hands of the Judge of the Court at Cadiz, and endeavoured to have them applied to the payment of his own debt only in prejudice of the rest of the creditors. The Court of Chancery ordered that Appellant should be paid his debt in due proportion to the rest of the creditors, and referred it to a Master to examine his demands. Appellant has brought his Appeal merely for delay and to prevent being committed to the Fleet. He conceals the fact of his having had notice of the Commission of Bankrupt and of having paid his contribution money. The nonpayment of his debt is entirely his own fault, having acted so irregularly. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondents; no countersignature by Counsel. Endorsed as brought in this day.

527. Jan. 13. Bayley v. Robson.—Petition of Sarah Bayly. About 1671, James, the late husband of the Respondent Ann Robson, having purchased two leases of a brewhouse in Cambridge of one Susan Rix, afterwards Hamond, gave her a bond in 1,075*l.*, together with one Holt, to pay it. After her husband's death, Ann, as his administratrix, prevailed on Edward Bayley, a friend, to stand bound in place of Holt, and being afterwards arrested for debt, Bayley lent her 450*l.*, for which, not wishing to let her know it was his own money, he took bond in the name of one Alderman John Jeffreys, late of London, and was bound with her and her son, James Robson, therein for it. To secure him, she offered in 1684 to mortgage several lands in Cambridgeshire and to admit him as a partner in the brewery, pretending to have 1,800*l.* stock in the trade, and her son gave him a counterbond against Hamond's debt. Bayley afterwards discovering that Ann was in debt more than her stock was worth, refused to accept the partnership, but afterwards became bound with her and her son for 150*l.* borrowed of one Shanler, and 150*l.* borrowed of one Hawkins, whose debt he subsequently discharged, besides disbursing other sums at her instance. The mortgage was drawn for 1,000*l.*, but dated by Mr. Hunt, the scrivener, the day when he drew it, and the date was omitted to be altered when it was executed, at which time Ann and her son owed Bayley 1,400*l.* and upwards, besides Hamond's debt. Bayley discovering that the mortgaged premises were subject to previous incumbrances on the part of Paske and Bryan, contrary to what Ann had affirmed and covenanted, brought his Bill in Chancery to compel Paske and Bryan to set forth their claims, and that Ann and her daughters, the sisters and heirs of her son then dead, without issue, might pay the 1,000*l.* or be foreclosed. The defendants answered that the 1,000*l.* was not paid to Ann before the mortgage was sealed, but that the mortgage was only to secure Hamond's debt, and that all the moneys received by Ann from Bayley were on account of the partnership, and afterwards exhibited a cross Bill to the same effect. The L. Chancellor Jeffreys directed a trial on the special issue whether the 1,000*l.* was paid before or after sealing the mortgage, and a verdict passed for Bayley, but the Lords Commissioners, contrary to this verdict, refused to admit payment of the 1,000*l.* and decreed that it should be reckoned as Bayley's share in the partnership, notwithstanding that the articles of partnership were cancelled long before the mortgage was executed. Prays that this Decree may be reversed, and Mary Ann and Katherine Robson ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by J. Somers and G. R. Paunceforte. L. J., XV. 26. [This Appeal was appointed for hearing on 2 March 1692 (ib. 82), but the Prorogation intervened. A subsequent Appeal (Annex (b.))

On Question: Whether the Decree should be reversed, it was resolved in the Negative, the votes being equal, viz., 8 on each side. Ordered, that it be referred to a trial at law [if the Respondents desire it].* This Order was altered on 6 Feb., on reading a Petition of the Appellant (Annex (d.) below), and the House ordered a trial at law, upon the same issue as before, with power to give the partnership, and any other proof, in evidence. (MS. Min. of dates. L. J., XV. 206, 217). A verdict having been obtained, the Appeal, on petition of the Appellant † (L. J., XV. 229) was heard again on 2 Jan. 1693-4, when the Decree was reversed, and the Appellant admitted a mortgagee for the 1,000*l.* Counsel for Appellant being as before, and Mr. Conyers and Mr. Dobyms being heard for Respondents (ib. 332 ; MS. Min.).]

Annexed:—

- (a.) 22 Jan. 1691-2. Answer of Ann Robson, widow, and Mary Ann and Katherine Robson, her children. Appellant was no party to any proceedings below, beyond being made a defendant for the discovery of a particular fact charged to be within her knowledge, and to which alone she answered. She does not even allege that her husband ever made a will, nor has she proved her title as his executrix. The Court on 27 Jan. 1690 decreed an account between her husband and the Respondent Ann touching the partnership and the 1,000*l.* pretended to be consideration of the mortgage, but proved to have been paid as his stock in the trade. Appellant's husband having killed himself since the decree, the suit became abated and has not yet been revived. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by the Respondent Ann ; Countersigned by T. Vernon. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (b.) 10 Dec. 1692. Petition of Appellant. Identical with her first Petition above, except in adding that her husband had died since the decree, and that she had duly proved his will. Prays also that proceedings may be stayed. Signed by Appellant ; Countersigned by E. Jennings and G. Paunceforte. L. J., XV. 141.
- (c.) 29 Dec. 1692. Answer of Respondents. Almost identical with the previous Answer (Annex (a.) above), omitting, however, the allegations as to the will. Signed and Countersigned as above. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (d.) 6 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. At the hearing on 28 January last, it appeared that after Petitioner's testator had obtained a verdict upon the special issue directed by the Court of Chancery to try whether the 1,000*l.* was really lent on the mortgage, the Court, contrary to the verdict, decreed that the 1,000*l.* was brought into the partnership in the brewery. Respondents never pretended that the verdict was unduly obtained, but their Counsel alleging before their Lordships that part of the matters by them suggested were not offered at the trial at law, their Lordships ordered another trial. The allegation is wrong. Prays to be heard to the matter thus suggested. [L. J., XV. 217.]

Appellant's brother Nicholas, being seized of the Barton of Yendacott and other lands in Devonshire, on his marriage with Wilmott, daughter of William Lee, by deed of 18 May 1659 conveyed the estate to the use of the heirs male, failing whom, the heirs female of the marriage, with remainder to the use of himself and Appellant, with remainders over, under a proviso that, if he should have no heir male, but only a daughter or daughters by Wilmott, then, on payments by the person enjoying the premises of 1,500*l.* portion to such daughter, if only one, or 1,000*l.* apiece, if two, or 2,500*l.*, to be equally divided among them, if more than two, at the age of 18, the use limited to the heirs male was to cease. In 1664, before any children were born of the marriage, Nicholas, Appellant and Walter Tross, their brother, levied a fine of the estate to one Benjamin Oliver, whereby Nicholas became seized in fee simple of all the premises, except such part as was purchased by Oliver, and settled them the same year on himself, Appellant and Walter, and their heirs male respectively, failing whom, on himself and his heirs. Shortly after, Nicholas died without issue male, leaving Wilmott enccinte with the Respondent Rebecca, and Appellant became entitled to the estate in fee tail, and took and held possession until Rebecca and her husband brought a Bill in Chancery claiming the 1,500*l.* for Rebecca as the only daughter, under the marriage settlement and entail, notwithstanding the fine levied in 1664, which barred it. The Lords Commissioners on 21 Nov. 1691 decreed payment with 5 per cent. since the time she reached the age of 18. This decree is unjust. The marriage settlement was designed to leave the estate entirely in the disposition of Nicholas, who, as tenant in tail, had power to cut off the entail and settle the lands to other uses, which he has effectually done. Prays that the Decree may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by J. Soñers and Jo. Tremayne. L. J., XV. 39. - (b.) 13 Feb. 1691-2. Answer of Edward Pearee, Gent., and Rebecca his wife. Appellant claims under some old entail made by his grandfather, which was barred by the fine. The Court of Chancery declared that the 1,500*l.* portion was an equitable charge on the estate, and decreed payment thereof with interest from 6 May 1685, with costs, as taxed by a Master, who was to see that suitable settlement was made on Rebecca and her children, in case there was no settlement already made, and ordered a sale of the estate to raise the said portion. Appellant seeks to have an estate worth 8,000*l.* to be sold from the family, while refusing to pay Rebecca, the heir of the family, her portion. The deeds set up were never in issue before the hearing, and should, therefore, be disregarded. Unsigned. Countersigned by Nic. Hooper. Endorsed as brought in this day.

532. Jan. 20. Alnage (Customs Collection) Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Act for transferring the Collection of the Duties of Alnage to the Custom House, and for giving a recompense to the Crown for the same. Besides some purely verbal alterations, this Bill differs from the Bill of 22 Dec. 1690 (No. 369 in last Calendar), by omitting the words of that Bill inserted below in square brackets, and adding the words in italics, viz.:—

Clause 2.

After the words ("authority aforesaid") down to ("that is to say"), this Clause reads as follows:—"That all the duty or subsidy of alnage due and payable before the passing of this Act for the woollen manufactures of this kingdom shall, from and after the said five and twentieth day of March, be for ever only due and payable at their Majesties' Custom Houses upon the exportation of such manufactures, and according to the proportions hereinafter specified, that is to say."

The Clause concludes as follows:—"And for every rug and coverlet, one half-penny, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity than is herein-before particularly mentioned."

Clause 3.

. . . the said [subsidy or custom] duty or subsidy of Alnage at the said Custom Houses, the same . . .

Clause 4.

. . . payable by the Merchant upon the exportation thereof by virtue of this Act . . .
. . . of every such cloth to be exported; and that . . .

Clause 5.

533. Jan. 21. Alnage (Customs Collection) Bill.—Petition of Frances, Duchess Dowager of Richmond and Lenox and others, Farmers of the ancient Duties of Subsidy and Aulnage on Woollen Manufactures, under the said Duchess and her Trustees. Petitioner, the Duchess, has a legal right and title, in consideration as well of marriage as by purchase, to the said Duties for a long term of years yet to come, under a yearly rent payable to the Crown, and the other Petitioners are Farmers of those Duties under her, for a great fine and other valuable considerations and a great yearly rent for part of the said term. Petitioners understand that the Bill proposes not only to take away these duties and lay rates on exported woollen manufactures only as a recompense for the duties, but also to deprive the Duchess of her remedy against the late Duke of Richmond's estate to supply her jointure, in case of the deficiency of the said duties settled upon her by the late Duke. Petitioners desired to be heard in the Commons at the Bar against the Bill, but were only heard in Committee, on recommitment, to the point of compensation. The rates under the Bill will not be half the present duties. Pray to be heard by Counsel at their Lordships' Bar against the Bill. Signed by the Duchess and also by John Eyles, Joh. Hayes and H. Stephens. L. J., XV. 43. [The Bill (see No. 532) was brought from the Commons on 20 Jan. (L. J., XV. 39.) After a first reading this day, the above Petition was presented and read, and the House made an order to hear Counsel for and against the Bill. (Ib. 41, 43.) Counsel were first heard on 8 Feb. Sir William Thompson (for the Duchess): This is the same to every purpose as the Bill before. The Duchess's interest is established by several Acts of Parliament. She had this for her jointure. I pray the Bill may be rejected. Mr. Ward (against the Bill): At this rate one third must pay the whole. The Duchess has let it out. This is a deficiency in value, estate and remedy. Sir

Thomas Powys (for the Farmers): We were out of purse 14,000*l.*, and now is our time for profit. We hope this will not be taken from us. Mr. Browne (for the Farmers): In the Bill there is no notice for the Farmers. We hope the Bill will not take away our right. Mr. Trevor (for the King): The King has the inheritance, and if there is not a recompense, then it is hard. This will depend upon matters of fact. I see not a recompense to the King. We do not say it is no recompense without reason. The duty now is for all cloths in the nation; the duty given is only for what is exported. It is apparent this is not a recompense. This interest that the Duchess has, is founded upon an Act of Parliament, and if one that claims upon the sanction of an Act of Parliament (sic). Sir Francis Winnington (for the Bill): I have not heard any substantial argument against the Bill. They argue from private interest. They say nothing for the King but this, that [as to] those cloths consumed at home, the duty is lost. This will bring a greater hereditary advantage than now it does. We will give the Duchess such security as her Counsel shall advise, so that she shall not lose by this Bill. If there be a provision for the whole farm, must not the tenant pay the 1,000*l.*? Mr. Darnell (for the Bill): The collecting comes to twice as much as the revenue. The question is, whether we propose a sufficient recompense. They say 9,000*l.* was given for this lease. The sole interest is 30,188*l.* per annum. If there be sufficient recompense, there can be no harm. There are five persons Farmers for the Duchess. We propose ten persons as sufficient, worth some 10,000*l.* It is for the relief of oppression that this Bill is brought. This is computed to be a greater ease to the people than taking off the Chimney money. Sir W. Williams (in reply): Is anything more public than the revenue? And this is an ancient revenue. This was established in Edward III. Counsel withdrew. Ordered that the report and debate thereon be adjourned to the 10th inst. (L. J., XV. 67. MS. Min.)

On 10 Feb. the Speaker reported, and after debate, it was proposed that the Counsel should be called in and told that the House expected a compensation to be made to the Duchess; that they should meet together to consider of a recompense, and how it should be secured to her. The Counsel were then called in and instructed as in L. J., XV. 70 (MS. Min.).

On 15 Feb. Counsel were heard. Mr. Darnell: I spoke with Mr. Sergeant Thomson, and told him I would wait on him, and we were ready to give the Duchess a security, or to buy it; and since, Mr. Sloane told me the Duchess's Counsel were sick. Sergeant Thomson sent me word last night he had not yet received order from the Duchess. Mr. Sloane (for the Duchess): She has not trifled at all with your Lordships. We are ready to go to Mr. Sergeant Thomson presently. Ordered that the Counsel concert together, and bring the Proposals hither on Wednesday next, and if they do not then agree, they will receive the Proposals from the Clothiers. Counsel called in and told by the Speaker that the House is not satisfied with the delay, and sickness of Counsel is not sufficient; and that, if they do not agree then, Mr. Darnell for the Clothiers do bring their Proposals on behalf of the Bill. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 77.)

On 17 Feb. Counsel being called in, Mr. Darnell (for the Clothiers) was heard as to what he had proposed to the Duchess's Counsel. The Duchess's Counsel then offered a Paper to the House, which was read.* Mr. Ward (for the Duchess) was heard. Mr. Sloane was heard. Mr. Trevor (for the King): I have not heard anything for the King's interest. Mr. Darnell: As they propose it, it is impossible for us to agrec with them. A Clause offered by the Clothiers.* Counsel withdraw. The Order read. The Clause read by the Clerk. Ordered, That the Counsel for the Duchess shall have a copy of the Clothiers' Provisos, and that Counsel shall attend to-morrow. The previous Question on the motion that Proxies should not be used in the proceedings on the Bill was negatived without a division. (L. J., XV. 80-1. MS. Min.)

On 18 Feb., after a Petition of G. Haycs [Hase] and others, weavers of Norwich, had been read,† the House was moved again that Proxies should not be used upon the Bill. Then the Paper, delivered yesterday by the Duchess's Counsel against the Bill, was read. Moved, That a Committee be appointed to consider of proposals on either side, and report what agreement is made by Counsel on either side. The Bill was then read 2<sup>a</sup>, and referred to a Select Committee, with instructions to examine into the true value of the Farm, &c. (L. J., XV. 83. MS. Min.).—The proceedings in Committee are as follows:—

On 19 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, Counsel being called in, Mr. Ward (for the Duchess) offers an account of the profit of Alnage, being a medium for three years, viz., 1686, 1687, and 1688, amounting to 7,350*l.*‡ The same is read. Mr. Darnell says he believes they make 20,000*l.* a year of the Alnage, but it is wrongfully, viz., by Shop rents and by extortion. A Table by which the Alnage is collected, is produced.§ Mr. Moore offers to make oath of the truth of the extract delivered in. Mr. Darnell produces acquittances || in 1687 for shop rent for stockings; another acquittance in the same year for Alnage, 8 Jan. 1687; another for Alnage, another for stockings, &c. 1688, another for Alnage in 1685. Sir Thomas Powys (for the Duchess): Stockings are alnageable, and so have been frequently adjudged in the Exchequer. We are warranted by Act of Parliament. Mr. Ward: Stockings pay by weight, and are not sealed severally, but by packs. The duties upon stockings and caps are not worth 100*l.* a year. Caps never paid 6*d.* Mr. Darnell (for the Clothiers): They own the seal is of no other use than to acknowledge the receipt of the Alnage. Where wool is mixt with silk or hair it is not within the Statute of Alnage, though decrees have passed to the contrary. We can prove that they have taken 50*s.* a year of one person for shop rent rather than have his shop tumbled. We will buy your right, but we will not buy your oppression. We can bring our action, but it is for such small sums, and the clothier forced to sue, being poor, the very suit, though he conquers, undoes him, for the suit will not cost him less than 20*l.* Sir Thomas Powys: The law gives to every man that has a duty to receive, a power to compound. We never took 6*d.* upon hats, though we have a judgment for them. Mr. Ward: Nothing has been taken by the Alnager but what is warranted by law. Mr. Darnell: The fee of the officer is due for measuring the cloths and setting the seal to them, to give them a reputation abroad. We will prove that they make us pay 3*s.* for which a groat is but due. Gives an instance thereof in a small parcel of stockings produced. We will prove extortion in every species. They are ordered to give the Clerk the names of their witnesses, and to what particulars they bring them; and also to bring them this morning to be sworn.¶ They withdraw. Adjourned till to-morrow. ¶ Several witnesses were sworn at the Bar this day on motion (MS. Min.).

On 20 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, Counsel are called in. William Brewer, Esq. (sworn at the Bar) says that he pays 4*d.* a seal for every cloth he makes, and one cloth with another weighs under 30 lb., which is double pay. He had 19 cloths seized on pretence he had paid but 3*d.* a cloth, whereas he had paid 19 groats. The cloths usually are between 20 and 24 yards apiece. He has paid this duty all this time. Thomas Smith says that he makes crapes, &c., and pays a penny a seal. Sometimes they weigh 2 lbs., sometimes 4 lbs. The officers have seized his goods before they were sealable, and they have made him pay for seizing and warehouse room, though they restored him his goods. Sir John Isles [Eyles] made him pay 43*s.* 4*d.* for a piece of stuff they seized, on pretence of being unsealed. The duty was but a penny, and I believe it was sealed. This was four or five years since. Mr. Thomas Burford (sworn) says that his serges, one with another, weigh 9 lbs. He pays 1½*d.* seal, which is 10½*d.* for 4½*d.* He paid for four or five years 1*l.* a year purely because they should not tumble his shop. This was fourteen or fifteen years since. The officers came to him first. William Woodford (sworn) says that all medley cloths that come to his hand pay 4*d.* They weigh about 30 lb. or 34 lb. apiece. They are about 26 or 30 yards long. We pay 5*d.* for white cloths from Sarum. He had once a cloth seized because it had a fivepenny seal on it instead of a fourpenny one, and he paid 6*s.* 6*d.* for it again. These cloths are generally above 24 yards, and weigh about 30 lb. Counsel for the Duchess; These cloths are by the Statute to pay by length and not weight. John Mills (sworn) says that he pays a penny a seal for rugs of 8 lb. or 9 lb. weight. He has seen much goods taken away in Bristol fair, when the seals have dropt off. He has paid 1½*d.* for rugs heavier. William Stretton says that about July twelvemonths since he sent for twelve chains [chenyes] from Norwich. They were seized, and he has been times without number with Sir John Isles [Eyles] for them. He has never had his goods again. They cost him 19*l.* 11*s.* 0*d.* They were seized for about 9*d.* or 13*d.* Sir John at length bade me get my goods by law, for I should not otherwise have them. I desired to buy them again of him, but he would not let me have them. They told me they were condemned in the Exchequer. William Gourdon says that July last was twelve months a Norwich weaver sent goods to him, value about 90*l.* He knows not whether they were sealed. The seals would not have been above 2*s.* 6*d.* They were seized before they came to his hand. Roger Lillington (sworn) says that it has cost him and his partner 15*l.* at a time for Norwich goods seized. Our stuffs are so thin that they will hardly bear seals; they drop off commonly. Now he has seals from Norwich (which he pays for) to put on. The officers coming to his warehouse to search, seized a piece of stuff, on pretence that it was not sealed, though he and his man could swear it was sealed when it was shown them. Norwich stuffs were never heard of till within twelve years. He has had 1,000 seals dropt off in his shop. The officers have cut open our packs on the road. Shows two pieces. Thomas Powell (sworn) says that the officers came to search his shop for unsealed goods. He told them most of his were so. They go through so many hands before they come to him, that three seals in four are off before they come to him. He believes it impossible for the seals to stay on; they go through so many hands. He has had several half pieces of cloth seized, where the end had been sold that had the seal on it. He has spent 30*l.* in a suit on that account, and has had a verdict for his cloth. In Cloth Fair they generally pay 9*s.* apiece a year for shop rent. I refused to pay; therefore they put me to this charge.

We can never get to a trial, whether they can search our shops. This was about twelve years since. Sir [Robert] Sawyer was Attorney-General. Sir John Isles' [Eyle's] servants have searched my shop and sealed our stuffs. I pay for fresh sealing, but not shop rents. John Turner says that four years since, the Alnagers demanded 9*d.* a cloth where we paid formerly but 6*d.* They seized in Blackwell Hall 400*l.* or 500*l.* worth of cloth, though I had paid the duty of 6*d.* 70 lb. or 72 lb. is the weight. He had a trial, which cost him about 100*l.*, and he had a special verdict. His cloths are about 44 yards long. He offered them 3*d.* a cloth more than the 6*d.* paid, which was all they pretended to, yet they carried them away. In the cloths there is a ferule where they may be cut. He never paid more than 6*d.*, though he made them all with ferules. (Com. Book, 20 Feb.)

On 23 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, the Parties are called in. Edward Ferraby (sworn) says that he belongs to the Norwich carriers, and it is the practice of the Alnage officers to search the waggons every Tuesday. They cut open our packs and have taken our goods that have been sealed. They have taken away a dozen pieces of rough goods of Mr. Dearsley's that were undressed. This was about 18 months since. Jonas Cole (sworn) says that two years since, one of the Alnage officers seized his goods, when one of the seals was dropt off, which he offered at that time to make oath of. He was forced to pay for sealing again. Since that, they have seized white cloth of his, before it was sealable. John Deberon (sworn) says that he is a Scarlet Dyer, and that he never paid the duty now demanded by the farmers till their time. They have imposed 3*d.* upon cloth and  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. on scarlet. They have seized my goods, after being sealed by them, when the seals have dropped off, though I have offered to swear that they have been sealed. I cannot say whether the seals were on them when seized. They exact a duty for scarlet, though the seal had been put to the cloth when white. This has cost me about 10*l.* a year more than the duty upon the white cloth. The trial in the Exchequer went for the farmers. The first Bow dyeing in England was not above 50 years since. We use cochineal in this dye. A London scarlet may be dyed for 50*s.*, for the same I have now 12*l.* William Van Lule (sworn) says he is a Scarlet Dyer. He was never demanded a duty for dyeing till these farmers came in. Two years since, they seized his cloths before they were dry, and would not re-deliver them without 10*l.* He believes he pays about 8*l.* or 10*l.* a year more than he ought. Thomas Rea says that till these farmers' time he never paid any duty for stockings. They have exacted a penny a score for stockings. For 64 lb. weight in some stockings he pays 3*s.*, for which he should pay but 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. His goods have been seized that have been sealed, and more than really the weight of the stockings, and they made him pay 5*s.* Another time his stockings were seized after the duty had been paid, and he was forced to pay 3*s.* 6*d.* The officers put on the seals. He knows not whether the last were sealed. William Hawes says the officers seized a Bow dye serge of his because it was not sealed, and he had a trial and cast them. From 1664 to 1683 he never knew this duty paid. John Deagle (sworn) says that in 1677 two officers came to search his shop, and took down all his cloth, and had 18*s.* of him for seals, though he had paid for all of them before. He has seen them at Blackwell Hall Market seize cloths. Mr. Trevor (for the Duchess) says that by the statute 27 Edward III. 4*d.* is paid for scarlet. Ordered That the Duchess's witnesses be sworn this day, to be examined tomorrow. (Com. Book, 23 Feb.)

On 24 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, the Parties are called in. Counsel for the King prays that, as the annual value shall be settled, their Majesties may be considered for their reversion. Counsel for the Duchess: What has been alleged is rather clamour than anything else. It is clear the broad cloths are to be measured, and the duty to be paid by the measure. By 27 Edw. III.\* every cloth is to pay 4*d.* for subsidy and  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to the Alnager. A scarlet is to pay 6*d.*; the half grain to pay 5*d.* 17 Rich. II. cap. 2: to make cloths of what length they please, but to pay pro rata. A cloth of Assize shall weigh 64 lb. 5 and 6 Edw. VI.; 4 Jac. II.; 6 Eliz. All duties to be paid at the rate of 24 yards for a broad cloth. 36 Eliz.: A patent granted for collecting the duty upon stuffs, called the New Draperies. 3 Jac. I., Coke's 4 Inst., fol. 31; all stuffs to pay by weight. This has been followed by several decrees in the Exchequer. If a cloth be but 16 yards long, it is to pay as if it were 24 yards long. Reads parts of 4 Jac. II. cap. 2 and 27 Edw. III. c. 4. If a cloth be 24 yards long, as to the duty, it is not material what the weight is. We have a decree 26 Eliz. 3 Jac. I. concerning cloths in grain. We have not one duty by encroachment, but we have an Act of Parliament for it. Counsel against the Bill: The Statutes do not warrant the inferences these gentlemen would make. Upon trial whether crapes were to pay the duty, it has been resolved they shall pay pro rata. Reads Statute 4 Jac. I. Counsel for the Bill: 3 Jac. I.; where stuffs are mixt, so as not to be mostly made of wool, no duty is due. No Statute till Edward VI. speaks of weight. The House being set, they withdraw. Ordered to acquaint the House with the proceedings of the Committee, that they may receive their further direction. (Com. Book, 24 Feb.)—This report was never made, the House adjourning on 24 Feb. to 12 April. On 23 Feb. the Commons sent a message to remind the Lords of the Bill (L. J., XV. 90), but it dropped with the Session.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 17 Feb. Paper endorsed "Duchess of Richmond's Proposals," as follows: "May it please your Lordships. In obedience to your Order, dated Wednesday the 10th inst., whereby it was directed, that the Counsel for the Bill to take away the duties of Alnage should meet with the Counsel for the Duchess of Richmond, to prepare a Clause to be inserted therein, whereby security should be provided sufficient to secure the Duchess of Richmond not only for the present rents reserved to her, but also for a compensation for the remainder of her term, and in case the Duchess should rather be willing to take a sum of money for her whole interest, then the Counsel on both sides were directed to consider what might be a proper sum to be paid for the same, and to prepare their proceedings in writing, to be offered to this Most Honourable House on Monday following by ten of the clock in the forenoon. Your Lordships' Order, in respect of the time could not possibly be complied with, by reason and in default of the Prosecutors for the Bill and their Counsel; though it has been most confidently but untruly since asserted to your Lordships to be the default of the Duchess and her Counsel, as will appear by the oaths of several persons, if required. But may it please your Lordships, in obedience to your last Order, dated Monday last, the Counsel for the Clothiers and the Duchess's Counsel and many persons concerned met, and there proposals and proceedings herein following were made. Imprimis. The Duchess, being desirous according to your Lordships' first order, to take a sum in gross for her whole interest, did by her Counsel insist, that she had grants from the Crown of the duties of subsidy and Auhage for the term of nigh 33 years to come, and that the duties of Auhage, &c., paid to her and her farmers were 7,350*l.* per annum, clear of all charges whatsoever, to be made appear by their books and rentals. And the Prosecutors and their Counsel, being desired to know what they would give for this interest, did bid 13 years' purchase for the Duchess's whole interest, but refused to allow her interest to be so much as the sum of 7,350*l.* per annum, nor would make any proposition under that computation. But this Proposition they made: That for the present rent reserved to the Duchess, being 3,138*l.* per annum, they would give her 13 years' purchase, supposing that to be the rent reserved to her; and also offered 5,500*l.* for the future interest of the Duchess; and likewise 5,500*l.* more, to be paid to the farmers for their present interest; and this to be paid in ready money before the passing of the Bill. Or they would pay the two proposed fines of 5,500*l.* in ready money before the passing of the Bill, and give security to answer the rent of 3,138*l.* per annum for the remainder of her term, they having the benefit of the duties proposed by the Bill to be paid at the Custom House. And for security that the said rent of 3,138*l.* per annum should be paid during the Duchess's term of 33 years to come, they proposed these persons following, viz. :—

Edward Buller, of Woodalling in Norfolk,
George Ford, now Sheriff of Essex,
James Denew, in Mark Lane, Merehant,
John Smith, of London, Silversmith or Merchant,
Thomas Powell, of Aldersgate, Merchant,
Roger Lillington, of London, Merehant,
Joseph Brookesbank, of London, Merehant,
John Pettitt, of Aldersgate, Draper,
Thomas Dugdall, of Blackwell Hall, Factor,
John Busfield, Cateaton Street, Merchant, who would give security by Articles and Covenants and Bonds for the performanee of the same. And in ease of nonpayment, a condition for the Duchess to have the duties proposed by the Bill, but utterly refuse to give any real or other security. The Duchess's Counsel submitted to accept 13 years' purchase for her interest, though insisted upon to be worth more, provided the computation were made according to the annual value of her interest, being, as above mentioned, 7,350*l.* per annum clear of all charges whatsoever; which the Clothiers and their Counsel utterly refused, and would make no proposal at all under that computation. So they differ in respect of the different computation of her interest. The different computation stands thus:—

The Duchess's interest being	-	-	7,350 per annum.
Clear of all charges for nigh 33 years to come, at 13 years' purchase amounts to the sum of	-	-	-
			95,550
Their offer for the present rent of	-	-	3,138 per annum.
At 13 years' purchase comes to	-	-	40,794
In ready money to the Duchess	-	-	5,500
In ready money to the farmers	-	-	5,500
			in all £51,794

And whereas Edward Bullwer, Esq., *George Ford, Esq., etc.,** have proposed to buy out or farm of the said Lady Duchess her interest in the said duty and subsidy of Aulnage, and have proposed to pay to the said Duchess for her interest of 32 years or thereabout in the said duty, 13 years' purchase, according to the rent now reserved and payable by the farmers to her, or to pay 11,000*l.* to her and take a lease of the duty reserved by this Act at the Custom House during all her term, and interest at and under the same rent that is now reserved to her; Now be it further enacted, That if the said Edward Bullwer, George Ford, Esq., etc. shall not pay to the said Duchess the said sum of 11,000*l.* and 13 years' purchase for the said interest, according to the rent now reserved, on or before the feast day of St. John Baptist or St. Michael the Archangel next ensuing, or shall not pay the said sum of 11,000*l.*, and seal and execute such lease and security to the said Duchess for the payment of the same rent that is now reserved during all her term, and interest as shall be approved of by any of or any of the Judges on or before the feast day of St. John Baptist or St. Michael the Archangel next ensuing, then this present Act shall cease, determine, and be utterly void, as if the same had never been made; anything herein-before contained to the contrary notwithstanding; And it is further enacted, That in the meantime the duties and subsidy of Aulnage shall be still due and payable as they were before." Endorsed as received and read this day. [See Notes above.]

(c.) 18 Feb. Petition of George Hase, Peter Scott, William Stretton, John Lucas and others. Petitioners, being dealers in worsted manufactures made in Norwich, have for several years past been greatly oppressed by the farmers of the duty or subsidy of Aulnage, who, pretending a duty due for such worsted stuffs, obtained a Deeree in the Exchequer in the late reign, by virtue whereof they compelled the payment of a duty in a manner extremely grievous to all dealers therein, which has occasioned divers complaints to Parliament. In the first Session of the last Parliament a Committee, to whom the Norwich Weavers' Petition was referred, resolved that Norwich Worsted Stuffs were not liable to Aulnage, and that the collecting such duty was a great oppression and illegal, and the House, on their report, ordered leave to be given to bring in a Bill to regulate the abuses of the Aulnage in general. The Aulnagers thereupon ceased to collect the duty for about 12 months, but afterwards, in the interval of Parliament, they again demanded a duty, and soon after made several seizures, at the waggon in London, of Petitioners' stuffs to a very considerable value. The duty claimed is not 5s. for 100*l.* worth, and though Petitioners have offered to pay whatever they demanded, and are still ready to pay any reasonable fine, the farmers refuse to deliver the stuffs, pretending they are forfeited, although before and since the seizure they have delivered great quantities of stuffs of the same qualities to others on the payment of small fines. Pray for relief against these proceedings. Signed by the above named and also by Randolph Bolton, Nath. Beale, Nicho. Chamberlin, Thomas Garrod, and Cowy Chamberlin. John Mottram signs for William Stretton. Endorsed as read this day. [MS. Min. No entry in L. J.]

534. Jan. 22. Dennis v. Seudamore.—Petition and Appeal of Mary Dennis, Widow and Executrix of John Dennis, Esq., deceased. In 1671 George and Milborne Seudamore, as Executors of Luey Milborne, deceased, brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant for an account of the moneys raised by the sale of some woods in Monmouthshire, which had been granted to Appellant's late husband by Luey's father, in trust to raise portions for his children. Appellant, a stranger to the matter, found that not enough had been received to pay the children 200*l.* apiece, but nevertheless, out of kindness, made up that sum to each of them except Luey, then an infant, whose share also, for the sake of quietness, she afterwards offered to pay. Luey's Executors, however, not being contented, brought the cause to a hearing, and the Court on 1 July 1678 directed an account, and Appellant, being informed by her solicitor that the Master had reported 145*l.* to be due, gave him that sum for him to pay to Respondents, and expected to hear no more of the matter. Ten years afterwards, however, Respondents obtained an Order of the Court for her to pay the 200*l.*, according to her former offer. This order was subsequently discharged, and another account was directed to be taken. Sir John Hoskyns on 17 March 1690 made an ex parte report, charging Appellant with 583*l.*, but certifying that he had not made her any allowanees. On 25 May 1691 the Court referred this report back to the Master, who certified on 11 July that Respondents had not evidence to support the report nor Appellant evidence to prove her discharge, but that Appellant prayed a Commission to examine her witnesses in the country. On 28 July the Court ordered Appellant to pay 150*l.* within a week, and directed a further account and Commission to examine witnesses. Appellant brought the 150*l.* into Court, and although she was not limited by this last order to any time for procuring the further report, yet by orders of 28 Nov. and 9 Dec. 1691 the Court confirmed the report of Sir John Hoskyns of March 1690, and ordered the 150*l.* to be paid out of Court to Respondents, with leave to enrol the decree. Appeals from the said decree and proceedings, no allowance having been directed for Appellant's costs. Prays their Lordships to hear the whole matter. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor and Rich. Holford. L. J., XV. 44. [The Appeal never came to a hearing.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 5 Feb. Answer of George Seudamore, Respondent, surviving Executor of Lucy Milborne. Appellant's late husband was made a trustee by Lucy Milborne's father, John Milborne, to receive the profits of his woods for 14 years, or to sell the same and distribute the money equally among his children on reaching the age of 21. Great sums were raised, but the trust was not performed, and John Dennis died with all the moneys in his hands, and the children unprovided for. Respondent and his co-executor refused to accept Appellant's offer of 200*l.*, knowing there was much more come to her late husband's hands. Appellant used every artifice to evade an account, and long delayed the cause, but the executors at length obtained a report for 583*l*. Appellant is only tenant for life and is almost 100 years old. Lucy Milborne has only received 150*l*. of the 200*l*. confessed to be due. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs, or at least not heard until Appellant has paid the remaining 50*l*. acknowledged to be in her hands. Signed by Respondent. Endorsed as brought in this day.

535. Jan. 22. E. Rochester v. L. Grey. (Privilege.)—Petition of Lawrence, Earl of Rochester. In Michaelmas term, 36 Chas. II., L. Grey was outlawed for high treason. Afterwards, his Lordship, having obtained favour with the late King James II. to get the outlawry reversed, covenanted on 5 June, 2 Jac. II., by articles between King James, himself and his brother Ralph Grey, within 20 days after the outlawry should be reversed, to convey to Petitioner, Sir John Ernle and Sir Robert Sawyer and their heirs, the manors of East and West Chivington and other lands in the county of Northumberland, being his fee simple estate, in trust to demise the same to the said L. Grey and his brother for five years, to commence from the Feast of St. John Baptist then next ensuing, at a peppercorn rent, and after the said five years, to stand seized of the reversion and inheritance in trust for the King, his heirs and successors. L. Grey and his brother also covenanted within the said 20 days to demise to the trustees other manors and lands in the counties of Northumberland, Durham, Essex and Sussex, being his entailed estate, for 99 years, to the intent they should redemise the same to L. Grey and Ralph Grey for 98 years at a peppercorn rent, on express trust and condition that they should within one year discharge what remained unpaid of the sum of 16,000*l*., which by a lease made of all or part of the said estate by the said late King Charles for 21 years, was to be raised and paid, as his Majesty should appoint, and likewise should free and discharge the manors and lands agreed to be conveyed to the trustees and their heirs from the jointure of the Lady Grey and 100*l*. a year granted to Mr. Ireton, and also within five years to pay off and discharge the debts and incumbrances mentioned in a Schedule annexed to those articles (which amount to 10,500*l*.), and all other incumbrances of the said Lord Grey or his father, so as the said manors and lands intended to be conveyed in fee simple might be held and enjoyed absolutely discharged thereof. According to those Articles, in Trinity term 2 Jac. II. the outlawry was reversed, and on 21 June 2 Jac. II. L. Grey by deed enrolled in Chancery, in pursuance of the said Articles, conveyed the fee simple estate to Petitioner, Sir John Ernle, and Sir Robert Sawyer and their heirs, in trust to make the lease for 5 years, and after the expiration of the said term, to stand seized of the reversion and inheritance for the late King, his heirs and successors. On 22 June, 2 Jac. II. the lease for 5 years was made, according to the trust. On 21 June, 2 Jac. II. the demise was made of the entailed estate by L. Grey and his brother to the trustees for 99 years. On 22 June, 2 Jac. II. the redemise was made to L. Grey and his brother of that estate for 98 years, upon the trust and condition mentioned in the Articles. On 4 Jan., 2 Jac. II. the King, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, granted the fee simple estate to Petitioner and his heirs, and directed Sir John Ernle and Sir Robert Sawyer to release and convey the same accordingly. On 1 and 2 March, 3 Jac. II. Sir John Ernle and Sir Robert Sawyer, by lease and release, granted and released the said manors and premises, and all their estate and interest therein, to Petitioner and his heirs. There remains about the sum of 1,763*l*. still unpaid of the 16,000*l*. charged by the late King

Charles on the entailed estate of L. Grey, which entailed estate was redemised to L. Grey and Ralph Grey upon express trust and condition to discharge what remained unpaid of that sum within one year; and all the incumbrances remain still undischarged, and the lease of the fee simple estate for 5 years expired on 24 June 1691, but Petitioner is not admitted to the possession of the said estate. Prays their Lordships to take the whole matter into their consideration; and having weighed all the circumstances thereof, as likewise that, of late, Parliaments have sat every year, and when they have not sat, have been continued on by short adjournments and prorogations, so that Privilege has never been out for these three years last past, and probably may so continue for a long time yet to come, at least during the war. Petitioner hopes that it will not be unreasonable in him to pray that L. Grey's privilege may not always be a bar to Petitioner's claim, but that their Lordships will be pleased to make such order herein, that Petitioner in some convenient time, at such distance from hence as their Lordships shall think fit to prescribe, may have leave to try his title at law with L. Grey to the points above mentioned. Signed Rochester. L. J., XV. 44. [This Petition was referred to the Committee for Privileges, to inspect precedents of Privilege being disallowed to Peers. The Committee, after considering precedents on 3 Feb. (Priv. Book), reported them on the 6th (L. J., XV. 65. In extenso), when after debate, and several things proposed, the House went on with the business of the day, the D. Norfolk's Divoree Bill. (MS. Min., L. J., XV. 65.).]

Annexed:—

(a.) 2 Feb. Answer of Ford, Lord Grey. Respondent, it is true, was outlawed for treason upon an indictment, wherein the overt act assigned was for designing to seize the King's Guards, the same for which Lord Russell was indicted and put to death. Thereupon the King granted all his lands in Northumberland, Durham, Essex, Sussex and Middlesex to Richard Graham, Phillip Burton and William Shaw, a servant of Petitioner, for 21 years, for raising 16,000*l.* for Petitioner. In July 1685, Respondent being committed to the Tower, Petitioner sent in haste to his agents in Northumberland, to cut down Respondent's timber, which was done in August, being an unseasonable time, and though 3,600 young oaks were then cut down, and 800*l.* was offered for the bark, if Petitioner would have let them stand till the season of the year, it was so managed, that by the account brought in by Graham and Burton, the money raised by the wood did not pay the charge of felling it. Though Respondent was committed in July 1685, yet, the record of his outlawry being removed into the King's Bench, no rule for execution could be made thereupon till Michaelmas term. In the meantime, L. Lumley (now E. Scarborough) interceding to King James for Respondent's life, it was not opposed at Court, for that by keeping Respondent alive, the 16,000*l.*, which was given to Petitioner, would be received, which on Respondent's death would have been lost. In Michaelmas term following, Graham came to Respondent in the Tower and brought a warrant for his pardon, but together with it, he brought an Indenture (never heard of before) ready engrossed on parchment, between King James and Respondent, being covenants that he should from time to time, at the command of the King, his heirs and successors, convey and assure all his estate whatsoever, as by the Attorney-General should be advised. Respondent was not in a condition to dispute the sealing of it, but did so, and afterwards his pardon was suffered to pass, and he was set at liberty that term. But his pardon could not restore him to his estate or honour, unless his outlawry were reversed. Whereupon he applied again to the King by L. Lumley that his outlawry might be reversed, which the King was pleased freely to promise, and soon after bade Respondent bring Graham to him, which he did, and the King, in his hearing, ordered Graham and Burton, both being present, to get Respondent's outlawry speedily reversed. But still it was delayed for several months, and, notwithstanding the King's promise and express order from his own mouth, in pursuance of that promise, to both Graham and Burton, yet the King was prevailed upon not to suffer the outlawry to be reversed, until Respondent had first treated with Graham and Burton about conveying to the King all Respondent's fee simple lands, which were 1,640*l.* per annum, and to this, therefore, Respondent was forced to consent. Graham then demanded, further, that these lands must be freed from all incumbrances, which were a jointure of 600*l.* a year, an annuity of 100*l.* a year, and above 10,000*l.* debts, and Respondent must likewise prevail with his brother, Mr. Ralph Grey (to whom the entailed estate, which was 7,000*l.* a year, was to come in remainder) to charge himself and all that estate to discharge the 1,640*l.* a year from all those incumbrances, and to pay off the remainder of the 16,000*l.*, and to enter into covenants and a bond of 140,000*l.* penalty for the performance, so that nothing would serve but the drawing in Mr. Grey (who had not any way offended the Government) into all those hardships; and Mr. Grey was so kind to Respondent as to comply with it. Two of the incumbrances (the jointure and the annuity) it was not only hard, but impossible for Respondent and his brother to discharge, for when all the fee simple lands were to be conveyed away (the rest being entailed), they had no means left in the world to do it, and they were thus compelled to seal all such conveyances as Graham and Burton prepared, and by these means were all the deeds obtained, under which Petitioner can pretend any title to Respondent's estate. Respondent submits to their Lordships, whether, after 16,452*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.* received in ready money of the rents of Respondent's lands, as appears by the account delivered in by Graham, Burton and Shaw, and after 1,000*l.* more paid since by Respondent himself, besides such unseasonable, voluntary and unaccountable waste in cutting down above 3,600 young oaks in a country where timber is very scarce, their Lordships shall think this case deserves such extraordinary favour, that on purpose for the sake of this ease, and to help Petitioner to take away 1,640*l.* a year from Respondent, being all the lands of inheritance which he has to pay his debts and to provide for his family (the rest being entailed), their Lordships should make an order to set aside the privilege of Peerage, which is part of the Law of England. Signed Grey. L. J., XV. 60.

The rest agrees with Section i. of the Act of 1713 (13 Anne, c. 15. Fol. Ed.), except in reading 25 March 1692 for 29 September 1714.

Clause 2 agrees with Sect. ii. of the Act, except in reading ("banker and bankers") after ("Scriveners"), giving the date as above, and omitting the words ("over and above the Stamp Duties") and the words ("with costs of suit"), besides three other unimportant variations.

Clause 3. "Provided always and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that nothing in this Act shall extend or be construed to extend to any person or persons who shall lend to their Majesties any sum or sums of money."

537. Jan. 25. King's Bench Court (Malicious Informations, &c.) Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Act for the better preventing malicious Informations and for the more easy reversal of Outlawries in the Court of King's Bench. With a few purely verbal differences, the Bill is identical with the Act of 1692 (4 W. & M. c. 18. Fol. Ed.), except in the following passages, where the Act omits the words in square brackets, and adds those in italics:—

Sect. i. of Act:—

- Line 9. . . . of the persons outlawed [in the said Court], so that . . .

Sect. v. is wanting in the Bill.

The Bill concludes with the following Clause, not in the Act, viz.:—

Clause 6. 538. Jan. 27. Bishop of St. David's (Privilege).—Petition of several gentlemen signing on behalf of their country. Dr. Thomas Watson, the present Bishop of St. David's, who has been excepted and exempted from pardon out of the late Act of Pardon and Indemnity, has declared in the presence of several persons that he esteems the same as a great honour. His Lordship has since been presented by the Grand Jury for the body of the county of Brecon within his Lordship's diocese at the last Great Sessions held in and for the county upon full evidence to be guilty of extortion for taking excessive fees for a collation of Mr. Jer. Griffith to the vicarage and prebend of Clans and Freed in the diocese of St. David's, and others within the said diocese will be proved against him. His Lordship has also committed divers crimes and misdemeanours against the law, besides acts of oppression and covetousness, not becoming his function or dignity, to the great prejudice and ill example of the clergy of his diocese. Pray for leave to prosecute his Lordship, in spite of his privilege. Signed by Richard Rudd, of Aberglaseney, M.P. for the County of Carmarthen; John Lewis, of Coldmaur, in Cardiganshire; John Vaughan, of Place Gwynne; William Brigstock, of Llachdunny, in Carmarthenshire; P. Powell, of Castle Madock; and William Williams, of the Battle, in Brecknockshire.* [The Petition being read this day, the House ordered the Bishop to have a copy and put in his answer. The Bishop was heard, and declared that as to the extortion he would not stand on his privilege. Annexed:—

(a) 5 Feb. Answer of Dr. Thomas Watson, Lord Bishop of St. David's. Denies and protests against the truth of the matters contained in the Petition. He acquiesced with all humble submission in the wisdom of Parliament, and always thought it a great misfortune to be excepted from the Act, but not being conscious that he had done anything which merited that exception, he hopes it will always appear, notwithstanding the malice of some persons' prejudice against him, that he had no more pretence or need of pardon or the benefit of that Act than many others not excepted, and is confident he never declared what is falsely charged, or anything like it, unless his owning a most grateful and just sense of the favour and honour many noble Lords did him upon that occasion by mistake or malice be misinterpreted. He utterly denies he is guilty of any extortion whatsoever, and doubts not that he shall justify himself against that malicious accusation in a proper course of law. The charge in the last part of the Petition is not only false and scandalous, but so general that it is impossible to answer in defence, because no particulars are given as to person, time or place. The Petition was subscribed or pretended to be subscribed by persons, some of whom were not in town when it was altered or amended, or supposed to be delivered. He neither has nor had acquaintance or dealings with any of them, or knows the face of some of them, who therefore cannot be supposed privy or knowing the matters objected to be true. No oath was made by them or any other of the matters in the Petition before presenting it, which he conceives is very irregular, and the method of getting hands to Petitions of that nature is of dangerous consequence, and may blast the reputation of the most innocent, without any warrant or colour of law. He never insisted on Privilege in any particular mentioned in the Petition, nor does he insist on it, and as he would not be deposed and so delivered to the will of his enemies, he solemnly promises never to insist on his Privilege but with submission to their Lordships. Endorsed as brought in this day. Signed Tho. Endorsed as reported this day. [The Bill intitled "An additional Act for appointing and enabling Commissioners to examine, take and state the public Accounts of the Kingdom," was brought from the Commons on 19 Jan. (L. J. XV., 37.) In Committee of the whole House on 20 Jan., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, after agreeing to the Title and Preamble and reading the Clauses to the middle of Press 5,† progress was reported. (MS. Min., L. J., XV. 39.) On 23 Jan. House again in Committee, L. Cornwallis in the Chair.

First enacting Clause postponed.

Next Clause read as to the quorum. Postponed, and the Clause passed.

Next Clause agreed.

The other Clauses read and agreed to the end of the Bill.

Postponed Clause (1) read as to the number of Commissioners or adding others. Moved that there should be an addition of 4 Commis-

540. Jan 27. Birmingham Free School Bill.—Draft of an Act for the better regulating and settling the Free School of Birmingham, in the county of Warwick and the revenues thereof. The Preamble recites as follows: "Whereas King Edward VI. by his Letters Patent, bearing date at Westminster the 2nd day of January in the fifth year of his reign, founded a free Grammar School in Birmingham, in the County of Warwick, by the name of the Free Grammar School of King Edward VI., for the education, institution and instruction of boys and youths in grammar, with one schoolmaster and one usher, to endure for ever, and endowed the said School with divers houses, lands, tenements and hereditaments then of the yearly value of 21*l.*, and appointed twenty inhabitants of the town, parish, and lordship of Birmingham aforesaid (whom he incorporated for that purpose) and their successors, to be Governors of the possessions, revenues and goods of the said School; since which time the number of inhabitants of the said town, parish and lordship of Birmingham is so much increased, that there is occasion for more masters to be added to the said School, and the revenues of the said School are so much improved, as to be sufficient to maintain more masters, but cannot be applied to such purposes, because they are wholly appropriated by the said Letters Patent to the maintenance of the said schoolmaster and usher; and since the said School was erected and founded at the request of the neighbouring gentry and for the convenience of the education of their children as well as for the benefit of the town of Birmingham; For the better regulating therefore and settling * the said Royal Charity for the future, and for preserving the same from any misemployment." The Bill enacts as follows: The School shall have one schoolmaster and one usher, for the instruction of boys and youths in grammar, and in Greek and Latin, and one master for teaching English, and one for teaching writing and accounts. The grammar master shall be at least a Master of Arts, and the usher a Bachelor of Arts, of one of the Universities, and both of them shall be well learned and skilled in Latin, Greek, Geography and Chronology, and the English master and writing master shall be competently learned and skilled in grammar, and particularly in orthography; and all the masters shall be men of piety, gravity and sober conversation. And for the better government of the School and its revenues, and for quieting and preventing the many disputes that have already happened, and are otherwise very likely to arise, concerning the election of the Governors, the Bill enacts that the Governors shall from henceforth be elected as well out of the nobility, gentry and clergy dwelling within ten miles of Birmingham, as out of the inhabitants of the town, parish and lordship of Birmingham, and that (blank), being persons of that description, shall be Governors for life and execute all the powers granted by the Letters Patent, and purchase and possess any lands, tenements, &c. to them and their successors, not exceeding the yearly value of 200*l.*, over and above the lands, tenements, &c. granted to the School or any Governors thereof, and receive and enjoy any sum or sums not exceeding 2,000*l.* The Governors shall choose one of their number as President, who shall hold office for three years, and have power to call or dissolve any meetings of the Governors. (Blank) Governors, besides the President, shall constitute a quorum, the majority to decide, and in case the numbers are equal, the President to have a casting vote. In case of the death, resignation or removal beyond 10 miles from Birmingham, of any President or Governor, and after the President has served three years, the Governors shall choose a President out of their own body, and shall also elect a new Governor or Governors, properly qualified, the President to hold office for three years and the Governors for life. The Governors shall, as often as they shall see fit, or there shall be a vacancy, appoint a schoolmaster, usher, English master and writing master at such salary as they shall think fit; and shall make rules for their government, and for disposing of the revenues; and shall have sole power of visiting the School, reforming abuses and suspending masters; any differences between them and the masters to be determined finally by the President. All the property belonging to the School is vested in the Governors, upon trust to apply the same in the first place to the maintenance and salaries of the masters and usher, the surplus, if any, to be expended in Francis Tilney for 1,400*l.* Differences arising between them, in consequence of her endeavouring to conceal from him her personal estate, Ralph, father of the present L. Stawell, paid off the mortgage with her money, and, as alleged, with 160*l.* of his own, and took an assignment, without Petitioner's consent, conditioned for payment of 1,930*l.* Petitioner having brought a Bill in Chancery to redeem and account with L. Stawell, the L. Keeper North on 17 Nov. 1684 decreed accordingly, and ordered L. Stawell, on being paid what was due to him to assign to Petitioner, and on payment of the then other Defendants' two-thirds of their father's personal estate, fitting allowances being made, to deliver to him his bond of 3,000*l.* to L. Stawell. On 30 May, 1685, the Court, on Defendants' petition, ordered that the mortgage should not be assigned on payment of what was due only to L. Stawell, but should remain a security for the children, for the said two-thirds of their father's personal estate, which the Master reported to amount to 2,345*l.*, including interest from a year after their father's death and five years before Petitioner's marriage. Petitioner having taken exceptions as to interest, it was ordered that he should be charged with such interest only as was made and received before marriage, as to which, on special reference from the Master, the evidence of his wife was disallowed. Petitioner complaining that Defendants, being in possession of his estate, purposely delayed procuring a Report, the Court, on 18 Oct. 1688, ordered possession to be restored to him, on his tendering 343*l.* 8*s.* 0*d.* for L. Stawell's debt and 1,079*l.* for the children's, which order was enrolled on 26 Oct. 1688. This enrolment was set aside by the Lords Commissioners on 5 March 1690,* and the Master, on reference, reported interest due for the children from a year after their father's death, which report was confirmed by a Decree on 18 Jan. 1691. Appeals from the last two Decrees, because (1) the enrolling of the Orders of Oct. 1688 was regular and ought not to have been set aside without a Bill of Review; (2) Petitioner's estate, settled on his son, will be charged with more than 1,400*l.* and interest, which was the mortgage on it at the time of the settlement; (3) Petitioner's estate is charged with interest for five years before his marriage, though his wife was then only administratrix, and no proof of any interest made thereof, nor fitting allowances for the child; (4) no allowance is made to Petitioner for the profits received by L. Stawell out of his estate for the benefit of his children. Prays that the Decrees may be reversed, and that L. Stawell, as trustee, and Edward Topp, and Christian his wife, and Margaret and Jane Gray may be ordered to answer,† and proceedings meanwhile stayed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Tho. Powys and R. Arnold. L. J., XV. 59. [The Appeal, after being revived in the name of L. Counsel called in again. *Mr. John Hunt** (sworn), asked if that was a true copy of the Will. He says "Yes, and according to the Will we assigned all over." Sir Thomas Powys (for Appellant) went on to open the Cause. This was subject to the mortgage of Tilney for 1,500*l.* (States the Account and how it stands.) The Cause was heard on 17 Nov. 1684, and a reconveyance. In May 1685 a Petition referred to L. Keeper North. Upon the Petition, it was ordered that our land be subject to a new debt, without hearing. Mr. Jennings (for Appellant): Mrs. Cole upon the marriage was possessed of the estate. We entered into a bond of 3,000*l.* security to perform our part. It was heard upon the Master's Report, which they will say was made ex parte. We hope we ought to be relieved in this matter. (They read the Decree and what was done upon the Petition subsequent.) Mr. Finch (for L. Stawell): This is a strange case. Here in 1688 an Order is got behind our backs. Where he got it, I cannot imagine. They do not say when it was signed and enrolled. It was after the L. Jeffreys was absconded. They are not decreed to pay one penny interest before the Decree. Every farthing of the money was paid by the L. Stawell. Mr. Dobyns (for L. Stawell): Their own exception is only to 60*l.*, and that the children's money went to pay off Tilney, and we will read to this. (Depositions of Henry Backway, &c., read.) We have several other witnesses to prove several sums. Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Jennings are heard in reply. Counsel withdrew and Speaker reported. Decree affirmed with 40*l.* costs. (MS. - (a.) 25 Feb. 1691-2. Answer of the Right Hon. John, Lord Stawell, Edward Topp, Esq., and Christian his wife, and Margaret and Jane Gray, Infants, by Lord Stawell their guardian. George Gray, late of Nether Stavey, co. Somerset, died intestate, leaving a considerable estate, which was administered by his widow, who put out her children's two-third parts to interest at 6 p.c. Appellant, her second husband, ill-treated her for refusing to let him take the daughters' two-thirds, but afterwards consented to give the late L. Stawell, their relative, a bond of 3,000*l.* not to meddle with the money, then amounting to 1,770*l.*, which he agreed should be called in and paid, together with 160*l.* of L. Stawell's own money, to redeem the 1,930*l.* due to Tilney, who should then assign the mortgage to L. Stawell, which was done accordingly in 1681. Appellant afterwards turned his wife and daughters out of doors, and has ever since lived separate, without maintaining them. The Decree of 30 May 1685 ordered that the account should be taken distinctly as to L. Stawell, and that the children's two-thirds should be secured on the mortgage, which, on payment of all, L. Stawell was to assign to Appellant. The enrolment of the Decree was obtained irregularly by Appellant, amidst the great consternation, when L. Chancellor Jeffreys was hard to be found. After the Government was again settled, Respondents moved the Lords Commissioners, who on 13 May 1689 ordered Master Keck to look into the proceedings as to the enrolment, but before his report was heard, the late L. Stawell died, and Respondent Christian married Edward Topp, whereby the proceedings abated. They were revived in 1690, when the Lords Commissioners, after a full hearing, discharged the Orders of 1688 and restored possession of the mortgaged premises to L. Stawell. Appellant absconding himself, Respondents obtained an injunction against him and his tenants, to put L. Stawell in possession, and a writ of assistance was afterwards issued to the sheriff for that purpose. Appellant's exceptions to the Master's report were overruled on 18 Jan. 1691, and the report absolutely confirmed. The mortgaged estate was never settled in jointure on Appellant's wife with such remainders in tail as are alleged, and if Appellant ever made such settlement, it was without his wife's consent, and cannot affect the mortgage. There never was any agreement to pay off the mortgage with the wife's own money, nor did she ever do so. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondents; Countersigned by Wm. Coward. Endorsed as brought in this day.

544. Feb. 2. Mitchell v. Metcalf.—Petition and Appeal of Daniel Michell (signs Michel). Respondent brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant, co-executor with Respondent of John Michel, to discover the estate supposed to be in Appellant's hands, and to answer in partieuar to a debt of 335*l.*, whether it was not paid to him by the testator. Appellant answered that he had a Bill from testator for that sum, being a just debt due to him, exclusive of any other account, and that he had never any other satisfaction for the same, save only 80*l.*, for the recovery of which he expended 10*l.* The Lords Commissioners on 25 Jan. last decreed Appellant to deliver in the Bill for the payment of the said money in absolute discharge of the same, with costs. Prays that this Decree may be reversed, and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by C. Weeden and G. Duncombe. L. J., XV. 59. (a.) 11 Feb. Answer of William Metcalfe.—The testator gave 600*l.* to Appellant for a legacy, and after that and some other legacies paid, devised the surplus of his estate to his executors, and died about 20 years since. Appellant thereupon possessed himself of all or the greater part of the estate, and refused to pay a moiety of the surplus or account to Respondent, his co-executor. The debt claimed is on a pretended note under testator's hand, about 26 years ago, and there is no proof of any demand thereof in the lifetime of testator, who died leaving no debts unpaid. The Court below was satisfied that Appellant's debt was long since paid. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Endorsed as brought in this day.

545. Feb. 4. Cattle Bill.—Amended* draft of an Additional Act to prevent butchers from selling live cattle. Whereas by an Act made in the 15th year of the reign of King Charles II., it is enacted that no person using the trade or mystery of a butcher should at any time after the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel then next ensuing, sell, offer or expose to sale in any market or elsewhere, either by himself or any servant or agent whatsoever, any fat oxen, steers, runts, kine, heifers, calves, sheep or lambs alive, upon pain to forfeit the double value of the cattle so sold or offered or exposed to sale as aforesaid; which law has not wrought such effectual reformation as was intended, by reason of the length of time that is required for the due prosecution thereof; Wherefore be it enacted by the King and Queen's Most Excellent Majesties, etc., That if any such person or persons using the trade or mystery of a butcher as aforesaid do, or shall at any time after the twenty-fourth day of June now next following, commit any offence or offences prohibited by the said Act, that then, if any such offence or offences shall be proved upon oath by two or more sufficient witnesses, or by the confession of the parties offending before any Justice of Peace, Mayor or other head officer of any city or town corporate in their several limits respectively, wherein such offence shall be committed, who are hereby severally empowered to administer an oath or oaths to such witness or witnesses accordingly, every such forfeiture or penalty shall and may be levied by any constable or churchwarden by warrant from any such Justice or Justices of Peace, Mayor, or other head officer as aforesaid, within their several limits, where such offence shall be committed or done, by distress and sale of the offenders' goods, rendering to the party the overplus, all charges in levying the same being first deducted.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such penalties and forfeitures, so levied as aforesaid, shall be paid by the officer, who shall levy the same as aforesaid, to the party or parties complaining or informing of such offence or offences done as aforesaid.

Provided always that it shall be lawful for any constable or churchwarden that shall have any suit or action brought against him or them for any distress by them or any of them, to be taken by force of this present Act, to plead the general issue and to give the special matter in evidence; And if the Plaintiff or Plaintiff's shall become nonsuit or forbear further prosecution or suffer discontinuance, or if a verdict pass against him or them, then the said Defendants shall recover his and their double costs, for which he and they shall have the like remedy as in cases where costs by law are given to Defendants. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this

547. Feb. 4. Gunpowder (Tower of London, &c.) Bill.—Draft of an Act for preventing dangers that may happen to their Majesties' Tower of London and the office for Victualling their Majesties' Navy, from Gunpowder kept in places thereto adjacent. Whereas great quantities of gunpowder are kept for sale by private persons trading therein, in warehouses or storehouses and other places in the hamlets belonging to the Tower of London and near their Majesties' Office for Victualling their Navy, and many more storehouses for the purpose aforesaid are erecting, which, in case any accident of fire should happen in any of the said storehouses, their Majesties' said royal garrison of the Tower, with all the magazine of powder, ammunition and utensils of war therein contained, and likewise their Majesties' said Victualling Office, with all the provisions and stores kept therein for victualling their Royal Navy, and all the houses in parts thereto adjacent would be in probability of being destroyed, the apprehension of which has had such amazing effects, that divers inhabitants have already quitted their habitations in the said hamlets, several tenants have given their landlords warning that they will leave their houses, and other persons, that intended to live in the said hamlets, have altered their resolutions and refuse to come to inhabit near such imminent and apparent danger, as may proceed from the neighbourhood of such storehouses. For the prevention whereof for the future, Be it enacted by, &c. That from and after the day of _____, no person or persons whatsoever shall keep or have any storehouse or warehouse for gunpowder within distance of the said Tower of London and said Office for Victualling the Navy; nor shall keep or have above the quantity of _____ of gunpowder at any one time in any place or places within the said distance (their Majesties' Stores only excepted) upon pain of forfeiting the same; and that upon complaint thereof made upon oath before any two of their Majesties' Justices of the Peace (which oath the said Justices are hereby authorised to administer) it shall and may be lawful to and for any Churchwardens, Chapel-wardens, Constables and headboroughs, by warrant under the hands and seals of such Justices of the Peace, to them or either of them directed, *between the hours of ten in the forenoon and four in the afternoon,** to enter into any warehouse or storehouse for keeping of gunpowder, or any other place justly suspected to keep gunpowder within the limits aforesaid (excepted as before excepted) and search and see what quantity of gunpowder is lodged therein, and upon refusal of entry after demand, it shall and may be lawful to and for such officer or officers to break open the doors belonging to such storehouses as aforesaid, or any other place or places suspected as aforesaid; and all such gunpowder, which upon any such search shall be found (over and above the quantity allowed by this Act) the same shall seize, take and carry away, sell and dispose of, and shall pay the money arising thereby (reasonable charges of seizing and selling the same being first deducted), one moiety thereof to the use of the poor of the parish where the said gunpowder shall be seized, the other moiety to the person that did make the discovery thereof. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day, and all persons concerned to have notice and to be heard by Counsel on the 9th inst. (L. J., XV. 61, 62.) No further proceedings.]

548. Feb. 5. Caine v. Coleman.—Writ of Error, with Return of C. J. Holt endorsed thereon, and Transcript of Record, with Suggestion of Error and Defendant's Common Joinder annexed thereto. John Caine, of Whitechapel, Gent., a creditor for 1,500*l.* of Samuel Badily, 549. Feb. 5. Roffey v. Hunt.—Writ of Error, with Return of C. J. Holt endorsed thereon, and Transcript of Record with Suggestion of Error (endorsed as brought in 12 Feb.) and Defendant's Common Joinder annexed thereto. Elizabeth Hunt, widow, obtained Judgment against Edward Wilcox, of St. James', Westminster, carpenter, for a debt of 400*l.* with 4*l.* damages, and failing to recover from him, sued his sureties, John Roffey, vintner, and John Hodge, carpenter, both of the Strand, for 800*l.*, the amount of their Recognizance, by a Writ of scire facias. The latter objected that she ought first to have sued out a capias ad satisfaciendum, and Hunt pleaded that she had done so in the case of Wilcox. [Brought in this day. L. J., XV. 64. Parchment Collection. The Cause was heard on 24 Feb., Mr. Rowe appearing for Plaintiff, and Mr. Holles for Defendant. Judgment affirmed with 10*l.* costs. (MS. Min.; L. 554. Feb. 12. Paston v. L. Howard of Effingham (Privilege).—Petition of the Hon. Robert Paston, Esq., and Charles Shaw, Esq., in the behalf of themselves, and of Anne and Elizabeth their wives, being the daughters and heirs of Phillip Harbord, Esq., deceased, and grand-daughters of Sir Charles Harbord, also deceased. The late Sir Charles Harbord left by will to his son Phillip a fourth part of the residue of his personal estate, after debts and legacies paid, for the benefit of Phillip's daughters and younger children, and Phillip thus received 3,200*l.*, which he managed as trustee during his life, and by his will made the Right Hon. Susan, now wife of Francis, L. Effingham, his sole executrix, in trust to pay his debts and legacies, including some to Petitioners' said wives, certain of which are not yet paid. Petitioners have applied to Lord and Lady Effingham to perform the trusts and to answer their Bill in Chancery. Petitioners, although advised that no privilege is allowed to peers in the case of a trust or executorship in trust, nevertheless pray their Lordships for leave to proceed in the Bill. L. J., XV. 73. [On 19 Feb. in Committee for Privileges, to whom this Petition was referred, Sir Thomas Powys opened the case for Petitioners, and said it is barely a trust in Lady Effingham. Sir Charles Harbord's Will is read. Mr. Harbord's receipt for 3,200*l.* is read, and also his Will. Mr. Finch (for L. Howard): Lady Effingham is not otherwise a trustee than as an executrix. Petitioners' legacies are actually paid. Lady Effingham has all the remainder of Mr. Harbord's estate, after the debts are paid. Counsel for Petitioners: If Mr. Harbord was a trustee, as undoubtedly he was, for the children, then his executrix must needs be so. The executrix can have it in no other right than a testator has. Mr. Finch: Any creditor may as well move your Lordships that my Lord should waive his privilege as the Petitioners; for the case is the same. Question: Whether in this case L. Howard of Effingham has any privilege? Contents, 3; Not-Contents, 10. Resolved in the Negative. Ordered to report as in L. J., XV. 86. (Priv. Book, 19 Feb.)]

Annexed:—

And the Commissioners and Officers of their Majesties' Customs are hereby empowered and required to pay the same to the owner and owners of the said ship or ships accordingly. Parchment Collection. [Brought from the Commons this day ; read 2<sup>a</sup> on 18 Feb. (L. J., XV. 74, 82.) No further proceedings, the Prorogation taking place on 24 Feb. Compare Act of 1694 (5-6 W. & M. c. 24.)]

556. Feb. 13. D. Bolton's Privilege (P. Ryley).—Copy Order of Council, dated 11 Feb. 1691-2, appointing Counsel to be heard on the 18th inst., on the Petition of Philip Ryley, Surveyor General of his Majesty's Woods, Trent South, touching a late sale of decayed trees in the New Forest, which, though set out by the officers of the Navy, are suggested to be the greatest part ship timber and sold at an under value. Signed John Nicholas. A true copy. P. Ryley. [The House was informed this day that the above order had been served on D. Bolton, who complained of it. William Coleman says that two men came and delivered the order from Mr. Ryley. William Robinson says he was with Coleman, when they delivered the order. Richard Robinson says he was at the Treasury this day. One asked him if there was any complaint against the Duke. He said he had the order from Mr. Serjeant Ryley. The other said he came from Serjeant Ryley to leave that order for the Duke. William Wicket or Winter was one; the other was his servant, Charles Low. (L. J., XV. 75; MS. Min.)—On 19 Feb., the Parties being called in, Wicket was asked how he came to serve the order. He said he was desired by Mr. Ryley to leave it at the Duke's house. Charles Low says he was going to L. Lexington and Wicket asked him to go with him. He showed the original, and Mr. Ryley bad him satisfy them it was a true copy. He only left the copy. Coleman, called in, says that these men came to him, and read the original and left the copy. They read one and witness the other. Mr. Robinson: I went to the Clerk of Council and asked how the Duke of Bolton came to be served. He told me that the party used to leave a copy at the House. Mr. Serjeant Ryley is called in and told of the Order in Council, and that he gave order for the serving of it. He says: I neither did direct nor intend that the Duke of Bolton should be served with it. I did so out of respect to the Duke, and thought it might be a service to the King to have the Duke of Bolton acquainted with it. It was not to be left with his Grace by my order. I did not intend it out of disrespect to him. I set my hand to it out of respect to him, and to save him any trouble. Then, by the Speaker's direction, he asked the Duke's pardon for the rudeness. extents,* rights of action, rights of entry, or any chattels, real or personal, shall be deemed, and hereby are declared and adjudged to be forfeited, and actually vested in their Majesties their heirs and successors, for the purposes herein-after mentioned. And their said Majesties are hereby declared to be in the actual possession and seisin thereof, without any office or inquisition found or hereafter to be found. And it is hereby enacted and declared, that all and every the forfeitures so as aforesaid vested† in their Majesties, shall be and are hereby declared to be and remain in their Majesties, their heirs and successors, and in them so to continue until such time as the same shall be disposed of by authority of Parliament, for the effectual raising of moneys for the purposes aforesaid.

Clause 2. And to the end that the forfeitures so vested in their Majesties may not be aliened, or any way diverted from the purposes aforesaid, but may remain in the Crown, and not to‡ be disposed, transferred, charged or incumbered otherwise than by authority of Parliament, It is hereby further enacted, by the authority aforesaid, that all grants, dispositions and other Acts whatsoever made, or to be made by their Majesties or either of them, whereby the said forfeitures, or any part thereof, are or shall be diverted or hindered from being employed and disposed for the purposes aforesaid, shall be and are hereby declared to be null and void. And all and every person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, are hereby declared to have been and to be incapable of taking and receiving any grant, disposition or conveyance of what nature soever, to entitle or enable them or any or either of them to have, hold and enjoy the said forfeitures or any of them, or any part thereof by any way or means whatsoever otherwise than by authority of Parliament.

Clause 3. Provided always and be it enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed or taken to hinder or impeach the completing a grant intended to be made by their Majesties for the augmentation of several poor vicarages in Wales and other charitable uses out of the impropriate rectories of Poole Myvod, and Guillfield alias Gillfield, in the county of Montgomery, lately held by William Marquess of Powis by lease for three lives of Christ Church College in Oxford.

Clause 4. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend to invalidate or make void any judgment, statute, recognizance, assurance, assignment, charge, incumbrance or conveyance of what nature soever, whereby any the forfeitures before mentioned are made liable or any ways subjected to answer or make good any sum or sums of money by any body politic or corporate, or by any person or persons whatsoever other than the wife, child or heir of any the persons liable to such forfeitures as aforesaid, really and bona fide lent and paid on or before the thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand, six hundred, eighty eight; but that, notwithstanding this Act or any thing therein contained, all such bodies politic and corporate and every person and persons whatsoever, their heirs, executors and assigns (other than the persons excepted as aforesaid) shall have the like benefit and advantage for the obtaining and recovering the debts and moneys so lent and secured, as if this Act had never been made. Provided the said assurances, charges, incumbrances and conveyances shall be enrolled in their Majesties' Court of Exchequer, on or before the first day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand, six hundred, ninety two.

*Clause 5. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted, that their Majesties may extend such grace and mercy to Henry Lord Dover, both in his honour and estate, as they shall think fit, and that any gift or grant to be made by their Majesties to the said Lord Dover, his heirs, executors and administrators, of his estate real and personal, or any part or parts thereof, shall be good and effectual in the law, and that the said Lord Dover, his heirs, executors and administrators respectively, shall and may take, hold and enjoy the same according to such grant so to be made by their said Majesties, and the limitations therein contained, this present Act, or any clause, matter or thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Clause 6. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall extend to impeach or avoid the letters patents made by their Majesties to Arthur Earl of Torrington and his heirs, bearing date the fourteenth day of May in the year one thousand, six hundred and ninety, for granting unto the said Arthur Earl of Torrington and his heirs several pieces and parcels of ground and lands in the great level of the Fens, called Peterborough Level, or Bedford Level, containing by estimation ten thousand acres, be the same more or less, which was heretofore granted to Lawrence Earl of Rochester, Sidney Lord Godolphin and others and their heirs, in the said letters patents recited, in trust for Mary late Queen of England for her life, nor to impeach or avoid the grant made by the said letters patents to the said Arthur Earl of Torrington, nor to vest in their Majesties, their heirs or successors, any lands, tenements or hereditaments intended by the said letters patents to be granted to the said Arthur Earl of Torrington, any thing in this Act to the contrary thereof, in any wise, notwithstanding.

Clause 7. Provided always that George Howard, Esquire, otherwise called Lord George Howard, having surrendered himself according to their Majesties' declaration in August one thousand, six hundred and ninety, be and is excepted out of this Act, and left to their Majesties' gracious will and pleasure, as for and concerning the forfeitures and penalties in this Act mentioned.

Clause 8. Provided nevertheless that this Act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend or be construed or taken to extend in any sort to the manor of Dantsey alias Dauntsey, with the appurtenances, in the county of Wilts, or to the hundred of Chippenham, with the appurtenances, in the said county of Wilts, or to any the lands, tenements or hereditaments, which in and by certain letters patents of their present Majesties, bearing date the twelfth day of January, in the second year of their Majesties' reign, were granted, or are therein mentioned to be granted, to Charles Earl of Monmouth and his heirs, at and under the yearly fee farm rent of three hundred pounds, but that the said manor, hundred, and premises shall and may be enjoyed as if this present Act had never been made.

Clause 9. Provided always that this Act shall not prejudice or make void a grant or demise made by their present Majesties in the year one thousand, six hundred, eighty-nine to Thomas Preston, of Holker, in the county of Lancaster, Esquire, of certain messuages and lands in Furness in the said county, lately the inheritance of Sir Thomas, Baronet, for the term of one and twenty years. But that the said Thomas Preston may hold and enjoy the same under the rents and covenants in and according to his said grant or lease, anything in this Aet contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

* Clause 10. Provided that nothing in this Aet shall extend to be construed to forfeit to, or vest in, their Majesties any the lands tenements hereditaments, estates, annuities or interests of Bunno Talbot, Esquire, but that the same may be held and enjoyed in such manner as if this Aet had not been made.

Clause 11. Provided that nothing in this Aet shall extend, or be construed to extend, to forfeit, or vest in their Majesties any the estate or interest of Adam Colclough, Esquire, but that the same may be held and enjoyed by him, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigus in such manner as if this Act had not been made.

Clause 12. Provided always and it is hereby further enacted and declared that this Aet, or anything therein contained shall not extend to Thomas Panton, Esquire (who was a minor at the time of any supposed treasonable act by him committed, and who deserted their Majesties' enemies within few days after the late battle at the Boyne in the kingdom of Ireland, and hath since taken the oaths of allegiance to their present Majesties. Parchment Collection. [Brought from the Commons this day (L. J., XV. 74), but not further proceeded with, though the Commons sent a message on 18 Feb. to remind the Lords of the Bill. (Ib. 83.) 559. Feb. 13. Forfeited Estates (Ireland) Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Aet for vesting the Forfeited Estates in Ireland in their Majesties, to be applied to the use of the War:—

Clauses 1 and 2. Identical with Bill relating to England (No. 558), except where noted in the text to that Bill.

Clause 3. And to the end that the forfeitures aforesaid may be of the better value, It is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, that wheresoever any forfeiture is by virtue of this Act vested, or to be vested in their Majesties wherein the person or persons forfeiting had any estate or trust in tail, every such estate and interest shall be and is hereby declared to be by virtue of this Act vested in the King and Queen's Majesties in fee simple absolutely for the purposes aforesaid.

Clause 4. Provided always and it is hereby further enacted and declared that this Act or any thing therein contained shall not extend to invalidate or make void any articles or agreements that during the late war in Ireland were made and duly ratified within the said kingdom upon the surrender to their Majesties of any city, town, fort or garrison of what nature soever, or to frustrate or make void any declaration or proclamation legally and duly published during the said war by their present Majesties' authority, but that all and every person and persons notwithstanding this Act or anything therein contained, shall and may have and enjoy the like benefit and advantage of all such articles, agreements, declarations and proclamations as they might and of right ought to have enjoyed, had this Aet never been made, provided also that the lands, tenements and hereditaments of the persons comprised within the benefit of any of the articles and agreements aforesaid shall be and are hereby charged with the payment of such sum and sums of money as by any of the articles aforesaid it is agreed they should be charged with at the instance of the Irish Commissioners parties to the said articles, which said sums of money charged on the said lands, tenements and hereditaments shall be apportioned, rated, assessed and levied on them proportionably according to the pound rate of the yearly value thereof in such manner as by the persons in and by this present Act appointed or authorised, or which shall be hereafter appointed or authorised to judge of the said articles shall, upon hearing of all parties before them, be adjudged, deemed or determined.

Clause 5. Provided always that this Act nor anything therein contained shall extend or be construed to extend to attain or convict, or be otherwise prejudicial to, any of their Majesties' Protestant subjects of the realm of England or Ireland not being in actual arms against their Majesties in that kingdom on or after the first day of September, one thousand, six hundred, eighty-nine. But they and every of them respectively shall have, hold and enjoy their respective estates and interests in law or equity in all and every the castles, lordships, manors, seigniorics, lands, tenements, rents, reversions, remainders and hereditaments, with their and every of their appurtenances, which did of right belong or appertain to them or any of them, or whereof any of them were seised of any estate of inheritance or otherwise in use, possession or remainder on the said first day of September, one thousand, six hundred, eighty-nine, nor to alter or take away any right, title or interest, by mortgage, lease, statute, judgment, recognizance, bond or any other security bona fide of them or any of them, their heirs or assigns, executors or administrators, to any estate of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or otherwise of any person or persons whose estates are hereby forfeited or vested in their Majesties, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Clause 6. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby declared that no person or persons whatsoever, as Protestant subjects of the said kingdom of Ireland, shall have any benefit or advantage of this Act, who shall not before the eight and twentieth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand, six hundred, ninety-two take the oaths in one Act of Parliament made in the first year of their Majesties' reign, entituled An Act for removing and preventing of all questions and disputes concerning the assembling and sitting of this present Parliament. And shall also make, subscribe, and repeat the declaration mentioned in one Act made in the thirtieth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, entituled An Act for the more effectual preserving the King's person and government by disabling of Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament, in such manner and form as by the said Acts are limited, ordained and appointed to be taken, made, subscribed and repeated.

Clause 7. And to the end that no person may depend upon any judgment or resolution already made or to be made, concerning the said forfeitures, until some particular provision shall be made concerning the same by authority of Parliament, It is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that notwithstanding any judgment or resolution made or to be made concerning the said forfeitures, all claims and demands whatsoever touching and concerning the same shall be subject to and only liable to such judgment, resolution and final determination as shall hereafter be made, either by Parliament or by some Judges or Commissioners appointed by, or pursuant to, some Act of Parliament hereafter to be made concerning the same.

Clause 8. Provided always, and be it enacted that it shall be lawful for their Majesties to grant to any persons, as a reward for their service, any of the lands and hereditaments vested in their Majesties by virtue of this Act, so as such lands and hereditaments do not exceed one full third part in value of the whole.

* Clause 9. Provided always and it is further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the third part of the forfeitures by this Act reserved to the disposal of their Majesties, shall be disposed and given to such Military Officers and Soldiers as their Majesties shall think fit, who actually served in the wars in Ireland in person there since the thirteenth day of February one thousand, six hundred, eighty-eight, and to no other person or persons whatsoever.

Clause 10. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every impropriations or impropriate tithes forfeited to or vested in their Majesties, their heirs and successors, by this Act, or otherwise forfeited or escheated to their Majesties in right of the Crown, if there be no lease or leases thereof in being unforfeited or otherwise, as soon as the unforfeited lease or leases shall be expired or otherwise determined, and in the meantime the reserved rents of such leases are hereby given to the Church for ever, and hereby are and for ever shall be settled and established upon the present and future incumbent and their successors, which have or shall have actual cure of souls in those respective parishes wherein such impropriations are, and such respective impropriate tithes do arise and accrue, and that all and every lease or leases let or demised for any certain term of years yet unexpired by any archbishop, bishop, dean, dean and chapter, or other ecclesiastical person or persons or their successors in their politic capacity of any lands, tenements or hereditaments so unto them belonging or appertaining, and that are by this present Act forfeited and vested in their Majesties, that all and every such land and tenements so forfeited, and the remainder of the term of years yet to come and unexpired of such lease or leases, shall be and are hereby given and assigned, assured and confirmed unto the respective sees or bodies politic, to whom the reversion after such lease or leases do or shall of right belong.

Clause 11. Provided always and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every the manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments whatsoever in the said kingdom of Ireland of John Lord Baron of Duleck, Walter Bellew, Esquire, Dudley Bagnall, Esquire, Sir John Flemming, Knight, and Francis Eustace, Esquire, and every of them, And the manor of Dowth and Proudsfoots town in the barony of Slane and county of Meath, already granted by their Majesties to Henry Lord Viscount Sidney, one of their Majesties' principal Secretaries of State, or to others in trust for him, shall be surrendered unto their Majesties, their heirs and successors, by the said Lord Viscount Sidney, his heirs or assigns, before the first day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand, six hundred, ninety-two. And that it shall and may be lawful to and for their Majesties, their heirs and successors, within the space of six months after such surrender made as aforesaid, to grant and assure unto the said Henry Lord Viscount Sidney, his heirs and assigns, other lands, tenements and hereditaments in the said kingdom of Ireland, vested or declared forfeited or to be forfeited by this present Act, as shall be equal in yearly value, worth and purchase to the premises so hereby intended to be surrendered, whereby the said Lord Viscount Sidney, his heirs and assigns, shall and may be fully reprimed, which said grants and assurances thereof shall be good and effectual in law. And the said Lord Viscount Sidney, his heirs and assigns, shall be capable of accepting thereof, anything in this present Act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Clause 12. And forasmuch as James Duke of Ormond, for his firm adherence to the Protestant religion and his early services to their Majesties, has been deprived by the rebels of all his estate, real and personal, in Ireland, whereby he is rendered in a great measure uneapable to discharge the great incumbrances whereunto his estate is liable, all his estate being and lying within that kingdom, Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful for their Majesties, their heirs and successors, to grant to the said James Duke of Ormond and his heirs any of the forfeitures made by this Aet or any other means within, or on any of the estate or estates of the said James Duke of Ormond, anything contained in this Aet to the contrary notwithstanding.

Clause 13. Provided nevertheless and be it enacted that their Majesties may extend such grace and favour to Charles Earl of Abereorn (of the kingdom of Seotland) as to the honour of Straban in the kingdom of Ireland, and the estate of Claudius late Earl of Abereorn and Baron of Straban, forfeited to their Majesties, as their Majesties shall think fit. And that any gift or grant to be made by their Majesties to the said Charles Earl of Abereorn and his heirs of the said honour and estate or any part or parts thereof shall be good and effectual in the law. And that the said Charles Earl of Abereorn and his heirs shall and may take, hold, and enjoy the same according to such grant so to be made by their Majesties, this present Aet or any clause, matter or thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding,* subject nevertheless to such debts and legal incumbrances of the said Claudius late Earl of Abereorn as the said estate or any part thereof were liable to or chargeable with in case the same had not been forfeited.

Clause 14. Provided always that nothing in this Aet shall extend or be construed to extend to attainr or convict, or be otherwise prejudicial to, Thomas FitzMaurice, Esquire, son and heir apparent of William Lord Baron of Kerry and Lixnaw, but that he the said Thomas FitzMaurice shall have and enjoy such rights, estates and interests in Law and Equity in the said kingdom of Ireland as he might have done had this Aet never been made, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Clause 15. Provided always that nothing in this Aet contained shall extend or be construed to extend to the office of Clerk of their Majesties' Privy Council in Ireland, but that the person now in possession of the said office shall hold and enjoy the same in such manner as if this Aet had not been made.

Clause 16. Provided also that the office of Usher of the Court of Chancery of Ireland taken by Thomas Tilson, senior, in the name of Oliver Grace, of the city of Dublin, gentleman, in trust for the said Thomas Tilson, shall not be forfeited or avoided by any act or disability of the said Oliver Grace by not taking the oaths and subscribing the declaration appointed by the late Aet intituled An Aet for the abrogating the Oath of Supremacy in Ireland and appointing other oaths or otherwise. But that the said Thomas Tilson, taking the said oaths and subscribing the said Declaration shall be, and is hereby enabled to have, hold and execute the said office, and receive the fees and perquisites thereunto annexed and belonging, and to appoint a deputy or deputies for executing thereof during the life of the said Oliver Grace, as if the said office or place of usher had been originally granted to the said

Thomas Tilson in his own name, anything in the said former Act or in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

* Clause 17. Provided also and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that notwithstanding anything in this Act contained, It shall and may be lawful to and for their Majesties, their heirs and successors, to grant, assign and set out unto the Honourable Sir John Trevor, knight, Speaker of the House of Commons, executor of Arthur Trevor, Esquire, deceased, any lands or tenements which were the lands or tenements of Donough late Earl of Clancarty in the kingdom of Ireland, deceased, which are forfeited to their Majesties for High Treason by Donough, Earl of Clancarty, grandson and heir of the said Donough, Earl of Clancarty, deceased, until the said Sir John Trevor, his executors and assigns, shall be thereout paid and satisfied the principal debt of Nine Hundred pounds interest and damage for the same (which said debt was due and owing unto the said Arthur Trevor upon a bond bearing date the eighteenth day of January, one thousand, six hundred, sixty-one, and entered into by the said Donough Earl of Clancarty the grandfather, deceased, and Charles Lord Viscount Muscry, his son and heir apparent, and wherein they jointly and severally bound themselves and their several heirs, executors and administrators in the penalty of eighteen hundred pounds, for payment of the sum of nine hundred, fifty four pounds on the twentieth day of January one thousand, six hundred, sixty-two. And that the said Sir John Trevor, his executors and assigns, shall hold and enjoy the said lands so to be granted, assigned and set out accordingly.

Clause 18. Provided nevertheless and be it enacted that their Majesties may extend such grace and favour to Captain Christopher Wray, son and heir apparent of Sir Drury Wray, Baronet, both as to the honour of baronet and the estate of inheritance of his mother (which is forfeited to their Majesties during his father's life) as their Majesties shall think fit, and that any gift or grant to be made by their Majesties to the said Captain Christopher Wray, his heirs and assigns, of the said honour and estate, or any part or parts thereof, shall be good and effectual in the law, and that the said Christopher Wray, his heirs and assigns, shall and may take, hold and enjoy the same according to such grant so to be made by their Majesties, this present Act or any clause, matter or thing therein contained, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Clause 19. And whereas Sir Thomas Southwell and his brother William Southwell, being made prisoners and condemned for adhering to this present government, were forced for preservation of their lives and to make their escapes, to pretend to serve the late king James. Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to deem the said Sir Thomas Southwell, or his brother William Southwell forfeiting persons.

Clause 20. Saving always to Connor O'Brion, Esquire, and his heirs, all his right, title and interest in law or equity in or to any manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments now or late in the possession of Daniel Lord Viscount Clare in the kingdom of Ireland, anything contained in this Act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding. Parch-ment Collection. [Brought from the Commons this day (L.J., XV. 74), but not further proceeded with, though the Commons sent a message on 18 Feb. to remind the Lords of the Bill.]

navigated with foreign Seamen to and from the West Indies during the War. Whereas in one Act made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second for the encouraging and increasing of Shipping and Navigation, among other things it is enacted, that from and after the first day of December, one thousand, six hundred and sixty, and from thence forwards, no goods or commodities whatsoever shall be imported to, or exported out of, any lands, islands, plantations or territories belonging to his Majesty in Asia, Africa or America, in any other ship or ships, vessel or vessels, whatsoever, but in such ships or vessels as do truly, and without fraud belong only to the people of England or Ireland, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, or are of the built of, and belonging to, any the said lands, islands plantations or territories as the proprietors and right owners thereof, and whereof the master and three-fourths, at least, of the mariners are English, under the penalty of the forfeiture and loss of all the goods and commodities which shall be imported into, or exported out of, any of the aforesaid places, in any other ship or vessel, as also of the ship or vessel with all its guns, furniture, tackle, ammunition and apparel. And whereas by the great need there is of seamen for the manning their Majesties' fleet, a number of English seamen cannot be spared sufficient to navigate ships, according to the said Act, whereby their Majesties' Revenue of the Customs is very much lessened and the English plantations in America cannot be furnished from England with provisions, cloths, tools and other necessaries for their subsistence, nor send to England their produce to pay for the same, whereby the said islands and plantations are reduced to great distress and danger. Be it therefore enacted by the King and Queen's most excellent Majesties, etc., that so much of the forementioned Act, made in the twelfth year of King Charles the Second, for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, and of all other Act or Acts, whereby such ships as are permitted by the said Act to import goods into, and export goods out of, the said plantations, are obliged to sail to and from the English plantations of America, with three fourths, at least, English mariners, under penalty of forfeiture of all goods laden on such ships, and the forfeiture of the ship and vessel, with all its guns, furniture, tackle, ammunition and apparel, shall be and is hereby suspended, during the present war with France and no longer. And that it shall and may be lawful, during the time aforesaid, for any ship or ships, vessel or vessels, qualified according to the said Act, for encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, to sail with seamen subjects to any Prince or State in amity with their Majesties, and to load goods in any place or places not prohibited by the said Act nor any other Act of Parliament, and them import into any of their Majesties' plantations or Colonies in America, and there load the produce of the said plantations or Colonies, and bring the same into any the ports of the kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, although three fourths of the mariners belonging to any such ship or ships, or vessel or vessels be not English, without incurring any penalty or forfeiture of ship or goods, guns, furniture, tackle, ammunition or apparel, and without being liable to any other or greater duty or charge whatsoever, than the said ship or ships, vessel or vessels, or the goods on any of them laden ought to have paid, if three fourths of the mariners sailing the said ship or ships, vessel or vessels, had been English, anything in the said Act for the encouraging of shipping and navigation, or any other Act contained to the contrary thereof, in anywise notwithstanding.

And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful, during this present war with France, for all English ships, which shall import

564. Feb. 23. Butter (Weighing and Packing) Bill.—Petition of Nathaniel Hawes, Thomas Rodbard, John Ewer, Thomas Rogers and Richard Joyce, on behalf of themselves and others trading in butter and cheese in the cities of London and Westminster and parts adjacent. The Bill seems to make void the Statute of 14 Car. II. for remedy of abuses in weighing and packing butter, and thereby to set loose the makers to abuse Petitioners and their Majesties' subjects, as they have done and do daily, notwithstanding all the good provisions of that Statute, viz., in vending grease and decayed butter under a thin cover and inclosure of good butter, often packing great stones, great quantities of wet salt and other heavy trash in the body of the butter, and by augmenting the tare of the casks and abating the quantities of butter settled by that law, to the great damage of Petitioners and others that either vend or expend it. The Bill, if passed, is likely to disparage the commodity itself so much as greatly to discourage the transportation and expense of it in foreign parts. Pray to be heard by Counsel against the Bill. Signed by above-named and also by William Lea, Daniel Scott, Daniel Stanley, John Greening, John Field, John Jackson, Wm. Prince, Robert Adams, Henry Burton, John Moore, Richard Tirrell, Charles Berdoo, Roger Hazard, B. Smyth and John Rouss. L. J., XV. 89. [See No. 563.]

565. Feb. 24. Judges' Commissions and Salaries Bill.—Commons' Engrossment (amended by the Lords)* of an Act for ascertaining the Commissions and Salaries of the Judges.

§ 1. The King and Queen's Most Excellent Majesties, taking into their Royal consideration the many evil consequences of the late practice of constituting Judges to hold their places only during pleasure, and that nothing conduces more to the good and safety of the people, and to the support of the true rights and dignity of the Crown, than the committing the administration of justice to men of known integrity and learning, and freeing them from temptation to corruption, by establishing on them sufficient salaries to support their dignity, and to recompense their employing their time and labour in the service of the public, and securing the constant and punctual payment of such salaries, have thought fit that it should be enacted, And be it enacted by, &c. That whosoever now is, or shall at any time hereafter be, constituted Chief Justice or one of the Justices of their Majesties' Court of Pleas to be held before their Majesties, commonly called the Court of King's Bench, or Chief Justice or one of the Justices of the Court of Pleas at Westminster, commonly called the Court of Common Pleas, or Chief Baron or one of the Barons of the degree of the Coif of their Majesties' Court of Exchequer, by their Majesties, their heirs or successors, shall by virtue of this present Act hold such place or office, so long as he shall well behave himself therein, unless he shall voluntarily surrender or resign the same, whether it be so expressed in his Commission, Writ or Patent or not, and in what terms or words soever the Commission, Writ or Patent constituting him Chief Justice or Justice, Chief Baron or Baron of the degree of the Coif in any of the said Courts respectively, shall or may be conceived or written, And notwithstanding any clause or limitation in any such Commission, Writ or Patent to the contrary.

§ 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every Chief Justice and Justice, Chief Baron and Baron of the degree of the Coif of the said Courts respectively, that now are or hereafter shall be, shall each and every of them respectively have and receive from their Majesties, their heirs and successors, the annual salary, pension or sum of 1000*l.*, to be paid them by four equal termly payments out of the Exchequer or Treasury of their Majesties, their heirs and successors, during their respective continuance to be Chief Justice or Justice, Chief Baron or Baron of the degree of the Coif of the said Courts respectively.

§ 3. And to the end the said salaries, pensions or annual sums may be duly paid every term, Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the sum of 12,000*l.* by the year, part of the money arising by or from the duty of Excise or Rates, Impositions or duties upon beer, ale and other liquors granted to his late Majesty King Charles the Second, his heirs and successors, by an Act of Parliament made in the 12th year of his reign, entituled An Act for taking away the Court of Wards and Liveries and Tenures in Capite and by Knights Service and Purveyance, and for settling a Revenue upon his Majesty in lieu thereof, shall be and is hereby appropriated to the payment of the said salaries, pensions and sums, and that the Receiver and Receivers, Farmer and Farmers of the said duty shall before the end of every term pay into the Exchequer or Treasury of their Majesties, their heirs and successors, the sum of 3000*l.* for the said salaries and pensions, and shall take a receipt for the same, wherein it shall be expressed to have been paid in for the said salaries or pensions, and the Auditor of the Receipt of the Exchequer shall keep a Book or Register, in which the said sum of 3000*l.* so paid in shall be registered and entered distinct from all other money paid in upon any other account, and the said 3000*l.*, which from time to time shall be so paid in, shall be kept apart and separate from any other money in their Majesties' Exchequer or Treasury, and shall be called the Judges' money, and shall be issued out for the payment of the said salaries or pensions of the said Chief Justices and Justices, Chief Baron and Barons respectively and upon no other account whatsoever; and the Commissioners of the Treasury or Lord Treasurer, Under Treasurer or Commissioners of the Treasury for the time being, shall not sign any warrant or order, nor do any other matter or thing, nor shall the Auditor of the Receipt or Writer of Tallies draw any order for the issuing any part of the said money hereby appropriated to any person or persons other than the said Chief Justices and Justices, Chief Baron and Barons, nor to any of them, otherwise than according to their respective proportions of the same, nor shall any Teller make payment of any part of the said moneys to any use whatsoever otherwise than by this Act is directed.

§ 4. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That within three days after the end of Easter term which shall be in the year 1692, and of every succeeding term, a Tally shall be struck and an Order of the same date for payment of the sum of 250*l.* to each and every of the said Chief Justices and Justices, Chief Baron and Barons, shall be made and registered by the proper officers and sent to the said Chief Justices and Justices, Chief Baron and Barons respectively, upon tender of which Tally and Order to the Teller, he shall immediately make payment of the said money without any further or other order or warrant by virtue of this Act.

§ 5. And be it further enacted, That if the said Reeceiver or Receivers, Farmer or Farmers of the said duty of Exeise, or any officer or officers mentioned in this Act, shall willingly and wilfully offend against this law [or any clause thereof], such Reeceiver or Receivers, Farmer or Farmers, Officer or Officers shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of 300*l.* to such Chief Justices or Justices, Chief Baron or Barons as shall be injured or damaged thereby,* and the said sum of 300*l.* shall or may be recovered in any of their Majesties' Courts of Record by bill, plaint or action of debt, in which no privilege, protection or wager of law shall be allowed or more than one imparlance.

§ 6. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at the end of the said Easter term or any other succeeding term, there shall remain any of the money by this Act appropriated and made the Judges' money by reason of any vacancy having been of any of the said offices or places of Chief Justice or Justice, Chief Baron or Baron for the space of one term or longer time, such money so remaining shall cease to be appropriated and shall be paid back and restored to the General Receipt of the Exchequer of their Majesties, their heirs and successors, and be disposable and disposed as any other of their Majesties' treasure, anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

§ 7. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That no fee shall be taken by any Chief Justice or Justice, Chief Baron or Baron, or by any officer attending the said Courts, or by any Clerk of Assize or his deputy, or by any Clerk of the Peace or his deputy, or by any other person to their or either of their use, for or by reason of the entry of any cause to be tried, trial or proceedings in any cause in any of the Courts at Westminster Hall, or in or at the Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius Courts of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery or Court of Sessions in and for any city, town and county, or for passing the Sheriff's accounts, other than such ancient and legal fees as have [always] been allowed and taken, a Table of which, signed by the Judges of the respective Courts, shall be hung up for public view in the said respective Courts or near thereunto, where all persons concerned may have access to the same during all the time of the Session of the Judges or Justices in the said Courts,† which Table, so allowed and signed by the respective Judges, shall be by them tendered to the consideration of the Parliament at the next Session, to be by them approved or altered, so as to be put into an Act, if they shall think fit, and all fees taken by any of them, or by any Officer attending the said Courts, or by any other person to their or either of their use, other than such as shall be expressed in such Table, so signed and hung up as aforesaid, are hereby declared to be an extortion upon the people; And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons offending herein shall forfeit to the party grieved the sum of 40*l.*, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, wherein no essoign, privilege or wager of law, nor any more than one imparlance, shall be allowed. *Marked: Soit baillé aux Seigneurs. 579. Nov. 7. Moore v. Coote.—Petition and Appeal of William Moore, Esq., and Elizabeth, Countess of Meath, his wife. William, late Earl of Meath, in 1682 conveyed the manor of Harleston, worth above 800*l.* a year, to Alice, Countess Dowager of Drogheda and John Humfrey, in trust for himself for life, with power to sell it for payment of his debts, and after his death to raise, out of such land as remained unsold, 100*l.* a year for each of his two daughters, the Lady Elizabeth, wife of the Respondent, and the Lady Katharine Brabazon, and after paying all his debts at the time of his death, to divide the surplus equally between his two daughters at the age of 18 or at marriage. The Earl afterwards, having sold most of his trust estate and paid most of his debts, and seeing there would be a surplus of about 2,000*l.* apiece for his daughters, (which were the portions provided for them by his marriage settlement), and having, besides his trust estate, a personal estate of about 1,000*l.* in Ireland and England, devised the latter by will, in May 1684, to his wife, the Petitioner Elizabeth, whom he made his sole executrix, intending her to enjoy it, in case the trust estate was sufficient, as it was, to pay all his debts with the said surplus of 4,000*l.* He afterwards contracted for the sale of the whole trust estate, but died before the conveyances were made, and in Feb. 1684-5 made his last will in relation to his estate in England (which was the trust estate only), devising it to the said trustees, whom he made executors as touching that estate only, but confirming his former will as to his personal estate in favour of Petitioner Elizabeth. The Earl's executors and trustees suffered her to enjoy the personal estate undisturbed, but his daughter, the Lady Elizabeth, and the other Respondent Coote, having married, brought their Bill in Chancery to compel Petitioners to account for the personal estate and apply it to discharge the Earl's debts, and the Lords Commissioners on 27 Jan. 1692 decreed in their favour. Pray that this Decree may be reversed. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by J. Conyers and T. Vernon

(a) 15 Nov. 1692. Answer of Sir Phillip Coote, Knt., and Elizabeth, his wife. Respondents admit that the Earl in his lifetime contracted for the sale of part of his manor, but are not aware of his having made any conveyance, so that the manor or trust thereof descended to the Respondent Elizabeth and her sister as heirs-at-law, and for that reason, the persons who had so contracted with him brought their Bill in Chancery, after his death, against the said sisters to have the contract made good and a conveyance made to them. The Respondent Elizabeth insisting that the Earl's personal estate should be applied in the first place in payment of his debts, it was, with the consent of the Appellant Elizabeth, who was then unmarried, decreed accordingly. The Earl never designed his personal estate for the Appellant Elizabeth, having settled on her a jointure of 1,000*l.* a year, besides the lease devised to her by his will; but he intended it to pay his debts and thus ease his daughters and heirs-at-law, having offered in his lifetime to give 6,000*l.* with the Respondent Elizabeth in marriage, which one moiety of the surplus of the trust estate and another of the personal estate will not amount to. The Earl made two wills, one for his trust estate and the other for the personal estate, by neither of which is the personal estate given to the Appellant Elizabeth, but after his debts and legacies first paid. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by P. H. Coote; Countersigned by P. Bowes. Endorsed as brought in this day.

580. Nov. 7. Wycherley and others v. Mayor, &c. of Shrewsbury.—Petition and Appeal of Daniel Wycherley, Esq., on the behalf of himself and others, the inhabitants of Clive and Sansawe, in the County of Salop, and of John Hughes, William Turner, Samuel Orppe and Thomas Authors, late Curates of the Chapel of Clive in the County of Salop. The Chapel of Clive and Sansawe was a propriate to the Collegiate Church of St. Mary's, Shrewsbury, which took the tithes and supplied the cure, lying 6 miles from Shrewsbury. At the Dissolution the tithes were vested in the Crown, and Edward VI. founded a free Grammar School at Shrewsbury and granted the tithes to the bailiffs and burgesses of the town, without making any provision for service in the Chapel. Queen Elizabeth, by indenture dated 23 May in the 13th year of her reign, as well for the better advance of the School as for the maintenance of service in the Chapel, granted to the bailiffs &c. the rectory impropriate of Cherbury, but appointed no particular sum either to the School or Chapelry, but the premises are a trust lodged in the Corporation for the equal benefit of both. Though the premises are worth 400*l.* a year and upwards, and the schoolmasters have therewith had houses bought and built for them and a library provided for the School, and their annual salaries are 200*l.*, and more than 600*l.* has been laid out in buying Scholarships at Cambridge University (a use designed by neither of the grants), there still remains 100*l.* a year to be disposed of. The premises in the Queen's grant are improved from 31*l.* to nearly 200*l.* a year, yet the Corporation refuse to allow more than 5*l.* a year to the Chapelry of Clive, which contains above 40 families, including about 120 communicants, and Petitioner has been forced to advance money for the curates out of his own estate. By advice of counsel, he exhibited an Information in the Attorney General's name against the Corporation and Andrew Taylor and Robert Forster, then head-schoolmaster and bailiff, to have a reasonable proportion of the grant applied yearly for Divine service in the Chapel, according to the Queen's intention, but the Lords Commissioners on 21 November 1691 dismissed the Information with costs, though the same was prosecuted solely out of a pious design and without any hopes of advantage to himself. Prays that this Decree of dismission may be reversed. Signed by D. Wycherley; Countersigned by W. Williams and Ja. Harrington. L. J., XV. 104. [The Cause was heard on 16 Dec. Sir William Williams (for Appellants): Our case is hard. We have law and equity too. Reads the Grant &c. 5*l.* a year is out of Cherbury. Their Answer admits it to be 365*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.* a year, and we affirm it to be 400*l.* and odd, so there is 70*l.* in their hands. Mr. Finch and Sir Thomas Powys heard for Respondents. Sir W. Williams and Mr. Dobyns heard in reply. Counsel withdrew and Speaker reported. Proposed to ask the Judges. Treby, C. J.: I do not observe the power, but in all there is the general intent of the Charity; as to build a bridge or the like. L. C. Baron: I think the power is in the Crown in this case, it being of Royal foundation, and the Crown may change it. After debate, the dismission was ordered, on question, to be reversed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 150.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 25 Nov. 1692. Answer of the Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of Salop. Edward VI. granted all the tithes of Clive and Sansawe and other tithes, now worth 100*l.* a year, to the bailiffs and burgesses of Shrewsbury, at 8*s.* yearly rent and with a licence for them to purchase any hereditaments not exceeding 20*l.* a year for the School maintenance. Queen Elizabeth, being seized in fee of the reversion of several tithes and hereditaments, being another part of the endowment of St. Mary's College, expectant on a lease for 21 years, made to one Kelton at a yearly rent of 11*l.*, and of the reversion of the rectory appropriate of Cherbury, and the tithes and profits thereof, expectant on another lease for 21 years, made to one Billmore at a yearly rent of 31*l.*, and of other tithes &c. in possession, part of the endowment of the dissolved College of St. Chad's, granted the same to the said bailiffs &c. at a yearly rent of 10*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, the Corporation covenanting to discharge several yearly pensions and duties, amounting to 10*l.* 12*s.* 4½*d.* issuing out of the rectory of Cherbury, and, after the expiration of the term then being of the said rectory, to employ out of its profits 5*l.* a year towards the maintenance of Divine Service in the Chapels of Clive and Astley, and to satisfy two stipends of 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to the vicar and curates of St. Mary's, and to employ the rest of the premises for the maintenance of the School, according to such orders &c. as should be made by Thos. Ashton, the then School-master, or in default thereof, by the Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield and Dean of Lichfield, and to perform such orders touching the placing, ordering and salary of a Minister in St. Mary's parish, with a clause of entry for non-performance. Various ordinances were accordingly made by Mr. Ashton and the Corporation, and by a Deeree in Chancery in 21 Jac. I. the schoolmasters' stipends were fixed at 60*l.* to the head-master, with another 20*l.* for reading Divine Service and catechising the scholars; 45*l.* to the second master, 30*l.* to the third, and 20*l.* to the fourth; the said masters to account on oath for all entrance money received by them, which was to be applied as the other part of the revenue. The whole yearly revenues amount only to 365*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*, of which the premises granted by Edward VI., worth 100*l.* a year and not subject to Appellants' demands, are part, and the rectory of Cherbury, another part, has been held under the Corporation for 20 years at 165*l.* 1*s.* 0*d.* a year, though now but at 144*l.* The 5*l.* payable by the Queen to the curate of Clive was not to commence during Billmore's lease or before the whole profits of the rectory came in possession, and the same has been duly paid yearly by the Corporation to the curates by them appointed, though the Appellant obstructed several of them in officiating there, and the persons now set up by him as curates are persons of his own appointment in opposition to the Corporation, with whom the right of appointing lies. In 1662 Appellant procured a Commission to visit the School, and petitioned Charles II. to have the curate of Clive's salary augmented, but the Bishop, to whom the Petition was referred, did not think fit to report in his favour, and the matter fell. The suit has left the Corporation on the School account 300*l.* in debt, and the masters' stipends are unpaid and the School buildings unrepaid. Queen Elizabeth never intended more than 5*l.* for the chapel, and the funds do not admit of any increase at present. The curate of Clive has only 40 communicants, while the curate of St. Mary's, with only 20*l.* a year, has 2000. It would be hard to apply the scholarships at St. John's, Cambridge, for increasing the 5*l.* stipend, since they were bought with the profits of the lands granted by Edward VI., which were not subject to the payment of this stipend. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by John Hollier, Mayor, and Edward Gosnell, Robt. Wood, Collins Wolrich, Richd. Salter, Samuel Thomas, Arthur Tonge and W. Reynolds, Aldermen, and sealed with the seal of the Corporation on 22 Nov.; Counter-signed by Thomas Price. Endorsed as brought in this day.

Endorsed as read in Committee this day. [On 7 Nov. E. Huntingdon, E. Scarsdale and E. Marlborough informed the House that they had been committed and were then under bail within the time of privilege of Parliament.* Moved, that a day be appointed to consider of the business and examine it, and that all the Judges do then attend, and no other business to intervene. Moved that they be discharged from their bail. Ordered that L. C. Justice Holt be sent for presently to attend, with all the Judges of the King's Bench. The Judges came, and L. C. Justice Holt and the other Judges were heard, and they were of opinion that it must be removed by a Writ of Error. Case of L. C. Justice Scroggs cited. The Judges, in reply to a question, say they cannot in justice discharge until the last day of the term. Holt, C. J., is heard to E. Lincoln's case:† "The case" he said "was between E. Lincoln and myself. I bailed his Lordship, and sent the Recognizance thither. The Parliament then was sitting in law. There was a Certiorari out of Chancery to me to certify it hither, which I did." Moved that the King's Bench be ordered by this House to discharge the bail of these Lords. After debate,‡ the House referred the matter to the Committee for Privileges, to whom the Lieutenant of the Tower was ordered to produce the warrants for the commitment of E. Huntingdon and E. Marlborough, and the Clerk of the Rules in the Court of King's Bench to send a copy of the Affidavit of Aaron Smith against E. Huntingdon and others in the King's Bench in Trinity term last. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 105.)

On 8 Nov. the Committee for Privileges, after reading the two Warrants brought in by the Deputy Governor of the Tower§—the originals of which were ordered to be returned—and also Aaron Smith's Affidavit,|| and considering the following precedents, viz:—

E. Stamford's Case, 11 Nov. 1685.

E. Lincoln's Case, 12 April 1692.

L. Delamer's Petition, etc., 9, 10 and 16 Nov. 1685.

* "The suffering Lords," says Ralph, "opened the matter by making their several complaints, and laid their great stress on the circumstance of their being refused bail on Smith's affidavit, and the want of information against them by oath of two witnesses" (ii. 389).

‡ Luttrell speaks of "warm debates," and adds that Nottingham was questioned about the commitment, and gave an account of it, saying there was "an irreproachable witness against his lordship [E. Huntingdon], but mentioned not his name."

Ordered to report that they found many difficulties in the case and desired the further directions of the House. (Priv. Book, L. J., XV. 106.)

On 9 Nov. the House, on receiving the above report, resolved itself into Committee, L. Cornwallis in the Chair. Moved, to ask the L. C. Justice whether, when these Lords were brought to the King's Bench, if he had not done what he has done, he would have been punishable by law? Holt, C. J.; For the point of law upon the Habeas Corpus Act, if anyone come to be (sic) and repeats the Habeas Corpus Act, if we discharge this person, without the King's consent, before the last day of the term, we do injustice to the King and contrary to his oath. Q. Whether it had been against the Habeas Corpus Act if he had bailed them to appear here? A. We have direction to bail till next term; we are not at discretion, if an indictment had been found. It is not proper to send them before your Lordships for want of an indictment. The E. Lincoln's case was a matter of discretion in me. Q. Whether, if the Parliament had been actually sitting, he could have bailed them to appear in this House? A. According to the Act, we could not, we have no warrant in law to do it. [The Clause in the Habeas Corpus Act is read]. By law this bail cannot be removed.*—House resumed. E. Huntingdon moves that the reason of his commitment may be examined. E. Scarsdale desires it may be examined whether there is anything against him, either upon oath or otherwise. E. Marlborough hopes he may be taken into the protection of the House, as well as others. The three Lords desire the protection of the House. Ordered, that the House enter into consideration of the commitment of the three Lords tomorrow, and that all the grounds for their commitment be then brought in.† (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 107.)

On 10 Nov. in the House, the Warrants and Smith's Affidavit were read again. Holt, C. J., is asked how Affidavits have been used? A. I cannot tell. We had the matter of the Affidavit debated, and we were of opinion this Affidavit was pursuant to the Habeas Corpus Act. That part of the Habeas Corpus Act was read. Ordered that Aaron Smith be sent for. Holt, C. J., is asked whether, if there is but one witness, it is enough to remand a person? A. It is not our business to enquire into the King's evidence. I think one witness is not evidence. House informed that Aaron Smith is at the door. The Question to be asked him is, whether he meant by that Affidavit two witnesses against E. Huntingdon? Aaron Smith is called in and told he made an Affidavit in the King's Bench, and their Lordships would have him explain what he meant by some words in the Affidavit, and he was told he was not concerned. A. He desires a saving to himself, and to know the questions. He withdraws. Moved that the Question be set down before he be sworn. Agreed to ask him this Question: Whether he meant by his Affidavit there were two witnesses against E. Huntingdon? Aaron Smith is recalled and told he would be asked the above question. He desires the form of the Oath might be read to him. He withdraws. He is recalled and told this question: Whether in the Affidavit you made in the King's Bench you meant two witnesses against E. Huntingdon were not ready, and the Oath shall be constrained to that.

* "It was proposed," says Ralph, "that the recognizances might be removed to the House of Peers, as the Supreme Court, but the Lord Chief Justice Holt undertaking to show that it could not be done, the House acquiesced in his opinion, and the motion was dropped" (ii. 389). No such "motion," as will be seen above, was ever made.

† A marginal note in MS. Min., at the head of these proceedings, states: "Nothing to be entered."

A. I beg I may see my original Affidavit. Q. Whether there were two witnesses against E. Huntingdon? He withdraws. Agreed to ask him, Whether at the time that [he gave his evidence] the E. Huntingdon was remanded by the Court of King's Bench, [he knew there were two witnesses against his Lordship] there were two witnesses?* He is recalled again and asked:† Whether, at the time the E. Huntingdon was remanded by the Court of King's Bench, there were, to your knowledge, two witnesses upon oath for high treason against his Lordship? A. I desire time to peruse papers. He withdraws. He is recalled again and told by the Speaker he is to offer the question to him once more, which he did. He desires to see his own Affidavit. He was then sworn and answered:‡ I cannot say that there were two witnesses upon oath. There was other evidence. There was one upon oath. Moved to ask the L. C. Justice whether one witness upon oath is a sufficient ground for remanding a person upon the Habeas Corpus Act? Holt, C. J.: If it appears to us there is but one, we ought to bail. L. C. Baron [Athyns] heard: It is agreed there ought to be two witnesses, and if one positive and yet another prove the same treason, they are both to the fact. Gregory, B.: Is of the same opinion. Moved to ask the Judges whether one witness upon oath, with other circumstances, is enough to remand any person? Holt, C. J.: If the circumstance be not upon oath, it is no evidence.‡ Then the House, on motion, appointed a Committee to draw an Order "for explanation of this Act" on the debate. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 108.)

On 11 Nov. this Committee met, and after reading the seventh paragraph of the Habeas Corpus Act, on Question, Whether an Order shall be now made, it was resolved in the Affirmative by 7 votes to 4. The Order was then agreed to and ordered to be reported. (Com. Book.)—The House, on receiving this Report, consisting of a Resolution drawn by the Committee, which was read, ordered all the Judges to attend the next day. The Warrant for the commitment of E. Huntingdon read. E. Marlborough complains of his being committed. E. Scarsdale complains of his being in a Proclamation,§ and desires it may be enquired into. Ordered that the debate be adjourned till tomorrow. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 109.)

On 12 Nov. the Resolution reported from the Committee is read as follows:—It is Resolved, by the Lords, &c., That it is the duty of the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, and Justices of Oyer and Terminer, or General Gaol Delivery, in pursuance of the said Statute, to set at liberty the prisoner upon bail, if committed for high Treason (Comp. † See Annex (c.) below. Luttrell says that Aaron Smith swore that there was one witness against the Lords, but that he "would not be positive" as to a second; Ralph states that on being required at first to answer on oath whether he had two witnesses against "each of the Lords," he "refused till threatened to be committed" (ii. 390).

‡ Ralph (ii. 389) has the following note on the proceedings this day: "The Judges managed their own defence in such a manner as gave Mr. John Hampden occasion to say 'that the very same opinions were now delivered for law, which King Charles' and King James' judges were infamous for.' 'It is but a few days ago,' continues he (Short Considerations, p. 18), 'that some of the judges declared in the Lords' House that one witness to a principal treason and another to a circumstance was sufficient to convict a man that is indicted for treason; which was the worst of all the opinions delivered upon the Bench by the late Chief Justice Jeffreys.'" not intend that they should [say the] be witnesses [are] upon oath.* Treby, C. J.: I am of the same opinion, that by "witnesses" here are not intended witnesses upon oath. "Witness" in this case I take to be a person capable of giving testimony. L. C. Baron [Athyns]: A man cannot be convicted without two witnesses upon oath; but I am clearly of opinion in this case that there need not be witnesses upon oath. Dolben, J.: I am of the same opinion. Powell, J.: I am of the same opinion, that witnesses unsworn are within this Act. Gregory, J.: I am of the same opinion. Lechmere, B.: We are the interpreters of the law. I think it was the duty of the Judges to remand the Lords or other persons. Rokesby, J., Eyres, J., Turton, B., and Powell, B., each added: I am of the same opinion. Affidavit of Aaron Smith read. Judges asked, Whether by "witness" anything is meant but "person"? Holt, C. J.: I am of opinion that by "witnesses" is meant "persons." The Judges heard as to the Affidavit. Holt, C. J.: I am of opinion the Affidavit is pursuant to the [Act]. It is as full as the Act itself. It is as full as a counter tally to another. The House then ordered the Resolution of the Committee to be re-committed to a Committee of the whole House † on the 14th. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 110.)

On 14 Nov. in C. W. H., Lord Cornwallis in the Chair, the Resolution was read. The Clause in the Statute Book read. Moved to agree that there should be two witnesses against every prisoner, though not upon oath, and that it is not requisite they be both upon oath. The Resolution is read again, and it is agreed that the words "upon oath" be left out. Some words agreed to be added to the Resolution, and after some time spent therein, the House was resumed, and L. Cornwallis reported the Resolution as now amended. The same was read twice, ‡ and, after debate thereon and leave given to protest on either side, on Question: Whether to agree with the C. W. H. in this Resolution? Resolved in the Affirmative. Contents, 35; Not-Contents, 28. Tellers, E. Stamford and L. Delawarr.§ Ordered that the complaint of E. Scarsdale|| be considered tomorrow. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 111.)

On 15 Nov. the Warrant for searching for E. Scarsdale was read, as well as the Proclamation for apprehending him. Moved, that the House go into consideration of the ways or means to discharge the bail that E. Huntingdon and E. Marlborough lie under. Moved, that an Address be made to his Majesty for taking off the bail of these Lords.¶ Then, after debate on how to discharge the said bail, and about E. Scarsdale, the debate adjourned till the 17th. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 112.)

On 17 Nov. the House merely ordered the consideration of what should be entered in the Books concerning this matter to be adjourned till the next day (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 114), when, the House being being also unfortunate, as he often used to express, in having his next heir descended from one of the Regicides, was ever solicitous, after his father's example, to prevent his estate from so dishonourable a descent, and so ungrateful to the Crown, especially considering that a great part thereof came from thence, and all the rest (except only the ancient estate of his family, which fell to his right heir-at-law) was by purchase a fee simple estate, and so in his own free disposal, and therefore thought fit to settle the same amongst such others of his nearest kindred as he knew most deserving, and best in esteem with himself and Duke George his father. Accordingly, in July 1675, he devised by will among Petitioners and others his nearest kindred, the inheritance of all his lands in certain proportions, whereof the Petitioner E. Bath had the greatest share, according to the expressed intentions of the testator and his father. Six years afterwards, the testator found himself subject to the importunities of one whom he could not at all times deny, and, therefore, to establish his settlement in such a manner that it might be free from being defeated by any compliance he might give for his own ease or his Duchess's health, he sealed in 1681 the inheritance of his estate to the use of Petitioners and other his nearest kindred, the greatest part thereof after the death of the Duchess, reserving in the deed a power of revocation under certain self-imposed rules. In 1687 he was prevailed with to seal another Will, without noticing therein the previous Will or Settlement, but, as proof that he meant the settlement to continue in force, he ordered, before leaving for Jamaica, where he died, the keys of his evidences to be left with the Petitioner, E. Bath, who, he said, would be chiefly concerned with them after his death; all which is fully in proof by depositions in Chancery, and was also proved viva voce on a trial in King's Bench. Since the said Duke's death, his Duchess brought her Bill in Chancery, and one Christopher Monck (who is really no way of kin to the Duke) another Bill, both to the same effect, for establishing the Will of 1687, and setting aside the deed of 1681, as revoked in equity, the Duchess claiming some more valuable interest for her life by the Will of 1687 than by the said deed, and Monck claiming thereby the inheritance of all such lands as were settled by the deed on Petitioners; and Petitioners brought their Bill against the Duchess and Monck and others to prove and support the Will of 1675 and deed of 1681, and to discover and apply the personal estate for payment of the Duke's debts, so as to clear the lands chargeable therewith, and to discover and secure the evidences relating to the said estate. The causes being heard on 4 July 1691, the Lords Commissioners ordered a trial in ejectment at the King's Bench Bar for trial of the right of the Wills and deed; and at this trial the jury gave a verdict for Petitioners. The Court of Chancery, after appointing a day to deliver judgment, was unexpectedly stayed by the Duchess's marriage with E. Mountague, whereby the suit in her name abated. E. Mountague not thinking fit to revive it, Petitioners prayed the Court to determine the cause wherein the Moncks are Plaintiffs and wherein the Duchess is in no way concerned but as an amiable Defendant for form only, but the said Earl of Mountague obstructs it by insisting on his privilege, though E. Bath's privilege has already been taken off by order of this House,* and the Duchess has profited thereby. Pray that the Court may be at liberty to proceed to a Decree. L. J., XV. 106. [In Committee for Privileges on 21 Nov., E. Stamford in the Chair, Counsel were called in. The Attorney General (for E. Bath): We desire we may not be hindered by E. the cause wherein the Moncks are Plaintiffs neither E. Mountague nor the Duchess have any concern at all. The Duchess will receive no prejudice by determination of the cause wherein E. Bath is Plaintiff. The Duchess is a bare trustee for E. Bath or the Moncks as to the plate, for she was to have it only during her widowhood. The ease is the same as to the household stuff. As to the writings, they are secured in the evidenee room in New-hall. The Duchess has one key, and the Earl the other. The Solicitor General (for E. Bath): Shows how far these causes have proceeded without standing on privilege. The Duchess cannot suffer by these suits. She stands and falls by her own Bill. Mr. Finch (for E. Mountague): There cannot possibly be any decision in these suits without his Lordship being concerned therein. The Duchess never had any privilege till now, and it is not possible to have any procedure in this matter without her being concerned. Sir Thomas Powys (for E. Mountague): If they can proceed against Monek without affecting E. Mountague, they need not fear a breach of privilege. There cannot be one step made, but it must be in opposition to the Will of 1687, whereby E. Mountague claims. The dismissal of Mr. Monek's Bill is no less than the determination of my Lord's title under the Will. They withdraw, and after debate, Ordered to report that E. Mountague has privilege in this case. (Priv. Book.) This report was made and agreed to the next day. (L. J., XV. 121.)]

585. Nov. 19. Newton v. Ballett.—Petition and Appeal of James Newton. The Respondents, being seized of some messuages and gardens, held by Appellant from their father, the late Dr. Ballett, at a lease for 17 years determinable at Christmas, 1691, and of other messuages and grounds in Garden Alley and Clerkenwell Green for a term of years determinable at Midsummer, 1692, applied in 1689 to the Respondent John Ballett, then in Essex, for a further term of the premises, and it was agreed in writing that in consideration of 100 guineas then paid by Appellant to the Respondent John, and 100*l.* and a silver tankard worth 10*l.* to his wife, for the first year's rent, and 150*l.* yearly afterwards, Appellant should have a further lease for 100 years from Midsummer, 1692, and for another 100 years longer, if his executors desired it, John Ballett to pay the ground landlord's taxes and his wife to join in a fine to confirm the said term. Appellant paid him the 100 guineas, but Ballett refused to sign the lease when offered to him. Appellant then brought a Bill in Chancery to have the agreement performed. Ballett pretended surprise, and put in a Cross Bill. The Lords Commissioners on 15 April 1692, on hearing both causes, dismissed Appellant's Bill and ordered the agreement to be set aside. Prays that the Decree may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams. L. J., XV. 107. [The Cause was heard on 3 Dec. The Attorney General (for Appellant) opened the case. Sir William Williams (for Appellant): The Articles we keep close to, and the 100 guineas paid. The Articles made a penalty of 4000*l.* on each. They were deliberately made and considered. The Solicitor General and Mr Finch argued for Respondent, and several depositions were read. - (b.) 17 Nov. Petition of Appellant. Complains that Respondent John Ballett has assaulted one Cornelius Hall, whom Appellant had sent to serve the order to answer. L. J., XV. 113. [Hall, being called in and sworn this day, said he served an Order on Mr. Ballett. "I delivered what I was ordered. Mr. Ballett called his man, and he beat me, he struck me in the face. Mr. Ballett himself came twice towards me." Ordered, that Ballett be attached. Later on in the sitting, the House being informed that he was attached, Ballett was brought to the Bar and desired time to examine his witnesses. Ordered, that Ballett and Hall attend on the 19th (MS. Min.).—On 19 Nov. Ballett was brought to the Bar, in custody of Black Rod, and the Petition against him was read. He said: "It is false what is sworn against me. I ordered him to go into the kitchen, and I would send him meat and drink. I did not strike him, or order him to be struck. (MS. Min. No entry in L. J.) Ballett was discharged on his Petition (Annex (d) below) on the 21st.]
- (c.) 19 Nov. Answer of John Ballett and Mary, his wife. Appellant, a stranger to the Respondent John, applied first to his uncle Dr. Charles Ballett, and afterwards to Respondent, who was ignorant of the nature and value of the estate and of his title thereto, to have a lease of the premises, having conspired with Charles Ballett to defraud Respondent of the estate and share it between them. For this purpose, Respondent was brought to London by his uncle and introduced to Appellant, and after being taken about from tavern to tavern, was inveigled into signing the Articles, which were most unreasonable, the rents of the premises being then above 400*l.* a year, and there being six acres of ground capable of great improvement. The Articles were proved to have been obtained by fraudulent combination and surprise. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Countersigned P. Bowes. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (e.) 8 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. The Court of Chancery, in their decree, which has been affirmed by the House, made no provision for restoring to Petitioner the 100 guineas in respect of what Petitioner had laid out on the premises, and the House gave no directions compelling Ballett to repay it to Petitioner. Prays their Lordships' directions in this matter. L. J., XV. 220. On 23 Feb. Sir William Williams (for Appellant): We would have our charges. Mr. Bowes (for Respondent): We will pay our 100 guineas. Ordered that the 100 guineas be restored to Mr. Newton by Mr. Ballett. 587. Nov. 14. Privilege of King's Servant (W. Killigrew).—Petition of William Killigrew. Petitioner, a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to his Majesty and in actual waiting, was arrested in the City on 9 August last, without leave from the Lord Chamberlain, by one Sparkes, a Serjeant of the Poultry Compter, in an action of 100*l.* at the suit of Abraham Beake, whose name was made use of by Thos. Joyner, a pretended creditor. After his arrest, Joyner laid an action of 100*l.* in his own name for the said debt, pretending that he had paid 50*l.* twelve years ago for Petitioner, and refused to discharge him though he produced a certificate of being sworn a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber. Petitioner was thereupon turned over to the King's Bench, where he is now a prisoner, on two 100*l.* actions, as appears by the paper annexed to his Petition. Prays their Lordships to relieve him, by supporting the privilege of his Majesty's Servants. L. J., XV. 110. [Killigrew was discharged on 22 Nov. on report from the Committee for Privileges (Priv. Book, 21 Nov.) that he had privilege in the case. (L. J., XV. 121.)]

588. Nov. 14. Meyrick v Hughes.—Petition and Appeal of Edmund Meyrick, Esq., and Elizabeth, his wife, Richard Kyffin, Esq., and Jane, his wife. The Respondent Hughes, having borrowed of Robert Price, of Geeler, co. Denbigh, the sum of 100*l.*, repayable by 20*l.* a year in 7 years, executed as security in 1668 to Price and his wife Katharine a lease for 14 years of lands in Bryntanger in that county at a pepper-corn rent for payment of 20*l.* a year, covenanting that the lands were of that yearly value and unincumbered. Price by will made his wife executrix and devised 100*l.* to the Appellants Elizabeth and Jane, and his wife died after him, making the Respondent Harding her executrix. Hughes received all the profits of the lease-land during the 14 years, and never paid anything to Price or his wife or Harding, so that the 100*l.* with interest now amounts to at least 238*l.* Harding spent all the personal estate except the debt in the hands of Hughes, which she agreed Appellants should have in discharge of their legacy, amounting with arrears of interest to 226*l.* To recover this sum, Appellants in 1683 brought a Bill in Chancery against Respondents, but although Harding admitted the arrangement as to debt, Sir John Trevor, Master of the Rolls, on 7 May, 4 Jac. II., dismissed the Bill with costs. Pray that this dismissal may be set aside, and Respondents ordered to answer. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Will. Dobyys and Ro. Price. All the signatures are copied. L. J., XV. 110. [The Cause was heard, and the Decree reversed on 22 Dec., Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Dobyys being heard for Appellants, and Sir Ambrose Phillipps for Respondents. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 161.)]

Annexed :—

(a.) 5 Dec. Answer of Charles Hughes. Respondent's father, Humphrey, in consideration of Respondent's marriage, settled the lands on trustees with power to charge them with an annuity not exceeding 30*l.* to such persons as he should appoint, and by his will he charged them with the said annuity payable to Hugh and Jane, Respondent's brother and sister. Respondent never meddled with the lands during his father's lifetime, but by order of his father, and after his death constantly paid the annuity. As for the pretended deed of mortgage and bond for performance of covenants, Respondent does not remember any such deed, and the term of 14 years has long elapsed, and such estate as was thereby granted is determined. He knows nothing of any legacy or wasting of the estate by Harding. He never borrowed anything of Price for his own use, and if anything was borrowed by his father, it was by him repaid. Since the Decree complained of, Appellants have caused Respondent to be arrested in an action at the suit of Harding, and have brought a new Bill in Chancery, without informing their Lordships. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Ambrose Phillipps. All the signatures are copied. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 6 Dec. Answer of Anne Harding. Respondent, being arrested by Appellants for the legacy, offered to assign to them Charles Hughes' debt as satisfaction, having no other assets. It was proved that Hughes received the profits of the lease lands during the 14 years. There were no proceedings on the action at law against Respondent, who is still willing to assign Hughes' debt in discharge of the legacy. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Henry Lloyd. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(c.) 25 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellants. The House having reversed the decree appealed from, Appellants applied to the Lords Commissioners for a rehearing, but were refused, on the ground that no direction had been given by the House for that purpose. Pray that they may be ordered to hear the cause with such direction as the House shall think fit. L. J., XV. 249.

589. Nov. 14. Muschamp v. Burton.—Petition and Appeal of Henry Muschamp. Respondent lately appealed to the House from an Order in Chancery of 17 Dec. 1690 setting aside the enrolment of a supposed decree by L. Chancellor Nottingham of 15 Nov. 1670; and their Lordships were pleased to discharge the former order, and the subsequent ones founded thereon.* Prays their Lordships to set aside the enrolment of the supposititious decree, so that Petitioner may be at liberty to proceed, and that Respondent may be ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and T. Powys. L. J., XV. 110. [This Appeal was dismissed on 21 Nov. (L. J., XV. 119), on reading Burton's Petition of date (Annex (a) below). For further proceedings see Notes to Annex (b).]

Annexed:—

(a.) 21 Nov. Petition of Philip Burton, Gent. Sets forth the proceedings below. Petitioner has already spent above 2,000*l.* and is likely to lose the money decreed him, Appellant being a prisoner in the Fleet. Prays not to be put to further charges by a Petition that seems to draw into examination again the same matters which have been already heard and determined by their Lordships. L. J., XV. 119.

(b.) 12 Dec. Petition of Appellant. Their Lordships have dismissed his last Petition of Appeal, on the Respondent's suggestion that it dealt with matters already determined by the House. Respondent, as the Receiver appointed under the Act of 22-23 Car. II., is alone accountable for the profits of Sir W. Clerke's trust estate, and not the trustees, of whom Appellant is one. The trustees called on Respondent for an account, and the latter procured a Report, dated 16 Feb. 1679. Appellant taking exceptions to this Report, the Master made another one in 1685, which showed Respondent a debtor to the trust in the sum of 2,687*l.*, instead of a creditor. Respondent excepting to this Report, the L. Chancellor Jeffreys confirmed the first Report, and set aside the last one. Appellant does not appeal against the irregularity of the enrolment of any order or decree, but insists that the decree of 29 Feb. 1687 was wrongfully pronounced, the same being to confirm a report contrary to the Act of Parliament, and set aside a Report pursuant to the directions of the said Act. Signed by Appellant; Counter-signed by Wi. Williams and Nicho. Courtney. L. J., XV. 144. [Counsel were heard in the Cause on 13 Feb. 1692-3. Sir William Williams (for Appellant): There was an Act passed for payment of the judgment debts. It takes the estate out of Sir William and puts it in these trustees, and the trustees to name a Receiver, and he to give security. The trustees deputed Burton to receive. By the Report there is due to us above 2,000*l*. L. Jeffreys confirmed and ratified Burton's Report. We pray the L. Jeffrey's Decree may be laid aside and that the Report of 1685 may stand. Mr. Poley (for Appellant): If Burton has paid the money, he has mispaid it. He has not proved any money paid. The error, we say, is in L. Jeffrey's decree, which destroys the Report for us. Reads the last decree, wherein the Report is recited. Report of 1685 read. L. Jeffreys damns this Report. The judgment debts were to be first paid. Sir William Whitelocke (for Respondent): Mr. Muschamp has been harassing Mr. Burton for 16 years already, and would be as many more. In 1671 the Act was made, and he was got into debt. Mr. Burton had deputation from the trustees, and he is to account for them. He paid as the trustees directed. He had their hands to his payment. 'Now,' says Mr. Muschamp, 'you shall pay the money again.' When we came before the Lord Chancellor, it appeared that we had paid as we ought. This has been nine times confirmed. Mr. Finch (for Respondent): Recites the Act, and the Receiver to be accountable. In 1675 there is a Bill brought by a judgment creditor, and then a Bill brought by Mr. Burton and the trustees, and the account was taken and several times confirmed. Recites all the confirmations and Reports. In July 1680 this Order was made. Until 1685 we hear nothing of Mr. Muschamp. The L. Keeper North hears the whole case again. In 1683 it was confirmed, and in 1685 L. Jeffreys says: 'If you will get a Report by November, you shall have time.' He lets it alone, and comes in December, and gets a Report behind our backs. We complained of this, and the Court sets it aside, and then Muschamp desires a rehearing, and the L. Jeffreys confirms all the rehearings and sets aside the Report. Then he brings a Bill of Review, and there says Burton was still chargeable, before the Commissioners, and they confirmed it. Then he applies to the present Commissioners and desires the opening of the Cause, and they then heard us. We complained of this, and the House set aside that order. Sir William Williams (for Appellant) heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker having reported, the House dismissed the Appeal, and affirmed the Decree of 29 Feb. 1687-8. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 227.)]

(c.) 22 Dec. Answer of Philip Burton, Gent. Recites proceedings below. Respondent has been harassed by Appellant in Chancery for 16 years at the expense of over 2,000*l*., and is likely to lose the 1,080*l*. reported due to him, Appellant being a prisoner in the Fleet and insolvent. Prays that the Decree may be confirmed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Counter-signed by W. Whitelocke. Endorsed as brought in this day. See also MS. Min. of date.

(d.) 14 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. He can prove that the Master in his Report allowed Respondent 6,477*l.* without any orders from the trustees for payment thereof, or any proof of such payment. Prays to be heard touching the error in the Report. [Offered this day and ordered to be dismissed. L. J., XV. 229.]

590. Nov. 15. Attorney-General, on behalf of the town of Oundle, &c. v. Barton.—Amended* Petition and Appeal of Sir John Soñers, Knt., their Majesties' Attorney-General, on the behalf of the several towns of Oundle, Tansor, Cotterstock and Glapthorne, in the county of Northampton. Clement Bellamy, by will dated 12 Oct. 1658, devised his real and personal estate, worth above 1,000*l.*, to John Norton, father of John Norton and grandfather of Doyley Norton, Defendants below, to be disposed of for such poor people and charitable uses as Norton should think fit. The latter, by his will of 9 March 1662, directed his son, by the advice of L. C. Baron Mountague, a trustee in the settlement of his estate, to settle lands worth 20*l.* a year for placing out as apprentices and at the University the poor boys to be born in one of the said four parishes, and to facilitate the performance of the trust, gave him and his heirs, by a later clause, the Holme with the 10 acres of meadow next Tansor field, and what else he bought of Mr. Henry Pickering, and charged the same with the charity. Norton died, leaving a very large estate to his son, who for several years duly paid the money, and as the lands particularly charged were sufficient to answer it, the parishes were not solicitous to have other lands settled, the clause being only in favour of Norton the son, in case he found it convenient to substitute other lands for those particularly charged. But the son afterwards taking to extravagant courses, and beginning to sell and mortgage parts of his estate, and falling in arrear with the charity, some of the parishes in 1684 sought relief under a Commission of Charitable Uses then on foot. The Commissioners decreed payment with arrears, but omitted, by neglect of the Solicitor for the parishes, to charge the lands particularly set apart, and Norton being then a prisoner, the parishes could get no advantage from the Decree. Accordingly, in 1685, by the advice of Counsel and the then Bishop of Peterborough, an Information was exhibited in the Attorney-General's name, at the relation of the parishes, for recovery of the charity, in which all persons interested in Norton's estate were made Defendants. Among these, Thomas Barton, who was in possession of the lands particularly charged, pleaded in bar that he was a purchaser from Filbrigg and Satterthwaite (who had purchased from Norton) for valuable consideration, without notice of the will. His plea being overruled on 29 April 1686 by L. Chancellor Jeffreys, he brought a Cross-Appeal against Norton, Welby, Kirkham and all others who had any part of old Norton's estate, to have other lands settled in discharge of his, or that the other purchasers of the estate might also contribute. Welby and Kirkham, who were mortgagees, submitted to be redeemed on payment of what was due to them, but the other Defendants, who were absolute purchasers, insisted that the lands not particularly charged were not chargeable. The Court on 26 Feb.

1686 ordered Norton, after payment to the mortgagees, to settle lands of sufficient value to satisfy the charity, and discharged those purchased by Barton. Norton was only tenant for life, and he being now dead, and his widow and his son Doyley in possession by virtue of the entail, nothing remains of the estate, to answer the charity, but the lands particularly charged, which are now declared to be exempt. Prays that the Decree may be reversed, and that Barton, Mary Norton and Doyley Norton, Kirkham, Satterthwaite and his wife, Jonathan, the brother, heir and executor of George Welby, and Filbrigg, the nephew and next heir of William Filbrigg, and Dr. Arnold and Richard and John Filbrigg, trustees of Filbrigg, since deceased, may be ordered to answer. Signed by J. Somers and Thos. Powys. L. J., XV. 112. [The Cause was heard on 2 Jan. 1692-3. Mr. Finch (for Appellant) opens the case. The question is, whether notice or not. We shall prove notice in Filbrigg and Barton also. Sir Thomas Powys (for Appellant): The Will is plain in this case. States the parts of the Will. They read old John Norton's Will. Depositions of Hicks and others read. The Solicitor-General (for Respondent Barton): The Court below, I hope, has given a very just decree. A jury has found we had no notice for Barton, and discharged my client. This was before the Commissioners for Charitable Uses. They never excepted against this Decree; they acquiesced under it. In 1685 they exhibit this Information against my client, and in 1687 the Chancery dismissed the Bill to my client, and they did right, as will appear by the witnesses they examined and read. There is no colour of proof at all of notice. Mr. Ward (for Respondent Barton): The question is only whether my client Barton had notice or not. We are the person within the Act of Parliament without notice. We have sworn no notice at all, and the Law Books say general notice is no notice. It has passed an Inquisition in a legal (sic). Sir William Whitelocke (for the other Respondents): But I find nothing affects them. Mr. Jennings (for Satterthwaite and wife): But I see nothing affects them. Mr. Finch and Sir Thos. Powys heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and Speaker reported. After debate, the House ordered the Dismission of 22 Feb. 4 Jac. II. to be reversed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 170.) See further Annex (e.) and Notes.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 3 Dec. Joint and Several Answers of Thomas Barton, Senior, Gent., Thomas Arnold, Doctor of Laws, Richard Filbrigg and John Filbrigg. The Respondent Barton knows nothing of the Wills of Bellamy or old Norton. He purchased in 1669 the Holme and osier beds for 500*l.*, without any notice of the Charity, from George Colewell and Margaret his wife, George being nephew to Arthur Colewell, who had purchased them in 1664 from Norton the son; and in 1670 he purchased the 10 acres from William Filbrigg, to whom young Norton had sold them in 1664. Barton's purchases were made in the name of Sir Lewis Palmer, William Colby, since deceased, and Mathew Johnson, as trustees. Filbrigg also purchased from young Norton for valuable consideration and without notice of the Charity. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed only by Tho. Barton and Tho. Arnold. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 29 Dec. Answer of Bryan Satterthwaite and Margaret his wife [sign Satterthwaite], late wife of George Colewell, deceased. Arthur Colewell, late father of the said George, purchased the Holmes and osier beds of young Norton, and Respondents sold them to Barton, without ever having any notice of the Charity. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(c.) 29 Dec. Joint and Several Answers of Mary Norton, widow, and Doyley Norton, Esquire. The Charity was publicly known in the neighbourhood, and must have been known to the purchasers of the lands particularly charged, being inhabitants in and near the towns concerned. Barton was employed by young Norton as his solicitor on his father's death, and on purchasing the premises, took a covenant from William Filbrigg to discharge him from the Charity. The rest of old Norton's real estate is of small value to Respondents, most of it having been sold or encumbered by his son, or withheld from him by pretended purchasers. The lands now wrongfully withheld by the other Respondents were settled on the Respondent Mary and her children in consideration of her marriage portion, long before the Will was made, and neither old Norton nor his son had any power to charge them beyond their own lives. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(d.) 29 Dec. Joint and Several Answers of Charles Kirkham, Esq., and Jonathan Welby, Clerk. The Charity was commonly disowned in the neighbourhood. Kirkham's ancestors owned the manor and rectory of Cotterstock and other lands there worth about 200*l.* a year, and Walter, his late father, was forced, as a delinquent for his loyalty to Charles I., to surrender his interest therein, part of which was conveyed to old Norton, then a man of great authority, and part appropriated to the use of preaching Ministers. At the Restoration, the latter part was restored to him by Act of Parliament, and the part held by Norton was subjected to the rentcharge of 100*l.* for the Ministers. Norton's son, who succeeded to the estate, falling in arrear, the Respondent Kirkham's mother entered, as she was entitled, on the rectory and premises, and now holds them with Respondent her son. The latter is ready to give up possession, on payment of the rentcharge and arrears, to whomsoever the rectory and premises of right belong, but his own right being settled upon him before the Will which created the Charity, and other lands being particularly charged with the Charity, the premises subjected to the rentcharge should be free therefrom. Respondent Welby's brother was a bonâ fide purchaser from young Norton, and Respondent Welby has since conveyed away the lands. The Charity should be paid by the lands particularly charged. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(e.) 11 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. Since the reversal by their Lordships of the Decretal Order complained of, application has been made to the Lords Commissioners to put their Lordships' Order in execution, so as to charge the lands with payment of the Charity and arrears, but the Lords Commissioners being of opinion that the Order of reversal does not fully warrant them to give such directions, have left Petitioner to apply further to the House to enlarge their order on that point. Prays their Lordships to direct accordingly. Signed J. Soñers. [Read this day and Judgment amended. L. J., XV. 224.]

591. Nov. 15. Dowley v. Bagnall.—Petition and Appeal of John Dowley. Appellant and Respondent's testator in 1672 entered into partnership for 5 years as haberdashers of small wares in London, with an equal stock in trade. Appellant was to keep Bristol and Gainsborough fair and testator Holden, Beverley and Lenton fairs. Neither party was to take an apprentice without the consent of the other, and all losses were to be borne in common. A general account was to be made up yearly, and if either party died during the five years, the survivor was to take the whole stock and, after paying off all debts, hand over a moiety to his representative in three payments. If the partners agreed to end the partnership at the close of the five years, three months more were to be allowed for settling accounts and disposing of wares. When this time arrived, namely on 30 Dec. 1677, testator prevailed with Appellant to continue by bonds for another year ending 11 Jan. 1678-9, when Appellant, taking notice of certain bad debts, amounting to about 1,400*l.*, agreed with testator, who was then sickly and infirm, that new articles should be made, by which each party should have profit or loss alike, and the surviving partner should not be overcharged or make good to the representative of the deceased partner his share. Pending the completion of the new articles, which was left to testator, a bond was given to continue the partnership for six weeks upon the old ones. The new articles were delayed by the illness of testator, who finally died on 21 June 1679 without making them; and the partnership having determined in his lifetime, Appellant conceived that the whole estate in trade should be divided, and that he should not be charged with the bad debts of 1,400*l.*, wrongly mentioned as good in the last account, made only by testator, and containing errors to the amount of 500*l.* George Bagnall, the testator's surviving executor, then brought his Bill in Chancery against Appellant, claiming 5,529*l.* as testator's share on the last yearly account, and the Court on 1 May 1689 decreed payment, and that an account should be taken according to the old articles. On a rehearing on 14 May 1690, a fresh account was directed to be taken both ways, viz<sup>t</sup> from the foot of the stated account and from testator's death. Bagnall on 21 Feb. 1690-1 obtained an ex parte report from the Master according to the directions in the order of 1 May 1689, finding Appellant indebted to him above 4,000*l.*; and on 5 March 1690-1 the Master, after hearing all parties according to the order of 14 May 1690, certified that the partnership determined on 1 March 1678-9, and that 980*l.* was due from Appellant, which he submitted to pay. On 16 Dec. 1691 the Cause coming again to be heard according to the order of 14 May, the Court confirmed the Order of 1 May, and discharged both Reports. This decree is unjust, being grounded on the supposition that the partnership continued till testator's death. Part of the losses in trade arose from testator's employing dishonest servants, without security for their good conduct, as the articles stipulated. Prays that the Decree may be reversed and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor and Wm. Whitelocke. L. J., XV. 112. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed on 19 Dec., Mr. Finch and the Solicitor-General being heard for the Appellant, and Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Filmer for the Respondent. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 152.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 22 Nov. Answer of George Bagnall, Gent., Executor of George Bagnall, deceased. The bad debts of 1,400*l.* were acknowledged in the first articles of partnership, which recited also that the ready money and good debts amounted to 4,000*l.* It was agreed that interest should be allowed out of the joint stock for any sums or stock put in by either party into the trade beyond their joint stock. It was never intended that at the end of five years a partition should be made or the partnership dissolved. Appellant never objected in testator's lifetime that any of the debts reckoned good in the last stated account proved bad ones, nor was it agreed to draw new articles in the terms alleged. The partnership continued on the old terms till testator's death, and was intended to continue for another five years. Under the Decree complained of, the Master has certified 3,853*l.* due to Respondent. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tho. Filmer. Endorsed as brought in this day.

592. Nov. 15. Smith v. Duffield.—Petition and Appeal of Robert Smith, Gent., and Mary his wife and Sarah Duffield, which said Mary and Sarah are the sisters and coheirs at law of Andrew Duffield, deceased. Knightley Duffield, on his marriage with Sarah Field, mother of Appellants Mary and Sarah, settled certain lands in Medmenham, Bucks, on himself and wife for their lives, then to their heirs male, failing which, to their daughters, until such time as, if there should happen to be but one daughter, some heir male to Knightley, or such person to whom some estate of freehold or inheritance in the premises should be thereby limited, should have paid to such one daughter 2,000*l.*, or, if two daughters, 1,500*l.* to each. Knightley died in 1665, leaving to his son and executor Andrew certain other lands, not included in the marriage settlement, on trust to sell them and pay 600*l.* to Mary and 700*l.* to Sarah. Andrew paid to Mary her 600*l.* on her marriage with Appellant Smith, and died unmarried, leaving all his estate in Bucks, charged with Sarah's legacy, to his cousin Francis for life, then to his cousin's son Francis in tail, with remainders over; and he gave all his houses in London to Mary and Sarah for life, and after their deaths, to Francis for life, with remainders over, and after legacies of about 1,200*l.*, gave the goods in the manor house to Francis and to go with the house to the next heir, and gave the residue of his personal estate to Mary and Sarah, his Exeentrices. Petitioners, having a legal estate in the lands comprised in the marriage settlement, brought their ejectment, whereupon Francis brought a Bill in Chancery, pretending that the legacies and the advantage of Knightley's will was a satisfaction in equity of the portions of 1,500*l.* each. On 25 Oct. 1692 the Lords Commissioners decreed in his favour, and ordered Petitioners to deliver up the marriage settlement and convey all their estate in the lands to Respondent, whereby Petitioners, the heirs-at-law of their brother Andrew, are disinherited by his will of the lands, worth 500*l.* a year, devised to Francis. Neither Knightley nor Andrew by their wills put any condition on Petitioners of releasing their portions. Pray that the Decree may be reversed, and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Will. Killingworth and Edw. Ward. L. J., XV. 112. See also 2 Vernon 177, 258. [The Cause was heard and the Decree reversed on 20 Dec., Mr. Finch and Mr. Ward being heard for the Appellant, and the Solicitor-General (Trevor) and Sir William Whitelocke for the Respondent. (b.) 25 Nov. Answer of Francis Duffield, Esq. Knightley left the legacies to his daughters, considering the contingent provision made for them by the marriage settlement was not likely to benefit them. Andrew regularly paid interest to Sarah for her 700*l.*, according to the will, and quietly enjoyed the estate, after Knightley's death, till his own death in 1668. He devised to Sarah and Mary several houses in London worth 200*l.* a year, as well as 300*l.* a year in New River shares, and the residue of his personal estate, worth 7,000*l.* and upwards. Appellants, before their ejection, brought a Bill in Chancery for their portions, which was dismissed. The Court of Chancery declared that Appellants' demands were satisfied in equity by the devises in the wills, which were more than double the provision originally intended in the settlement, and that Andrew's plain intention was to leave his real estate for life to Respondent, his heir male, free of any charge beyond Sarah's legacy, the whole estate being but 400*l.* a year, half of which would have come to him under an old settlement. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Counter-signed by Wm. Whiteloeke. Endorsed as brought in this day.

593. Nov. 15. Parker v. Thornhill.—Petition of Philadelphia, George, Robert, Thomas and William Parker, children of Dame Sarah Parker, widow, daughter of George Chute, Esq., deceased. Refers to their Lordships' judgment of 2 Dec. 1691 and Order of 22 Feb. 1691–2. Pursuant to the last Order, Baron Powell has presented to their Lordships an Issue drawn by himself and Justice Powell, which is accordingly ordered to be tried. This issue, which is only whether George Chute the younger was seized for life or in tail of the premises in question at the time of suffering the common recovery, is not sufficient to determine the matters in question; for even if he were shown to be tenant in tail, the common recovery would not bar the remainder in fee vested in George Chute the elder and by him devised to Petitioners, Katherine Chute, the widow, having an estate for life in the premises precedent to the estate tail. Pray that the Issue may be referred back to the said Judges for amendment before trial thereof. Signed by Sarah Parker and P. Parker. L. J., XV. 112. [The original Petition of Appeal,* complaining of a Decree in Chancery of 3 Feb. 1690–1, was presented on 6 Nov. 1691. (L. J., XIV. 635). The Cause was first heard, on that Appeal, on 30 Nov. 1691. Sir Thomas Powys (for Appellants) opened the Case. The thing will turn upon a point in law, which the Chancery should have directed, whether by the words of the will he is tenant in tail or not. The intent of the Will must guide us. Mr. Ward (for Appellants): We conceive the Chancery has erred. Sir William Williams (for Respondents): This is an estate tail. The words are plain, and there can be no implication on the words thereof. 13 Hen. VII. Mr. Finch (for Respondents): It is an estate tail, and can be interpreted no other wise. Sir William Williams heard in reply. Mr. Trevor heard as to the portions. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker reported. The Judges asked whether the words of the Will make an estate tail. Holt, C. J., reads the words of the Will. It is an estate tail, in the son George. Atkins, C. B.: I am not of the same opinion with the L. C. Justice. I take it was only to enable him to make a jointure to another wife. Gregory, J.: As the Will is penned, it makes an estate tail. Gregory, B.: I think it is an estate tail. Eyre, J.: It is a devise to a tenant in tail. Powell, B.: It is an estate tail by implication, otherwise there might have been a male Defendant. *Holt, C. heard again: It is an estate tail to the first wife, but whether it is so after seems (sic). Moved that the Judges give their opinions in this case another day. Ordered as in L. J., XIV. 665. (MS. Min.)—On 2 Dec. the Judges were heard on the question whether by the words of the Will, Mr. Chute was tenant in tail? Atkyns, C. B.: I am of opinion that the testator intended his son should have an estate tail, and so his recovery is a good recovery. Holt, C. J.: I have not had time, but I should be glad to hear Counsel on this point. Ordered that it be referred to a trial at law, after which either side may resort to this House (MS. Min.; L. J., XIV. 668). On 17 Feb. 1691–2, on a Petition* of the Respondents, stating that the matter was not triable on ejectment, the House referred it to Justice Powell and Baron Powell to draw an Issue for the trial (L. J., XV. 80). The Issue was presented by Baron Powell and agreed to by the House on 22 Feb. (ib. 87), and on 15 Nov. on the above Petition of the Appellants, it was referred back to the same Judges to amend it (ib. 112). On 26 Jan. 1692–3, a Petition† of the Appellants was dismissed (ib. 202). Nothing further happened till 27 Nov. 1694, when the Appellants were ordered to answer a Petition* of the Respondents, presented that day, praying that the Issue might be enlarged, a Special Verdict having been found. the Court of King's Bench conceiving the Issue not sufficient to try the matter in question (ib. 436.) The Appeal was ultimately withdrawn 18 March 1695–6 (ib. 709.).]

- (a.) 26 Jan. 1692–3. Petition of Philadelphia, Sir George, Robert, Thomas and William Parker, children of Dame Sarah Parker, daughter of George Chute the elder, Esq., deceased, being infants by the said Dame Sarah Parker, their guardian. The tenants of the estate late of George Chute the elder have, since the death of George Chute the younger in 1689, refused to pay their rents. Petitioners have pleaded to the trial at law directed by their Lordships, but the cause is not yet tried. Pray that the tenants may be ordered to pay all growing rents and arrears. Pray for leave to withdraw Appeal. L. J., XV. 709.
- (d.) 18 March 1695–6. the sellers' houses, there can be no hurt to the farmer. The Cheesemongers have not power to shift the butter out of the firkin they buy it in. Mr. Blackerby (for the Bill): It is only 22 of the Cheesemongers who have engrossed the whole commodity, who oppose the Bill. They keep the butter often a month before they search. The Searchers are not sworn. I have heard they are broken tradesmen. They have raised 600*l.* a year by informations and indietments in Suffolk. We do not oppose a search at the seller's house. These Cheesemongers will suffer none but whom they please to trade into Suffolk. Mr. Domville says that he and 13 others are prohibited trade there by the Thames Street Cheesemongers. Mr. Ward (for the Cheesemongers): This Bill repeals the Statute 14 Car. II. and gives leave to put on board on any private vessel. 14 Car. II. answers all the ends of well packing, whereas this Bill will countenance frauds and leave them unpunished. That Statute provides both for the quantity and quality, and has adapted punishments for persons that shall offend. The buyer cannot possibly last nor weigh the butter, for the farmer will not have it bored. The farmer is an eye-witness of the search of the butter at the waterside. Mr. Blackerby: The Weighers are no legal officers. This Bill only regulates the abuses they commit under colour of the Act. We are content that they should be weighed and searched at our own houses, as much as they please. These men will let none into trade with them but whom they please. Mr. Ward: It is impossible to discover at the buying. It will spoil the butter to see it upon the place. We cannot carry our axes and tools with us to the farmers' houses. The cask is often over-weight. Mr. Blackerby: The factor commonly strips the butter when he buys it. The Indicter pays no costs; the person is liable to pay double costs. Let the buyer be liable to pay the costs and the trade be open, and we agree. He offers a Clause to be added to the Bill, which is read.* Ordered that both sides attend on 3 Dec., in the Prince's Lodgings, and in the meantime swear such witnesses at the Bar as they shall then produce; and that the Cheesemongers have a copy of the Clause now offered. (Com. Book.)

3 Dec.† The Parties are called in. Richard Savill (sworn) (for the Cheesemongers in Thames Street) says he has been a factor in Suffolk. He has bought 80 firkins of butter and not viewed 6 at the buying them. The search is made at the time of the delivery in the presence of the seller. There are few sealed weights; they weigh with stones. They generally deliver at the water-side. They promise to make good what is bad; it often fails in goodness and weight. They have told me they had rather search at the warehouse than at home. He is now a Cheesemonger, and trades for butter into Suffolk. He cannot tell whether he can at home discover all defects; he believes he might, if he had his warehouse-keeper. William Smith (sworn): Has often bought butter in Suffolk, 400 firkins in a season. Some would suffer me to search, others would not. It has sometimes been good at top, bottom and sides, and grease in the middle. If we bore it through, the air will get in and damage it. In some great dairies there are sealed weights and iron beams; in most places there are wooden beams and stone weights. If we try it exactly at their houses, we must carry weights and beams. Some firkins have been made up so artificially that he could not discover it till he cut it up. He was not obliged to buy if he did not like it. Thomas Browne (sworn): He used to buy at random and weigh afterwards. He trades sometimes for himself. William Bath (sworn): The Cooper strips the butter at the warehouse, and runs a knife into it. The seller brings it thither; there is often bad butter in it. He knows not that it damages the butter. He is a hoy-man. He never refused butter from any. He is at liberty to carry any man's goods. There are more vessels that do not carry butter than that do. He was never threatened by the Thames-Street men that if his son carried for any besides them, he should be turned out. He was not threatened, but White said if his son carried for anyone, it would be a means to have him turned out. Nicholas Bowell (sworn): He sold some pots to a gentleman, and one of them was more than dry salt. This was out of Staffordshire. Thomas Briggs (sworn): There are plenty of vessels for anyone. He has brought several loads of butter 12 years since for other persons. He never refused to bring up butter and cheese. He has offered his vessel to Mr. Forster. He is now freighted by the Thames-Street men. The country cannot want a vessel, if they will freight them. William Betts (sworn) (for the Bill): At one Sessions about 1674, there were about 200 informations against the farmers. They submitted rather than try, for they could compound for a mark apiece, and it would cost them much more if they had tried it. Edmund Bohun (sworn): Butter will naturally decay and lose its colour. They found no fault at their houses, but three months afterwards they would come for deductions. He always desired them to try it at his house, but they never would. The charge of a trial and bringing back the butter was so much greater than the abatement, that they chose rather to pay than try. All farmers have weights. They never stood for 2 lb. or 3 lb. of butter, if their weights were not sealed.—The House being set, the Lords are called in. (Com. Book.)

5 Dec. The parties are called in. Edward Domvile (sworn) (for the Bill): He went to Daniel Herne, the warehouse-keeper at Woodbridge, to ship his goods. He told him he durst not, though he lost more than 5*l.* a year by not doing it, besides, the Thames-Street Cheesemongers would turn him out if he did. Treasurer Hayes, at a meeting of the Cheesemongers, told him he should not deal in Suffolk. (He produces letters from his factors concerning the not lading his goods.) There are about 250 cheesemongers in London, about 22 Thames-Street men that deal to Suffolk. He was left out a year sooner, but Alderman Radford got him in again. Benjamin Grevill (sworn) says (sic). The House being set, they withdraw. The Cheesemongers desire to be heard by witnesses. Ordered accordingly, and that the witnesses be sworn. (Com. Book.)

7 Dec. The parties are called in. Edward Domvile (sworn) (for the Bill): In December last he desired Dan Herne, warehouse-keeper at Woodbridge, [but he] refused to take in his goods. Benjamin Grevill (sworn): The warehouse-keeper at Ipswich refused to ship his goods. John Hamptou (sworn): His factor John Davy told him the Thames-Street men would not suffer him to deal in Suffolk. He acts for two or three Thames-Street men. Richard Steele (sworn): His master John Barnard has been hindered from shipping his goods in the common hoys, and he has been debarred of his market because he was forced to send his goods to Harwich. The hoymen have told him the wholesale men would not let them take in the goods. It has cost his master much money, because he is forced to send his goods about. Samuel Palmer (sworn): He has been hindered at Chester by these men in the shipping his cheese. He has been refused by the common hoys; they take them up to themselves.

Mr. Hayes (against the Bill) : They will resign all the ships that they are not properly owners of, which they have now contracted with. He hopes they may hire and employ what vessels they please. John Ewer (sworn) : There are 20 hoys at Aldborough that they may hire, which ply to London. At Ipswich there may every week be had a dozen. William Barton (sworn) : There are plenty of ships and warehouses in Suffolk to be had. He went thither a stranger, and met with both. Thomas Almond (sworn) : There are more vessels in Woodbridge unemployed than that are employed. There are several warehouses to be had there. There are about 9 or 10 hoys that go constantly to London, besides ketches, &c. He never refused to carry butter. He is hired by the Thames-Street Cheesemongers. Being asked, he would not say that if he was not full loaded by the Thames-Street men, that he durst take in any other man's butter and cheese.

8 Dec. The Bill read by paragraphs. Amendments made.* Bill ordered to be reported as amended.

The Bill was reported on 9 Dec., when the amendments were agreed to. (L. J., XV. 140.) In the Commons on 15 Dec., it was laid aside after a first reading and a debate "touching the second reading" (C. J., X. 744), and a new Bill was brought in, in its place, by Sir Samuel Bernardiston on the 17th (ib. 746), who, with others, brought it up to the Lords on 13th Feb. 1692-3. (L. J., XV. 227.)]

595. Nov. 17. Nussey v. Sheppard.—Petition and Appeal of Gilbert Nussey, Gent. Edward Clenehe and Elizabeth his wife (since deceased) mortgaged in 1668 to Edward Sheppard, as security for 600*l.*, the inheritance, expectant on the death of Elizabeth Smith, relict of Samuel Aldgate, of the manor lands and advowson of the Church of Northam and certain lands in Bramford, Suffolk. In 1677 the mortgagee by will devised the mortgaged premises and reversions to his wife, his executrix, during her life, and, after her death, to his nephew William Sheppard, and gave to his nephew Thomas Sheppard his lands in Bramford after the estate for life limited in his will. Testator died in 1680, and his widow claiming, as residuary legatee, 404*l.* interest on the mortgage, Clenehe, as security, mortgaged the equity of redemption to Benjamin Nussey, in trust for her. Appellant, having all the interest in the premises willed to him by the widow, proved her will as her executor, and in 1690 purchased in the absolute release of the equity of redemption for 150*l.* from William and Mary Clenehe, the mortgagor's executors and devisees. Elizabeth Smith, the tenant for life, is still living. Sheppard's two nephews claiming the premises when they should fall in possession or some part of the money lent thereon, Appellant brought his Bill in Chancery against them and Elizabeth Smith, William and Mary Clenehe and Laurence Nussey, praying the direction of the Court on the construction of Edward Sheppard's will as to the money lent on the mortgage, and for possession after the death of the tenant for life. The two nephews brought a Cross Bill to compel Appellant to pay the money or be foreclosed of the equity of redemption. The Lords Commissioners, on hearing both causes, on 22 June 1692, refused to relieve Appellant, but gave him time to consider whether he would redeem on payment of principal, interest and costs. Appeals from this Decretal Order, and prays that the mortgage money may be decreed to him and Respondents ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wm. Whitelocke and Tho. Filmer. on 21 Dec. Mr. Finch (for Appellant): He treats for the Estate and for that there is an absolute conveyance, and she dies and makes an exeeutor and conveys to us. When the Appellant and Respondents come to treat, then they differ about their shares. (They read the words of the Will: "I give and devise unto the said Elizabeth," &c.) Sir Thomas Powys (for Appellant): They will hardly be able to maintain this Decree as it now stands. It is we who are entitled, as we are the exeeutor of this woman, and [to] all the interest. Here is a dry reversion; no profit until the tenant for life is dead. If she has it not as devisee, she must have it as exeeutrix. The Solicitor-General (for Respondents): This mortgage was made in 1668. It is a mortgage of a reversion. No interest was paid, and Clenche makes his Will and devises his land as they have read. He dies in 1680, and in 1682 she comes as exeeutrix, and here is an account stated for 600*l*. We admitted to a redemption, paying the principle money, interest and costs. They were not willing to do this, and did not redeem, and so the Bill stood dismissed. If we had not submitted to this redemption, then the Court was absolutely of opinion they ought not to redeem. The question is, whether the Court did well to let them in to redeem. We are entitled to part of the interest and principle. Mr. Poley (for Respondent): There was no further sum advanced. She had no estate vested in her. If the devise carries anything, it carries all. Mr. Finch and Sir Thos. Powys heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and Speaker reported. Judges heard as to what is usual in cases of equity upon redemption of mortgages. Lechmere, B., heard to the ease. Turton, B.: If all be given away, nothing can come to the executrix. Powell, B.: The general word will carry that to her. The Decree was then reversed, with directions as in L. J., XV. 159. (MS. Min.)]

- (a.) 1 Dec. Answer of William Sheppard and Thomas Sheppard. Respondents' uncle left by his will the manor and a moiety of the advowson of the Church of Northam after his wife's death to Respondent William, and the lands in Bramford, being the rest of the mortgaged premises, to Thomas, after the estate for life limited should be determined. Testator's widow dying during the lifetime of Elizabeth Smith, no interest in the mortgage vested in or was intended by testator for his widow, but it went to Respondents, his nearest relations. Elizabeth Sheppard had no title, as her husband's executrix, to the interest money on the mortgage, and if she took any other security therefor from Clenche, it was only colourable and with intent to defraud Respondents. Respondents offered to let Appellant redeem, though the mortgaged premises were not strictly redeemable. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondents; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor and Hen. Poley. All the signatures are copied. Endorsed as brought in this day.

596. Nov. 17. E. Exeter and E. Devonshire v. Clerke.—Petition and Appeal of John, Earl of Exeter, and William, Earl of Devonshire. Petitioner, the E. Exeter, as surviving executor of William, late E. Devon, in trust to pay his debts and legacies, and other sums, became liable by his testator's covenant, on the death of Lady Holderness without issue in Feb. 1689, to pay 6,000*l*. to Sir John Nieholas, Kt., on his assigning of a term of 2,000 years in the manor of Stavely, co. Derby, vested in him as a trustee for securing thereof. The sum being claimed under one title by Elizabeth Clerke, spinster; under a second title by Dame Joyee Turner and Isabella Clerke, widows; and under a third title by Francis Skinner and others, the creditors of Philip Warwick, Esq., Petitioner, the E. Exeter, was forced to apply to Chancery for directions, and accordingly, with the E. Devon, brought his Bill against Elizabeth Clerke, Dame Joyee Turner, Isabella Clerke, Matthew Johnson and John Tench, and also Sir John Nicholas for directions and indemnity, and to compel Sir John Nicholas, on payment of the money, to assign the said term, Sir John, who had the legal right to the money, refusing to receive it or assign the term without the direction of the Court. The other persons, who claimed the money, not agreeing among themselves to whom it should be paid, brought several Bills against Petitioners on distinct titles, created by Sir Philip Warwick and his son Philip, who had the original title to the money. The Court, on hearing all the causes together on 13 May 1692, decreed Petitioner, the E. Exeter, to pay the 6,000*l.* with interest to Master Keek to the use of the creditors and the residue to Elizabeth Clerke, and on 23 August 1692 ordered that unless Petitioners paid the same within three weeks, they should pay interest till the principal was paid. Thus the E. Exeter has to pay above 700*l.* interest since bringing his Bill, although he was ready to pay the principal when first due, and was only prevented from so doing by having to receive the directions of the Court as to whom to pay it. Appeals against the Decree and Order as to the payment of interest. Prays that Elizabeth Clerke and the others first named may be ordered to answer. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor, Wm. Dobyns, and Rich. Holford. L. J., XV. 114. [The Cause was heard on 12 Dec. The Attorney-General and Solicitor-General were heard for Appellants. Sir William Williams heard for Respondents. Mr. Finch (for Respondents): There was no tender to discharge the growing interest. Counsel for Appellants heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and Speaker reported. Judges heard as to where by law the money is to be tendered and paid? If a time and place appointed, then at the time and place. If otherwise, he is to seek where the party is, that is to take it. If the Appellants had proved they offered the money to Sir John Nicholas, it had been something, but this is another case. Lechmere, B.: Sir John Nicholas was to be paid the money, if the money was brought to a place and tendered. Rokeby, J.: There is no tender without actually producing the money. Ordered, that the Decree be affirmed. (L. J., XV. 144; MS. Min.)]

- (a.) 24 Nov. Answer of Elizabeth Clerke, Spinster. Respondent claims as Executrix of Philip Warwick, whose creditors only claim as much of the money as will satisfy their debts. The Appellants' Bill was as well to discover and clear an incumbrance of 1,800*l.*, on a judgment acknowledged by the late L. Frescheville, as about the payment of the money. The deed of security ought to guide the payment of interest. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Ja. dents are creditors for between 4,000*l.* and 5,000*l.* of the late Sir Philip Warwick, whose sisters and co-heirs, Dame Joyce Turner and Isabella Clerke, claim, like Elizabeth Clerke, by virtue of devises in his will. Respondents have procured two Reports of the Master for their debts, and are not concerned in the question of interest, the principal sufficing to meet their claims. Pray for leave to proceed in Chancery to recover their debts, and to be dismissed with costs. Signed by Skinner, Waterworth, Waringe, Barebone and Jeffes; Countersigned by Robert Dormer. Endorsed as brought in this day.

597. Nov. 17. Sir C. Wood, alias Cranmer, v. D. Southampton.—Petition and Appeal of Sir Cæsar Wood, alias Cranmer. Appellant's uncle, Sir Henry Wood, in 1671, in consideration of an intended marriage between his only child, Mary, and the Respondent, then E. Southampton, aged then respectively 7 and 11, and of a declaration by the King that he would settle 2,000*l.* a year in land on Respondent for life, and afterwards to Mary for life as a jointure, with remainder to their sons, conveyed his estate, worth 4,000*l.* a year, to E. St. Albans and others, in trust to provide a maintenance for Mary till the age of 17 or marriage, the residue to go after the marriage to Respondent, he giving security to provide for any daughters. If, after Sir Henry's death, Mary should die or marry another before 17, Respondent then unmarried, or should after 16, being unmarried, refuse to marry him, then the trustees were to pay him 20,000*l.*; but if the marriage should take effect after her age of 16, then the estate to be in trust for her and Respondent, or the longer liver, and their issue, failing which, to such persons as Sir Henry should appoint by will. Sir Henry, by his will, confirming the settlement, devised the estate, in case the marriage should not take effect, or there should be no sons, or the sons should die without male issue, to Mary for life, remainder to Dr. Thomas Wood, testator's brother and late Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, and his issue in tail, failing which to his sister Lady Chester for life, remainder to Appellant and his heirs male (on condition of their changing their names to Wood), with other remainders over. Shortly after Sir Henry's death, Respondent's mother, the Duchess of Cleveland, took Mary away from her guardian, Lady Chester, and married her to Respondent, but both being then under the age of consent, they were remarried after Mary was 12, each time without Lady Chester's consent. Mary died in 1680, leaving no issue, and Dr. Wood claimed and possessed the estate. Respondent, who has received more than 20,000*l.* out of the personal estate and the profits of the real estate which accrued before his wife's death, although the 2,000*l.* a year was never settled by the King according to the marriage agreement, nor has Respondent performed any of the conditions, acquiesced in Dr. Wood's possession till 1689, when he brought a Bill in Chancery against him and Appellant. Dr. Wood dying pending the suit, and Lady Chester being also dead, Appellant took possession and brought his Bill against Respondent; but the Lords Commissioners, on hearing both causes in Oct. 1692, dismissed Appellant's Bill and ordered him to account for the profits received since Mary's death, and that the tenants should attorn to Respondent, thus making Appellant only a trustee to Respondent for life, contrary to the true construction of the settlement and will, which intended no life estate for Respondent, but on a precedent condition which has not been performed. Prays that the Decree may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams, J. Soñers, Fr. Pemberton, W. Thomson, Jo. Conyers,

T. Powys, W. Dobyys and Martin Folkes. L. J., XV. 113. [The Cause was heard on 5 Dec. 1692. Counsel being called in, and no Counsel appearing for Respondent, Counsel for Appellant withdrew, and after debate, Respondent's Solicitor was called in, and said he gave notice to Sir Thos. Trevor and Mr. Vernon. Ordered that Respondents' Counsel be reprimanded by the Speaker, which was accordingly done when they came in. Attorney General (for Appellant): This is a ease of great consequence, where the Chancery have taken great liberty beyond the usual bounds. The marriage was to take effect after Mary's age of 16. This was done when she was but 7 years old. If Mary refused to marry the Earl, then the Earl was to have 20,000*l.* out of the estate. The Earl was to make a suitable settlement. Sir Henry had no issue male. This treaty was in 1671. The Deed of Settlement recited by the Attorney. Sir Henry Wood had power to appoint trusts, and at the same time the Will of Sir Henry was made, and the Will was to provide for the issue, and in his Will he recites the settlement. The limitations are by the Will. Sir Henry dies when his daughter is 7 years old. She was to marry at 17, and at her discretion to choose, at the penalty of 20,000*l.* She died without issue male. The words of the deed are plainly with us, and we think the intent of the deed is with us. The words say: when the marriage takes effect and there is issue male. There were several accidents that might happen; but every ease was provided for. In case of issue male, then the bulk of his estate was to go there for the sake of his name and blood. This is the interest that is to come by the woman having a son. There is nothing of an estate nor omission in the settlement to prove his intention. But if it were not so, the question is, what the provision was. The Will and Deed are made together and are but one conveyance. The Will only goes to the issue upon the marriage. The Will agrees with the deed. It is by express word in the Will, that neither the Duke nor Duchess was to have an estate except there were issue male. It is objected that this is a strange and unreasonable settlement. By the Will it cannot rise till after the death of the mother. Nothing can take effect till after issue male. Mr. Finch (for Appellant): It is one entire condition, made up of several parts. What are the parts that make up this condition precedent? The condition must be performed. This is not the same question as was in relation to the personal estate. This is the [?] time of marriage mentioned. We think there must be a marriage, and after 16 and issue male, before the estate goes. Upon what consideration could the Court divide this? There is no other method in Courts of Equity than the rules of law. If, when settlements are made, the law be not the rule, then there is no security. They will break this precedent condition, and this they would make part for one and part for the other. Where an estate is limited in trust, that which is not limited goes to the heir. Sir Henry's Will does not give to the daughters of that marriage. Is there any proof that Sir Henry did not intend this? Why must we suppose this? They say there is an absurdity. There is none. The law provides in all the cases. Solicitor General (for Respondent): I do not doubt but we shall give full satisfaction for this decree. Recites the deed of May, 1671. The end of this settlement was that Sir Henry's daughter should marry this Lord. This is plain by the deed. I come to the Clause they stand on: if the marriage shall take effect at the age of 16. This is annexed to the penalty of 20,000*l.* This cannot be sense without this construction. The Duchess's estate is void, as they say. The Duchess by the words cannot take except the Duke does. Sir Cæsar claims by the Will and the power in it. This is one entire disposition of the estate, the deed and the Will. The Duke is yet living, so till after the Duke's death, Sir Cæsar cannot come in. These are such uncertainties, that no man can make such obstructions as they would have. This is but a description of the settlement to come after. Is there anything in the Deed or Will that limits this any other way? Mr. Vernon (for Respondent): They agree it is a case in Equity. It was upon trust. Here is no estate executed at law. The intention of the parties is to govern this. This intent is declared in the deed, that if the marriage take effect, &c. Now it has taken effect, and yet he shall have nothing at all, if they are not to have an estate. The deed only shows what manner it should go in, and so Respondent is entitled to the most favourable construction. Appellant's Counsel having replied, the Speaker reported, and the Decree was ordered to be reversed. L. J., XV. 134; MS. Min. See Shower's Cases in Parliament, p. 83.]

(a.) 26 Nov. Answer of the Right Hon. Charles, Duke of Southampton. Sir Henry Wood, desiring to marry his daughter to Respondent, addressed Charles II. for his consent, saying, "As I got my estate under your Majesty and the Queen, your mother, I do desire and think it just to dispose it according to your Majesty's pleasure, which I am ready to do when your Majesty pleases, and I am sorry it is no more for this young Lord's sake" (meaning Respondent, who then stood by him), and the King accordingly consented to the marriage. The trustees under the settlement were E. St. Albans, L. Arlington, Sir Thos. Clifford, Dame Mary Chester, Dr. Thomas Wood (afterwards Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield), Appellant and John Gardiner, Esq. Sir Henry Wood's intention was that Respondent should have an estate for life if he married Mary. The latter was brought to Respondent's mother by Sir Henry's directions. The second marriage took place on 29 June, 1676, before Dr. Fell, Bishop of Oxford, Respondent being then above 14 and Mary above 12, and they lived together till Mary's death, between the ages of 16 and 17, when Dr. Wood and Lady Chester, who had been appointed her executors in trust till her age of 21 or marriage (after which Mary was to be sole executrix) possessed all Sir Henry's personal estate, amounting to 27,000*l.*, and Appellant, as one of the trustees, received most of the profits of the real estate from the death of Sir Henry to that of Mary. The executors and Appellant refusing to give account, Respondent in 1683 brought his Bill in Chancery, and obtained a Decree which was affirmed on Appeal in 1689 by the House.* Appellant has not paid Respondent a penny, and pretends that Lady Chester left no assets. Respondent, after great expense, received of Dr. Wood and Sir Stephen Fox about 7,000*l.* or 8,000*l.*, most of which went to Mary's creditors and the suit. Respondent, after the said Decree was affirmed, brought a Bill against Dr. Wood and Appellant, as the surviving trustees, to have the real estate for life; but as the former insisted on his privilege as a Bishop, he could not proceed till after his death last April, when he proceeded against Appellant. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor, J. Ewer and Rich. Holford. Endorsed as brought in this day.

598. Nov. 17. Bellamy v. Allen.—Petition and Appeal of John Bellamy, Exeeutor of William Bellamy, his father, deceased. Petitioner, owing 1,500*l.* to Daniel Lodge, a merchant at Amsterdam, on account of several Bills of Exchange, gave bonds with his father for the debt to James Briggs, a merchant in London, who with his partner Samuel Hodgkins, had paid the Bills for Lodge, on which bonds Briggs obtained judgments. Petitioner and his father, afterwards, having great losses in trade, compounded with their creditors, including Briggs, who acknowledged satisfaction on the judgments, but, unknown to Petitioner, compounded, through one Everson, with Lodge at 30*l.* per cent. for what Lodge owed him and Hodgkins. Briggs becoming bankrupt, his assignees, the Respondents, brought a Bill in Chancery against Petitioner and his father for the 1,500*l.*, who answered, stating that they had paid Briggs 375*l.*, under the composition, not knowing then that he was a bankrupt, and pleaded the release of the judgments. The Court set aside the composition and decreed the whole sum claimed. There was no proof that the composition with Briggs was by collusion or intended to defeat the other creditors. Prays that the Decree may be reversed, and Respondents ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Jam. Leman and Tho. Trevor. L. J., XV. 113. [The Cause was heard on 24 Jan. 1692–3. The Solicitor-General (for Appellant) opened the case. Mr. Finch (for Appellant): There was a release given, and a discharge of the security. The Decree is wrong. It is that they shall have the full sum on the bonds—principal and interest. There should have been no decree, and if any, then they should have given 30 per cent. Sir William Whitelocke (for Respondents): The Decree is justifiable. Mr. Jennings (for Respondents) is heard. Counsel for Appellant heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and Speaker reported. Ordered that the Decree be affirmed. (L. J., XV. 197; MS. Min.)]

- (b.) 9 Dec. Answer of Respondents. Appellant and Briggs both failing to meet their debts, withdrew at different times to the Mint, where they consorted together. The bonds on which judgment was obtained had been delivered over to Respondents by Briggs long before his bankruptcy, as security for a debt of 3,000*l.*, and were held after his bankruptcy by Respondents as his assignees. Recite at length the proceedings below. Appellant, who owed Lodge 2,300*l.*, first accepted the Bills, but refused to pay them when due, and allowed them to be protested, and Briggs took them up for Lodge, being his correspondent. The 30*l.* per cent. composition made by Everson was no part of Appellant's debt, but was for other sums owed by Lodge to Briggs. The Decree of 25 Oct. 1692 was just. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondents; Countersigned by Wm. Whitelocke. Endorsed as brought in this day.

wife, and Charles Horne. Respondent's father, William Foscraft, having authorised his wife Martha to provide for their daughters Mary Godwin, Eleanor Gill and Elizabeth, wife of Respondent Horne, on their marriage, Martha agreed to give them each 100*l.* as portion on marriage, 100*l.* more at her death, and 100*l.* more out of her husband's monies in Sir Robert Vyner's hands. The first 100*l.* was accordingly paid to them, but their brother, the Respondent, to defeat payment of the rest, obtained from his father a fraudulent assignment of his estate, declaring that he would provide for him and pay the remaining portions, and after his mother's death, brought a Bill in Chancery for the portions already paid. Appellants brought a Cross Bill to discover the writings empowering Martha to act for her husband, and to have the marriage agreements performed, and in June 1687 the Master of the Rolls ordered Appellants to account to Respondent for the father's personal estate in their hands over and above the first 100*l.* paid to each on marriage. The L. Chancellor Jeffreys, on a rehearing, allowed Appellants to proceed at law for their full portions, and they obtained verdicts for the 100*l.* payable at Martha's death; but in June 1692 the Court of Chancery decreed Appellant Godwin to pay 165*l.* to Respondent with interest and costs, which he had before paid and divided among the other Appellants, according to Martha's appointment, and vacated the recognizance entered into by Respondent to avoid execution on the judgments at law. Appeals from this Decree. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and E. Jennings. L. J., XV. 113. [The Cause was heard on 15 Dec. Sir William Williams (for Appellants): He employed his wife in the marriage agreement, and he was to have 100*l.* at the death of the mother, and after, another 100*l.* and part of Sir Robert Vyner's debt. These were several agreements, but the terms were the same. They were made the first before the Statute. In 1685 the woman dies, and now what effect this deed will have in this cause is the case. The scrivener was to keep this deed as a trust, and this deed was got out of the hands of the scrivener. In 1682 Godwin borrows 200*l.* of the woman, and pays interest until 1685, and the Chancery has decreed my client to pay this money to the Respondent. We brought actions at law, and these came to trial in 1688, and the verdicts find these marriage agreements. Here is our money, judgment and execution taken from us. Mr. Ward (for Appellants): Nobody can say but we have proved our marriage agreement, and have verdicts for it, and that the husband consented. We have paid this money pursuant to our marriage agreement, and yet we are decreed to pay it again. Sir Ambrose Phillipps: The Chancery has an order [for] the payment of the 1,650*l.* Mr. Finch (for Respondent): To this deed, thus made, the witnesses are Godwin and Gill, the Appellants, and yet pretend a title to 100*l.* apiece more. In that deed there is no power for the wife to dispose of anything. They made it with the wife, and not with the husband. The Cause was heard at the Rolls and then in Chancery before L. Jeffreys, and reheard before the present Commissioners and affirmed. L. Jeffreys, say they, gave us leave to go to law, and there they have got a verdict. Sir William Williams heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker reported. Ordered, that the Deeree be reversed. (L. J., XV. 148; MS. Min.)]

602. Nov. 19. Davy v. Courtenay.—Petition and Appeal of Dorothy Davy, widow, and John Nicholls, the elder, and John Nicholls, the younger, Esquires. The late Sir James Smyth, Knt., having a real estate of 2,000*l.* a year and a personal estate of at least 20,000*l.*, and having great kindness for Petitioners Dorothy and John Nicholls the younger, his heirs-at-law, the former being eldest daughter of his only brother George, and the latter eldest son and heir of John Nicholls, deceased, son and heir of Lucy, another daughter of George, by the Petitioner John Nicholls the elder, declared in his lifetime his intention to leave one moiety of his lands to Dorothy and the other to John Nicholls the elder, during life, and afterwards to John Nicholls the younger in fee. Sir James falling sick about 1681 and being weak of intellect, was prevailed on to seal a will, devising all his property to Sir William Courtenay, James Lucy and Richard Osborne, on trust to pay the surplus, after discharging his debts, legacies and funeral expenses, to his widow Dame Anne, as his executrix. After his death, the trustees brought a Bill in Chancery against Dorothy and John Nicholls the elder, and the said John Nicholls, deceased, to discover their titles and to have the trust executed for payment of the debts and legacies, though there was not a single legacy devised by the will. Dorothy afterwards brought her ejectment for recovery of her moiety, but was forced to become nonsuit, the Judge refusing to examine her witnesses against the execution of the pretended will; and the late Lord Keeper North, on 17 June, 36 Car. II., decreed that she should join in a sale of the testator's lands, and ordered the lands to be sold, unless she gave notice within a fortnight of her intention to try her title at law against the will. Petitioners, living far remote from town, in Cornwall and Devon, failed to give such notice, and Dorothy, not daring to stir further in the reign of James II., delayed bringing another ejectment till 1689, when Respondents obtained two orders of the Court of Chancery, of Nov. 14 and 28 of that year, awarding a perpetual injunction against her. Pray that the Decree and Orders may be discharged, or at least that they may be allowed to try the validity of the will at law. Signed by Appellants; Counter-signed by Edm. Gibbon and John Pratt. L. J., XV. 116. [The Cause was heard on 5 Jan. 1692-3. Mr. Finch (for Appellants): In 1681 Sir James Smyth made his will. We desire liberty to try our title at law. Mr. Ward (for Appellants): We desire a trial for the proof of our Will. Serjeant Tremaine (for Respondents) is heard. Sir William Williams (for Respondents): They have had a trial at law. Counsel for Appellants heard in reply. Counsel withdrew and Speaker reported. Ordered that a new trial be had, &c., as in L. J., XV. 173. (MS. Min.) - (a.) 3 Dec. Several Answer of Sir William Courtenay, Bart. Sir James Smyth's real estate was worth only about 700*l.* a year, and most of it was mortgaged for 4,000*l.*; and Respondent believes his personal estate was less than is alleged, being insufficient to pay his debts. He left his paternal estate of about 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.* to descend to Respondents, who have since sold it. His will, devising all his lands to Respondents and to the trustees Jacob (not James) Lucy, since deceased, Lucy and Osborne, was made when he was of perfectly sound mind, and has been proved and its validity established at law, when Dorothy was nonsuited. The trustees being willing to be discharged of the trust, Lady Smyth in 35 Car. II. brought her Bill in Chancery against them, to have the trusts transferred to herself, and on 7 June of that year the L. Keeper North ordered them to assign their interest accordingly, which has since been done. Prays to be dismissed with costs. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (b.) 3 Dec. Answer of Richard Osborne, Esq. Knows nothing of Appellants' relationship to Sir James Smyth, nor of what kindness he promised them in his lifetime. Rest almost verbatim as in preceding. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (c.) 6 Dec. Petition of Appellants. The Respondents Courtenay and Osborne (Lucy being dead) have put in their answer, stating that they have assigned their trust to Lady Smyth. Pray that she may be made a party Respondent and ordered to answer, and that the Appeal may be further amended by altering Lucy's Christian name from James to Jacob. L. J., XV. 135.
- (d.) 13 Dec. Answer of Dame Anne Smyth, widow. Sir James' real estate was not worth more than 500*l.* a year, and his personal estate was only 500*l.* Appellants have sold his paternal estate for 5,000*l.*, as she hears. Sir James owed upwards of 6,000*l.*, and mortgaged his lands as security to Sir Robt. Leake and Jacob Luey, and having had a portion fortune and estate of 10,000*l.* with Respondent on her marriage, made his will on 21 Oct. 1681 in due form, and in possession of a sound mind and memory, leaving his property, after payment of his debts, &c., in trust for Respondent, who had nothing to expect besides this provision. The Appellant Dorothy suffered nonsuit after full evidence taken as to the will. Appellants are foreclosed of any further trial at law. Respondent has paid off or secured most of the mortgages and debts, and caused the mortgages to be assigned to others. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (e.) 16 Dec. Petition of Appellants for an early day for hearing, and that Lady Smyth or the trustees may produce the deed assigning the trust to her, or deliver a copy to Petitioners. L. J., XV. 149.
- (f.) 7 Jan. 1692-3. Petition of Lady Smyth. Their Lordships have directed a feigned issue to be tried touching the validity of the will. (L. J., XV. 173.) Petitioner, the residuary legatee, having already paid 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.* towards discharging testator's debts, is obliged to pay so much more, and must therefore sell the estate or be ruined by the growing interest. Col. Godfrey, one of the witnesses to the will, is dead since the last trial, and the other witnesses are aged and weak. Prays their Lordships to order a time for trying the said issue. Endorsed as read this day. [No entry in L. J. or MS. Min.]
- (g.) 9 Jan. Petition of Appellants. The estate in question being in Cornwall, it will be impossible for Appellants to try the issue next term. Pray that the order for a new trial may be amended. L. J., XV. 177. [One Counsel of a side were heard the next day on this Petition. Mr. Ward (for Davy): Our witness is at Exeter. Mr. Serjeant Tremaine is heard for standing to the next term. Speaker reported. Ordered that the Order of the 5th inst. be so altered, that the Cause shall be tried before the end of Easter Term next. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 178.) No further proceedings.]

603. Nov. 21. Absent Lords (Call of the House).—Letter of date from Sir R. Atkyns, Speaker of the House, to L. Griffin, at Dingley, Staffordshire, informing his Lordship that he was found to be absent at the Call of the House this day, and requiring him to attend on 5 Dec., or send two persons to attest on oath his disability from sickness. L. J.,

XV. 119. In extenso. [On 14 Nov. the House being moved that a day be appointed for calling the House, a Call was ordered for this day. (L. J., XV. 110.) The List of Peers found Absent at the Call, as given in MS. Min., differs from that in L. J., XV. 118, in adding, "L. Clifford, Infra Ætatem." It states also that the Bishops of Chester and Exeter, both of whom were excused, were "coming." Another List in MS. Min., giving the names of Peers to whom letters were to be sent to require their attendance, includes L. Ferrers and L. Gray de Werke, neither of whom appears in L. J., XV. 118.]

Annexed:—

604. Nov. 22. Hore v. Moulten.—Petition and Appeal of John Hore. Petitioner, as son and heir and executor of Matthew Hore, brought his bill in Chancery against John Moulten and others, to redeem a mortgage of certain lands called Robin's Tenement, and for a reassignment of another tenement called Maraborough and an account of the profits received of each, both of which were claimed by Moulten, who insisted on a release of the equity of redemption. On 18 June 1689 the Lords Commissioners relieved Petitioner as to Maraborough tenement, and decreed an account of the profits towards satisfaction of the mortgage money due on Robin's tenement, and set aside the release as fraudulent, and decreed a redemption of Robin's tenement with an account of profits. The Master reported 478*l.* due to Respondent. Petitioner excepted to this account, but was overruled by the Lords Commissioners on 17 Dec. 1691, who ordered him to pay the sum reported due, and by a subsequent Order dismissed his Bill with costs, for which Petitioner has since been attached. Prays that the orders may be set aside, Respondent ordered to answer, and proceedings stayed.

(a.) 6 Dec. Answer of John Moulten. The release was got quite fairly and not by any fraud. Appellant's exceptions to the Master's report were frivolous. If the release be set aside, Appellant still owes 496*l.* to Respondent. The estates are of no greater yearly value than the Master reported them. The Appeal is brought merely for delay. Prays that it may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Nic. Hooper, whose signature is copied. Endorsed as brought in this day.

605. Nov. 22. Macclesfield's Estate Act.—Amended draft of an Act to enable Ralph Macclesfield to sell lands for payment of debts and making provision for his wife and children. The Lords' amendments (Com. Book, 3 Dec.) are purely clerical, as was the amendment made by the Commons. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day (MS. Min. No entry of first reading in L. J.) Annexed :—

(a.) 3 Dec. Consent of Ralph Macclesfield (signs Raph Macclesfield) and Dorothy, his wife, and Walter Jenings, Jno. Huntbach, and Jo. Danyell, trustees, to the passing of the Bill. The first four signatures are attested by Roger Foden, Gent., of Meare, Staffordshire, on 7 Nov. 1692, before Wm. Nabbs, Master in Chancery, Extraordinary, and the last by John Ames, of Leacroft, Staffordshire, on 26 Nov., before Robt. Legard, Master in Chancery. The Consents are subscribed to a copy of the Act. [Read in Committee this day. Com. Book.]

606. Nov. 23. Hurt v. Attorney General of the Duchy of Lancaster, at the relation of Eyre.—Petition and Appeal of Nicholas Hurt, Esq., and Elizabeth, his wife, sister and heir of John Low, Esq., who was son and heir of John Low, who was son and heir of Edward Low. Henry VIII. granted to his then servant Anthony Low, at a fee-farm rent of 26*l.* 10*s.*, the manner of Alderwasley, with a waste called the Milkey, and a piece of land called the Mill land. The same were held under the grant till 1635, when an Information was exhibited by the Attorney General against Edward Low and several of the tenants, claiming the Milkey as part of the royal forest of Duffield. The Court in 1638, instead of dismissing the Information, directed a new Commission, contrary to all practice, to examine witnesses on prosecutor's behalf; and the cause being heard again in 14 Car. I., Low was put to prove livery upon the grant, and on his failing to do so, in consequence of the evidence being detained by one Mr. Ferne, to whom he had been in ward, the grant was declared void, and Low was directed to attend the Chancellor for a composition. Low's solicitor, in his absence and without his privity, consented, out of fear for the whole estate, that the King should have a moiety of the Milkey (all but 200 acres), containing 1,044 acres, leaving to Low, who was to make the fences, the other moiety all but 350 acres for the commoners. This partition was confirmed by a decree of 24 May, 15 Car. I. The said King afterwards granted the 1,044 acres by Letters Patent to Richard Nevill and heirs at the yearly rent of 35*l.* 19*s.*, with a covenant to indemnify them from all common and claim of any others. Against this Decree and Grant Low appealed to the House, but the Civil Wars prevented the effectual prosecution of his Appeal, and meanwhile the fences were thrown down and the Milkey was enjoyed as formerly in common during the life of Nevill, who made no benefit by it, and remained in exile with Charles II. till 1654, when he died, leaving a son George, a stranger to the grant, who also died in 1660, leaving an infant son George. Edward Low and his five sons were all in the service of Charles I. during the Civil War, and were plundered and imprisoned for their loyalty. On his death in 1650, his son and heir John brought an action of trespass against John Gell, Esq., and others, for digging soil and cutting trees on the Milkey, and obtained a verdict before C. Justice Hales, when the grant of Henry VIII. and the livery were allowed. In 1677, one Thomas Eyre, a barrister-at-law, got the 1,044 acres seized into the King's hands for arrears of rent since 1660, and got a lease from Charles II. at 5*l.* a year, and exhibited an Information against George Nevill, then an infant, and John Low the son for possession of the Milkey. George Nevill, by his guardian, brought a Cross Bill in the Duchy Court against Eyre and the Attorney General to be discharged of the arrears; but the Chancellor of the Duchy, on hearing both causes on 19 May, 1681, decreed the 1,044 acres and the Milkey, except the 200 acres allotted to the commoners, to Eyre, so long as they should remain in the King's hands, by reason of an extent and seizure for a debt of 590*l.* due to the King by Nevill on a fee-farm rent for the Milkey. Sir Thomas Chiceley, late Chancellor of the Duchy, affirming to John Low the son that he had an interest in the Milkey, and Low believing him, the latter, for quieting his possession, took in the estate and title of George Nevill and after the estate and interest of Chiceley, and was continued in possession till his death in 1690, since which the Milkey has been held by Appellants, whom Eyre is prosecuting under the Decree of 1681. Pray that this Decree may be reversed and Respondents ordered to answer. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor and Tho. Powys, whose signatures are copied. L. J., XV. 122. [On 14 Dec., after hearing Sir William Whitelocke and Sir Thomas Powys for Appellants, and Mr. Ward and Mr. Dodd for Respondents, the House dismissed the Appeal for want of a proper Appellant. (L. J., XV. 148; MS. Min.) Another Appeal was brought on 17 Dec., for which see Calendar under date.]

Annexed:—

- (a.) 30 Nov. Answer of Edward Northey, Esq., their Majesties' Attorney of their Duchy of Lancaster. Respondent is a stranger to the Decree appealed from, the same having been made long before his time of office. Submits to their Lordships' judgment. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Godf. Thacker. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (b.) 30 Nov. Answer of Thomas Eyre, Esq. Respondent, living near the forest of Duffield, and knowing the damage long done to the Crown by John Low and his confederates, gave an account thereof, as was his duty, to Charles II. and the officers of his revenue, and for his reward obtained a grant of part of the lands. The decree of partition was made with the consent of Appellants and the Commoners. Richard Nevill confederated to defraud the King of the reserved rent, and quitted possession without suit or eviction, and allowed the fences to be demolished. The lands in question have been adjudged to be the undoubted right of the Crown, not only against Appellants but also against George Nevill by a decree in the Duchy Court of 1 June last. Prays to be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Godfr. Thacker and Na. Reading. Endorsed as brought in this day.

608. Nov. 25. Indemnity Act.—Amended Draft of an Act for preventing suits against such as acted for their Majesties' Service in defence of the Kingdom. Identical, before being amended, with the Act 4 W. & M. c. 19. (Fol. Ed.) The Amendments consist of the clauses appended to this Draft for engrossment, and given as Annexes below. [On 17 Nov., the House being moved that a Committee be named to prepare a Bill of Indemnity, it was ordered that the House be put into Committee on the 22nd to consider of Heads for a Bill. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 114.).—On 23 Nov., on motion for a day to go into Committee, the House appointed the next day for that purpose. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 123).—On 24 Nov., in Committee of the Whole House, E. Stamford in the Chair, the Act of Indemnity, 2 Will. & Mary, was read. Moved that the title of the Act be An Act to prevent Suits against such as acted in their Majesties' Service in defence of the Kingdom. The title postponed. "Whereas there was certain intelligence of an Invasion intended from France." Agreed, that the Lords of the Council, and those that acted by their authority, shall be indemnified. House resumed. E. Stamford reported progress, &c., as in L. J., XV. 124 (MS. Min.). On 25 Nov., in Committee of the Whole House, E. Stamford in the Chair, the Clauses agreed yesterday were read. The Committee went through the Bill. House resumed. E. Stamford reported the form of the Bill drawn by the Committee, to which the House agreed. Bill read 1<sup>a</sup> (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 125).

On 30 Nov., after a second reading, the House went into Committee on the Bill, E. Stamford in the Chair.

The Bill was read through.

Title read and postponed.

Preamble read; the Enacting Clause read. Moved, That if any man be sent for by the Council, and he offers to take the Oaths and give sufficient bail, it shall not be in their power to commit him. The person to declare on oath, that if the late King James shall endeavour to recover his pretended right, he will oppose him to the utmost of his power. Question, Whether the same oath and sufficient bail, or a negative oath and sufficient bail? Agreed to have bail. Judge asked, what bail is sufficient? A. It must of necessity be referred to the discretion of the Judges that are to take it. Judge asked, if it might be thought excessive bail, if the Council put more than 1,000*l.*, and 500*l.* each surety? A. There must be a regard had to the necessity and the person. Agreed, that sufficient bail shall be in the Act. Question, Whether the old Oath shall be part of the Clause, or any other Oath that shall hereafter be established by Parliament? Question, Whether these words ("or any other oath that shall hereafter be established by Parliament") shall be part of the Question? Resolved in the Affirmative. Then the Question was put: Whether this oath, I, A. B. [&c. as in Annex (a) below], with this addition ("or any other oath that shall be established in this or any other Session of Parliament")? Agreed.

House resumed. E. Stamford reported that the Committee have agreed that a Clause be drawn to prevent the Council imprisoning persons in time of imminent danger in future, by tendering the Oath already made, or any other Oath established by Parliament. The House then appointed a Sub-Committee, with the Judges to assist, to draw a Clause for that purpose. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 130.) The Sub-Committee met forthwith, and after agreeing on a Clause (Com. Book), reported it at the same sitting, and the House agreed to it with some additions.* (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 130.)

On 1 Dec. an expunged entry in MS. Min. states, "A debate arose concerning the proceedings upon the Bill of Indemnity yesterday."

On 2 Dec., in Committee of the Whole House, E. Stamford in the Chair, the enacting Clause was read. Proposed, That provision be made in the Bill that, after any person shall be secured, he may be discharged. The Judges withdraw to draw a Clause.*

House resumed.

House adjourned during pleasure into C. W. H. The Clause drawn by the Judges was read, and after debate, on question, agreed to. House Moved, That this Act be made temporary only during the War with France. Agreed: the Judges to draw a Clause to this purpose.* Proposed, That the whole Council shall do this, and not a Committee of Council. House resumed. Progress reported. (L. J., XV. 132; MS. Min.)

On 5 Dec., in Committee of the Whole House, E. Stamford in the Chair, the Clause drawn by the Judges was read and agreed to. Judges asked (sic). That the Committee is of opinion that the powers given by this Act shall not be executed but by the whole Privy Council. A Clause drawn and read, as follows ("Provided always that no such commitment shall be but by the Privy Council, to which every Privy Counsellor may come"). Question put: Whether this Clause shall be part of the Bill? Resolved in the Negative. House resumed, and progress reported as in L. J., XV. 134 (MS. Min.).

On 5 Jan., in Committee of the Whole House, L. Cornwallis in the Chair, the Preamble, enacting Clause and Title were read and agreed to. House resumed. Bill reported with the amendments and provisos. The Clauses agreed to in C. W. H. were read, and the Bill ordered to be engrossed with the said Clauses. (L. J., XV. 174; MS. Min.)

In the Commons, where the second reading of the Bill was carried on 27 Feb. by 124 votes to 76 (C. J., X. 835), the Clauses added in C. W. H. by the Lords were struck out and the Bill restored to its original form (ib. 847). The Lords agreed to this amendment on 10 March (L. J., XV. 283), and the Bill received the Royal Assent on 14 March (ib. 288.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 5 Jan. 1692–3. Copy of Clauses added to the Bill, as follows:—

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if in a time of imminent danger for the security of the peace of the Kingdom, their Majesties' Most Honourable Privy Council shall think it reasonable to send for any person or persons suspected to be dangerous to the Government, against whom there shall not be some positive oath made of some treasonable practices, that in case such person or persons, so sent for or taken into custody, against whom no such oath shall have been made as aforesaid, shall, upon tender to him or them, take the Oath following, viz., I, A. B., do sincerely promise and swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to their Majesties King William and Queen Mary. So help me God, being the Oath appointed in one Act intituled An Act for abrogating of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance and appointing other oaths, or any oath that shall be enacted in this or any other Parliament, and also enter into a Recognizance with sufficient surties (which the said Privy Council are hereby empowered to take), having regard to the quality of the person so suspected and the circumstances under which he stands, that the said Privy Council or any of them shall have no power to commit any such person or persons so suspected, but every such commitment shall be void and of none effect; but in case such person or persons shall refuse to take such oath or oaths, or to give such security as aforesaid, that then it shall or may be lawful to and for the said Privy Council or any six of them, to commit such person or persons to prison and continue him or them in custody, until he or they be discharged by due course of law. And if any such person or persons happen to be committed in time of imminent danger of insurrection or invasion, by reason of their refusing to take the said oath or oaths and to find bail as aforesaid, that such person or persons shall not be continued or detained in custody for any longer time than such imminent danger shall continue.

Provided always that no person or persons so committed shall be detained in custody for any longer time than they might have been by an Act made in the 31st year of the reign of King Charles II., intituled An Act for the securing the liberty of the subject and for prevention of imprisonment beyond the seas.

Provided always that this Act or anything therein contained (except what relates to the indemnifying the parties concerned in the proceedings in the extraordinary occasion* abovementioned), shall not continue longer than till the determination of the present War against France. [Reported this day. (L. J., XV. 174). See Notes above.]

609. Nov. 26. Walthall's Estate Act.—Amended Draft of an Act to enable Richard Walthall, Esquire, to sell lands for the payment of Portions and Debts. The Lords' amendments (Com. Book, 20 Dec.) are two drafting ones and the addition of a Proviso (Annex (a.) below). No amendments in the Commons. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; Royal Assent 14 March 1692–3 (L.J., XV. 126, 289.) 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 28. in Long Calendar. In Committee on 5 Dec. Mr. Minshall stated that Mr. Walthall barred himself by the Bill of the commitment of waste in cutting timber, which he might do to the value of 1,500*l*. Ordered, that the Prosecutors of the Bill endeavour to make appear that the heir will not be prejudiced by the Bill. (Com. Book, 5 Dec.) On 20 Dec. the parties being called in, Mr. Minshall says they shall give a full equivalent for the money to be raised. We can cut down wood worth 1,500*l.* The 900*l.* for the younger brothers the estate is charged with. We have power of leasing, which is worth 1,200*l.* We can make a jointure of 100*l.* a year, all which we are willing to debar ourselves of. Mr. Humphry Milton (sworn) says he has viewed the wood on Mr. Walthall's estate, and really believes it worth 1,500*l.*, and that it will be worth 500*l.* more to the heir than to any other person. The estate is worth about 630*l.* a year. If he were Mr. Walthall's heir, he would give him 1,500*l.* for his power of leasing the estate. He believes if Mr. Walthall live 10 or 12 years, he may make 1,200*l.* of the leases. (Com. Book, 20 Dec.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 31 Dec. Draft Proviso A. disabling Richard Walthall from making any jointure, &c., or lease of any of the lands in the deed of settlement. [Added in Committee 20 Dec. (Com. Book), and reported this day. (L. J., XV. 167.)]

So the whole charge of the War and Government for one year - - -	4,111,677	16	3
Toward which paid out of the three Quarters' Receipt to the Navy, the Ordnance, and the Army, as appears in that account - - -	3,127,578	10	0 $\frac{1}{2}$
And on account of the Civil List - -	543,087	17	3
In all - - -	3,670,666	7	3 $\frac{1}{2}$
So that to state all the charges for one entire year adjusted last Sessions in Parliament, there wanted at Michaelmas 1692 - - - -	441,011	8	11 $\frac{1}{2}$

Towards the satisfying which, there was then at the Exchequer a great Cash, amounting to 235,732*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.*, of which, though much of it was appropriated to repay loans, yet a considerable part was not so, but hath been since applied toward the satisfying the balance above. And further, towards satisfying the same, must be reckoned all the Receipt of the Revenue, not anticipated before Michaelmas, and what will be due for the double Excise to 17 Nov. 1692, and arrears thereof to come in between Michaelmas and 1 Jan. next, which will go far towards the clearing the said balance. So that, if the expenses for this year, between Jan. 1691 and Jan. 1692 had not exceeded the said Estimates in Parliament, notwithstanding the Poll Bills falling short, there had been very little wanting to have cleared this year's account, and consequently little need of borrowing 700,000*l.* upon the credit of the Paid Bill given last Session.

Note.—In this account is reckoned the Cash at Michaelmas and the arrears then due at the Excise, because besides those sums there is enough to come in on the 700,000*l.* borrowed on the Poll Bill and the produce of this quarter from the Double Excise and from the Revenue not anticipated, to defray the charge of this quarter. And therefore, although those sums included in this account may be spent before 1 January next, it is supposed as much or more will then be left on the whole produce of this quarter.

Memorandum.—That the Account above expressed in this leaf is only an estimate of what may come in by the Funds now charged with the debts thereupon, which by reason of the present charge (till that is lessened) not being of present use, the deductions proper to be made for interest and other charges are not stated, which will be best done at such time as use shall be made of what they will yield over and above the sums now charged upon them.

Endorsed as brought in this day by the Secretary to the Commissioners for taking the Public Accounts of the Kingdom. L.J, XV. 127. [The House on the 26th had ordered the Commissioners appointed by the late Act to examine the Public Accounts to send in an Account, in writing, under any five or more of their hands and seals, how the public treasure, revenues, and other things mentioned in that Act, had been disposed of. (Ib. 126.)]

611. Nov. 28. State of the Nation:—

PART I. ADDRESS OF ADVICE.

PART II. NAVAL MISCARRIAGES.

Papers connected with proceedings in a Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Nation. [The House this day, after reading the King's Speech of the 4th inst. (L. J., XV. 102, in extenso), resolved itself into Committee to consider it, pursuant to an Order of the 26th (Ib. 126), made on a motion to appoint a day for that purpose (MS. Min.). The proceedings, which ended in the Address of Advice on 18 Feb., were as follows:—

28 Nov. In C. W. H. First paragraph of the Speech read. Moved, That an Address be presented, that in future his Majesty's native subjects may be preferred in the Army before all others. That the Chief Commander of the English Foot [then Count Solms] shall be a subject born in England. After debate, Question proposed: Whether the words ("upon all occasions of vacancy that shall happen for the future") shall be inserted? Previous Question put: Whether the said Question shall be now put? Resolved in the Negative. Agreed: That the Chief Governor of the English forces under the King shall be a subject born in their Majesties' dominions. This Head was then reported, and agreed to by the House, as part of an Address of Advice. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 127.)

29 Nov. In C. W. H. (E. Bridgewater in the Chair), after some debate, Agreed to report for (1) A List of General Officers and Troops on the English establishment, to be sent in by Mr. Blathwaite, Secretary to the Army;* (2) A List of Officers belonging to the Ordnance,† as also an Account of the Stores, and what has been delivered out the last two years, and, on a question having arisen, whether the English officers have the same commands or posts as formerly, (3) Regulations for posting and ordering the Troops and Officers that were sent into the Low Countries in 1677 or 1678, to be sent in by the Keeper of the Paper Office in Whitehall.‡ Moved to enquire into the Descent intended in France, and the reason of our ships being lost since the victory at sea. Moved to hear Sir John Ashby. Agreed to report for—

(4) Orders and Instructions to the Fleet and the Answers thereto.§

(5) Orders relative to providing Transports.||

(6) An Address for Orders, &c., sent by the Council or Secretary of State in the Summer's expedition at sea.

House resumed. Report made and agreed to. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 128.)

1 Dec. Papers brought in by Mr. Blathwaite* and Mr. Charlton,† and referred to C. W. H. Lord Cornwallis acquaints the House that there are several Clerks at work in the Admiralty Office preparing papers for the House, but he fears they cannot be ready till the 3rd inst. E. Rochester acquaints the House that E. Nottingham was at work in his office with his own hands, to prepare papers for the House, and that they cannot yet be ready.

House put into a Committee upon Advice to the King, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. The Papers read. Mr. Charlton is called in and asked in what time he can be ready with an Answer to the Order for an Abstract of Stores for two years, and what has been delivered out, and where, and what now remains [for] land and sea? He says, he believes it will take three months to do it. In time of peace they are allowed two months. He withdraws. [Question :] That they should make an Abstract of the Stores two years ago, and what was delivered since, and what now remains, and put under the name of every species the sum total, and to what uses they have been issued. Mr. Charlton is re-called and asked the above Question, and also if they have not a State of this in their Office? He says that two years since there was a State made, and none since. Moved, to consider the neglect of the Office of Ordnance.

House resumed. E. Bridgewater reported the draft of an Order to be sent to the Ordnance, and desired another day might be appointed for C. W. H. Ordered, That the Ordnance Officers send by 7 Dec. an Account of the Stores two years ago, and what has been delivered since, &c., and also a List of all foreigners on their Establishment. (MS. Min. ; L. J., XV. 131.)

2 Dec. Papers brought in by the Commissioners of Transports.* (MS. Min.)

3 Dec. C. W. H. (appointed for this day on 1 Dec.) put off to 6th inst. Several Papers brought in from the Lords of the Admiralty.† (MS. Min. ; L. J., XV. 133-4.)

6 Dec. E. Nottingham brought in (by Command) the Papers, pursuant to Address of 29 Nov.‡ (L. J., XV. 129.) Said Papers referred to C. W. H.

House put into Committee, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. E. Nottingham's Papers read. Moved, that a day be appointed to consider of the business.

House resumed, and on report, ordered to be again in Committee tomorrow. (MS. Min. ; L. J., XV. 135-6.)

7 Dec. Mr. Charlton, for the Ordnance Officers, brought in (pursuant to Order of 1st inst.) two Books§ and one Paper of names of Officers.|| He says that, as for the issues of the Stores the last two years, they have not time as yet to do them, but are ready to obey the House in all things.

House put into Committee, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. The Papers brought in from the Commissioners of Transports¶ are read.

House resumed. Moved that a Committee of both Houses be appointed to consider of Advice to be given to his Majesty upon consideration of the State of the Nation. After debate, Question put : Whether this House shall now send to the House of Commons for a Conference, and to propose to them that a Committee of both Houses should be appointed to consider of the present State of the Nation, and what advice to give his Majesty upon it? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 36 ; Not-contents 48. Tellers: E. Stamford and E. Scarborough. Moved, That a Committee be appointed to examine the papers brought in pursuant to the Orders of the House. Moved that the original Letters be brought to the House, of which E. Nottingham has brought the Abstracts. Ordered that the House be in Committee again tomorrow. (MS. Min. ; L. J., XV. 136-7.)

House resumed. On motion, a Committee appointed to consider of methods and ways how a Member of the House of Commons might be spoken with.* Ordered to be in C. W. H. again tomorrow, as to giving Advice on the papers and letters brought in by E. Nottingham (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 140.)

10 Dec. House put into Committee, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. Sir John Ashby having been heard to several questions, part of Admiral Russell's Letter of 23 May 1692 was read, as also his Letter of 25 May. Sir John Ashby, being called in [again], was asked to give an account of what passed when the French went into the Race of Alderney.

A. I received a Letter from Admiral Russell.† Tourville was to the southward of me, and he went into the brest (sic) of Alderney. Admiral Russell had opportunity of cutting and going after the ships. The Dutch leewards of me bore away. We came to Admiral Russell to La Hogue bay to the burning of these ships.

Q. Did the Dutch go away by your order?

A. They lay on the leeward of me, and we came to La Hogue bay.

Q. What occasioned you to go to La Hogue?

A. We had lost sight of the French on Saturday night, and I thought it then best to follow to La Hogue.

Q. Was not the French [fleet] as big [in]-ton[nage] as others?

A. I cannot say. The pilots would not take care of any of the first or second-rate ships.

Q. What occasioned the loss of sight [of the French]?

A. They were a league and a half to windward of us. They ventured to do that in the night, which we did not dare in the day.

He withdrew. Moved that he be asked if he was strong enough to fight them. Agreed that the following questions be asked him, viz.:—

1. Whether the whole number of the ships he was sent after, the 15 and 6 ships, went through the Race of Alderney, or what number of them?

2. Whether he could not advise with more pilots?

3. Whether the Dutch were under his command at that time?

4. What strength he had, and what the Dutch? How he came to think it necessary to go to La Hogue, and not to St. Malo or westward?

He is called in again and asked those questions.

Answer to No. 1:—Not above 6 sail got through. I saw but 6 next day and 15 sail. They plied and went by Jersey by the rocks. They were to windward of Alderney. They went betwixt Jethou and Guernsey.

Answer to No 2:—I came to an anchor between Guernsey and the Casquets. I made a signal; but two could come to me. Capt. Robson told me: "Sir, I would not venture a ship of 100 tons." The wind was at W.S.W. and W.N.W., dirty weather.

Answer to No. 3:—When the Admiral made the signal for all to chase, the Dutch were to windward. The next morning I was to windward. Admiral Russell had not time to give me order. I believe they are under, [my command], out of sight of the flag. With the Dutch, I was strong enough, and desired no more strength. If I had thought it necessary, I would have given a signal, and no question but they would have obeyed me. I made no signal.

* This Committee was appointed, according to Ralph (II., 397), in consequence of some statements in E. Nottingham's speech this day, incriminating Admiral Russell.

† See Paper (n) below.

1692.

Answer to No. 4:—We had lost sight of the 15 sail, they being better acquainted than we. We had no prospect to the westward. We came to the Admiral. If we had had any sight, we would have pursued. The Dutch were not in sight of Admiral Russell.

Q. Why did you not pursue out of sight the next day?

A. The pilot, a Guernsey man, said that he would not take care of the ships any further. We were in at Guernsey. At a general consultation with Admiral Russell, the pilot said he would not take care of them.

Admiral Russell's Letter to him* read. He withdrew. He is re-called, on motion, and asked the following question:—

Q. Whether the French lay at anchor the night after the Fleet [Fight], and we rode loose?

A. As to that, I was not a judge. It was thick weather. I saw Russell's flag, and he said he was clapt to an anchor. I believe they did anchor, about 9 or 10. Our Fleet did not anchor, as I know of. I anchored next morning. He was told he was dismissed.

House resumed. V. Weymouth reported a precedent from the Committee as to speaking with a Member of the House of Commons, which was read.† After debate thereupon, Resolved that a Conference be had with the Commons, and to communicate to them the Papers before this House. Ordered that a Committee be appointed to consider of the Narrative, Papers, Letters and Book brought in by E. Nottingham, and to prepare somewhat thereupon, to be offered at a Conference. Ordered to be in C. W. H. again on the 12th upon the Capitulation. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 142.)

12 Dec. House put into Committee, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. E. Nottingham gave an account that he had searched his office, but could not find the Capitulation. E. Marlborough brought in the original Instructions for the Capitulations in the Low Countries. A Clause read. Two other Clauses read:—"1. That our troops." House moved to be informed how the troops are now regulated. House was informed that in 1678 the post of honour (sic). [Proposed]: to take notice to his Majesty that he will be pleased to have a principal regard to the honour of this nation as to posting the troops. Agreed that it be reported that a Committee be appointed to word a clause pursuant to the debate.

House resumed. E. Bridgewater reported accordingly. Committee appointed to draw a Clause.‡

House adjourned during pleasure, and the Lords withdrew to draw the Clause. After some time,

House resumed. M. Halifax reported the Clause, being an Address for English officers to command Confederate ones of the same rank, except those of crowned heads. (L. J., XV. 145. In extenso.) The Clause read, and after debate, on Question, agreed to, and resolved accordingly. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 144-5.)

14 Dec. House to be put into Committee tomorrow. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 148.)

15 Dec. House put into Committee on further Heads of Advice. Moved, that all those troops that his Majesty shall think fit to leave here this next summer, may be his own subjects, except his Guards. After debate, [Proposed], That for the future we may have no other foreign troops but his Majesty's Guards. To advise his Majesty that there may be no more foreign troops for the future than there are at present. Question: That no more foreign troops shall be *continued in** England for the future, than there are at present. Previous Question put: Whether this Question shall be put? Resolved in the Negative.

House resumed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 149.)

17 Dec. Report made by Committee appointed on 10th inst., offering several Heads to the Consideration of the House.† Report read. Moved that copies be made of the original Letters in the Book from the Queen to Mr. Russell. Moved that the Heads be read on the 19th inst., and that all the Lords be summoned to attend. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 151.)

19 Dec. The Heads read. A debate arose, whether after the fight, the Fleet anchored or not, and what occasioned the distance between the enemy and us after the fight next morning, which seems not to be mentioned in the Heads. Moved that the Journals of the Fleet be inspected, and that a Committee be appointed to inspect some of them. Moved that Mr. Russell knows the particulars, and that an account be had from him. Proposed, that the Paper be transmitted to the House of Commons at a Conference, and the Letters and Narrative, with a copy of the dates of the Queen's and E. Nottingham's Letters. Agreed, that a Conference be desired with the Commons, and that these Papers be delivered at the Conference. After debate, wherein several Members of that House were mentioned, a Message was sent to the Commons for a Conference, &c. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 157.)

20 Dec. Conference agreed to, and had and reported. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 158.)‡

21 Dec. Message from the Commons for another Conference, to which the House agreed. §[The House took notice that but one person came with the Message from the House of Commons. After some time, and he not called, the House was acquainted that Sir John Morton had several Commons with him.] The Commons were then called in and told that the House agreed to a Conference.

Conference had and reported, with a Resolution of H. C. approving Admiral Russell's conduct. Report to be considered tomorrow. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 160.)

22 Dec. Report of last Conference read. After debate, Ordered that * Originally "brought into," then altered to "kept in," and finally altered as above (MS. Min.).

† L. J., XV. 153-7. In extenso. This Committee sat on Dec. 13, 14, 15, and 17, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. The Com. Book contains the rough Heads of the first part of the Report, down to "After the Battle," as well as the following entries:—14 Dec. Some debate arising concerning the power of the Committee, Ordered that the House be acquainted therewith, and their direction received therein. [As to this, the MS. Min. contain an entry, not in L. J., viz.:—"E. Bridgewater reported from the Committee appointed to consider of the Papers, Letters, and Book brought in by E. Nottingham, that they were in dispute whether the Papers should be called the L. Nottingham's Papers or Committee Papers, and the Committee desire directions. Revived and to sit tomorrow. L. Nottingham to have his Papers again." ]—15 Dec. E. Nottingham reads a Paper, which is compared with the Narrative, and which his Lordship will bring fairer written tomorrow.—17 Dec. E. Nottingham brings the Paper fairly written, and it is read and agreed with the Paper he took away. He brings another Paper, which is read and compared with the Narrative. (Com. Book.)

‡ An entry in MS. Min. adds:—"Sir Thomas Duppa and Cooling [the Yeoman Usher] charged to acquaint the House so soon as the Commons come at any time."

a Committee be appointed to inspect the Journals concerning Free Conferences, and whether any have been desired with the Commons, wherein the House has not disagreed with them.* Moved to go into a further enquiry of the Papers and matters sent to the Commons. Moved to enquire concerning the anchoring or not anchoring after the fight with the French. Moved that a Committee of both Houses be appointed. Proposed to examine the whole business at a Committee as to the miscarriages and transactions at sea the last summer. Committee appointed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 162.)

23 Dec. E. Bridgewater reported from the Committee to search Books that a time may be appointed for the Committee to sit again. Ordered, When they please. (MS. Min.)

29 Dec. Report made by E. Mulgrave from Committee appointed on the 22nd concerning Free Conferences, with Precedents (L. J., XV. 165, in extenso). The Precedents read. Moved to have a Free Conference, and that this matter be further enquired into. Moved to search whether it be regular what the Commons have done. After debate hereupon, a Committee appointed to inspect precedents whether the Commons' Resolution approving Admiral Russell's conduct, which was delivered at the Conference on the 21st, was according to the usual proceedings in Parliament, and to consider of Heads of what shall be offered at a Free Conference.† (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 165.)

30 Dec. Report made by E. Warrington from Committee appointed yesterday, that they find the proceedings as to the Resolution not according to the usual practice, but that they had differed as to Heads for a Free Conference. After debate ‡[some words written down were read, to be offered at a Free Conference, and, after debate thereupon, the House agreed as follows, to be said by the Managers at a Free Conference:—"When their Lordships sent you down the Papers relating to the last Summer's expedition at sea, it was with an expectation to have some light in that matter from the information you might receive from some of your own members, which expectation of theirs has not been answered by the Vote you have delivered to their Lordships at the last Conference; the delivery of which Vote to their Lordships at the last Conference being a very unusual proceeding, because it was concerning a matter of fact only, without your having given the Lords any reasons which moved you to make the said Vote, and because many other things were contained in the said Papers, which might concern several others besides the person named in your Vote."] Agreed to resolve that the communication by the Commons of their Resolution, without reasons, was unusual. Message sent for a Free Conference. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 167.)

* The proceedings of this Committee are thus recorded:—23 Dec., E. Bridgewater in the Chair. The Journals are sent for over, and some few of them looked into, and Papers put in, in order to acquaint the House with them.—24 Dec., E. Mulgrave in the Chair. Precedents of Aug. 9, 13, 31, and Sept. 1, 1660 (L. J., XV. 165, in extenso), considered and ordered to be reported. (Com. Book.)

† The proceedings of this Committee are thus recorded:—30 Dec., E. Warrington in the Chair. The Journals brought over are perused.—28 Dec., 1660. An Order was sent from the Commons for 10,000*l.* to the Queen of Bohemia. The Lords' concurrence not desired.—18 March 1667. A Message to the Commons to acquaint them that the Lords intend to adjourn, &c. [Ordered] to report that the Committee have inspected the Journals, but do not find that what was done by the Commons at the last Conference is according to the usual proceedings in Parliament. 4 Jan. Free Conference had and reported (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 173). [This Conference, at which E. Rochester was spokesman, terminated the proceedings on this subject.]

7 Jan. House moved that a day may be appointed to proceed on further Advice to his Majesty, in relation to last Summer's expedition. House to be in Committee on the 10th. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 175.)

10 Jan. C. W. H. put off to 12th inst. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 178.)

12 Jan. House in Committee upon Advice to be given to the King, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. Moved that we have Cautionary towns in Flanders from the Dutch. That the King be moved that he ask Cautionary towns of the Spaniards. Question [proposed]: Whether the Advice about the Cautionary towns shall be general or particular? Question [put]: Whether the King shall be advised to ask Cautionary towns abroad, to be put into the English hands for the security of his troops in general? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 24; Not-Contents 36. Tellers: E. Manchester and E. Stamford. Question [proposed]: Whether the King shall be advised to ask for Ostend and Nieuport as Cautionary towns, to be put into the hands of the English for the security of his troops? House resumed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 181.)

10 Feb. House moved, that the Heads of Advice to be given to his Majesty be read. Ordered that the Heads be considered tomorrow, and all the Lords to attend. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 223.)

11 Feb. Order of yesterday read. E. Bridgewater reported the following [further] Heads from C. W. H., viz.:—

That no foreigner shall be of the Board of Ordnance or Keeper of the Stores in the Tower of London.

That for encouragement of the English, there may not be so many strangers employed in the Office of the Ordnance. Agreed to.

Then this Head was read:—

That the Chief Officer of the Train of Artillery abroad be one of their Majesties' subjects.

Question put: Whether ("a subject born in their Majesties' dominions") shall be in the Head, instead of ("one of their Majesties' subjects")? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 26 (including 4 Proxies); Not-Contents 28 (including 4 Proxies). Tellers: E. Bridgewater and E. Marlborough. The Head read again. Question: Whether to agree with the Committee in the Head. Resolved in the Negative. Contents 32 (including 5 Proxies); Not-Contents 32 (including 4 Proxies). Tellers as before. A Committee appointed to draw an Address upon the Heads of Advice agreed to.† (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 225.)

17 Feb. E. Mulgrave reported that the Committee had not yet drawn the Address, because they thought that the House might add

* The Commons, on receiving the Lords' Message on the 30th for a Free Conference, refused to agree to it at the time by negating the Previous Question by 78 votes to 61 (C. J., X. 765), and agreed to send this message, received on the 31st.

† This Committee met first on 13 Feb. (E. Mulgrave in the Chair), and on 15 Feb. (E. Shrewsbury in the Chair), but only to adjourn. On the 17th (E. Mulgrave in the Chair), a Preamble to the Address was agreed to, and ordered to be written over against the next meeting. (Com. Book.) Nothing further recorded.

something more to the Heads already agreed on. Moved, That those Forces the King leaves here be English. Moved, That his Majesty leave 20,000 Englishmen in England to guard the Kingdom. Agreed, that it be part of the Advice to his Majesty, that 20,000 English soldiers shall remain in England the year next ensuing, and to be under the command of an Englishman.* Moved, That it be part of the Advice to his Majesty, That men may not be pressed to sea, and then delivered out of ships to land service. Referred to the Committee to draw something to the effect of the debate concerning pressing men for land service, to be added to the Address of Advice. [That the Committee consider of drawing something concerning the Lieutenancy of London.]† (M.S. Min.; L. J., XV. 234.)

18 Feb. E. Mulgrave reported the Address of Advice (L. J., XV. 235. In extenso). The same agreed to and ordered to be presented to his Majesty. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 235.)

24 Feb. King's Answer to Address reported and ordered to be printed (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 246, 247.)

The Papers connected with the above proceedings are as follows, being divided below into Part I., relating directly to the Address of Advice, and Part II., relating to the enquiry into the naval miscarriages, viz. :—

PART I. (ADDRESS OF ADVICE).

(a) 1 Dec. 1692. Papers (2) delivered in this day by Mr. Blathwaite, Secretary to the Army, pursuant to Order of 29 Nov. (L. J., XV. 128), and referred to C. W. H. (MS. Min.), viz. :—

D. Leinster, General of the Horse.

Lieutenants-General :—E. Oxford, Mons. Auverquerque, E. Portland, Thos. Talmash, Esq.

* Originally ("of one of their Majesties' natural-born subjects").

† The entry in square brackets is expunged in MS. Min., and there is nothing further to support the statement of Ralph (ii. 396) that a motion made by, or at the instance of, Lord Warrington, that it might be part of the Address to advise the removal from the Lieutenancy of persons disaffected to the Government, was rejected. The House, however, the next day, after agreeing to the Address of Advice, made an order to consider the State of the Lieutenancy of the City of London on the 20th (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 236).—On 20 Feb. the MS. Min. record as follows, the words in square brackets being expunged :—The Order read for considering the State of the Lieutenancy of the City of London this day. [Ordered, that the person be called in who delivered the Papers concerning the Lieutenancy. Declared to be a scandalous Paper, and that there shall be due enquiry made after the author of it, in order to be punished. A scandalous Paper, containing things that seem to anticipate the judgment of this House. Declared to be an insolent Paper, and seems to anticipate the Judgment of this House.] Upon the delivery of a Paper at the Door to several Lords, it was Moved that the Paper be read. After debate, Question put : Whether the House shall now proceed upon the business appointed for the day, before the Paper be read ? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 36 (including 4 Proxies) ; Not-Contents 44 (including 11 Proxies). Tellers : E. Feversham and L. Ashburnham. Then the Paper was read (L. J., XV. 238–40, in extenso). Question put : Whether this Paper is an insolent Paper ? Resolved in the Affirmative. Mr. Cooling (sworn) says, Wilmer delivered the Papers. He delivered one to me. Mr. Windham (sworn) says Wilmer delivered one to him. Mr. Snow (sworn) says he saw Wilmer deliver Papers. He knows he delivered Papers. Ordered that Wilmer be taken into custody by Black Rod, and brought to the Bar the next day." (L. J., XV. 240.) Nothing further recorded. Luttrell adds that Wilmer, whom he describes as a "Kidnapper," slipped away and escaped, and that the debate on the Lieutenancy was adjourned sine die (21 Feb.)

(c) Letter from Sir Joseph Williamson to M. Halifax. Has received their Lordships' order of yesterday for sending to the House the regulations for posting and ordering the troops and officers that were in the Low Countries in 1677 or 1678. Remembers there were some points settled in those years, relating to something of the kind; but the entry-books of those years were left by him to his successor in the office, when giving up the seals to the King in 1678–9, and were not since brought into the office of Papers of State. Besceches his Lordship to return this for him, in obedience to their Lordships' commands. Dated Jermyn Street, 30 Nov. 1692.

PART II. (NAVAL MISCARRIAGES).

(a) 2 Dec. 1692. Account of the Orders given to the Commissioners of Transportation, relating to the providing transport ships for the Descent, and when ready (10 pages). This Account, being a Return to an Order of 29 Nov., begins by reciting the receipt on 5 March of an Order from E. Nottingham, to provide (1) Shipping for 3,500 men and 380 horses, to be at Kinsale at the end of March, and (2) Shipping for 4,000 men and 1,500 horses, to be ready in the Thames by the end of April. (See C. J., X. 715, No. I.)

Part I. of this Account, which concludes by stating that the Order of 5 March concerning ships in the Bristol Channel was performed, recites in proof of that statement, various Orders, &c., the substance of which is as follows:—

March 28. E. Nottingham informed that ships are ready at Bristol and Bideford. Order from him to embark them on 15 April. (C. J., X. 715, Nos. II. and III.)*

April 1. Said ships demand convoy (Ib. 715, No. IV.)—Requested Admiralty to provide one. (Ib. 715, No. V.)

April 7. E. Nottingham writes that the Richmond is appointed. (Ib. 715, No. VI.)

April 15. Order from Council to send shipping to Cork for 250 horses. (Ib. 715, No. X.)

April 16. Advice from Bristol that the owners of the 3 provision ships for Ireland could not get seamen, owing to reports from the Downs of impressments. (Ib. 715, No. XI.)—Six transports sailed from Bideford to Milford without convoy, to join the Richmond. (Ib. 715, No. XII.)

* The references to the Commons' Journal indicate the portions set out in the Report of the Commons' Committee.

April 20. Queen's Order, per E. Nottingham, that the ships should sail to Waterford, instead of Cork, and then return to Bristol. (Ib. 715, No. XIV.)—Notice to correspondents to prevail upon the transport masters to sail to Waterford without convoy, their Majesties insuring their ships against the enemy. (Ib. 715, No. XV.)

April 26. The rest of the ships from Bideford, and the 3 provision ships from Bristol, sailed to Waterford without convoy. (Ib. 716, No. XVI.)

May 23. 52 transports, with 5 regiments of foot, &c., arrived from Ireland at Bristol. (Ib. 716, No. XIX.)

*May 26. Informed correspondent at Bristol that all the transports with troops, &c., from Ireland, were to come round to Portsmouth, (Ib. 716, No. XX.), and prayed the Admiralty to appoint a convoy. (Ib. 716, No. XXI.)—The Admiralty replied that they had directed Admiral Russell to send a convoy to Bristol, which orders were likewise sent to the Dolphin in Kingroad, the Richmond being otherwise disposed of.

June 8. Their Bristol correspondent desired them to represent the smallness of the Dolphin, as a convoy for so many ships, she having but 26 guns and 100 men, and the coast being grown very dangerous by French and Irish privateers.

June 10. Express from same, that the transport masters of Bideford would all return home; that they demanded a stronger convoy, to tarry for it at Milford, not to have their men pressed, and to have the Admiralty's protection for every ship, and had signed a Petition to that effect to the Admiralty.

June 11. Wrote to correspondents at Bristol and Bideford to inform the transport masters that they should have a stronger convoy at Milford and a month's pay, as soon as they came to Portsmouth, and that their men should not be pressed there, desiring them to persuade them to sail to Milford, otherwise to protest against them for all damages to the service.

June 13. Advice from Bristol correspondent, that 15 of the transports were got into Kingroad, and hoped the rest would be there the next day, being satisfied with the above letter.

June 24. Express from Milford correspondent of the 22nd, giving account of the insolence of the privateers on that coast, and that the transport masters refused to come about land without a stronger convoy. Laid same before the Admiralty.

July 9. Advice from Capt. Atkinson that the Bideford ships and artillery ships arrived from Milford the day before (C. J., X. 716), but that the artillery ships, which were taken up by the Ordnance Officers in Ireland, were in extreme want of all things necessary for them to proceed on their voyage, which he had directed them to take up there, and intended to draw upon the Transport Commissioners for the money, which they promised him to pay, that the service might not stop, though they were not under their care or cognizance, being in contract with the Ordnance officers.

Part II., which begins at this point, states that the second part of the Order of 5 March, relating to shipping in the Thames, was complied with as follows:—

Directions sent, on receipt of said Order, to Ostend, for the ships which had carried thither the 4,500 Danes from Ireland to come to the Downs to ship 4,000 foot from the Thames. (C. J., X. 715, No. V.) They arrived there 3 April, when most of their seamen were pressed from them, and the ships in great danger to be lost for want of hands. Meanwhile, the Commissioners proceeded to hire ships for the 1,500 men mentioned in the first Order, and had taken up 2,170 tons of shipping for that purpose. (Ib. 715, No. IV.)

April 12. Order from E. Nottingham to provide shipping for the Ordnance Officers and Victuallers of the Navy. (Ib. 716, No. IX.)

April 25. E. Nottingham let them know that the draught of water for the transports in the Thames was not to exceed 12 ft., that they might take the ground, if occasion should be, but the ships to be of as big burden as possible. The Commissioners had then taken up upwards of 6,000 tons of shipping to carry horse, &c., besides the said ships from Ostend.

May 23. Order from E. Nottingham to direct the masters of the ships, that brought 3 regiments of foot from Leith, to land their men at Gravesend, and after taking in provisions for the like number, to fall down with all speed to the buoy of the Nore, and sail from thence to Holland under convoy, which they did.

June 3. Order from E. Nottingham to hasten transports to Portsmouth, and ascertain from Ordnance Officers and Navy Victuallers when their stores would be on board. (Ib. 716, No. XXII.)

June 4. Ordnance officers replied that they could not prefix a time, till they were furnished with 3 ships more, which was done the same day. Victuallers replied that their ships might be laden in a week, if want of money did not hinder, but that the masters of the vessels already laden refused to sign their bills of lading, till they had received a month's pay in hand, as promised. (Ib. 716, Nos. XXIII.-XXVI.)

June 11. Queen's Order, per E. Nottingham, to send all the transports in the Thames for Portsmouth to the Hope. Orders sent accordingly, but transport masters alleged they could not sail for want of seamen, who had been prest, and others were not to be got at any rates, for want of their month's freight, which ought to be advanced them by their contracts, before they sailed. (Ib. 716, No. XXVIII.)

June 15. Order from E. Nottingham to stop the Scotch ships coming from Williamstadt at the Nore, and contract with them to serve by the month, if they should be ordered to Portsmouth; that the ships should be ordered to fall down, and an account brought every time that they did so.

June 18. Informed E. Nottingham that the ships had been sent to the Hope. (Ib. 716, No. XXXIV.)

June 22. Queen's Order, per E. Nottingham, to recall from the Hope to Deptford enough ships to embark there L. Galway's and Col. Langston's regiments of horse for Holland, and to send the other transports to Portsmouth, to sail as soon as convoys were ready. (Ib. 716, No. XXXV.)

June 25. Queen's Order, per E. Nottingham, for one of the Commissioners to go down with the transports and shallops as far as the Nore, and take care that no time should be lost in their sailing thither.

June 28. The shallops or well-boats sailed from Deptford, and the same day Capt. Nicholls went to Gravesend to hasten them away.

June 29. Letter from Capt. Nicholls advising the Commissioners to let the Admiralty know, that no man-of-war at Sheerness or the Nore was ordered to take charge of the transports and boats, and that if the convoys had been ready, they might have got over the flats that day or the next and have had a quick and smooth passage to Portsmouth. (Ib. 716-17, No. XXXIX.)

Dated Transport office, 1 Dec. 1692. Signed Samuel Atkinson, Robert Henley, John Ellis.

LORDS MSS.

July 7. Letter from Capt. Nicholls, whom E. Nottingham had ordered to see the transport fleet and well-boats to the Downs, dated Deal, the 5th, that some of the transports were got into the Downs, but that the London Merchant, their convoy, sailed so heavily, she could get no further than the buoy of the Red Sand; that the Reserve frigate, he was told, was ordered to join the London Merchant, in case the Breda could not reach the Downs in time to convoy the ships to Portsmouth; but that he thought there ought to be added to them two fifth or sixth rates, that were clean and sailed well, because if any French men-of-war or privateers should see so great a fleet of small ships, they might pick out some of them and carry them away; which Letter the Commissioners laid before the Admiralty.

July 9. Advice from Capt. Atkinson, at Portsmouth, that the Bideford and artillery ships arrived from Milford the day before. (Ib. 716.)

July 10. The transports and well-boats sailed from the Downs towards Portsmouth. (Ib. 717, No. XLV.)

July 10. Advice from Capt. Atkinson at Portsmouth, that several of the ships come from Ireland with artillery were in great want of sails, anchors and cables, and could not proceed without them.

July 16. List sent by Ordnance Officers of 13 ships, taken up by their Officers in Ireland, then at Portsmouth, that were in great want of money to furnish them with necessaries, which the Commissioners were desired to supply them with.

July 18. All the transports arrived from the Downs at Portsmouth. (Ib. 717.)

July 20. Advice from Capt. Atkinson at Portsmouth that he had ordered the said artillery ships to take up what they wanted for their repairs, and intended to draw on the Commissioners for the money, which they promised to pay, that no time might be lost.

July 22. The Foot began to be shipped at Portsmouth, and were all shipped the next day, but, the wind being contrary, the Horse were not shipped till the 25th, and D. Leinster embarked that night on board the Breda.

Dated Transport Office, 2nd Dec. 1692.* Signed as above.

Endorsed as brought in this day.

- III. PARTICULAR SERVICES.
- IV. MANNING THE FLEET.
- V. VICTUALLING.
- VI. PAYMENT OF SEAMEN.
- VII. ADDRESS OF LOYALTY.
- VIII. OFFENCES; COURTS MARTIAL.
- IX. APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS.
- X. TRANSPORTS, ETC. FOR DESCENT.
- XI. MISCELLANEOUS.

(I) MAIN FLEET (COMPOSITION AND CONDITION).

(Strength as first appointed) :—

April 22 (c). Admiralty to Russell. Enclose List, arranged according to rates, of 90 "Ships for the Main Fleet," appointed this day to be under his command. The ships are those included in the Line-of-Battle of May 14 (see Tables on pp. 227-9), omitting the Rupert (3rd rate), the Crown, Advice, Ruby, St. Albans and Tiger Prize (4th rates), the Adventure (5th rate), and the Half-Moon, Cadiz Merchant, Thomas and Elizabeth and Hawk (Fireships), but adding the following :—

5th rates.	6th rates.	Hospital Ships.
Portsmouth.	Sandadoes.	London Merchant.
Charles , galley.	Greyhonnnd.	Bristol.
James , galley.	Lark.	Society.
Sheerness.	Salamander , bomb-vessel.	Concord.
	Fubbs , yacht.

Line of Battle (English) :—

May 5 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Encloses Line-of-Battle, according to List received, and has marked such ships as are not with him, or not in a condition to sail. [This List is headed "The Line-of-Battle, the English to lead with the Larboard, and the Dutch with their Starboard tacks on board," and consists of seven columns, giving (1) Fireships and Small Frigates, (2) Rates, (3) Ships, (4) Men [i.e. Complements], (5) Guns, (6) Division, (7) Squadron. The 85 ships in this List, which are arranged in Divisions of Squadrons, are the same as those given in the Line-of-Battle of 14 May (see Tables on pp. 227-9), except that there are blanks for the names and complements of two 50 gun 4th rates in each of the two Divisions of the Vice Admiral and the Admiral of the Blue, instead of the Chatham and Advice in the former Division and the Adventure in the latter; that the Crown and Tiger Prize (4th rates) and the Hawk Fireship are omitted in the Division of the Rear Admiral of the Blue; and that the Chatham (4th rate) appears in the Division of the Rear Admiral of the Red instead of the Ruby and St. Albans (4th rates). The Monck, Plymouth, Chatham, Cornwall, Breda, and Devonshire are noted "Not here," the complements of the last three being left blank, and the Royal Oak and York are noted "At Sheerness; wants men." The Rates, Complements and Guns will be found in the Table referred to above. As regards the fireships, the complements and guns are not stated.]

(Ships added) :—

May 7 (e). Admiralty to Russell. It being thought fit to strengthen his Fleet, until the ships mentioned in his Instructions, which are not yet ready, and the remainder of the Dutch men-of-war, which are not yet arrived, shall join him, he is to take 13 ships and 4 fireships under his command, on meeting with them, until further orders, and when sailing westward, to leave orders in the Downs for such of the ships, not with him, as shall come thither, to follow him to such place as he shall think fit, signifying to their Commanders to which Division he shall appoint them.*

The ships, &c. are as follows :—

3rd rate.—Rupert.

4th rates.—Crown, St. Albans, Advice, Tiger prize, Ruby and Dragon.

5th rates.—Falcon, Adventure,† Mary galley, Charles galley, Virgin prize and Milford.

Fireships.—Thomas and Elizabeth, Cadiz Merchant, Half-Moon and Hawk.

[The Charles galley has appeared already in the List of April 22, and the Rupert, Thomas and Elizabeth, Cadiz Merchant, and Half-Moon in the Line-of-Battle of May 5.]

(Repairs : Royal Charles and Royal William) :—

May 9 (h). Russell to Admiralty. . . . “Unless care be taken to make the Royal Charles broader in her rebuilding than she was with her late girdling, she will be spoiled, or, as I fear the Royal William must be served, when she returns, viz. girdled, which may be prevented, if timely taken care of” . . . .

(Hospital Ships) :—

Russell to Admiralty, viz. :—

May 9 (h). “We have not any of the hospital ships with us.”——
May 15 (h). “Here is but one hospital ship, and the Commander tells me they have neither beds nor surgeon’s chest, so that she is of no use, and those are ships highly necessary.”——May 17 (h). Must again ask that the hospital ships may be hastened. In many respects they will be wanting, as after a battle, to receive the sick, &c., who, if kept on board the Fleet, may bring the plague. The Mayor of Portsmouth was with him this morning on behalf of that town and Gosport, which places are so badly off for sick quarters, that the people are no longer able, though willing, to receive the men put on shore. They bring such who live on credit for necessities to supply those poor men when sent ashore, and their wants are so great, that they could hardly be prevailed with to receive the few now sent, fearing that the Christmas quarter in 1690, due to them, is postponed, because later quarters have been discharged, and that left unpaid. Some money and some assurance of more in a reasonable time may put life to a piece of service so necessary as this appears to be.§ [See also under VICTUALLING.]

* Admiral Russell writes on May 13 (h) :—“I have given the necessary directions to the Flag-Officers about settling their divisions.”

† The Adventure is classed as a fourth-rate in the List in Somers’ Tracts.

‡ The Royal Oak and York both appear in the Line-of-Battle of May 14, but without any men “actually on board.”

Line-of-Battle (Dutch) :—

May 7 (h). Off the Kentish Knock. . . . Does not yet know what number the Dutch squadron consists of. . . .

May 9 (h). Encloses Dutch Line-of-Battle, distinguishing those (a) which are with the Fleet, and those (b) which Admiral Almonde does not expect in less than three weeks. The List, consisting of 36 ships, 2 frigates, and 6 fireships, agrees in all respects with that in Somers' Tracts (XI. pp. 460-1), except in naming one of the fireships d' 6 Gebroeders instead of d' Gebroeders, and in describing the Vellu'w as a 3rd rate, instead of a 5th rate. The names marked (a) are the 8 frigates and fireships and the following 16 ships, viz. :—

Noorth-Hollandt.	t' Stot Muijden.	Princes.
Tergoes.	Prins.	Amsterdam.
Vere.	Etswont.	Vellu'w.
Eerste Edele.	Schattershouff.	Captain Generall.
Brandenborgh.	Leijden.	De 7 Provintien.
Zeelandt, A.

Those marked (b) are the Gelderlandt, A; Haarlem; Ripperda and Beschmermer. The remaining 16 are not marked.

Line-of-Battle (English) :—

May 15 (h). Encloses State of the Fleet, as regards men and provisions,* dated St. Helens May 14. [The List, arranged as a Line-of-Battle, and consisting of 64 ships† and 24 fireships, is identical with that in Somers' Tracts (XI. p. 450), except in adding the Tiger prize and the Hawk fireship to the Rear-Admiral of the Blue's Division.‡ It is made up of 77 of the 90 ships appointed on April 22 (excluding the 13 fifth and sixth rates and hospital ships), together with the Monk and 11 out of the 17 ships and fireships added on May 7 (excluding the Dragon fourth-rate, and all the fifth-rates except the Adventure).]

Line-of-Battle (English and Dutch) :—

May 15 (h). . . . "The Dutch that are now with me are 22 in number, which is all we expect in any time, so that with those of our own, we make up 79 sail."

(Fifth-rates detached) :—

May 15 (h). "Your Order of 11 May § to send into the Downs what small frigates I can spare from the Fleet shall be obeyed, which will be the Charles galley, Virgin prize and (if I can spare her) the Falcon, though I am very unwilling to send any ship from the Fleet above 40 guns. The Mary galley and Milford I keep, in the room of the James galley and Sheerness."

(Reinforcements after Battle) :—

May 21 (e). Admiralty to Capt Hughes, of the Pearl, Falmouth. To sail at once with his ship which came from Bilboa, and the Dutch ships (if ordered to go with him) and join Admiral Russell, now in pursuit of the French, according to such intelligence as he shall receive of his movements, taking care not to be intercepted by the enemy.——

May 23 (e). To take out of the merchant-ships from Bilboa, before sailing, such men as are not necessary for their security, and send an account on joining the Fleet.

* See under MANNING THE FLEET and VICTUALLING.

† Nine of these, viz., the Cornwall, Devonshire, Breda, York, Plymouth, Monch and Royal Oak (3rd rates), and the Chatham and St. Albans (4th rates), leave blanks in the column of "men actually on board."

‡ The Advice in the Rear-Admiral of the Blue's Division is given here twice.

HOUSE OF
1692.

May 23 (c). Admiralty Orders (2), to the Commissioners of the Navy at Portsmouth (Thos. Wilshaw) and Plymouth (Henry Greenhill). To order any ships that shall come to those ports, except the Samuel and Henry* and Germoon prize at Plymouth, to join with all possible despatch the Fleet, which was in pursuit of the French on the 21st off Cape La Hogue, and advise any Dutch men-of-war to do the same.

(Refitting Fleet) :—

May 23 (h). Russell to Admiralty. . . Designs for St. Helens, though, in consideration that many great anchors, cables and masts will be wanting, he believes in the Downs they may be supplied soonest, but he leaves that to their better judgment, desiring them to give order as soon as possible for their being got in readiness against the ships come in. . . .—May 25 (h). . . Doubts not that the great masts, anchors and cables, wanting for the ships on their coming into port, will be ordered to be got ready as soon as possible. Such ships as cannot be supplied at Portsmouth, will have to be ordered forthwith up the River.—June 4 (h). . . Will ascertain from the Commanders of the ships that cut and left their anchors behind them on the French coast, when pursuing the enemy, how the land bore of them when they cut, and what else is material for finding the anchors, but thinks it will be very difficult to recover them, owing to the great depth of the water, and the strength of the tides.

May 27 (h). “Mr. Dummer is upon surveying the ships. Several of them, I fear, must have their masts shifted, as the Royal William. If you approve of it, her guns and men may be put into the ship at Portsmouth designed to be launched tomorrow, they tell me, and Shovell† go in her; if not that, I must make room for him and his Captain in some other ship. I should be very unwilling to leave either of them behind. . . I design to send two 4th-rates to clean at Portsmouth, and I hope you have ordered some of the Bilboa convoy to clean there.”

May 27. Russell to Admiralty (h). Has ordered the Deptford this afternoon to Plymouth, to clean and refit.

June 2 (h). St. Helens. Has ordered the Deptford and Portsmouth to Plymouth, to be refitted, but with the winds they have had, they can hardly yet have got westward of Portland. . . . All things are putting in the greatest forwardness for refitting the Fleet, as soon as the weather will permit the doing it. Thinks the Fleet's being here is not the least part of the good fortune they have had this campaign, considering the badness of the weather, which is almost equal to any he has known in winter, and the damage several of them have received in their masts, &c., which would have exposed them to no small hazard.

June 4 (h). Spithead. Went off to the Fleet early yesterday, the weather being somewhat better, and brought this morning such ships from St. Helens hither to Spithead, as want most repair. Could do nothing to them before today, owing to the bad weather, and fears they will meet with further interruption, as the wind is changed to E., and begins to blow. But nothing shall be wanting towards putting the Fleet into the speediest and best condition for the sea that may be, though he believes he will be forced to leave several of the ships behind, which were most damaged in the engagement, owing to the great scarcity here of masts, yards, anchors, &c. . . . Has sent a 4th rate and some smaller ships to Plymouth, to be cleaned and refitted.

June 5 (h). Spithead. . . . The new ship at Portsmouth was launched last Friday.* Desires to know if she may be fitted out here in place of the Royal William, whose guns are very little heavier than those designed for the new ship. Designs to leave the St. Andrew to be refitted here, and turn over most of her men to other ships that want them most.—June 6 (f). Admiralty to Russell. To send the Royal William and St. Andrew from St. Helen's to Chatham, leaving enough men on board to bring them about, and transferring the rest and such guns as he shall think fit, to the Devonshire and Cornwall.—June 9 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Will send about the Royal William as soon as the weather allows her guns to be taken out. Designs to put her middle tier of guns into the Cornwall.

(Small ships ordered to Downs):—

June 1 (h). Russell to Admiralty. . . . Will send what small ships can be spared to the Downs, to await the Board's orders, as soon as he can regulate the Fleet and judge of its strength. . . .—June 4 (h). Cannot yet comply with Order, for though there are several 4th rates here at Spithead, many of the ships designed for the Fleet are either not arrived, or will be unfit for sea, among which are the Cornwall and the other new ship at Bussleton,† the former having very few men and none of her guns yet come from the River, and the other in even a much worse condition.

(Fireships):—

June 2 (h). Russell to Admiralty. In reply to their Letter of yesterday,‡ enquiring whether there are any ships, lately taken by the Fleet, that are fit to be made fireships, there is only one fit for that purpose,—a fireship taken by Sir John Ashby. Believes they will be able to fit her here, at Portsmouth, and even if they had more vessels in the Fleet that might be made fireships, they could be of little use this summer, considering the time it would take to send them to be fitted to the Medway, as proposed. Hopes those they have already will suffice for what is wanted this campaign. . . . Sends a list of fireships lost, but has not yet had time to enquire how, viz.:—

Half-Moon , Capt. Napp [Knapp].	Fox , Capt. Killingworth.
Cadiz Merchant , Capt. Winn.	Hopewell , Capt. Jumper.
Blaze , Capt. Heath.	Extravagant , Capt. Emms.
Thomas and Elizabeth , Capt. Littleton.	Wolf , Capt. Greenway.
	Hound , Capt. Foules.

June 4 (h). In addition to the one fireship taken from the enemy, as he reported, a vessel is since come in with the Bilboa convoy, which they had converted into a fireship after taking her, but she wants many things to make her completely serviceable. Cannot hear of anybody belonging to the Ordnance Office here at Spithead, that knows anything of the matter, but hopes to do it without their assistance. Cannot but think it more than necessary at this time that the most experienced men in that Office should be here, but, in saying this, he has no reason to complain of the diligence of the Officer that attends here. P.S. Has ordered the Pearl up to Longreach to receive their commands; she is in such a bad condition, that he believes she will hardly ever be fitted again as a man-of-war, but possibly she may make a tolerable fireship.

June 9 (h). When stating that he hoped he had fireships enough for service this summer, he did not imagine their Lordships would therefore stop fitting out the Charles and Cyguet, for which they desired him to recommend Commanders (see IX., APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS). A greater number than he has might well be dispensed with, but as for those which their Lordships told him they were taking up in the River, he still thinks that they cannot be fitted and join the Fleet before it will be time to have thoughts of coming in; but no doubt they will direct a sufficient number to be provided for next year's service.

(Survey of Third-rates):—

Aug. 6 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Enclloses, for information of Navy Board, a survey of the 3rd rates in the Fleet, except the Mountague and York, which were away when it was taken.—The survey is dated July, that of the Red Squadron being taken by the Master Carpenters of the Britannia, Royal Sovereign and Duke, and that of the Blue Squadron by the Master Carpenters of the Victory, Neptune and Duchess. Details are given of various defects in the following ships:—

Red Squadron:—

Lion.	Kent.	Essex.
Resolution.	Swiftsure.	Hope.
Eagle.	Elizabeth.	Cambridge.

Defiance	Suffolk.	Stirling Castle.
Warspite.	Restoration.	Dreadnought.
Monmouth.	Expedition.	Royal Oak.

Aug 17 (k) Enclloses Survey of the Lenox and York, which were not with the Fleet when the other surveys were taken.—The Survey, which is taken pursuant to an Order from Admiral Russell of 14 July for surveying the 3rd rates of the Red Squadron, is signed by Augustin Robinson and Jos. Allin, and dated 16 Aug.

(Repairs: particular Ships):—

Russell to Admiralty, as follows:—

Plymouth:—Aug 6 (i). May be careened, if not wanted, at Plymouth, and cruise till foul, and then be docked, she complaining of being iron-siek.—Aug 14 (i). Understands she is ordered to be cleaned at Plymouth. He himself proposed it, but he fears she is too sharp a ship to take the ground, and he knows she is very hard to careen, besides very tender-sided, not having had a good repair this war. But he has asked the Commissioner at Plymouth to give his opinion, after consulting the builder.—Aug. 23. (k). As to cleaning her, the Commissioner advises to the contrary, so he shall have her cleaned here at St. Helens, as soon as the hurry of work is a little off their hands. To send more ships in would rather hinder than forward the service.

Dreadnought :—Aug. 21 (k). Has sent her, as ordered, into Portsmouth harbour.

Devonshire :—Aug. 23 (k). Still thinks, as he wrote to E. Nottingham, who mentioned her in a letter to him, that she is unfit for service, and doubts whether she can ever be made a good man-of-war. This, he supposes, has already been laid before the Board.

HOUSE OF
1692.

Aug. 14 (i). Russell to Admiralty. . . . Does not enquire to what time it is the Queen's pleasure to keep the 3-deck ships with the Fleet, but desires, if thought reasonable, that timely notice may be given the Ordnance Officers to have enough lighters ready, against the ships come into the Swaile, to receive their powder from them, that being the time the ships are most exposed to hazards of that kind.—Aug. 17 (k). Suggests that an order should be lodged at Chatham, against the ships come up, requiring each captain, so soon as his ship is brought to her moorings, to see his barge delivered to the custody of such as the Commissioner shall appoint. Providing boats for the Fleet is a very great charge, and for the most part, they receive the greatest damage when the ships come in to be laid up, nobody taking care what becomes of them.—Aug. 25 (k). . . . Suggests that, instead of unrigging the great ships, as has been customary, when they come in, they should have their standing rigging, tops and topmasts through the caps, which will forward the service in the spring, but the Masters-Attendant are better judges. . . .—Aug. 28 (k). . . . Will order, as directed, one of the Muster Masters to go round with the 1st and 2nd rates, and the others to remain with the ships that will be left here at St. Helens.

(Refitting Fleet in Winter):—

Aug. 25 (k). Russell to Admiralty. . . . If the yards want carpenters for the winter's work in refitting the Fleet, it would be no ill service to send a number ashore out of the 1st and 2nd rates for that purpose.

(II.) MAIN FLEET (MOVEMENTS).

(Rendezvous at the Flats):—

April 22 (c). Admiralty to Russell. To send at once to the Flats off the Foreland, out of the 90 ships [see under date MAIN FLEET (COMPOSITION AND CONDITION)] appointed to his command, such 3rd and 4th rates, and also the fireships now at the Nore, or in the Thames or Medway, as are fit for sea, the rest to follow as soon as ready. [Burchett's Naval History, p. 461.]

(Under sail westward):—

May 5 (h). Russell to Admiralty. On board the Britannia, at anchor off the Blacktaile. Has received his Instructions of 3 May.* Yesterday, about 5 a.m., a westerly breeze springing up, he weighed, but before he could get 2 miles below the Nore, it came easterly, which brought him to anchor, and there is all the appearance he ever saw of a continued east wind. Will do his best to get to the westward. . . .

(Junction with Carter and Delavall):—

May 5 (e). Admiralty to Russell. To sail forthwith (pursuant to Queen's order of this day) and lie between the Isle of Wight and Cape de Hague, for joining Delavall and Carter, and, when joined, to prosecute his former Instructions. squadron. In his poor opinion, the more certain way of joining had been to have anchored off the Ness or Beachy, and the others ordered to join him there, and then to have sailed where the Fleet might have done the best service. Separating the Fleet is of the last consequence, it was always his opinion, nor has he as yet seen any reason to alter it. Fears very much, if it be true as Delavall writes of the French Fleet's readiness for the sea, that the first time he sees the Vice-Admiral of the Red, it will be with the French at his heels, which will be a very odd way of joining. Does not yet know what number the Dutch squadron consists of. Sailed yesterday from the Nore with a very bare wind, and a little of it, but thought getting to the westward worth the hazard.

May 9 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Off Rye. When passing through the Downs yesterday, the wind blew so fresh at N.E., that he could not send ashore to send an account of the Fleet's motion. Came to an anchor here about 4 o'clock; the Dutch Admiral came to him from the Downs at 7. Encloses Resolution taken this day by Flag Officers. . . . P.S. "When off Dover, I sent away Capt. Mease and the squadron of small frigates with him (which joined me that morning)* in search of Sir Ralph Delavall, with orders to join me off Beachy, or to send a frigate to let me know where he was, in order to prevent any accident of missing one the other." . . . Subjoined is a copy of the Resolution of the Flag Officers, viz., (English) Adm. Russell, Sir John Asliby, George Rooke, Sir C. Shovell, and D. Mitchell; (Dutch) Adm. Almonde, Vice-Admiral Schey, and Rear-Admiral Vandergoes, as follows:—

"Upon considering the Orders which have been given to Sir Ralph Delavall,* for his proceeding with the Squadron under his command, it is our opinion, that, for the more sure and speedy joining the said squadron with their Majesties' ships at this place, we should remain here 48 hours, and that a ship be forthwith sent to cruise off Beachy to look out for Sir Ralph Delavall, and, upon discovering his flag, to make a signal to another frigate to lie between Beachy and this place, in order to his doing the like. That if the wind blow hard westerly, it is most convenient that the Fleet should come to an anchor off the Ness, and that, if it blow hard easterly, they should sail to, and anchor at, St. Helens. [Burchett's Naval History, p. 463, in extenso; and Ralph, II., 352.]

(At St. Helens):—

May 13 (h). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Came to an anchor here about 11 o'clock this morning. . . . The wind blew so very hard during his lying in Rye Bay, that he could not get up his anchors till yesterday in the afternoon, and then it blew so strong, that several of the ships were forced to leave theirs behind them. . . . Has sent several light frigates to cruise to the westward, to bring account of the enemy's motion, if they approach them; but in his opinion these easterly winds have driven them out of the Channel.

May 15 (h). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . "I wish hourly for the occasion to try our officers, who, I hope, will answer what is expected from them. I herewith send you the Resolution of this day's Council of War,† by which you will see what we are going to do, as also that this place is the rendezvous for all ships to meet at." . . .

Mitchell; (Dutch): Admiral Almonde, Vice-Admirals Callemberg, Skej and Vanderputten, and Rear-admirals Vaudergoes, Evertsen and Meuse, viz., Not to proceed to the westward of St. Helens till there be certain advice that the French fleet is on our coast, and then to endeavour to fight them. To sail with first fair weather to the French coast near Cape de Hague and Cape Fleur [Barfleur], and continue there four days, if fair, to see what service may be done there, and then return to St. Helens, as the place most proper for the Fleet's rendezvous. To come to an anchor on the French coast, and ride there one day, if it be fair weather. May 23 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Le Hogue Bay. "In my letter of the 20th I could give you no other account of the Battle, than that the enemy left me between 5 and 6 o'clock the evening before in thick weather, and that I was then in search of them. About an hour after the Mary galley parted from me, the weather cleared up, and I saw most of them under the shore between Cape Barfleur and Cape de Hague, the wind easterly, and they crowding away to the westward, and we and the Dutch after them. Some hours after, the wind shifted westerly, they and we plying to windward upon the ebb, and anchoring upon the flood. On the 21st, in the morning, I saw most of them got into the Race of Alderney, 18 or 20 of them cutting their cables, and running to the eastward. I made the signal for the Fleet to cut and chase, which all of us did, except the Dutch and the Admiral of the Blue, who were far to windward of me, and lay ready for the rest of the enemy that were in the Race. Three great ships of them, that went to the eastward, with two frigates, I put on shore at Sherbrooke [Cherbourg], and left Sir Ralph Delaval (being the sternmost of the Fleet) with a strong squadron of men-of-war and fireships to destroy them, and this day he is returned hither, having performed that service. The names of the three great ships are the Royal Sun, the Conquerant, and the Admirable. I am now at an anchor at this place, where in the harbour are great numbers of transport-ships, and at the mouth of it 10 sail of great men-of-war, who have lightened themselves all that possibly they can, to prevent being destroyed by us; but that, I hope, will not save them. One more, of about 50 guns, lies upon her side lost. The enemy's ships did not exceed 50 ships of war, of which number 18 of them had three decks, and but two so small as 56 guns. Though their number was inferior to ours, yet I can positively affirm, that the ships of their Majesties which beat them, did not exceed 40, for the weather being so thick and quite calm, the Dutch, who led the van, could not come in to fight; and the Blue, who were in the rear, could not come up, except in the night about 8 o'clock, and then they met with some scattered ships of the enemy's, in which scuffle Rear-Admiral

Carter was killed,* and, had not the weather been very cross, not one of their ships could have escaped us. Monsieur Tourville (who lay by me about an hour and a half) plied his guns very fast, but, after that, slackened his hand, and with his boats towed his ships at a greater distance from me. Both he and all his division, I believe, had their belly's full, for there was not one ship in my division but what plied them very warmly. I send you an account,† which I have received from a captain of a fireship Sir John Ashby took yesterday, of what he knows that passed before and in the Battle, he being one of those ships that were to windward and in the Race.

"Since the writing this, the Admiral of the Blue and the Dutch are come hither, but lost sight of the enemy off Guernsey, and I presume they are now got into St. Malo's. I design tomorrow to advise with the Flag-Officers about sending a strong squadron to the westward. Possibly they may meet them with the first fair wind going for Brest. I also design to propose sending a small squadron of light ships off of Havre, and so along the coast to Dunkirk, to see what may be picked up. I have pursued them so warmly, that I have not given them time to breathe. The ships most disabled I'll keep here, till these ships are destroyed, and then try what may be done on the transports in the haven. When I depart from hence, I design for St. Helens. . . . [For continuation of letter see under date MAIN FLEET (COMPOSITION AND CONDITION) (Refitting Fleet).]

P.S. "May 24. Since the writing of this, I sent in Vice-Admiral Rooke with a squadron of ships and fireships, and all the boats in the Fleet; and therefore I stopped this express, till I could give you some account of the success; which is, that with the boats last night they burned 6 great ships, and this morning 6 more, the least of 60 guns, and several of them being of 90."

(Return to St. Helens):—

May 25 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Under sail 6 leagues N. from Le Hogue. Is now under sail towards St. Helens with all the Fleet except 12 English men-of-war and 3 fireships under the command of the Admiral of the Blue [Sir J. Ashby], and as many Dutch ships, which he has ordered along the French shore as far as Havre-de-Grace, to endeavour to destroy such of the enemy's ships as they meet with there, if it be possible, and if not, to return forthwith to the Fleet at St. Helens. [See Burchett's Naval History, p. 469.]‡ . . . "P.S. Last night we burnt several transport ships."

* This confirms the account in the London Gazette, No. 2768, that Carter was killed during the pursuit. Macaulay (iv., 236, edit. 1855) states that he was killed at the beginning of the action, after being the first to break the enemy's line. Clarke's Life of James II. (ii. 493) or Luttrell, 26 May 1692, seems to be the authority for this misstatement.

[There is a gap in Russell's Letters from 9 June to 24 July, representing a period covered by a Book, No. 4, missing between Papers (h) and (i). He left St. Helens with the Fleet on June 14, with a design to intercept the French ships on their way from St. Malo to Brest (E. Nottingham's Abstract (Paper (l) below), June 13 and 14, and C. J., X. 752), but after being forced by bad weather 20 leagues W. of Ushant, came again in sight of the English coast on the 30th (Paper (l) June 30; London Gazette, No. 2781), and reached Torbay on July 1, having been unable to attack the French ships at St. Malo without land forces. (Luttrell, July 5.) He stood over again to the French coast, almost immediately after (Ib.), and sent letters to E. Nottingham on the 3rd from "Guernsey Road," and on the 6th "under sail off Guernsey" (Paper (l) ut supra). On the 8th he was at anchor off Berry Point, having detached a squadron to the French coast under Rooke (Ib.; London Gazette, No. 2782), who rejoined him on the 13th (No. 2784). On the 10th, having been forced back by a strong W.N.W. wind, he came to anchor at Torbay (London Gazette, No. 2783). He sailed from there on the 15th (see London Gazette, No. 2784), but was back again at Torbay on the 19th. (Ralph, II. 359.)]

(Council-of-War):—

July 25 (i). Russell to Admiralty. At Torbay. Encloses Resolution of Flag Officers at a Council-of-War, called on board the Britannia this morning, viz. That a squadron † be sent hof the Isle of Basse, to prevent the French ships going from St. Malo to Brest, and that the rest of the Fleet sail forthwith to Spithead, to join the transports, if the wind be westerly, but continue at Torbay and wait for them, if it be easterly. [The Resolution is printed in extenso, with two small variations, in C. J., X. 720–21.]

---

* With regard to French ships disabled after the Battle, the following appears elsewhere, viz.:—May 24 (e). Admiralty Order. To Thos. Wilshaw, Esq. one of the principal Officers and Commissioners of the Navy at Portsmouth. To employ the guardship Rose, or any other ship within his reach, which he shall judge proper, to take up any lame ships of the French, or on any other necessary service at this time after the engagement with the enemy.

(Departure for La Hogue Bay):—

July 29 (i). Russell to Admiralty. On board the Britannia. Yesterday afternoon called a Council of War, at which it was agreed that, since the season is so far advanced, it is not practicable to attempt anything against the enemy either at St. Malo or Rochfort. Eneloses Copy of Result for their information how the Fleet will proceed,* and likewise a Paper signed only by the Flag Officers,† as also the places appointed for rendezvous, viz., “In case of separation by bad weather or any other avoidable accident, and the Fleet be to the eastward of the Isle of Wight, the place of rendezvous with the wind westerly is Le Hogue Bay, and with the wind easterly St. Helens; but if the Fleet be to the westward of the Isle of Wight, the place of rendezvous with the wind westerly is St. Helens, and with the wind easterly Torbay. Dated on board the Britannia this 29 July 1692.” Is now on the way to the Bay of Le Hogue, to countenance the army in what shall be thought convenient to be attempted on the coast of Normandy.

(Return to St. Helens):—

July 30 (i). Russell to Admiralty. Off the high land of St. Albans. Received this morning the Queen’s Order of the 26th inst., and encloses Resolution of Council-of-War thereon. Is coming, accordingly, to St. Helens with his portion of the Fleet and the transports, and shall await there the Queen’s further commands. [The Resolution is given in extenso in C. J., X. 722. Russell announced his return to St. Helens by an express which reached Whitehall on August 1 (Luttrell, Aug. 2), with which day E. Nottingham’s Abstract (Paper (l) below) ends.]

Aug. 6 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . The weather is very uncertain, wind and rain, the wind not continuing long at one point of the compass. . . .

Aug. 7 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . The wind is at S.W., blowing hard, with much rain.

Aug. 13 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . Wind at W.S.W. . . . Made the signal yesterday (pursuant to Queen’s Order) for sailing westward, the wind being easterly, and designed to have done it this morning, but last night, about 9 o’clock, it began to lighten, and at 11 it lightened, thundered and rained, with sometimes great gusts of wind, that in all his life he never saw the like, and so continued till 1. . . .

Aug. 14 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . The wind has, since the storm, blown very hard at S.S.W. with rain. . . .

Aug. 17 (k). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Received the Queen’s commands for the Fleet’s sailing to Torbay, but has been detained by contrary and very hard gales of wind. Will sail, if the wind comes E., but at present it is S.E., and at this time of year the Flag-Officers, whom he has consulted with this day, are of opinion the Fleet should not venture to sea with the wind to the southward of E.S.E. . . . P.S. Since writing this, the wind is come about to the S.W. [Admiral Russell’s last Letter is dated St. Helens, Aug. 28. On Sept. 5 he struck his flag and went up to London. All the 1st rates were ordered up the river under Sir Ralph Delavall, to be laid up; the rest were to continue at sea under Sir John Ashby. (Luttrell, Sept. 8.)]

(Rear Admiral Carter):—Admiralty Orders as follows:—

April 2 (b). To repair to the Downs, and after fitting for service in the Soundings, with all possible dispatch, the Deptford and Hound fireship (in the Downs), and the Monmouth, Mountague, Tiger prize and Milford (ordered to the Downs), to hoist his flag and sail with them westward, taking up the Centurion at Spithead, to Plymouth, where he will find the Extravagant fireship, and remain at Plymouth Sound for further orders.—April 6 (b). To take with him, on his way westward, such Dutch ships at Spithead as shall be ordered to join him.—April 11 (b). Order as to Centurion revoked, she being ordered to Plymouth Sound, to await his arrival there.*

April 12 (b). To sail to Spithead, and remain there for further orders, taking with him the above-named ships (omitting the Extravagant and Centurion), together with the Rupert, Woolwich, Dragon, Charles galley and Falcon, or such of them as shall be now in the Downs.†

April 14 (b). Instructions: To take under his command the following ships, viz.:—

Monmouth	Portsmouth
Mountague	Milford
Rupert	Virgin prize
2 third-rates more from the Nore‡	Falcon , brigantine
Deptford	Sally Rose
Tiger prize	Julian prize
Woolwich	Roe , ketch
Dragon	Isabella , yacht
Bonadventure	Hound ,
Centurion	Extravagant ,
Charles galley	and 1 Fireship more,

* The Centurion arrived at Plymouth, with two trading vessels under her convoy, on April 17. (London Gazette, No. 2759).

‡ On April 11 the Commander-in-Chief at the Nore was ordered to send two of the smallest 3rd rates to Spithead (b). On the 18th, no ships having been sent, he was ordered to send the Cambridge and Resolution, supplying them with men from the great ships in the Medway (b). On the 21st, the Chief Flag-Officer at the Nore was ordered to keep the Resolution at the Nore till further orders (b). [The Resolution was appointed one of the Main Fleet on April 22. According to Luttrell (14 April), Carter appears to have sailed with a squadron of 14.]

and immediately, with any 5 or more of them, to sail over to Guernsey and Jersey, the rest to follow. After taking on board pilots, he is to cruise near St. Malo for 48 hours and no longer, to gain information, unless he finds he can do services against the enemy, failing which, he is to proceed to Cape de Hague, and stand in to Havre-de-Grace, to get intelligence and annoy the enemy. If nothing is to be done there, he is to detach the Dragon and Falcon to the Shannon, with orders to convoy the artillery ships from thence to Kinsale, and himself to return with the rest of his squadron to Spithead, sending on what account he has of the enemy's designs. If he finds it needful to stay on the French coast for the defence of the islands, he is to send word. [The substance is given in Burchett's Naval History, pp. 461-62.]

April 17 (b). To take with him to Guernsey (pursuant to Queen's Order) Col. Purcell's regiment, now at Portsmouth, if ready to embark, and if not, to order such ships as shall follow him, to do so instead.—

April 19 (b). To proceed at once on his service, without embarking the said regiment.—April 20 (b). To put the regiment on shore again, if already embarked, and proceed according to his former Orders, excepting only that he is not to send away the Dragon and Falcon,* as previously directed, but return with all speed, with all the ships under his command, to the Flats off the Foreland, and not to Spithead, as soon as the service on which he is ordered is performed.

April 23 (c). To keep (on returning from his service) on the French coast, in order to meet Delavall's squadron, ordered thither, and to follow his orders, if met; and if not, to return to the Downs for further orders.

May 5 (e). Pursuant to Queen's Orders, he is, if not yet joined with Delavall, to cruise between the Isle of Wight and Cape de Hague, in order to join him and the Fleet with Admiral Russell, which are ordered to that station. [Burchett's Naval History, p. 462.] To advise any Dutch men-of-war he may meet with, of that station, in order to their repairing thither also.

May 10 (e). Admiralty to Russell. The Board understanding by a Letter to their Secretary from Carter, that some of the squadron of their Majesties' ships under Russell's command have lately taken a French ship bound from Havre-de-Grace to Brest, with a packet to Mons. Tourville,† he is required, on Carter's joining him, to have the captain, master and carpenter of the French ship forthwith sent up in custody to the Board.

(Capt. Meese) :—

April 5 (b). Admiralty to Capt. Meese, of the Ruby, at the Nore. The Board being informed that some French ships of war have lately gone from Dunkirk to the northwards, he is to sail with the Ruby,‡ together with the Advice,§ Portsmouth,§ Mermaid, Sandadoes § and Greyhound,§ or such as shall be ready, and cruise for * On 21st April the Chief Flag Officer at the Nore was ordered to keep the Dragon and Falcon, together with the Milford and the Hawk fireship, at the Nore till further orders (b). These four ships were added to the Main Fleet on 7th May.

† "An express from King James to Tourville at Brest was taken by Delavall, and this day brought to the Council." (Luttrell, May 10.) "A French advice-boat, with letters for Tourville to act in this juncture, intercepted by Delavall." (Ib., May 12.) Carter joined Delavall between the Isle of Wight and Cape La Hague on May 9, and the two joined Russell at St. Helens on the 13th. (Ralph, II. 353. London Gazette, No. 2766.)

‡ Added to Main Fleet on May 7.

§ Appointed to Main Fleet on April 22.

20 days between Yarmouth Roads and Leith, and sometimes into the sea and upon the Dogger Bank, as wind and weather will permit, doing his best to protect the ships of the English and their Allies passing that way, and to take or destroy those of the enemy, sending frequent accounts of his proceedings. At the end of that period, he is to send on shore, either at Tynemouth or Yarmouth, as wind and weather will permit, for further Orders.

April 28 (e). Same to Same, at Yarmouth Roads. To sail to the Downs, with the Kuby, Advice, Experiment, Sandadoes and Greyhound, and there await further orders, but to leave the Mermaid in Yarmouth Roads, to remain there till further orders, directing her Commander to report for how long she is victualled. [See further under MAIN FLEET (MOVEMENTS), May 9.]

(Capt. Bridges) :—

April 8 (b). Admiralty to Capt. Bridges, of the Portsmouth, at the Nore. To sail forthwith, with his ship and the brigantine placed under his orders, and cruise between Havre-de-Grace and Cape de Hague for not more than 48 hours, getting what information he can of what the French are doing with their galleys, what soldiers are already drawn down, or drawing down to those parts, what flat-bottom boats are providing, or what other preparations making thereabouts for transporting men. This done, to return with all despatch to the Downs, and remain there for further orders, sending up, by express, a particular account of his intelligence. [“Paris. April 14. Several transport ships are getting ready at Havre-de-Grace, with design, it is said, to make a descent on Scotland.” (Luttrell, April 14.)]

ii. Detached Services.

(Vice-Admiral Delavall) :—

April 24 (d). Admiralty to Russell. To order Vice-Admiral Delavall (pursuant to Queen's Orders of 22nd inst), as follows, viz. :—To sail with all but the 1st and 2nd rates along the French coast from Calais to Cape de Hague, sending in to discover what is doing at Dieppe, Valery, and Havre-de-Grace, and doing what he can against the shipping in those ports. Then to stretch over to the Isle of Wight, and if he finds no orders at St. Helens, to return and call for them at Dover, and, if he meet with nothing to the contrary, to return to the Flats off the Foreland, whither he is also to retreat at any time if the French Fleet should appear in superior force. To take Carter and his ships, if met with, under his command. [Burchett's Naval History, p. 462. In extenso.*]

April 26 (d). Admiralty to Delavall. To send a list of the ships he takes with him, and to report his proceedings and send a vessel with any advice of moment to the first port in England.

April 27 (e). Admiralty to Delavall. To leave behind the Samuel and Henry, Wolf, Richmond and Lark, to prosecute their orders from the Board.

May 5 (e). Admiralty to Delavall. To continue cruising (notwithstanding his Orders from Russell) between Cape de Hague and the Isle of Wight, until joined by Russell with the Fleet, which is ordered to that station, as he is to advise any Dutch men-of-war that he may meet. But if the enemy's fleet shall appear in superior force, he is to retreat to the Flats off the Foreland, until he meet with the rest of the Fleet.

* Campbell (Lives of the Admirals, III. 91) confounds this service of Delavall's, as Ralph (Hist., II. 348) points out, with his previous voyage from Cadiz.

1692.

May 10 (e). Admiralty to Delavall. To send a ship immediately towards Cape de Hague and Havre-de-Grace, to order Carter to join him (if he has not done so already), directing the captain to beware of the enemy, who are said to have been off Dartmouth on the morning of the 8th inst. ["Letters from Plymouth say that Delavall was returned having endeavoured to burn the French transport-ships, but they lay so far up the river at Havre-de-Grace that they could not come at them." (Luttrell, May 10.)]

(Capt. Evans : French designs on England).

May 27 (h). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Encloses directions of date to Capt. Evans, viz.:—To cruise with his ship, the St. Martin prize, and the Roe ketch and Goodwin prize between Beachy Head and Dover, keeping in sight of shore, and to look out for and intercept any French vessels sent to land people in those parts, and on meeting any, to have them secured at the nearest port, giving immediate advice to E. Nottingham, and then return to his station. To report proceedings to the Admiralty, and execute any orders received from them or E. Nottingham.—June 1 (h). . . . The St. Martin prize was sailed, pursuant to his orders before those they sent arrived.

(Cruisers for French privateers):—

July 24 (i). Russell to Admiralty. Torbay. . . . Designs the James galley* and Sun prize to cruise in St. George's Channel, where he hears there are several privateers. . . .

Aug. 6 (i). Russell to Admiralty. . . . Recommends having two or three good sailing frigates clean, to meet the privateers near their going in foul. The ships he cleaned have come up with everything they saw, but he has no ship in the Fleet to clean that sails well.

Aug. 14 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . Has ordered the Plymouth and Oxford to cruise 24 hours off the Lizard, and then 6 hours off the Start, merely to keep the corsairs off the coast. . . . E. Nottingham writes as if they expected some ships from the Fleet should be sent to the Irish Channel in search of the privateers. But, as their Lordships know, he has no ships but 3rd rates undisposed of. The only cruising frigates are the Deptford, Centurion, Portsmouth,† James galley, Adventure and Sandadoes, and where they are ordered, he has already stated. The last two only came to him from before Breac on Saturday last. If they desire any of the 3rd rates should be sent to cruise, he will send them. . . .

(Capt. Nevill):—

July 24 (i). Russell to Admiralty. Torbay. . . . "The German yesterday brought me a Letter and a Journal from the Commissioner at Plymouth of the Commander's discovering 6 sail of French ships N.N.E. from Ushant, and about 8 leagues to the eastward he saw 20 more. I will not say they were not French, but I verily believe they were the ships I had appointed to lie very near the distance and bearing he speaks of."

* On 21 July the James galley brought into Plymouth a French privateer of 18 guns and 150 men, which she took, after a 3 hours' fight, three days before off the Land's End. (London Gazette, No. 2787. Luttrell, July 26.) On Aug. 10 she sailed from Falmouth to the eastward with a convoy of merchantmen. (London Gazette, No. 2793.)

† The Deptford came into Plymouth, on Aug. 13, with a retaken merchantman. (Ib., No. 2793.) The Centurion and Portsmouth came in there on the 28th, after a cruise off the Irish coast, with a French privateer [La Machine] captured by the former on July 18. (Ib., Nos. 2787, 2788, 2797.)

Aug. 2 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Last night Capt. Nevill arrived here with 9 English men-of-war. All the Dutch that were with him on the late cruise, and 5 of the English, are left with Sir John Ashby. They have retaken several ships that the enemy's privateers took in the Irish Channel. The Captain of the Germoon prize* brought a Journal of his proceedings when before Ushant, and of his discovering several French ships and one flag, and E. Nottingham sent him the same. Has compared that account with the relation of the Commanders of Capt. Nevill's squadron, and finds the 6 sail he saw were Ostenders, bound thither with soldiers from the Groyne. The single ship that chased him was Capt. Fairberne in the Monck, and the squadron was Nevill's. Hopes the Board will order him to be more certain of his news, before he reports it positively, lest his intelligence may lead into errors.

Aug. 7 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Encloses an account received from Capt. Dilkes of the Adventure, as follows:—

James Wallos and Thos. Boult, lately prisoners in St. Malo, and now retaken, give this account:—That there are now at St. Malo 22 sail of men-of-war, of 60 and 70 guns apiece, and one of 86 guns, with 6 fireships,† all, excepting two, ready to sail and wait for orders, 8 of which are ordered to sail forthwith. The fireships lie at the booms, which they have lately made, to prevent any ships coming in. Three privateers are now building; one, of 56 guns, will be finished within a month; one, of 24 guns, the other of 14 guns. At this time there are at sea out of St. Malo 30 sail of privateers; 5 carry King James' Commission, all painted yellow, except the Concord, which is painted red, viz.:—

St. Aron, Capt. James Welch, 16 guns, 150 men.

‡ Providence, Capt. Lambert, 14 guns, 120 men.

Corquein, Capt. Vaughan, 18 guns, 140 men.

Prince of Wales, Capt. Robt. Welch, 12 guns, 70 men.

Concord, Capt. Golding, 14 guns, 120 men.

French privateers (descriptive particulars added to each ship) as follows:—

Victory, 36 guns, 250 men.

§ Machine, 36 guns.

St. Esprit, 24 guns.

Seven Heads, 30 guns.

St. Peter, 14 guns.

St. Nicholas, 30 guns.

Granadan, 18 guns.

Francis de la Paix, 16 guns.

Artottill, 24 guns.

* Capt. Wilkins commanded the Germoon prize. (London Gazette, No. 2819.) It is noteworthy that the Queen's Order of 26 July, recommending an attempt on Brest, and, in particular, the burning of St. Malo, was founded, as E. Nottingham himself states in his Abstract (Paper (l) below), on this intelligence received from Capt. Wilkins, which, as it here appears, turned out to be incorrect.

† Letters from Portsmouth say that Sir John Ashby with his squadron continues on the French coast, and they had an account by a French prize, that there lay at St. Malo's 21 French men-of-war from 50 to 90 guns, and 12 more from 10 to 40." Luttrell, 11 Aug. 1692.)

‡ The London Gazette (No. 2790), under date Portsmouth, Aug. 4, has the following:—"Their Majesties' ships that are come in from cruising on the coast of France have retaken several small English ships that were taken lately in the Irish seas by privateers, having Commissions from the late King James, one of which was found on board one of these prizes, being dated 22 Feb. last at St. Germain's, and countersigned Melfort, by which Patrick Lambert is appointed Captain of the frigate called the Providence, &c."

§ The privateer La Machine was captured, after a three hours' fight, and brought into Kinsale by the Centurion on July 20. (London Gazette, No. 2788.)

Privateers out of Brest :—

St. Lee, 36 guns, 250 men.Queen Mary, 36 guns, 200 men.Le Grand Joseph, 28 guns.

Ready to sail out of St. Malo the first fair wind :—

The Brave, 18 guns*Sun*, 24 guns.Royal James, 14 guns.Comte Reville, 36 guns.

They hear from England that the English fleet was coming to besiege St. Malo, since which the merchants have removed their effects, and night and day men and women are at work about fortifying the place. The grand port and little port are boomed. 600 prisoners, being on board the exchange boats, ready to sail for England, upon the news were remanded back, and sent, closer prisoners than ever, 15 leagues into the country. The Irish Officers are now generally revolting in France, upon some discontents, and by their own report would gladly come on board any of their Majesties' ships. A master of Lyme, for speaking slightly of the Prince of Wales, was made prisoner and threatened to be hanged. They report that the ships that were burnt were burnt by themselves. King James is now at St. Germain. The army that lay at Le Hogue, with which King James was to invade England, is sent to Savoy. The ships we took came out of St. Malo the 27th of July.

(Sir John Ashby) :—

Russell to Admiralty :—

July 24 (i). Torbay. . . . Will send another squadron to relieve the ships on the French coast,* that they may come hither to take in their provisions.—July 25 (i). Sir John Ashby commands the squadron.—Aug. 9 (i). St. Helens. . . . His squadron is just in sight. [Ashby's Squadron consisted of 1 first-rate, 6 seconds, 17 thirds, 1 fourth and 4 fireships, together with several Dutch ships. (Ralph, II. 360). He returned to Portsmouth, after having landed some men near St. Malo's without opposition, burned some houses, and brought off some prisoners and 800 head of cattle. (Luttrell, Aug. 13.)]

(Sir Cloudesley Shovell: Expedition to Dunkirk) :—

Aug. 7 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Sir Cloudesley Shovell sailed today, by the Queen's command, to the Downs, with the following squadron :—

Kent	Charles galley	Roebuck	} Fireships
Breda	Delf	Owner's Love
Monck	Medenblick	Charles
Greenwich	Greyhound	Cygnat
Woolwich	Strombolo	Shark brigantine
Chatham	Griffin	Salamander , bomb-vessel.

[This Squadron, with the transports and the troops under the Duke of Leinster, which had returned with Russell to St. Helens, arrived in the Downs on the 8th (London Gazette, No. 2791), and remained there, awaiting further orders, till the 20th, when they put to sea, and landed the forces at Ostend on the 22nd (Ib., Nos. 2795, 2796). "Sir Cloudesley Shovell is arrived in the Downs from before Dunkirk." (Luttrell, Sept. 27.)]

(Capt. Robinson) :—

Aug. 13 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. The Queen having ordered him to send a squadron of 10 ships, English and Dutch, * Namely, Capt. Nevill's Squadron. See p. 218. See also MAIN FLEET (MOVEMENTS)—Council of War.

to the Downs, to receive her further commands, he has sent the following, viz. :—

Capt. Robinson, who commands them, has his orders, and is now under sail, with the wind at W.S.W. [Capt. Robinson commanded the Monmouth. (Somers' Tracts, XI., p. 459.)]

(Newfoundland Squadron) :—

Aug. 23 (k). Russell to Admiralty. . . . The St. Albans, Bonadventure and Mary galley were not mentioned in the List of cruising frigates at his disposal [see Cruisers for French Privateers, p. 218, Aug. 14], because they were sent with the Spy fireship, by the Queen's commands, last July to the French part of Newfoundland, and are probably now returning. [This squadron, which was intended to destroy the French in Newfoundland, is referred to in E. Nottingham's Narrative (Paper (l)) under dates June 1, 2, 5, 15 and 22 and July 13. From the Log Book of the St. Albans, Capt. Gillam, which is among the Admiralty Records at the Public Record Office, the following facts appear :—On 15 July 1692 the St. Albans is at Torbay, "Bonadventure, Mary galley, Spy fireship being in company with us." She is afterwards working westward, and on 31 Aug. "made Cape Race on Newfoundland." In September the same ships are mentioned as with her. The London Gazette, No. 2813, states that these four ships left Newfoundland on 27 Sept., and reached England at various dates between 20 and 23 Oct. Other entries in the London Gazette state that the Bonadventure, which had convoyed to the Downs on 6 July some merchant vessels bound from Topsham to London, left the Downs on 21 July with the merchant fleet bound to Newfoundland in company with the Reserve, Crown, Sheerness and Signal fireship, and reached Plymouth on the 30th (Nos. 2782, 2786, 2789); but these entries may refer to another Bonadventure, the hired ship.]

(West Indies Squadron) :—

July 30 (i). Russell to Admiralty. . . . The Rupert . . . ordered to Spithead to refit. . . .

Aug. 6 (i). Russell to Admiralty. . . . Will send the Experiment, Chester and Ruby to Plymouth, to be cleaned and refitted for their voyage. . . .

Aug. 21 (k). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. "In obedience to your Order of the 17th inst., the Dreadnought is ordered into Portsmouth harbour to pursue your further directions. The Ruby is also there to clean and refit; she had gone to Plymouth with the Chester, Advice and Experiment, there to be refitted, but upon a survey of the masts both of the Ruby and Chester, the mast-maker here judges it not secure to venture those ships so long a voyage with such masts, though they be serviceable enough in the Channel. This was the reason why she also did not accompany the rest. I have given strict charge to the Captain about his men. I went into the harbour yesterday to hasten the ships out. It was a very melancholy sight to see the Dunkirk, Pembroke and Crown without hardly ten men on board. The Dragon is in something a better condition, though not much. The Rupert, I hope, will be at Spithead in all this week." . . .

Aug. 23 (k). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . "In my letter of the 21st I acquainted you how I had disposed of the ships which I heard were designed for the West Indies, which I hope meets with your approbation. As for the Resolution, I never had any orders to send her in till your letter of the 20th, the extraet you sent me of my Lord Nottingham's letter. With submission, I faney his Lordship mistakes my expression. I writ him word that the Commissioner had orders for sheathing that ship, but that I had no order from you to send her in."

Aug. 25 (k). Russell to Admiralty. Has enquired of the physicians of the Fleet about one of their attending the squadron, and has given Dr. Browne, physieian to the Red Squadron, who embraces the offer, leave to go to London to prepare for the voyage, directing him to wait on the Board. When ordering the Resolution into harbour, he directed 150 of such men as the Captain apprehended were most likely to absent themselves from the serviee, to be put on board two ships in the Fleet.

Aug. 26 (k). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . "I see you have directed the Pembroke to cruise for some days. If you would please to give the same orders to the rest of the ships designed for the West Indies, as they are clean, I believe they might be very serviceable."

[This squadron, which was intended to destroy the French factories in New France, Canada and Quebee, and dispossess the French of the Newfoundland fisheries, was at first intended to go under Capt. Meese (Luttrell, 28 May 1692), and is referred to in E. Nottingham's Narrative (Paper (l) below), under dates 11 and 15 June and 22 and 28 July. It was to have sailed by 1 August, postponed till the end of August, and sailed eventually on 9 Jan. 1692-3, under Sir Francis Wheeler (Luttrell, 10 Jan. 1692-3); and all the above-named ships, with the exeception of the Rupert, Dreadnought and Crown, formed part of it. The Admiralty "List Book," in the Public Record Office, under date 1 Jan. 1692-3, adds to the above, as ordered for the West Indies, the Tyger, Mermaid and Falcon 4th rates, the Canterbury storeship and London Merchant hospital ship, the Quaker ketch and Phœnix bomb vessel, and the Owner's Love and Cygnat fireships. Dr. Browne went as physician, with a salary of 500*l.* a year (Luttrell, 6 Sept. 1692). The Admiralty applied to the College of Physicians to recommend a physician to the Red Squadron in his place (Calendar, 8th Report, p. 231.)]

iii. Convoys.

(Merchant-men from Bilboa) :—

Admiralty orders as follows :—

May 14 (e). To the Commander-in-Chief of their Majesties' ships with the convoy from Bilboa. To keep as far westward, on his return, as he can, and put into the first port in Ireland, it being hazardous to come to the Downs, as the French Fleet is in the Channel. [On May 19 news was brought to Plymouth that the merchant-ships and convoy, consisting of 3 English and 4 Dutch men-of-war, had arrived at Falmouth. (London Gazette, No. 2768.)]

May 21 (e). To Capt. Hughes, of the Pearl, Falmouth. To put to sea, together with the Dutch ships, if ordered to proceed with him, and join Admiral Russell, now in pursuit of the French, taking care not to be interecepted.

May 23 (e). To same. To take with him what men can be spared from the merchant-ships.

June 13 (f). To Russell. To send 2 ships to Falmouth, to convoy the Bilboa merchant-ships to the Downs, and then return to the Fleet.

[The Bilboa fleet, consisting of about 60 sail, passed the Downs for the Thames on the 19th. (London Gazette, No. 2777.)]

(Merchant-ships for East Country, &c.):—

June 6 (f). Admiralty to Russell. To send to the Downs the Falcon and 3 fourth-rates, for employment as convoys.

June 9 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Will send the ships, but it would be safer for them to wait for the Royal William, which will be ready in a few days to sail for Chatham.

June 10 (f). Admiralty to Russell. To send the Falcon to the Nore, without waiting for the Royal William, the former being one of the ships designed to convoy the merchant-ships to the East Country, which are now ready to sail.

(Ordnance Stores for Portsmouth):—

May 28 (e). Admiralty Order. To Capt. Johnson, of the Kingfisher, at the Nore. To send to Sheerness, on his way to the Downs, for such vessels, laden with guns and stores from the Ordnance for Portsmouth, as shall be ready to sail with him, and convoy them to the Downs, and then proceed according to such Orders as he will there receive. [The Kingfisher, with the Discovery and the Despatch galley, sailed on June 1 from the Downs to cruise before Dunkirk. (Luttrell, June 2.)]

(Ordnance Stores, &c., Plymouth):—

June 4 (h). Spithead. . . . Has already sent a 4th rate and some smaller ships to Plymouth, to be cleaned and refitted, but did not think them capable of towing the rafts of chests from Portsmouth thither, as desired, and is of opinion there will be great difficulty in doing it, owing to the little water the chests draw, and their great height out of it. Will appoint some of those ships, when refitted, to convoy the ships with ordnance stores at Plymouth, as directed.

(Transports for Holland):—

Admiralty Orders, viz.:—

June 22 (f). To Capt. Ward, of the Dunkirk,* at the Nore. To take under his care all transports in the River bound for Holland, and convoy them thither as soon as possible, and remain there till they are ordered to return, or else lie in such station on the coast of Holland as he may ride in most safely, so as to be ready to take them under his protection on their coming out of Willemstad, and on their joining him, to convoy them back to England. [9 or 10 regiments were waiting at Willemstad, to embark for England to take part in the descent. (Luttrell, June 16.)]

July 27 (g). To Capt. Robinson, of the Garland, at the Nore. He is, with the ships under his command and the London Merchant, to take under his care the transports in the River, which are going with horses to Willemstad, and are intended to be shipt on the 29th, and convoy them thither at the first opportunity, and then return to Harwich and there complete their victualling for 3 months.

(Exeter hulk):—

Russell to Admiralty, viz.:—

July 30 (i). . . . Sir John Ashby, unless ordered away from his present station, shall have directions as to convoying the Exeter hulk from Plymouth.—Aug. 25 (h). . . . Learns from Commissioner Greenhill that she will not be ready to come to Portsmouth in less than a fortnight, by which time he will send a ship to convoy her.—

* See also under TRANSPORTS, &c. FOR DESCENT, p. 238.

HOUSE OF
1692.

Aug. 28 (h). . . . Understands from the Commissioner at Plymouth that she will require 150 men to sail her. As the Deptford alone cannot spare this number, he has ordered the Captain of the Plymouth, now at Dartmouth, to go to Plymouth with the Oxford, and after supplying enough men out of those ships for the hulk and the Sun prize, to repair with them and the other men-of-war to St. Helens.

(Ketches, &c.):—

May 5 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Was informed some time since by the Navy Board, that a certain number of ketches would be wanting for some service after the Fleet was at sea. If that resolution continue, he would like to know how many; for probably, by discharging the unnecessary tenders, he may be able to supply them. . . .

July 30 (i). Russell to Admiralty. . . . The Tiger prize has convoyed several ketches and smacks to Spithead, as directed, and the Commissioner at Portsmouth has been desired to send the Board a list of their names. The Rupert, when ordered thither to refit, took with her such others as could be spared from the Fleet, and Capt. Beaumont, her Commander, has no doubt sent them an account. . . .

(The Ann):—

Aug. 13 (i). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. . . . As to the Ann, lately arrived at Scilly from Maryland, and bound to London, there being several Dutch and English ships cruising to the westward, if their Lordships will write to the Commanders of the English ships, he will take care that directions shall be sent to the Dutch, to convoy the Ann, if she is still there.

(Dutch St. Ubes Fleet):—

Aug. 28 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Received yesterday by express their letter of the 26th inst., with an extract of a letter from the Commissioner at Plymouth, giving an account of the taking of two Dutch men-of-war near Mount's Bay by 3 of the enemy's ships. Received the same account from him yesterday, except that he did not mention that each of the enemy's ships was of 70 guns. Is very sorry for this unlucky accident, but it was not in his power to prevent it. The Dutch had 11 ships of war from 70 to 50 guns, and 3 fireships, which were purposely employed to look out for this convoy. . . .*

(IV.) MANNING THE FLEET.

Transport Office Protections (April 11).—Tenders called in; General Impressment (May 1).—Particular Ships: Men from Colliers (May 5).—State of Fleet; Equalization of Crews (May 10–15).—Complaint as to Ossory (May 15).—Volunteers on Britannia (May 15).—Want of seamen: remissness of Civil Officers, etc.: Receiving Ships (May 17–Aug. 21).—Muster-masters (Aug. 21).—Deserters (Aug. 23).

(Transport Office Protections):—

April 11 (b). Admiralty to all Commanders and Officers of their Majesties' Ships. Complaint being made by the Transport Commissioners that men are daily impressed from vessels in their employment, notwithstanding their Protections, whereby the Transport service is much obstructed, they are to discharge any men so pressed, who have Protections mentioning their being employed in their Majesties' service, and not to impress any such men in future.

* "Plymouth, Aug. 23. About 70 sail of the Dutch St. Ubes fleet arrived here without their 2 convoys, each of 40 guns, being met off the Lizard, fought and taken by 3 French of 70 guns."—Luttrell, 27 Aug.

HOUSE OF
LORDS MSS.

(Tenders called in ; General Impressment) :—

May 1 (e). Admiralty to Russell. Pursuant to Queen's Order of 30 April, he is to order all tenders abroad pressing to join the Fleet at once, and bring all seamen they can meet along the coast on their way, without regard to any protections (except such men as belong to any vessels for the Fleet, with victuals and ordnance stores actually on board, and those in the transports in the Irish seas, as named in the List below), but not to stay above 24 hours after receiving this order, nor touch anywhere after setting sail towards the Fleet. Also, to send some Officers of the Fleet up the Thames and Medway, to impress all seamen, watermen, &c., they can find fit to serve, notwithstanding any protections except such men as are in the vessels with victuals and ordnance stores for the Fleet, and those belonging to the ships going to Holland, as named below), and to take care that the ships out of which they shall press any men, be left in harbour in safety.

Subjoined is the List above referred to, giving the names, tonnage &c., of 25 ships, viz. :—

5 hired at Bristol, to carry 2,000 Irish to Hamburg ; sailed to Milford 12 April.

3 hired at Bristol to carry provisions for 3,550 men to Ireland.

6 hired at Biddeford to bring foot from Ireland to Bristol ; sailed to Milford 16 April.

(Particular Ships.—Men from Colliers) :—

May 5 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Found, on weighing yesterday, the Vanguard could not stir for want of men, but rather than leave a ship of that consequence behind, he ordered on board her 60 men out of the Sweepstakes, then at Sheerness. Supposes that number will do him no hurt, if he keeps up his complement. Does not know whether he has, but is sure he has had it in his power to be extremely well-manned. The 40 men shall be removed from the Sovereign to the Bonadventure hired ship, as ordered ; but that number will not be of any great help to her commander, and will only enable him to go where the smallest ship will take him, as he has now but 100 men on board. The Oak and York are still at Sheerness, wanting gunners, stores and provisions, and both of them in great want of men. Has given them orders, as directed, about pressing. . . . Finds an Order to the Admiral of the Blue [Sir J. Ashby] to state what men were taken out of the last fleet of colliers. On enquiry, he cannot hear of 30, though they believe there were fully 300 on board ; but it blew a storm of wind at the time . . .

(State of Fleet : Equalization of Crews) :—

May 10 (e). Admiralty to Russell. To have an Account taken of the quality and number of the men in the Fleet, and to distribute them equally, for doing good service against the enemy, the Board being informed that some ships have more than their full complement, and also a greater proportion of able seamen than is needful, while others are short in those respects.—May 13 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Hopes to send the Account of men tomorrow.—May 15 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Sends the Account required. The Order as to equalizing the ships shall be complied with, as near as he can, though it will be very hard on the officers who, either out of diligence, or being well-esteemed among the sea-faring men, have got their ships well-manned, to spare them to the negligent, but this shall not hinder him from obeying their commands, nor from putting the Fleet in the best posture to meet the enemy. . . . "It is not to be expressed the trouble I have about the men turned over at the Nore, and those ships not having had since any opportunity of getting men, I am not able to withstand the many complaints I daily have. The fighting part is by much the least trouble that an Admiral of the English Fleet meets with. There is hardly a fireship in the Fleet that has three seamen, and whenever chide an officer for not getting men, his answer is, 'All the men I met with were protected.' It has occasioned a very great clamour, how true, I don't know. The permission you gave Lord Danby to take those men from the Resolution that were volunteers,* has carried all the men from her under that notion, so that I believe she has not 50 seamen on board. These are complaints that require more patience than I am blest with, not having one minute free from them. I'll do the best I can for the service. . . ." Subjoined is "An Account of the Condition of their Majesties' Ships in the Fleet as to men and provisions" [see also VICTUALLING], dated St. Helens, 14 May.

[The contents of this Statement, as regards the List of the Linc-of-Battle (viz. 64 ships and 24 fireships) and the number of men "actually on board" on 14 May, will be found in Columns 2 and 6 of the Table below. The additional information contained in the remaining Columns is supplied from other sources, viz. :—

Col. 1. The Rates are taken from the List of May 5 (Paper (h), May 5), and in the case of the Crown, Tiger Prize, St. Albans, Advice, Ruby and Adventure, from that of May 7 (Paper (e), May 7).

Col. 3. The Captains' names are taken from the Admiralty "List Book, 6 April 1692 to 5 May 1695" (Lists of 1 May and 1 June 1692) at the Public Record Office. The names of those signing the Address of Loyalty are distinguished by asterisks, their signatures, as spelt on the Address, being given in square brackets, where differing from those in the Admiralty List Book.

Col. 4. The Guns are taken from the List of 5 May, except in the case of the St. Albans (50), Crown (50) and Advice (50), which are taken from the Linc-of-Battle in Somers' Tracts (XI. 459), and in the case of the Ruby (50), Tiger Prize (48) and Adventure (44), which are taken from C. J., X. 732. With regard to the fireships, the guns in 14 cases are taken from C. J., X. 732, and the remaining 10, viz. the Extravagant, Wolf, Hound, Phaethon, Fox, Hopewell, Thomas and Elizabeth, Blaze, Half-Moon and Cadiz Merchant are assumed to have also had 8 guns each.

Col. 5. The Complements are taken from the List of 5 May, supplemented, in the case of the Crown (230), Adventure (190) and St. Albans (280) by the List in Somers' Tracts, and in the case of the Devonshire (490), Bredah (380), Cornwall (490), Ruby (200) and Tiger Prize (238), by the Admiralty List in C. J., X. 732. With regard to the fireships, the complements in 14 cases are taken from C. J., X. 732, and the remaining 10, as in Column 4, are assumed to have also had 45 men each, the normal complement for fireships, as appears from the Estimate for the following year (C. J., XI. 6).

The Statement appears on the pages following.

* Luttrell, under date 24 Feb. 1690-1, has the following :—"200 seamen, lately come out of Suffolk, went in a body with a ship's pendant displaying before them, and voluntarily offered their services to the Earl of Danby, at St. James', to go on board the Resolution (a third-rate frigate his Lordship commands); he received them kindly, and gave them 5 guineas to drink the King's health."

These totals, which include all the 88 ships and fireships, show an aggregate deficiency of 5,632 men. But the column for "men actually on board" is left blank in respect of 9 of the ships (viz. the 3rd rates Devonshire, York, Plymouth, Breda, Cornwall, Monck and Royal Oak, and the 4th rates St. Albans and Chatham) and of 7 of the fireships (viz. the Roebuck, Hawk, Griffin, Half-Moon, Owner's Love, Cadiz Merchant and Lightning). Deducting, therefore, for the purposes of comparison, the aggregate complements of these ships and fireships, amounting to 3,330 and 310 men respectively, the net deficiency in 72 (instead of 88) ships and fireships amounts to 1,992 men. Of these 72, only 4 (viz. the 1st rate St. Andrew, the 4th rate Ruby, and the fireships Hopewell and Blaze) have their exact complements on board, 58 have an aggregate of 2,505 men short, and the remaining 10 (viz. the 1st rates Royal Sovereign, London, Britannia and Royal William, the 2nd rates Duchess, Windsor Castle, Neptune and St. Michael, and the 4th rates Centurion and Oxford) have an aggregate of 513 in excess of their complements, leaving that total available for the purposes of equalisation.]

(Complaint as to Ossory) :—

May 15 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Acknowledges Order of 7 May to examine into the complaint against Mr. John Violl, first lieutenant.—

May 16 (h). The charge seems groundless, the more so, as the Deponents, whose affidavits he sends, and who were present when the man was prest, were not interested, and took their oaths freely, and also tell him that several men now on board the Ossory, who had cockets and papers about them, as the Complainant had, signifying their being masters of vessels, have confessed, since being prest, they were not so, but carried the said papers about them, only to protect them from the press.

(Volunteers on the Britannia) :—

May 15 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Directed Capt. Mitchell [of the Britannia] to discharge the three Whitehaven men, as ordered ; but when the men were called to go ashore, they preferred to remain and serve. Could not but commend the spirit of glory in them, and so has left them at their liberty. . . .

(Want of Seamen : Remissness of Civil Officers, &c. : Receiving Ships) :—

May 17 (h). Russell to Admiralty. The men belonging to the Fleet have been a great while on board, and as the season grows warmer, great numbers may be reasonably expected to fall sick, who must be put ashore, and unless care is taken, not half of those who recover will return. . . . A battle, sickness, or death, some or all of which must be expected this summer, will cause a great want of men, which he will not be able to supply. Recommends, therefore, earnestly, that some way may be found to furnish the Fleet with men towards the middle of the summer, or otherwise it may prove of little service to the nation. Hopes in God they may not have great occasion, but thinks it of the last consequence to provide against a misfortune of that kind. The Accounts he sent by the last post will show how far short of the established complement the number is at present. Has given such orders as may put the Fleet pretty near an equality, or at least make each ship serviceable, which now they are not, several of them having numbers, but not the tenth man a seaman. This may be done once, but it cannot be practised for the future. It will make those who appear to have been very diligent as slothful in manning their ships as others. . . .

June 4 (h). Russell to Admiralty. After speaking as to those "who signalized themselves in the late engagement," an account of whom was desired by the Board (see APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS, &c.), he adds—"And as to those ships that were indifferently manned, it was due not to the negligence of their Commanders, but to their want of necessary helps, which, joined to their own private interest and pains, might have put it into their power to have manned their ships better. . . . P.S. I am very glad to find that you have taken care for men for the Fleet, which is in great want of them, and I know not which way to supply them."—June 9 (h). In answer to the Board's inquiry of 7 June,* as to what Commanders wanted the "necessary helps" in manning their ships, and what those "necessary helps" were, the meaning of his previous letter was this:—that, during the Fleet's fitting-out, there was a general complaint among the Commanders that the Vice-Admirals, Justices of the Peace, and other civil officers, so far from assisting, rather hindered the officers employed in procuring men for their ships; and this, in his opinion, has been the chief cause that several ships, whose Commanders have least interest among the seamen, are not so well-manned as others. . . .

June 9 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Understands that the Russell has been directed to be fitted out to lie at Spithead, for receiving such men as shall be procured for the Fleet, and he will appoint a Commander for her, as ordered, but in his opinion, she will be very much exposed by lying there, should any of the enemy's ships look in, when the Fleet is to the westward, which they may very easily do. Would propose, therefore, her continuing in the harbour. The Boyne may indeed be of some use by lying at the Nore, as is intended, but unless the Civil Officers send in better men than those he has seen on board the Cornwall, they had better not put the King to the charge of procuring them, being fitter to breed distempers on board than to do anything serviceable. [The Boyne had been launched at Deptford on May 21 and the Russell at Portsmouth on the 3rd inst. (London Gazette, Nos. 2768, 2772.)]

(Muster-masters):—

Aug. 21 (h). Russell to Admiralty. . . . Mr. Gauden, Muster-master of the Blue, has been to him, as he said he was directed, for his proceeding after the three-deck ships were called in. Told him he had no authority over him, and had received no commands how he should be disposed of.

(Deserters):—

Aug. 23 (h). Russell to Admiralty. . . . Will order the captain of the Devonshire to transmit a list of prest men sent to him by his Lieutenant, who have deserted from other ships in the Fleet. It is highly necessary that some examples should be made, in hopes it might terrify the rest, their deserting as they now do being infamous. . . .

(V.) VICTUALLING.

Russell to Admiralty, viz.:—

May 9 (h). Off Rye. . . . Many of the ships want great quantity of their provisions. Will send account as soon as Delavall's squadron joins him. Most of the pursers of the Fleet are missing; desires to know if they have leave of absence, or if, as is possible, the Victualling Commissioners have stopped them. . . .

May 15 (h). St. Helens. . . . Encloses account of state of the Fleet, showing that great quantities are wanting of each species to complete the 4 months. Desires that the Victuallers, when sending down a supply of provisions, may order an Agent to make the proportions, as he has business enough without having that addition.—The Account states the number of days' provisions, in bread, beef, beer, pork, pease, oatmeal, butter and cheese, for the various ships (the names of which, and of the numbers of men actually on board, are here given) composing the 6 divisions of the Fleet. With regard to 15 out of the 88 ships, there are no details, either of men or provisions. Their names are the Devonshire, York, Plymouth, Breda, Cornwall, Monck, Chatham, Royal Oak, and the fireships Roebuck, Hawk, Griffin, Half-Moon, Owner's Love, Cadiz Merchant, and Lightning. The Spy, with 41 men actually on board, is returned as having 97 days' provisions for 45 men, details not given; and the St. Albans has the column for men left blank. The Account is dated St. Helens, 14 May.

May 17 (h). St. Helens. . . . "I also offer to your consideration whether it will not be for the service, that the Victuallers have agents in such places where Her Majesty designs the Fleet shall come to recruit with fresh water, to supply the Fleet with fresh meat for some days, and green Trade in lieu of salt. I do not know whether it would not very much forward the recovery of the sick men, put on board the hospital ships, if some officer belonging to them might have money to buy fresh meat, to help them as they mend, for as it has been hitherto practised, all the nourishment is salt beef and pork, which immediately throws them into the scurvy, whereas a little broth or fresh diet will give them strength." . . .

June 4 (h). . . . Has directed the Commanders to inform him which of their Pursers were away when going to sea, and if he finds them absent on frivolous occasions, he designs to dismiss them and appoint others, unless ordered to the contrary. . . .

July 24 (i). Torbay. Has taken in what provisions came by the Victualling ships. . . . Encloses "Abstract of Provisions in the Victualling ships," giving details of what arrived on July 18 on board 22 ships in the Fleet and 11 more at Spithead, besides 400 tuns of beer arrived at Plymouth. The totals are as follows:—Biscuits, 296,704 lbs.; Beer, 3,296 tuns, 2 hh.; Beef, 34,786 pieces; Pork, 19,990 pieces; Pease, 777 bushels, 7 gall.; Oatmeal, 585 bush., 6 gall.; Stock Fish, 86,096 lbs.; Butter, 43,506 lbs.; and Cheese, 53,333 lbs. These totals are distributed in days as follows:—

Arrived—Beer for 24,000 men	-	-	20 days.
„ Butter and Cheese for do.	-	-	9 „

Arrived—At Spithead and Plymouth, beer for 24,000 men 10 days.

HOUSE OF

All other provisions to complete to the 27th August 1692.

On July 22 there are in the Fleet and in the Victualling Ships in the Fleet, Beer for 28 days; Butter and Cheese for 6 days, and all other provisions for 37 days.

By letter from the Commissioners dated 5 July 1692, they are likewise lading the whole remainder of the Butter and Cheese for the 4 months, which (they question not) will be with the Fleet before what is already sent will be issued, all which, when arrived, will complete the Fleet for 4 months from 8 May last to 27 August. The Abstract is signed by J. Steventon, and dated Torbay, 22 July.

Aug 9 (i). St. Helens. . . . Has ordered the Commanders of such ships as are here, to begin to put the ships' companies to 6 to 4 men's allowance the 10th inst., and will direct Sir John Ashby, whose squadron is just in sight, to do the same, if he has not already done so. The Fleet is only victualled to the 27th inst., but this will lengthen out the provisions about 10 days.

Aug. 17 (h). St. Helens. Has received Letter of 13th inst., with the List of the Ships designed for the Fleet with provisions. Those mentioned as under the care of the St. Albans prize are arrived, bringing enough, with what is on shore and in the Fleet, to complete the first and second-rates to Sept. 7 at whole allowance, and the third-rates to Sept. 28.

Aug. 21 (k). St. Helens. . . . The provisions now with the Fleet and at Portsmouth complete the 3-deck ships to Sept. 7 and the third-rates to Oct. 7.

Aug. 26 (k). St. Helens. . . . Some provisions arrived yesterday, which, with what the Fleet has now on board, will complete the first and second-rates to Sept. 21, and the third-rates and downwards to Oct. 21 at whole allowance, which the Fleet is now at.

(VI.) PAYMENT OF SEAMEN.

(Bounty-Money):—

May 9 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Sir Cloudesley Shovell, in making despatch with his ship, is unable to pay his company bounty money or have their entries settled on the book, and requests that the Navy Board may be authorized to imprest 500*l.* into his hands, which he will answer shall be paid to the men. This might be done, if the money was put on board the first ship that comes to the Fleet. It is a very great complaint the men make, especially since they prove sufferers by their diligence, and 10*s.* now would do more kindness than 5*l.* at pay table.

June 7 (h). Russell to Admiralty. When the Fleet was fitting out at Chatham, the riggers and carpenters, who were entered into the yard out of the ships at their coming in last year, applied to him for their discharge, so as to receive the benefit of the Queen's bounty, by entering themselves voluntarily on board the Fleet. The Service did not admit of this, but he gave them hopes, nevertheless, of receiving the bounty. Recommends their case for direction to the Navy Board to pay the same, especially as most of the work done in ordinary was performed by them.

(Arrears of pay):—

May 15 (h). Russell to Admiralty. St. Helens. Several ships want their pay. Recommends that they should be paid on their return here. The men make a very grievous complaint about it. . . .—

May 17 (h). If money may be sent down to pay the ships which want it, as the rest have been, it will be a very great quiet to the men's minds. The hopes of it brought many of their wives hither, who are all gone railing to London without money to support their families. . . .

(VII.) ADDRESS OF LOYALTY.

May 15 (h). Russell to Admiralty. . . . "I wish hourly for an occasion to try our officers, who, I hope, will answer what is expected from them. . . . L. Nottingham having signified to me it was Her Majesty's pleasure the Officers of the Fleet should know that, notwithstanding many reports were spread in town to their disservice, as if several of them had given assurances of their concurrences with the present disaffected persons in England, but that her Majesty was pleased not to believe there was any amongst them of such ill principles, they have signed a Paper, which they have desired me to beg the favour of you to present to her Majesty, with all imaginable assurances of their loyalty and fidelity."

Subjoined is a Copy of the Address referred to, which is printed in extenso in the London Gazette, No. 2767, and in Burchett's Naval History, p. 464. The 64 signatures * comprise the 54 names marked with an asterisk in the tabular Statement of the Line-of-Battle (pp. 227-9), together with Admiral Ashby, Vice-Admirals Delavall and Rooke, and Rear-Admirals Shovell and Carter, and the following Commanders, whose ships are taken from the Admiralty "List Book, 6 April 1692 to 5 May 1695" (Lists of 1 May and 1 June 1692) in the Public Record Office, their signatures, as here spelt, being given in square brackets, viz.:—

Rd. Griffiths [Griffith]	-	Mary galley.
John Fletcher - - -	-	2nd Captain of Britannia .
Wm. Vickars - - -	-	Dragon .
Jno. Jennings - - -	-	Experiment .

VIII. OFFENCES, COURTS MARTIAL.

(Lieut. Holmes):—

May 17 (h). Recalled his commission to Mr. Coulsea, as second lieutenant to the Chester, on learning that the Board had appointed Mr. Holmes, who was turned out of the Dragon; but has since dismissed Holmes, who came on board this day, without accounting satisfactorily for his absence, Capt. Gillam reporting that he had sent him word by his gunner, that he refused to return to his duty till he had fought Capt. Wright, his former commander.

(Lieut. Warren):—

June 4 (h). Will examine Lieut. Warren of the Royal Katherine as to the complaints made against him, and send him up, if so directed, to the Board. . . .—June 9 (h). Will send him up, as ordered, but must appoint another Lieutenant to the ship, whether he is found faulty or not, unless he returns before the Fleet sails.

---

* "It would have been of some use," writes Campbell (Lives of the Admirals, IV. 232, note), "if the names of the Captains signing the Address had been printed; of which I take notice, in order, as far as it is in my power, to prevent omissions of the like kind, which defeat us of lights in history, which are often of more consequence than perhaps the writers of the Gazettes can imagine."

(Loss of Swallow) :—

June 4 (h). Will enquire into the late loss of the Swallow, as soon as Capt. Bridges has found the witnesses for him at his trial for it, whom he is looking for in the Fleet. . . .

HOUSE OF
LORDS MSS.

(Loss of Happy Return) :—

May 28 (h). Has been often pressed by Capt. Pickard, who was taken in the Happy Return,* to be tried for his behaviour, but could do nothing, having no directions. Pickard came to serve this summer with him, but not having room, being full of volunteers, he sent him on board Capt. Churchill, who reports that he not only behaved with courage during the engagement, but served with great activeness as master and boatswain, the former being unserviceable by age, and the latter wounded. He came twice to him during the fight, and had no fear about him. Sent him to sound Le Hogue Bay, when he brought a very satisfactory account, and afterwards in with Vice-Admiral Rooke, when he commanded the boats, which did all the service that was there performed. Should be glad, for the poor man's sake, he might be either condemned or acquitted.—June 9 (h). Will enquire, as directed, into the loss of the Happy Return as soon as possible. . . .

(Pilots of York, Dunkirk, and Harp Ketch) :—

Aug. 17 (h). Has directed the Judge Advocate to prepare information against the pilots, as ordered, for running their ships on shore.—
Aug. 21 (h). Yesterday a Court-Martial was called to examine the pilot of the Dunkirk. Has directed the Judge Advocate to transmit proceedings. The pilots of the other ships he heard nothing of.

(Misconduct during Battle) :—

June 4 (h). Has dismissed this day the first Lieutenant of the Sandwich,† and designs to dismiss tomorrow the first Lieutenant of the Hampton Court, for running from the Fleet with their ships during the engagement; the Commander of the former being then killed, and Capt. Graydon of the latter, rendered incapable by his hurt of taking charge of her.

(Chester and Swiftsure) :—

Aug. 21 (h). Yesterday a Court-Martial was called to examine a complaint (1) of the gunner of the Chester, and (2) of the second Lieutenant of the Swiftsure.‡ Has directed the Judge Advocate to transmit proceedings.

(Dover) :—

Aug. 23 (h). . . . Desires that James Atkinson and Thos. Braddy, who have been prisoners on board the Burford some months for some disorders committed on the Dover, may be pardoned, Capt. Harlow having certified that they behaved very well in the late engagement, wherein both of them were wounded.

(Wolf, Goodwin prize, Captain and Deptford) :—

Aug. 28 (h). Will comply as soon as possible with Order of 25th inst. for trying the late Commander and gunner of the Wolf hired ship, Capt. Audley of the Goodwin prize, and James Reeves, master's mate of the Captain. Will inquire into the information against Capt. Kerr, for beating the Clerk to the Agent for sick and wounded at Plymouth, and report, as soon as the Deptford arrives from Plymouth.

Russell to Admiralty, viz. :—

May 27 (h). "Here are several men in the Fleet that extremely well deserve preferment. If you have any commands to dispose of, I should be glad to know it. God be praised, in the Fleet there are very few vacancies. The nation has lost a good officer of Hastings; the King might better have spared a fourth-rate frigate, so much value I set upon him." Has given Capt. Tayler, whom the Board turned out of a ketch, his letter of recommendation. Tayler was with him in the fight, and behaved most extremely well; he is very brave, and a seaman, and well deserves a sixth-rate, if there is one to dispose of.

June 1 (h). Will send the names of those in the Fleet who deserve preferment. There are two fireship Captains who behaved very well, for whom he cannot provide in the Fleet, but hopes they will meet with some encouragement.

June 4 (h). . . . As to the account desired of the names of such as signalled themselves in the late engagement, he cannot give any particular information, for those who had an opportunity of doing their duty, did it, but without its being attended with anything remarkable or extraordinary, nor can he accuse those who could not come in to take their share, because, in his opinion, they did their utmost. . . . Will very suddenly recommend for the command of the Charles and Cygnets fireships, fitting out at Deptford, two such captains of the fireships which were burnt in service against the enemy without doing execution, as he shall find made the best attempts to burn their ships effectually. . . . Will send an account of those who deserve preferment, and hopes they will obtain the preference as employments fall.

June 9 (h). Captains Jumper, Littleton, Napp, Emms, Greenway, and Fowles [see p. 206, (Fireships)] have all certificates from their respective Flags of their behaviour in the time of service; their ships were lost, some by attempting to do service, and others by accidental shot, and doubtless they ought to be employed. As to rewarding, he has been much pressed to give money to those who attempted service, as well as to those who did it, but being of a contrary opinion, he leaves it to the Board's consideration. Believes they are good men and ought to be preferred, which he would have done, had he any vacancies; but having only one, he designs to fill that up by Capt. Heath. Captains Jumper, Littleton and Emms showed themselves very active in the boats at Le Hogue, after their ships were burnt, where the two latter were wounded.* Has given the Captains, Officers and seamen of the ships that burned any of the enemy's ships, a reward in money, and shall, as occasion offers, prefer them. Meanwhile he has ordered the Commanders to attend the Board.

July 30 (i). . . . Acquaints the Board, in reply to their letter of 23 July, that he has made Capt. Hancock Captain of the Griffin fireship, in place of Capt. Partridge. The Centurion cruising off Cape Clear, he cannot send up Mr. Meads, the second Lieutenant, to receive a Commission as first Lieutenant of the Lumley Castle, but he has ordered Capt. Gardner to send Lieut. Peacock of the Neptune.

* "The Queen has ordered gold chains and medals to be prepared for the captains of the fireships that burned the French ships." (Luttrell, 26 May 1692.)

(Convoy for Turkey Fleet):—

Aug. 25 (k). St. Helens. . . . There is a report here that Capt. Coall, in the Dreadnought, is to command the designed Turkey convoy, but he gives no credit to it, believing that, in case such a convoy was intended, the Board would appoint Capt. Leake, now Commander of the Eagle, whom he recommended some time since, and feeling sure that, if Capt. Coall had been preferred, the Board would have informed him of the fact. Besides, he flatters himself they will show some favour to his recommendations, for being well acquainted with the Commanders in the Fleet, he has also had this summer an opportunity of seeing who are most deserving of favour. It was for this reason that he so early recommended Capt. Leake (who himself would think it a favour), and hopes they will believe him, as he does, worthy, if there were occasion of having partiality shown to him.

(X.) TRANSPORTS, &amp;C., FOR DESCENT.

(Transports from Bristol with troops from Ireland):—Admiralty to Russell, viz.:—

May 26 (e). To send 2 small frigates to Bristol, for convoying such transports as are there to Portsmouth.—June 1 (e). To send a convoy, if not already sent, towards Bristol to meet the transports and convoy them on to Portsmouth, and failing to meet them, to proceed to Bristol and convoy such transports as shall be there, bound for Portsmouth.

Russell to Admiralty, viz.:—

June 2 (h). Will comply with above Order of May 26, as soon as the weather will permit, but cannot yet give the two ships' names.—June 4 (h). Will send a convoy to Bristol, as soon as he has any ships fit for the service, which he hopes will be in a day or two.

Admiralty Orders to following:—

May 26 (e).—To Capt. John Leader, of the Chatham, at Falmouth. To sail with his ship and the James galley to Bristol, and convoy the transports there to Portsmouth, keeping near the land to avoid privateers. If he meets with them, in convoy of the Richmond or Dolphin, on the way, he is to take the transports under his charge, leaving the Dolphin to her former orders.* The Richmond, whether met at Bristol or on the way, is to be left to return to Chester Water.

May 26 (e). To Capt. Davidson, of the hired ship Bonadventure, at Spithead. To sail with his ship to Bristol, and convoy the transports there to Portsmouth, keeping near the land to avoid privateers. If he meets with them in convoy of the Dolphin, on the way, he is to take the transports and Dolphin under his charge. Same order as preceding, with regard to the Richmond. If he meet with the Chatham and James galley, he is to take them also under his command.

May 26 (e). To Capt. Elves, of the Richmond, at Chester. To sail at once to Bristol and, together with the Dolphin, if there, and if not, without her, to convoy the transports there to Portsmouth, unless the Bonadventure or the Chatham and James galley shall arrive with him before he sails from Bristol, in which case he is to leave the transports under their charge and return to Chester Water.

June 15 (f). To Capt. Kercher, of the Dolphin, at Bristol. To continue with the transports at Kingroad, and leave them to the convoy ordered by Admiral Russell, when it arrives, and then proceed with his ship and the ships bound with corn for Ireland, according to his former orders.

June 22 (f). To the Commanders of the ships ordered by Admiral Russell to convoy the transports from Bristol to Portsmouth, at Biddeford. To sail to Milford, where the transports are with the Dolphin, and convoy them with all possible despatch to Portsmouth, leaving the Dolphin to execute such orders as she has received from the Board; but if, on arriving at Milford, they find the transports already sailed, they are to execute the Orders given them by Admiral Russell. Memo: The like sent by express to Bristol, Barnstaple and Minehead.

June 22 (f). To Capt. Kereher, of the Dolphin, at Milford. To continue with the transports at Milford (where, it is said, he now is) until some other of the ships appointed to convoy them shall arrive there, and then leave them under their convoy, and make the best of his way to Chester Water, sending an account when he leaves Milford.

(Shipping from the Thames.)

June 3 (e). Admiralty to Russell. To send some ships to the Nore, with directions to bring from Deptford and transport (pursuant to Queen's orders) to the Fleet, the 40 shallops lately built in the River.—

June 5 (h). Russell to Admiralty. Will send the ships, as ordered, but cannot judge of what use the shallops can be in the Fleet, till matters are in readiness for the intended descent.

Admiralty Orders to following:—

June 20 (f). To Transport Commissioners. The Breda and Dunkirk,* which are designed to convoy the transports to Portsmouth, being now at the Nore, they are to send the names of all the transports as are now, or shall arrive, at the Hope, so that the shallops also may be sent thither.

June 27 (f). To Capt. Benbow, Master-Attendant of Deptford Yard. To hasten away the shallops to the Hope, even if they have only 2 watermen each, and leave orders for the rest of the men to follow.

June 27 (f). To Capt. Lambert, of the Breda, at the Nore. To sail at once to the Downs, without waiting for the transports.

June 28 (f). To Capt. William Orton, of the hired ship London Merchant, at the Nore. To convoy to the Downs such transports as are in the River, and particularly the 40 ships (List subjoined) appointed to tow the new shallops, as also the Carolina and Resolution, laden with naval stores, all bound for Portsmouth, and on reaching the Downs, to follow the orders of the Breda, if there, otherwise of the Reserve.

June 28 (f). To Capt. Lambert, of the Breda. To take with him from the Downs the London Merchant and join with her in convoying from thence to Spithead the transports and store-ships, if still there, together with the Unity pink and Morgan and Ann hoy, laden with naval stores, and any other ships there and ready to sail, and then send back the London Merchant to the Downs for any other ships that may be ready. If the convoy has already sailed, he is to go to Spithead and await further orders.

June 28 (f). To Capt. Crawley, of the Reserve, at the Downs. To take the place of the Breda, if the wind allows of his sailing for Spithead before she arrives in the Downs, and if not, to leave the Breda to follow her orders, and remain himself in the Downs.

July 1 (f). To Capt. Orton, of the London Merchant. To take with him, under his convoy, any ships at the Nore or thereabouts, laden with Ordnance stores, which are ready to sail.

* See, as to the Dunkirk, under PARTICULAR SERVICES (Transports for Holland).

HOUSE OF

July 1 (f). To Sir Edward Gregory, Knt., Commissioner of the Navy at Chatham. To send the Master-attendant of the Yard to Sheerness, with directions to hasten out from thence the 40 shallops to the transports at the Nore, which are to tow them to Portsmouth.

July 7 (f). To Capt. John Main, of the Plymouth, Capt. James Killigrew, of the Sapphire, and Capt. Thos. Warren, of the Crown, all in the Downs. To join the Breda and follow her Captain's orders for convoying the transports and shallops to Portsmouth, together with such other ships as are bound that way.

July 22 (f). To Capt. G. Mease, of the Ruby, at Spithead. To take with him for Admiral Russell, on returning to the Fleet, the 40 new shallops lately sent to Portsmouth, and supply them with what men he can spare out of his squadron, for manning them on the way, applying to Commissioner Wilshaw for the rest.

July 22 (f). To Thos. Wilshaw, Commissioner of the Navy at Portsmouth. To furnish Capt. Mease with what additional men he requires out of the Breda, Plymouth, Devonshire, and Russell.

Russell to Admiralty :—

July 29 (i). Met yesterday with the transports on their way from Portsmouth westward. . . .

(Embarkation of Army) :—

Admiralty to following :—

July 15 (f). To Capt. Mease and the Captains of the other men-of-war at Portsmouth, or coming thither, designed to join the Fleet. In pursuance of Queen's command, signified to the Board on the 13th inst. by E. Nottingham, they are to take on board so many men as shall be appointed by D. Leinster or Sir Henry Bellasis, if there should not be sufficient embarkation for all the men that are to be shipt ; and they are also to accommodate the Duke and the other general officers on board their respective ships, as they shall desire, in the best manner they can. They are to demand from the Transport Commissioners victuals for the men while on board, and issue the same accordingly.

July 24 (g). To Capt. Lambert, of the Breda, at Spithead. To receive the Duke of Leinster on board his ship, if he desire it, with his company, servants, &c., and transport them to the Fleet, leaving the victualling ships to be convoyed by such ships as Capt. Mease shall order, and on reaching the Fleet, to follow Admiral Russell's orders. If the Duke shall not desire to go in his ship, he is to convoy the victualling ships to the Fleet, according to his former Order.

July 24 (g). To Thos. Wilshaw, Commissioner of the Navy at Portsmouth. To have deals provided for making platforms to embark the army, the Transport Commissioners either paying, or giving receipts, for them.*

(XI.) MISCELLANEOUS.

(J. Seares) :—

June 4 (h). Spithead. . . . Has directed Capt. Munden of the Lenox to send up John Seares, a carpenter on board his ship, as ordered. . . .

* According to Luttrell the army consisted of 16 regiments of foot, together with 2 marine regiments, and 1 of horse and 2 of dragoons, the whole amounting to 14,600 men, provisioned for 6 months, with 4 months more to follow. They had with them 60 cannon and 20 mortars, and each soldier received 20s. as an encouragement. (Luttrell, July 19, 26.)

(Stirling Castle):—

Aug. 6 (i). St. Helens. . . . Their Letter as to the boatswain of the Stirling Castle shall be complied with as soon as the ship joins him. . . .

(King William yacht):—

Aug. 13 (i). St. Helens. . . . Has received their Order and a Letter of the 10th inst., and will direct the Commanders in the Fleet to stop the King William yacht, bound to Jamaica, in case they meet her.*

(Captains Lambert and Mease: Dispute as to seniority):—

Aug. 6 (i). St. Helens. . . . Has enquired, as directed, into the dispute between Capt. Lambert and Capt. Mease, and finds, as is set forth in the Admiralty's letter, that the Breda came to Spithead with a broad pennant, which he kept up till, after some hours, the Commissioner at the place advised him against it. He also set the watch, though Capt. Mease rode here, commanding 10 sail of ships, and excused himself by saying he thought the command ought to have been his. Suggests that such orders should be given for the future, as may prevent anybody running into the like disorder, on any pretence whatever, and the exposing the government of the sea, by the ignorance of the officers, to foreigners who now sail in their company, one of whom told him the other day that, when he left the Downs, two broad pennants were flying at a time. Capt. Lambert, it appears, expected to have had his post from the date of his Commission in 1664, since when, till he came into the Newcastle, he has never been in the Service. By this rule he may, no doubt, if otherwise qualified, stand in competition with anyone for a flag. Knows nothing of the man, one way or another; but if one, who has served in the Navy in time of war, and seeks his bread in the merchant-service when peace comes, may be allowed to claim seniority, that argument will not hold; for those who have been out of the service the last Dutch war and the Algiers war, and did not offer themselves at those times, it seems to him they did not intend the King's service should have their assistance, while they could get bread in so peaceable an employment as the merchant-service generally is; and if they did offer themselves, and were not accepted, that they were thought, by those who then knew them, good for nothing.

(Complaint by Dutch):—

Aug. 6 (i). St. Helens. . . . Admiral Almonde has been with him, and complains of two ships having been arrested by our Admiralty. Encloses copy of what is written to him concerning one of them from the Lords of the Admiralty at Amsterdam, and desires an enquiry may be made, the Dutch Admiral seeming to be very uneasy.

Enclosed is "Abstract of the Letter of the Councillors of the Admiralty, at Rotterdam, to Lieut. Admiral Almonde, written the 8 Aug. 1692," viz.:—

"There is also presented to us the enclosed request, concerning the contents whereof we have some account, as if the ship was taken in arrest by order of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, by reason that there should be laden therein some goods out of a small English vessel retaken at the same time by Capt. Wassenaer, and by reason that affair has not come directly before us, we could not write thereupon; but are of opinion that it is so great an informality, and so much contrary to the Convention made between the King of Great Britain and these States, concerning the re-taking of ships, that we presume there must be some other reasons of the said arrest, for that it is beyond all contestation, that what is retaken by the ships of the States, must be judged in this country, and we do think that, having informed yourself of the reasons of the arrest, with aforegoing consultations with Admiral Russell, you should endeavour the relaxation, to the end the ship the Greyhound may come hither with the first opportunity of convoy.

(Commanders of Sixth-rates) :—

Aug. 17 (k). St. Helens. . . . Will comply with Order of 13th inst., to allow Masters to all sixth-rates with 60 men and upwards, and all their Commanders in future shall have to pass the Master's examination required in the Navy. Won't pretend to be a very good judge, but in his poor opinion, those small frigates should be commanded by such, who, without great experience, are yet good seamen, to qualify them for larger ships, which would be a sort of nursery to improve their talents.

(Devonshire) :—

Aug. 14 (i). St. Helens. . . . Has referred the Commander of the Devonshire to their Lordships, for orders how to proceed, she not being of the Fleet.

(Leave of absence stopped) :—

Aug. 17 (k). . . . Has taken care to prevent any Captain from giving leave of absence, on any pretence, to his men, and supposes the Commander of the Crown, who has been some time from his ship now in harbour, is away with their Lordships' approval.

(Oxford) :—

Aug. 23 (k). St. Helens. . . . Will require the Commander of the Oxford, as directed, to give account why the Swede was not required to lower his topsails. . . .

(Correspondence) :—

Russell to Admiralty, viz. :—

May 13 (h). St. Helens. . . . "I have so much business upon my hands at present, that I am not able particularly to answer the several letters and orders which I have received from you, but design to do it tomorrow." . . .

June 4 (h). Spithead. . . . "I have hitherto been prevented in answering several letters, which I lately received from you, but do now do it as follows. . . . If I am not so punctual in writing as I ought to be, you will, I hope, pardon it, when you consider the multiplicity of business I am forced to go through here."

(Complaint by Russell) :—

Aug. 26 (k). St. Helens. The Commander of the Despatch brigantine brought him this day their Lordships' order for his proceeding under the Captain of the Crown, of which he had no notice from their Lordships. Prays them not to believe that he takes exception at the manner of sending those orders; he only takes leave to remind them that it is not very usual to order ships or vessels from a Flag unknown to him. . . .

This List consists of (i) Council of War, 27 March, 1692, ‡ and (ii) 47 Letters from Admiral Russell (with enclosures) of various dates beginning 1 May and ending 30 July, 1692. The dates of 41 of them correspond with those of Admiral Russell's letters to E. Nottingham, the purport of which is given in E. Nottingham's Abstract or Narrative (l).§ The remaining 6, which do not appear to be mentioned in that Abstract, are dated May 1, 4, 5, 9, 11, and June 14 (enclosing Russell's Orders to Capt. Mease). Endorsed as delivered in this day by E. Nottingham. Noted: March 16, 1692-3. Received then of Matthew Johnson, Esq. I writ to him that I supposed he might have already received an account from Wilkins to the same effect, which I enclosed in the Queen's Orders, which were founded on this intelligence; that I hoped Capt. Wilkins was mistaken, and that the St. Malo ships were still there, in which case her Majesty's intentions were that he should pursue his Orders of the fourteenth."

† This Letter is not among the Records, and the original Abstract bears no marks of its having ever been actually attached to it. It is, however, given in extenso in C. A Letter of 29 July from Russell to Nottingham is referred to in the List of Russell's Letters (Paper (m) below), as "The Results of a Council of War, July 28."

(n) 10 Dec. 1692. Letter from Admiral Russell to [Sir John Ashby, Admiral of the Blue], as follows:—"Sir, I acquainted you this day that I designed to follow the enemy's fleet through the Race of Orney [Alderney], if they put through it in the night; but having since received Lord Admiral Almond's opinion thereon, and discoursed Sir Ralph Delavall, I think it will be more safe to go about the Gasketts [Casquetts]; but if they put through the Race in the daytime, I design to follow them. I therefore send you this notice thereof, and desire that you will immediately give directions to all the Commanders in your squadron to use all possible diligence in the getting up their anchors when the tide of flood is done, and to do their utmost to come up with and destroy the enemy. I am, your very humble servant, RUSSELL." Dated 20 May, 1692. [Referred to in Ashby's examination this day. See Notes above.]

Brooke, by a codicil made in 1674 to his Will of 1667, left to his two daughters, after payment of his debts and funeral expenses, all sums owing him at his death, to be paid in equal shares at their marriage. His wife Anne having renounced the executorship, the present L. Brooke became executor, as directed by the Will, but refuses to account with Petitioners for the personal estate out on securities, and insists on privilege, although only an executor and trustee for creditors and legatees. Pray for leave to proceed against him. L. J., XV. 134. [In Committee for Privileges, to whom the Petition and Answer were referred on 25 Jan. (L. J., XV. 200), L. Stamford in the Chair, Counsel were called in on 27 Jan. Sir W. Williams (for E. Manchester) : The case is, whether privilege or not. As our legacy is a specific legacy, yet it comes after the debts and funeral expenses. We are to have an answer to those debts, &c. The question is, whether my Lord is more than a trustee. It is manifest when my Lord is joined with others, he is only a trustee, that is, executor in trust. He has nothing in his own right. We can never discover these debts, but by knowing what he will answer. Mr. Ward : I take this is whether L. Brooke is in the nature of a trustee, or has a right in himself. The Will was made 1667. The Solicitor-General (for L. Brooke): We are to show you that the L. Brooke is interested otherwise than as trustee. This is purely a question of interest, and nothing else. Sir Thomas Powys: It is a question of interest between two devisees. Over and above what the L. Brooke offers to do, if a trustee has an interest as well as [being] a trustee, you allow the privilege. This is of the nature of the same as the Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield's case,* where privilege was allowed. Say the gentlemen on the other side: All the debts must be paid out of the personal estate. We say and shall prove it is to be paid out of the moneys at interest. It is purely a question of interest and nothing else. They withdraw. Part of the Will and Codicil read. Proposed to report that upon examination of the Petition of E. Manchester and L. Brooke's Answer, the Lord Brooke hath a claim of an interest, and it is triable at law, and that he hath privilege. Proposed to report that the Committee is satisfied the L. Brooke hath privilege. Ordered to report sustaining his privilege, &c., as in L. J., XV. 205 (Priv. Book, 27 Jan.)]

- (a.) 9 Jan. 1692-3. Answer of Fulke, Lord Brooke. The late L. Brooke, after leaving several legacies by his will, devised the rest of his personal estate to the person who, by force of the settlements recited in the will, should be owner in possession of Warwick Castle, which happens to be Respondent. Respondent has offered and is ready to account for the money out on securities at interest, deducting the debts and funeral expenses, but Petitioners are not satisfied with this, and would have all the money out at interest discharged of testator's debts and funeral expenses. Petitioner, to prevent a suit for this unjust claim, insists on his privilege, and prays their Lordships to uphold it. Endorsed as brought in this day. See L. J., XV. 200.

618. Dec. 6. Protections (E. Scarborough).—Copy Protection of John Slaughter of Rochester, Plumber, by E. Scarborough, and Certificate of Sir John Marsham, Bart., Sheriff of the said County, dated 29 Nov. 1692, that the said Protection remains entered in his Office and was allowed in the time of Thos. Adrian, Esq., being sheriff. Under-written is a Certificate of Richard Gates, of Clements Inn, Gent., sworn 30 Nov. 1692 before William Gregory, that on his making search in the Sheriff of Kent's Office for the Protection, the above Copy and Certificate were delivered to him. [The House this day ordered Slaughter to be attached for counterfeiting E. Scarborough's Protection (L. J., XV. 135). No further proceedings.]

The matter of Protections had been before the House on 17 Nov., when, upon reading the Protections entered in the Book, all the Lords who had Protections entered therein, were ordered to attend on the 21st (MS. Min.; L. J. XV. 114), for which day also a Call of the House had been ordered on the 14th (see No. 603). On the 21st, after the House had been called, the names of the Lords who had given Protections, and of the persons so protected were read. Moved to declare the E. Lincoln's Protections vacant. Mr. John Smart was called in, and said he showed the E. Lincoln the order and he kept it. After debate, Question put: Whether the Protections given by E. Lincoln, and entered in the Book, shall be now vacated? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 27; Not-Contents 36. Tellers E. Macclesfield and E. Ailesbury.

The House then ordered E. Lincoln and several other Lords to attend and give reasons for protecting certain persons. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 119).

E. Denbigh owned one [Ford Rogers. Ib., 120], and struck out [Thomas] Bowyer.

D. Northumberland said he had struck out his Protections, and asked pardon of the House as in L. J., XV. 122.

* E. Oxford asked the opinion of the House whether he may protect one that is his Solicitor, being a person that he can trust in his business.

The Clerk to take notice that the Protections of these following (sic) are vacated. House Moved, that no written Protections be allowed to those that do not need them. Order for E. Lincoln's attendance read.

E. Lincoln said he thought he had liberty to protect 16 servants. He was sorry. He said Drue Deane, Benjamin Rawson and Barbara Roch were not his servants, but owned Richard Coney and Peter Dugna. He asked pardon, &c., as in L. J., XV. 122. (MS. Min.)—Subsequently, L. Keveton (23 Nov.), E. Carlisle (24 Nov.), E. Exeter (26 Nov.) and L. Lovelace (28 Nov.), each attended, pursuant to the Order, and struck out their Protections (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 123, 124, 126, 127).]

619. Dec. 6. Molyneux's Estate Act Amendment Act.—Draft of an Act for the rectifying a mistake in a certain Act of this present Parliament passed in the year 1691, intituled An Act to vest certain lands of William Molyneux, Gentleman, in Trustees for raising the sum of 2,000*l.* for paying the portions to his younger brother and sisters, pursuant to a Decree in the Court of Chancery. No amendments by the Lords. The Commons' amendments are merely drafting ones. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; Royal Assent 20 Jan. 1692-3. L. J., XV. 136, 193. 4 W. & M. c. 11. in Long Calendar. Com. Book, 9 Dec.]

620. Dec. 7. Attwood's Estate Act.—Amended Draft of an Act to enable Abell Attwood to sell some lands to pay debts and make provision for younger children. The Lords' amendments, which appear to have been offered in Committee by Sir Francis Winnington (Com. Book, Jan. 6, 18) were to insert the date of the commencement of the trust and the names of the trustees, to restrict the power of the trustees to disposing of the premises in fee, by omitting the words "or otherwise, as they shall think fit," and to add the concluding provisions for the disposal of the money raised by such sale. The Commons made no amendments. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; Royal Assent 14 March, 1692-3. L. J., XV. 136, 209. 4-5 Will. & M. c. 43. in Long Calendar.]

621. Dec. 7. Sir G. Parker's Estate Act.—Amended Draft of an Act to enable Sir George Parker of Ratton, in the County of Sussex, Bart., to make a settlement upon his marriage, notwithstanding his minority. The Lords' amendments (Com. Book, 12 Dec.) are to insert the word "Ratton" in the last clause, and to make a purely verbal addition. No amendments by the Commons. 622. Dec. 7. Jones v. Hellyer.—Petition and Appeal of Elizabeth Jones, Relict and Executrix of Cadwallader Jones, Esq., her late husband, deceased. Cadwallader Jones, father of Appellant's late husband, being seized in fee, in right of his wife Anne, of the manors of Swood and Yatton, alias Swood Yatton, Farrington and Milverton and other lands in Somersetshire, settled the same on 18 April, 1659, on trust, inter alia, after the death of himself and wife, to raise 4,000*l.* to be divided equally among their children (their eldest son excepted), at the age of 21, and 200*l.* a year for their maintenance and education meanwhile, with a proviso enabling him or his wife to revoke or alter any of the said sums or portions and appoint so much as should be revoked to be paid to any of their younger children. George Hellyer marrying their daughter Dorothy during their lifetime, it was agreed that he should have 1,000*l.* portion out of the lands, and her father gave him a bond of 2,000*l.* therefor. The father soon afterwards died, and Hellyer not being satisfied with his security, induced Jones' son, Petitioner's husband, to seal a further deed for that purpose, after inserting by artifice a clause for payment of interest. Petitioner's husband in 1687 brought a Bill in Chancery against Hellyer to be relieved, but the Lords Commissioners on 18 Oct. 1689 decreed him to pay 450*l.* with interest. Hellyer died pending the cause, leaving his wife Cecilia, Jacob Twiford, Edw. Dawes, Gerrard Newcourt and Walter Sisselle his executors, against whom the cause was revived first by Petitioner's husband, and after his death by Petitioner; and the Lords Commissioners, on a rehearing on 21 Oct. 1692, confirmed the former decree. Prays that this Decree may be reversed, and Respondents ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Counter-signed by Wm. Whitelocke and James Sloane. L. J., XV. 137. [The Cause was heard, and the Decree affirmed on 7 March 1692–3, Sir William Whitelocke and Sir Thomas Powys being for the Appellant, and Mr. Finch for the Respondent. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 279.)]

Annexcd:—

(a.) 21 Dec. Answer of Respondents. Recite the terms of the deed of settlement. Dorothy came of age in 1666, when the portion became due, but the same could not then be raised, her parents being alive. After their death, Hellyer agreed to accept from their son and heir, Appellant's husband, in lieu of the principal and interest, then amounting to 2,140*l.*, the sum of 1,700*l.*, of which 1,150*l.* was to be paid down, 450*l.* secured by two bonds, and the remaining 100*l.* on his promise. This agreement was made without any ill practice or contrivance, and was much to Hellyer's disadvantage. Appellant has been ordered to pay 632*l.* Respondents are executors in trust for Hellyer's children, and have little or no provision for them but this sum. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Cecilia Duke and the other Executors of Hellyer above named. Countersigned by John Keene. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 21 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellants for a day for hearing, and that, as Respondents live above 130 miles from London, the day may be a fortnight hence at least. Unsigned. L. J., XV. 242.

623. Dec. 8. Otterington v. Hayes. —Petition and Appeal of John Otterington, of the city of Dublin, in the kingdom of Ireland, Gent. On the marriage of Appellant's daughter Mehitobell with the Respondent in 1674, it was agreed that Respondent should pay and secure 2,000*l.* to Appellant, which, together with the same amount added by Appellant as a portion, should be left in Appellant's hands for the purchase of lands for a jointure and maintenance for his daughter and for the benefit of the issue of the marriage, as Counsel should advise, Respondent meantime to have the interest or improvement of the whole sum for himself and wife. Respondent failed to pay his share, and was forced to apply with his wife and family for subsistence to Appellant, who maintained them till his daughter's death in 1681, after which he maintained and educated her only daughter Elizabeth, and secured to Arthur St. Leger 3,000*l.* as a portion on his marriage with her. Respondent, though he owed Appellant more than 4,400*l.*, and had never performed his part of the agreement, brought a Bill in Chancery in Ireland against Appellant, demanding the 2,000*l.* with interest. Appellant brought a Cross Bill and Additional Bill to be discharged from the articles, Respondent having failed to pay his share. The L. Chancellor of Ireland, on hearing the causes on 3 June, 1692, decreed Appellant to pay Respondent the 2,000*l.* with interest, amounting to over 1,000*l.*, from the date of marriage. Prays that the Decree may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and Tho. Powys. L. J., XV. 138. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed on 19 Jan. 1692-3. Sir William Williams and Sir Thomas Powys were heard for the Appellant. Mr. Ward (for Respondent): The Lord Chancellor has made a good decree. This 2,000*l.* is to be invested in lands. Mr. Hayes exhibits his Bill to make Mr. Otterington invest it in lands. We carried part of our money to Mr. Otterington. Mr. Sloane (for Respondent): Shows the receipts for money received. Decree affirmed and Appeal dismissed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 190.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 6 Jan. 1692-3. Answer of John Hayes, Esq. Respondent was never unable to pay his 2,000*l.*, but deposited a considerable part of it. Appellant, on the other hand, never kept his own share, but invested it at higher interest, and seeing Respondent in an improving way of his estate, proposed to him for some time to take back his deposit, which he did, and Appellant agreed to pay him 10 per cent. for his own share, being the rate of legal interest then in Ireland, but on his failing to pay either principal or interest, Respondent brought a Bill against him in Chancery. As to the marriage of Respondent's daughter with Mr. St. Leger, Respondent is not concerned in any agreement then made, and disapproved of the marriage, which was effected in a clandestine way, without Respondent's knowledge and consent. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs, as vexatious. Signed by Respondent. Countersigned by James Sloane. Endorsed as brought in this day.

624. Dec. 9. Brocke v. Cutler.—Petition and Appeal of Joseph Brocke. Petitioner being entitled to a debt by Statute due from one Robert Bowman of Oxford for 100*l.*, which was esteemed doubtful, and Francis Cutler, having a bad debt of 100*l.* due by bond from Thomas and John Barney, both long dead and, as was supposed, insolvent, they agreed, being relations, to exchange the debts and delivered to each other their respective securities, but Cutler declined to have mutual assignments executed. Petitioner having discovered that Elizabeth, the relict and executrix of John Barney, had greatly wasted his personal estate, brought a Bill in Chancery in Cutler's name against her and Francis Wyndham, her second husband, and sued out administration, also at his own expense, to Thomas Barney, and afterwards administration de bonis non to John Barney, the said Elizabeth dying pending the suit; and also, at Cutler's request, brought a Bill against Bowman to discover his testator's estate. Wyndham sought to compound the debt on the bond, and demanded a release from Cutler, who demurred, whereupon they agreed that Cutler should have a moiety of the clear money recovered on the bond, after charges deducted, and admit Petitioner to a moiety of what should be recovered on the Statute. Petitioner compounded the debt with Wyndham for 120*l.*, which was paid and left in Cutler's hands, to be divided when the release was sealed, as to the wording of which there was some dispute. The release being afterwards settled, Petitioner called on Cutler to divide, but he refused, pretending that the agreement, being verbal, was void in law. Petitioner then brought his Bill in Chancery against Cutler and, on his death, revived it against Sarah, his widow, but the Lords Commissioners dismissed it. Pray that this Dismission may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by J. Soñers and Ed. Northey. L. J., XV. 140. [The Cause was heard and the Decree reversed on 10 Jan. 1692–3. Mr. Ward (for Appellant) opens the Cause. Sir Thomas Powys (for Respondent): This is a matter of as mere Champerty as can be. There is no manner of writing in the case. Upon their own showing it is rank Champerty. Mr. Crawford (for Respondent) is heard. Mr. Ward heard in reply. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker reported. Judges heard as to the necessity of anything in writing in the case. L. C. Baron [Athyns]: I am of opinion there was no necessity of having this in writing. Justice Dolben and others of the same opinion. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 178.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 19 Dec. Answer of Sarah Cutler, the Relict and Executrix of Francis Cutler. Respondent's testator, being related to Appellant, a common Solicitor in Chancery, employed him to get in the debt on bond, whereupon Appellant offered to exchange debts, but the testator refused. The charges of administration and of the suit against Wyndham were paid by testator to Appellant, as his solicitor. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by P. Crawford. Endorsed as brought in this day.

Governors having brought a new bill in Chancery for stay of proceedings thereupon, and obtained an injunction. Petitioners petitioned their Lordships against this proceeding, but the Session ended before it came to a hearing. They then exhibited an Information in the Court of Exchequer, in the name of the Attorney General, but on motion by Hicks, suggesting that he had made the new Governors defendants to a Bill previously filed by him in Chancery, it was ordered that an injunction should be awarded to stay Petitioners' proceedings in the Exchequer. The two Bills are for different matters, and Hicks is no party to Petitioners' Bill in Exchequer. Petitioners have elected a new Schoolmaster in his place, but owing to the injunction, cannot proceed at law to put him in possession. Pray that the two injunctions, which contradict their Lordships' judgment of reversal, may be dissolved. Signed by Sam. Carter, Wm. Colmore and Geo. Wyrley. L. J., XV. 142. Say some, Mr. Hicks is rightly chosen, and others he is not. Before the Cause is heard, they are saying Mr. Hicks is not rightly chosen. Counsel withdrew and the Speaker reported. - (a.) 29 Dec. Answer of the major number of the Old Governors of the Free Grammar School in Birmingham, in the County of Warwick, of the foundation of King Edward VI., and of John Hicks, duly elected Chief Schoolmaster of the said School. By their Lordships' judgment of 2 Dec. 1691, all things relating to the School were to be guided by the Charter of King Edward VI. Respondents, accordingly, duly summoned the rest of the Old Governors under that Charter, and the majority of them present elected Hicks, whom they also discharged of an ejection brought against him in their name, but without their authority, having been carried on by means of one Eden, a solicitor. Hicks' Bill and the injunction are in compliance with, not in contravention of, their Lordships' judgment. The Court of Chancery has appointed a receiver of the School revenues. Hicks has the priority of suit. Pray that the Petition may be dismissed with costs. Not signed by Respondents; Countersigned by Wm. Whitelocke and Tho. LORDS MSS.

Dec. 12. Order of reference read. Ordered that Lyteott and (blank) the Deputy Auditor attend on the 19th, and that meantime Mr. Wallinger, Mr. Hall, Mr. Francis Brampson, and Mr. Petre, come to the Bar to be sworn, and afterwards attend on the 19th to give evidence on behalf of Sir Robt. Atkyns.

Dec. 21. Order of reference, and order of Committee read. L. Chief Baron [Atkyns] is heard: He states the practice of the Court as a Court of Accounts, and that the accounts are brought thither to be signed. The accounts used to be brought to the Lord Chief Baron. I say they ought to come to me. The great accounts ought to come to me; the Customs and the three Impositions. Other Barons have done it sometimes. Hales would not sign them. Mr. Lytcott heard: The account of the Customs has been carried to the Chief Baron. It is true these three new accounts have been carried to the L. Chief Baron. I had attended him still, if the Auditors would have carried them. I received an Order from the Treasury that I should carry the money to the Auditors. I applied to the Lords of the Treasury, and they directed me to carry money to the Auditors, which I have done. I have only acted in obedience to my superiors. L. C. Baron [Atkyns] heard: I attended the Treasury, and they say they cannot help it. Mr. Baron Turton * heard: The right is as much in every Baron of the Exchequer as in the Chief Baron. My Lord Atkyns' father, a puisne Judge, signed one of these accounts himself. As to the privilege, my Lord says he is in possession, and Mr. Lyteott has put him out. The officers at discretion come to one or the other. We issued orders for the Auditors to attend us with accounts who were behind. We attended the Treasury, and they told us that the accounts must come to them first, the Auditors, and we attended the Treasury again. The Lord Godolphin said: "You cannot be in possession, for it is new fees and in our discretion." Mr. Baron Powell heard: He says Mr. Guy read the Order out of the Book. It is a new fee, and any Baron signing the account, it is as good as the Chief. The Case is whether there is a possession, and whether a breach of privilege, and if so, then who has broken it. Mr. Lytcott and the Barons withdrew. The Judges were called in again, and the L. Chief Baron's witnesses were called in. Mr. Hall: There have been 16 Accounts of the Customs, and they have been signed by the L. Chief Baron and no others. I speak for 15 years. Mr. Wallinger: The general Accounts have been delivered into the Pipe, and they have been signed by the Chief Baron. Mr. Tayleur: They come through my hands, and the Declarator has been by the Chief Baron. One of the old Accounts was signed by the L. Chief Baron's father, when a puisne Judge. They withdrew. Ordered that it shall be specially reported to the House (Priv. Book). This Report having been made by M. Halifax the same day, L. Godolphin, being present, was heard as to the transactions at the Treasury in the case. The L. C. Baron [Atkyns], Letchmere, B., Turton, B., and Powell, B., were heard. Moved that the Order of the Treasury made in King James' time may be seen. Question put: Whether this possession be such a possession as creates a privilege? Resolved in the Negative. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 160.) ]

628. Dec. 12. Englefield v. Englefield.—Petition and Appeal of Anthony Englefield, Esq. The late Sir Thomas Englefield, Bart., (father of Sir Charles, the Respondent) was by the will of his nephew Sir Francis and by several settlements entitled for life to the reversion of the manor of Wootton Bassett, Wilts, esteemed 2,000*l.* a year, after the death of his nephew's widow Lady Honora, and also entitled for life to an estate in Leicestershire, worth 1,500*l.* a year, after the death of his nephew's mother Lady Winifred, subject to the payment of 10,000*l.* or some such large sum, to the daughters of Lady Winifred, on whom the estate had been settled by her father, Robert Brookesby, Esq., on her marriage with Sir Francis, the elder brother of Sir Thomas. In 1665, Sir Thomas, being then a widower without issue and nearly 70 years of age, conveyed for good consideration his interest in Wootton Bassett to Appellant's father Anthony, his next brother and remainderman, and to Appellant. Sir Robert Howard, having married the Lady Honora and hearing of this conveyance, made large proposals to Sir Thomas for the estate, and the latter prevailed with the two Anthonys to reconvey Wootton Bassett and join with him in conveying it to Sir Robert, from whom thereupon he received 2,000*l.* and had 400*l.* a year settled for his life out of the estate, and in consideration of the Anthonys so releasing their right and paying him 200*l.*, and of an annuity of 500*l.* out of the Leicestershire estate after Lady Winifred's death, Sir Thomas covenanted to convey the Leicestershire estate to the Anthonys, who joined in a deed for the annuity, and a fine was levied and the uses declared to Appellant's father for life and after to Appellant and his heirs, and in 1667 Lady Winifred and the Anthonys covenanted to levy a fine and suffer a recovery to William Browne and Henry Walgrave, Esqrs., which was done, and the uses declared to be for Lady Winifred for life, and after her death to Browne and Walgrave for 200 years, to secure 10,330*l.* to her daughters, and after satisfaction thereof, to Appellant's father for life, and after to Appellant and his heirs. Sir Thomas was afterwards drawn in to marry one Mary Huntly, formerly his servant, who induced him to release part of the 500*l.* annuity, and in consideration thereof prevailed with Appellant and his father to settle 200*l.* a year on her out of the same for life, in case she survived Sir Thomas, who thereupon released all right to the Leicestershire estate. Lady Winifred's daughters, Helen, Elizabeth, Katharine and Francis, together with Appellant and their respective husbands Sir Charles Walgrave, Sir George Browne, William Turvill and John Wildman, levied a fine of the Leicestershire estate, and after satisfaction of the 10,330*l.* according to the term to be granted to William Browne and Henry Walgrave, whereby Lady Winifred's daughters waived their former security and relied on the settlement for their portions, the uses thereof were declared to be for Appellant and his heirs. After the death of Appellant's father and Lady Winifred, Sir Thomas was persuaded by his wife to bring a Bill in Chancery to be relieved against the agreements, fines and recoveries, as having been obtained by fraud, but on 21 Nov., 23 Car. II., his Bill was dismissed by the Lord Keeper Bridgeman. After his death, his widow, for non-payment of the 200*l.* annuity, entered and distrained, and her son the Respondent being then only 8 years old, a Bill was brought on his behalf in 1681 by the Lady Phillippa Mohun against Appellant to the same effect as the former one, but the Lord Chancellor Jeffreys on 6 April 1687* decreed the agreements and fines to be set aside, and that

Sir Charles should hold the Leicestershire estate against Appellant. Prays that this Decree may be reversed and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor and Tho. Powys. L. J., XV. 143. [On 20 Jan. 1692-3 the Solicitor General and Sir Thomas Powys were heard for the Appellant. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 193.) On the 21st, Counsel being called in for the further hearing, Counsel for the Appellant were directed to recapitulate what was said the previous day. Sir Thomas Powys (for Appellant) states the case. Mr. Finch (for Respondent): We hope to give you a very clear answer to all this. Sir Thomas was very aged, and he was for settling it upon his brother Anthony. Smith was the man that treated this purchase, and he was to have a fourth part of the estate; —nay, he was to have more. It was treated as a purchase, and Sir Thomas Englefield was cheated. He had the Leicestershire estate in him before he treated. Consider how he comes in for the Wilts estate. For the Leicestershire estate here is 200*l.* per annum and a little more, which they could not secure. They said 400*l.* is the most. If a fine be levied where a man is a trustee, the conveyance does not bar that trust. In the Case of Smith v. Coleby* the House judged this was relieved in Chancery. Upon an Appeal here you were of opinion it was a cheat. They only wait to know whether your Lordships will say they shall cozen by a fine. Mr. Ward (for Respondent) is heard. They read several deeds and the decree and articles in the Cause. Anthony Englefield's Answer to Smith's Bill is read, and several Depositions. The Solicitor General is heard to reply, and they offer to read a deed of settlement and depositions taken thereon, as to making the son a Defendant. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker stated the Case, whether the depositions desired shall be read. The Lords were satisfied they were read in Chancery. Counsel were called in and told the Appellants may read the depositions. Mr. Finch and Mr. Ward heard to reply for Respondent. Sir Thomas Powys heard to reply for Appellant. Counsel withdraw. Question put: Whether the Report shall be now made? Resolved in the Affirmative. Contents 35 (including 7 Proxies); Not-Contents 27 (including 3 Proxies). Tellers: E. Bridgewater and E. Feversham. The Speaker reported. After debate, Question put: Whether the Decree shall be reversed? Resolved in the Affirmative. Ordered accordingly. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 194.) For further proceedings see Notes to Annexes below.]

Annexed:—

- (a.) 21 Dec. Answer of Charles Englefield, Esq. Sir Thomas, Respondent's late father, being tenant for life (in reversion after the death of Lady Winifred his elder brother's widow), with remainder to his first and other sons in tail, with remainders over, of the Leicestershire estate, and being unmarried and in trouble and a prisoner in the King's Bench for debt and of a mean understanding, Anthony his younger brother and his son, the Appellant, by fraud, got conveyances from him of the estate. These conveyances were set aside as fraudulent and possession delivered to Respondent. Appellant, to avoid the account of profits, went abroad, where he still remains. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tho. Filmer. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 9 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. Petitioner, since their Lordships' judgment in his favour, has applied to the Court of Chancery to be restored to possession and for an account of profits received under the reversed Deeree, but the Court have postponed the matter pending further directions from the House. Prays their Lordships to direct the Court to restore possession to him. [The House on this Petition ordered the Court of Chancery to direct possession to be given to Appellant, pursuant to the Judgment of 21 Jan. (L. J., XV. 222.)]

(c.) 25 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Respondent. Since their Lordships' judgment, Appellant, on petition to the House, has obtained an Order for the Court of Chancery to put him in possession, on mistaken suggestions that the Court had put him out, and put Respondent in, and he has also brought his ejection at law. At the hearing of the Appeal, Appellant was allowed to read certain depositions in a cause in Chancery between Sir Thomas Englefield, Plaintiff, and Anthony Englefield and Appellant, Defendants, but the like benefit of reading the depositions in the same cause was denied to Respondent, in regard they had not been read below, though Respondent had an order to read them, and the facts thereby proved were opened and admitted, and influenced the Chancery to make the Deeree. Prays to be heard by Counsel, to show cause why possession ought not to go. L. J., XV. 249. [In Committee for Privileges, to whom the above Petition was referred this day, to inspect precedents, the following proceedings are recorded:—6 March, E. Stamford in the Chair, Order of reference read. A debate concerning calling in Counsel or not. [The following precedents were considered]:—

1660, Sept. 1. Thomas Withe. Order for vacating order. [Lewis v. Withe. L. J., XI. 152.]

1667, Nov. 25. Pettit v. Hyde. Referred to Merchants. [L. J., XII. 147.]

1678, May 31. Neilder v. Kendall. Leave given to proceed below. [L. J., XIII. 234.]

1690, April 30. Dodd v. Burrows. Read; possession restored. [L. J., XIV. 480.]

1690, Nov. 27. Dodd v. Burrows. Burrows attached. [Ib., 568.]

1690, Dec. 18. Dodd v. Burrows. Former order repealed, so as not to bar the Petitioner from prosecuting his title at law. [Ib., 596.]

1691-2, Feb. 24. Tooke v. Sir R. Athyns. Ordered to be reheard in Exchequer. [L. J., XV. 92.]

1692. Dec. 9. Trosse v. Pearce. The Chancery to proceed de novo upon the deed. [Ib. 140.]

Counsel called in. Mr. Ward (for Petitioner): We will show precedents, and hope they will come up to this case, where you have varied from your former orders. In Sedgwick v. Hitchcock 20 Dec. 1690, 21 Nov. 1691 [L. J., XV. 600, 657], you ordered the decree to be reversed and Sedgwick to be let in, the estate to be sold, &c. You have found it reasonable to alter your order. Instance ease of Dodd v. Burrows. In Trosse v. Pearce it was ordered to go back to Chancery and a deed to be used there. There was no judgment passed in Tooke v. Sir R. Atkyns. In Dodd v. Burrows you directed it to go back again. My client does not desire to make use of any depositions but what were in Chancery, though not used. [Speaks to ease of] Pettit v. Hyde, Dec. 6 [L. J., XII. 159.] Sir William Whitelocke: The precedents they have instanced will not come up at all. Sedgwick v. Hitchcock does not come up at all to this case. The Chancery decrees Mr. Englefield out of possession, and you say they did wrong, and reverse it and restore possession. Bankruptcy is always triable by law. Dodd v. Burrows does not come at all to this case. In Pettit v. Hyde after the first decree, say they, you went further, and so you do. You amended the order only to put him into possession again. By the same reason this Cause may be reheard, and then if anything is not fully read, all must be reheard again. Sir Thomas Powys: Mr. Ward does not tell you what he prays. He does not ask to be reheard. I do suppose he will not say he would have it go to Chancery to see if you have done right or not. In consequential matter you have not altered your order. Sedgwick v. Hitchcock is not in this case. You only gave him leave to try his title at law. In Tooke v. Sir R. Atkyns there was no judgment. As to Trosse v. Pearce, there is nothing in this case; no footsteps of this in it. As for the possession, we have it already, and the Plaintiff is restored and justly too. Mr. Ward (in reply): They say they have the possession; we say we have it. In Neilder v. Kendall, 31 May 1678, a subsequent order was made. As to the depositions, we were advised that no depositions could be used here but what were used below. We pray this deposition was not read. Counsel withdraw. The precedents of Neilder v. Kendall and Pettit v. Hyde [considered]. Moved to report: That upon inspecting precedents, the Committee are of opinion that the Court of Chancery be ordered to hear these matters then in proof in the Cause which were not read at making the decree, and no other. On Question, Contents 20; Not-Contents 7. Ordered to report on Wednesday next. (Priv. Book, 6 March 1692-3.)

This Report having been made on 8 March, the Petition was recommitted to the Committee for Privileges, who were ordered to meet the next day. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 281.)

In the Priv. Book of the 9th the following entry appears: "L. Longueville in the Chair. Ordered to report to the House that the Committee was not full enough to proceed, and therefore desire the further directions of the House." No entry of this Report having been made appears in either MS. Min. or L. J., but on the 10th the House made an order to consider of precedents in the matter on the 13th (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 284), on which day, the last-named order being read, it was Moved to hear Counsel. The case of Neilder v. Kendall, 31 May, 1678, read. Moved to call in Counsel on these points: (1) Whether there were not proofs offered below in publication, which were not heard. (2) What they can say against Sir Charles Englefield's Petition, why it should not be heard. Moved to be sent down to be heard in Chancery upon the proofs not heard here.

[Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day (L. J., XV. 143). On 7 Jan. 1692–3 Counsel were heard on the Petitions of Baldwin Leighton* of 19 Dec. (Ib., 152), and of Thomas Bromhall, Infant, by his Guardian † of 31 Dec. (Ib., 168). Sir William Williams (for Leighton): opened the ease. He [Manlove] has offended in many particulars, and by Inquisition has forfeited his office. Mr. Holles: There is a forfeiture by Inquisition, and the Bill establishes those things that formed the Inquisition. The Inquisition is quashed, I confess, but it was for the manner of the thing. Sir Francis Winnington (for the Bill): They desire something foreign to the Bill, and their Petition desires little, not the Bill to pass or not. The Inquisition was quashed with as great solemnity as may be, and the two Lord Chief Justices were there. They pray they know not what, but something they would have. His right is saved, if he has any. Sir William Williams reads the Savings in the Bill and is heard to them. Counsel said if the word “forfeiture” was in the Bill, they could not except. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker having reported, the Bill was read 2<sup>a</sup> and committed, one Counsel on each side to attend the Committee, and care to be taken of the shops in Westminster Hall, and to receive any proviso offered by the Lord Chamberlain. The Bill was then read 2<sup>a</sup> and committed. ‡ (MS. Min., 7 Jan.; L. J., XV. 174).

In Committee, on 12 Jan., E. Rochester in the Chair, the Bill was read entire and the Parties called in. Mr. Ward (for the L. Chamberlain and the House-Keeper) offers some amendments and a Proviso. Mr. Tilly (for Bromhall) says they shall agree to the Proviso, &c. Sir William Williams (for Col. Leighton) says none of the limitations in the grant to Sir [Jeremiah] Whiteheot have been observed. He states Col. Leighton’s ease, and offers a Clause and Proviso, which he reads. They withdraw. The first clause offered by Sir W. Williams is read. Sir Edward Nevill and Sir Wm. Gregory are sent for in, and asked whether Manlove, who has forfeited his Office, has forfeited the same to his Majesty or to the person that has the reversion. Sir E. Nevill: It requires a little consideration. Generally, the next in reversion have the benefit, but he cannot give a sudden opinion. Sir W. Gregory: This is an office of trust. It will affect him that has the reversion. The L. Great Chamberlain offers a clause, which is received. The Counsel are called in. The Clause is read again. The Counsel as well for Leighton as Bromhall are heard to state the ease. Ordered that Counsel on both sides attend the said Judges. (Com. Book, 12 Jan.)—On 19 Jan., E. Rochester in the Chair, Mr. Justice Gregory and Mr. Justice Nevill declare they are of opinion, if there be a forfeiture, it belongs to the reversioner and not to the King. Ordered, that the Counsel for the L. Great Chamberlain and for the Warden of the Fleet meet and prepare amendments (Com. Book, 19 Jan.)—On 20 Jan., E. Rochester in the Chair, the Parties are called in. The Bill read by paragraphs. The Amendments prepared by the L. Great Chamberlain’s Counsel and Counsel for the Bill are read and agreed to be inserted. (a.) 19 Dec. Petition of Col. Baldwin Leighton. Charles II. granted the Office of Warden of the Fleet to Sir Jeremiah Whichcot in fee, which office by assignments and deputations came to Richard Manlove, Esq., and appears to be forfeited and reverted to the Crown by Inquisition in the Court of Chancery. Their Majesties in 1690 granted it to Petitioner, as a reward for his services, but the grant, after passing the Privy Seal, has been stopped by the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, on a Caveat entered by Manlove and one Johnson. The Lords Commissioners, after a hearing on 17 July following, postponed their decision till his Majesty was attended and his further pleasure known. The King signified his pleasure several times to the Lords Commissioners for the grant to pass, and Petitioner solicited them to the same effect, but was refused, without any reason being assigned. He then petitioned the King for a hearing in Council, and on 6 Nov. following the Lord Commissioner Hutchins attending, informed the King that they had decreed the inheritance of the office to Johnson, a tailor, whose only claim is a debt of 39*l.* for tailor's work, which decree was soon after reversed by the House.†† The King in Council having ordered the Lords Commissioners, with the assistance of Sir G. parties and report, they appointed a hearing about a week after, but determined nothing. Petitioner accordingly petitioned the Queen in Council to be heard, and the point in question, relating to the validity of the Inquisition, was looked upon as a matter of law, not properly determinable there. (c.) 20 Jan. 1692-3. Petition (to the Committee on the Bill) of Katherine Abnet, Widow, William Abnet and Richard Thorley, Gent., friends and near relations of Thomas Bromhall, Infant, for and on the behalf of the said Infant; and also of Thomas Richardson and Grace his wife, which said Grace is one of the coheirs of the said Thomas Bromhall, Infant, in case he shall happen to die without issue, for and on behalf of the said Infant and also of the said coheirs. Petitioners are informed that, under colour of some debts owing by Thos. Bromhall, late Warden of the Fleet, whose heir, the Infant, Thos. Bromhall, is under 7 years of age, there is a contrivance set on foot to sell the office, which was his inheritance. The Petitioners, the Abnets and Thorley, live about 100 miles from London, and knew nothing of the Bill till very lately. Pray to be heard against the Bill. Signed by Richardson only. (d.) 23 Jan. 1692-3. Petition of Col. Baldwin Leighton. On their Majesties' Counsel offering some clauses to the Committee to be added to the Bill for securing their Majesties' right and title to the forfeiture of the Office of Warden of the Fleet, which it was agreed by Counsel on both sides, that Manlove, the present Warden, had forfeited, the Committee, taking Manlove to be but tenant for life, ordered Petitioner and Bromhall, who claims the equity of redemption of the office and estate in fee, to attend, with their counsel, Mr. Justice Nevill and Mr. Justice Gregory, who were desired to give their opinions to the Committee, in case a tenant for life forfeit, whether their Majesties or the person who has the inheritance shall have the forfeiture. These Judges, as Petitioner is informed, have given their opinions that the Reversioner shall have the forfeiture, which may be esteemed to be the assignee of Sir Jeremiah Whichcott. Their Majesties' just rights and prerogative, and the safety, ease and benefit of their subjects have great dependence upon a right state and decision of the point relating to the forfeiture, and will save their Lordships a great deal of labour, which will be spent in vain, in case the office forfeited be their Majesties'. Prays on behalf of their Majesties and himself to be heard by Counsel at the Bar to this point: Whether their Majesties or the Grantee Sir Jeremiah Whichcott, his heirs and assigns, shall have the said Office, which is forfeited upon conditions broken. Endorsed as read this day; ordered to be heard 4 Feb. next. 23 Jan.* Petition dismissed, and order made yesterday reversed. Nothing to be entered. [The entry in MS. Min. of 23 Jan., corresponding with the first part of the endorsement, is struck through.]

“And for the avoiding of doubts and questions hereafter touching the right of their Majesties, their heirs and successors, to the benefit and advantage of forfeitures and seizures happening in the said office and premises, It is hereby declared and enacted that as often as any person or persons, being in the actual execution and possession of the said Office of Warden of the Fleet, shall forfeit his said office or his interest therein, that the benefit and advantage of such forfeiture and seizure thereof shall accrue to their Majesties, their heirs and successors.” Noted as read this day and rejected. [See Notes to first Paper under date.]

(f.) 28 Jan. 1692-3. Petition of Col. Baldwin Leighton. Petitioner is advised that the Bill, though with a saving to their Majesties and Petitioner, cannot pass without great prejudice, as neither Bromhall nor Manlove have any estate but what they derive from the Crown upon the conditions expressed in the grant, viz., that Sir Jeremiah Whichcott, his heirs and assigns, shall make Caroon House the prison of the Fleet for ever, and shall observe all rules and orders settled for the good government of the Fleet, and there are conditions in law which go along with every office incident to the administration of justice. As these conditions are broken, their Majesties, as grantors and supreme administrators of justice, may take advantage thereof, and after a Commission issued out and before Inquisition found, may by force of the Statute 21 Jac. I., cap. 25., grant the said office upon any conditions broken; yet their Majesties did not grant the same until an Inquisition was taken by virtue of a Commission, which found Manlove guilty of extortion, which by the Statute of 3 Edw. I., cap. 30., is forfeiture of the fee to their Majesties. The Bill shows Manlove to be tenant for life, and until 1,000*l.* is paid and all accounts and reckonings between him and Bromhall, the uncle, be set straight and all covenants between them are performed, and it is believed that Bromhall has covenants to warrant the office and estate against him and his heirs, because Manlove in his answer upon oath in Chancery confesses he has the estate conveyed to him, his heirs and assigns, so that the Infant's name is only made use of to colour Manlove's forfeiture. The question put to the Judges by the Lords' Committee was with submission wrongly stated, viz. (If a tenant for life forfeits), whether their Majesties or the person who has the inheritance shall have the forfeiture? and the Judges' opinion that the Reversioner shall have it is of dangerous and ill consequence, if it be so that Bromhall's heir be accounted the reversioner, for then Bromhall may employ ill men and share with them in all their extortions and commit what abuses they please, because it is no forfeiture of office. If the Judges' opinion be wrong, and if it be in the power of the Lords Commissioners to stop their Majesties' grant of the office to Petitioner, as they have done since April 1690, and to make orders irregularly ex parte to quash an Inquisition, as the orders and affidavits annexed to the Petition show, when it was a judgment by default, by Manlove's not traversing the same, as directed by the Statute 1 Hen. VIII. cap. 10., and not to order a Melius Inquirendum, or give any directions to have Manlove punished, and not to put their Majesties' title to the forfeiture in any legal way to be tried, and to vacate the Inquisition some weeks after Petitioner has addressed himself to the House, all these are abuses which the House alone can redress. Prays the House, as directed by the Committee, to be heard by Counsel on the point whether their Majesties or Sir Jeremiah Whicheott shall have the office on the conditions broken, and also to the irregularities of the Orders annexed, and that their Lordships will direct that their Majesties' title to the office shall be legally and judicially determined. 28 Jan. 1692-3. Orders and Affidavits referred to in preceding Petition, and appended thereto, viz. :—

- (f<sup>1</sup>.) Order of Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, dated 26 Nov. 1690, made on an Order of Council of 6 (received 13) Nov., referring to them a complaint of Col. Leighton in relation to the passing a patent for him of the office of Warden of the Fleet. Their Lordships, assisted by Holt, C. J., Pollexfen, C. J., and Baron Nevill, unanimously declared that the Inquisition was void in law for the uncertainty and other imperfections therein contained, and ought therefore to be quashed, but respited the quashing until his Majesty's pleasure should be known.
- (f<sup>2</sup>.) Order of same, dated 28 Nov. 1690, upon motion made before them by Mr. Sloane, Counsel for Defendant, directing the Inquisition to be quashed, unless cause is shown to the contrary by Col. Leighton on the first day of the next term.
- (f<sup>3</sup>.) Order of same, dated 25 June 1691, upon motion made by Mr. Sloane, directing the Inquisition to be quashed, the Attorney-General declaring that he had acquainted his Majesty with the matter and had no direction to the contrary.
- (f<sup>4</sup>.) Affidavit of John Higgons, of the Inner Temple, Gent., Attorney and Solicitor of Col. Leighton, that he has failed to find, after searching the Registrar's minute books, any minutes or instructions made or given on 18 Nov. 1690, when all parties were heard by their Counsel, and that since that day, with the exception of Minutes on 26 and 28 Nov. 1690 and 25 June 1691 [see three preceding Papers], he has never heard of or had any notice given of any further debate or motions made in this Cause, and never heard of any further order till 13 December last, when the Clerk of the Petty Bag informed him that he was then served with an Order for quashing the Inquisition found against the Warden of the Fleet. Sworn 7 Jan. 1692 before S. Keek.
- (f<sup>5</sup>.) Affidavit of same, that he has failed to find, after searching the office for filing Affidavits in Chancery, any affidavit there filed showing that notice was given to the Clerk of the Petty Bag for Col. Leighton to show cause against quashing the Inquisition, according to the Order of 28 Nov. Sworn 5 Jan. 1692 before Ad. Otley.
- (f<sup>6</sup>.) Affidavit of same that, after searching in the Petty Bag Office, on 11 Jan., he found the Inquisition filed there not vacated, and that he believes the same still remains good and effectual in law. Sworn 11 Jan. 1692 before S. Keek.

631. Dec. 13. Banbury Claim of Peerage.—Petition of Charles [Knowles, claiming to be] Earl of Banbury, as follows:—

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords Spirituall and Temporall in Parliament assembled.

Sheweth, That your Petitioner, being of right by descent Earl of Banbury, and a Peer of this realm, though as yet he has not been summoned to Parliament, and being now committed to Newgate and indicted for the death of Phillip Lawson, your Petitioner humbly prays that he may be admitted to his trial by his Peers, as is usual in like cases, and if any question thereon shall arise, that he may be heard by his Counsel at the Bar of this most Hon<sup>ble</sup> House, and that in the meantime he may be admitted to bail.

And your Petitioner shall ever pray, etc.—BANBURY.

L. J., XV. 146. [On 9 Jan. 1692-3,† Counsel being called in on this Petition, Mr. Finch (for Petitioner) states the case of the pedigree. In the Convention of 1660, Nicholas sat in this House. In the next Parliament he was omitted to be summoned. States the proceedings in this House. No man ought to have his illegitimacy questioned after his death. Sir Thomas Powys (for Petitioner): We have the Patent whereby he was created. The only question is whether he was born while in wedlock, which I do not find questioned. If the children are born in wedlock, there is no question to be made in it. There was claim made in 1660, as appears by the Books. We can show the Patent. Nicholas sat in Parliament in the Convention after the King's return, 6 June 1661. They read. It was read out of the Journal, where he was named of two Committees. The Attorney-General is heard. The thing having been before this House several times, the King does not think fit to interpose in it, but to be passive and leave it to the judgment of this House, and when the House has determined, he will do what is proper. Counsel withdrew and the Speaker reported. Moved that the two Inquisitions be brought; that the Heralds attend and bring with them all papers and matters relating to this business, and that the Attorney-General attend, to be further heard if he shall think fit. Ordered accordingly, as in L. J., XV. 177. (MS. Min., 9 Jan.)

On 14 Jan. 1692-3 Counsel were called in. John Ditchfield sworn as to the truth of the Inquisitions formerly taken in this case. Ordered that the Records be sent for presently. Counsel and Heralds called in again. The Heralds were told they were sent to. They say they have but one thing, which is a certificate after the death of William, Earl of Banbury. The certificate is read by the Heralds at the Bar. 25 May 1632 he died and was interred June following in Bray Church. This Certificate was taken by Sampson Lennard, Blue-mantle. This was a private funeral. If it had been public, we had taken them. We have nothing more. Mr. Finch: We attend to hear what objections are made. We hope this is none. Sir Thomas Powys: These matters are of little credit. Sir William Dugdale has printed what is false,—that this Certificate was signed by the Countess. Now a man's life is in question, which makes things mighty different from all the claims in former time in this case. Asked what estate of William, Earl of Banbury the now person inherits? There is something they say—Bowling Green at Henly. This Certificate, the Herald says, has lain in the office publicly many years. Asked, what is become of the lands? The lands were settled and given away by William, Earl of Banbury. The Solicitor-General came. He is asked how he came hither? The papers, he says, were put into his hands by Mr. Attorney-General's servant [secretary]. Counsel withdrew. Moved to call in Mr. Solicitor-General. The Order read of 13 Dec. concerning hearing the Attorney-General in this business. [In margin: 16 & 17 Q. Eliz. Onslow, L. Bacon.] A debate arose concerning taking care that for the future the Attorney-General should be always an Assistant to this House. Moved that it be referred to the Committee for Privileges. Ordered that an Address be prepared by the Committee for Privileges for the Attorney-General to attend as an Assistant.* Counsel called in again. The Attorney-General: Upon his Majesty's hearing of this further, his Majesty has given me order to object what I can. The King seems surprised that one should come to ask to be tried as a Peer before he asks the King for a writ of summons. It is sixty years since the E. Banbury's death, and since [then] no Earl of Banbury has been owned by the Crown. It is hoped all the circumstances of the person will be very narrowly looked into. You make him incapacity of being a judge into the legislature, nay, I know not but you give him an estate too. The E. Banbury died; how can the Petitioner entitle himself to be Earl of Banbury? It will not be pretended the Earl knew he had a son; nay, that he ever knew his wife had a son. There was an Inquisition taken in Oxfordshire, the proper county. Dugdale says she, the Duchess (sic), subscribed a Certificate her husband died without issue. This second son was not heard of in many years. All that is pretended is that these children were born in wedlock. Case of Hospell & Collins cited, tried in the Common Pleas. He is no child; during the coverture not heard of; not that the mother had any child. The question is entirely whether Nicholas was legitimate or not, as if he was living; his death would not alter the case. He had no part of the estate of L. Banbury but Vaus [Vaux's]. I shall be told there was another Inquisition; but this was an artifice; the first Inquisition was never quashed. As to Nicholas' sitting in the Convention will be little in this case, the Committee was of one opinion and the House was of another opinion by bringing in a Bill. It will be very strange to admit him a Peer after these proceedings. Mr. Finch heard in reply to the Attorney-General. The matter desired is very great. This question does not decide the title to the lands. It is strange, says Mr. Attorney, at this time to set this matter on foot. But the occasion is great; he lies under the misfortune of being thought to have killed a man. Sir Thomas Powys heard for the claimant. Counsel withdrew, and the House went into debate of the case. Question put: Whether the House shall now proceed in the debate? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 31 (including 8 Proxies); Not-Contents 41 (including 3 Proxies). Tellers: E. Manchester and E. Feversham. Debate adjourned till the 17th, the first business.* (MS. Min.)

On 17 Jan. 1692-3, the Order being read for resuming the debate, the person that keeps the Records in the Rolls Chapel was called in, and read the original Inquisitions taken formerly in relation to this business. Debate resumed. Mr. Grimes, the Officer of the Rolls, was called in and asked if he had the Commission for taking the Inquisitions? He looked and found none. After debate, Moved that a vote be made that the Petitioner is the son of a supposititious child to the E. Banbury. After further debate, Moved that all the Judges be heard in this case [to] such questions as shall be asked relating to the points in law in this case. After debate, Question put whether all the Judges shall be heard in this case? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 29; Not-Contents 38. Tellers: E. Bridgewater and L. Godolphin. 1692.

The MS. Minutes of 2 and 5 Dec. 1693 contain the following further entries, which do not appear in the Journal of those dates, or of 13 April 1808, and have hitherto been unnoticed, viz. :—

2 Dec. 1693. House moved that a Lord may explain what he meant by saying the Judges had misbehaved themselves to this House. E. Rochester says it relates to the Justices of the King's Bench, concerning a gentleman that pretended to be Earl of Banbury. He petitioned to prove his title here, and the House, after hearing, declared and ordered he had no title to that claim, and this gentleman is not tried to this day. Moved that the Justices of the King's Bench give an account whether the person that claimed the title of Earl of Banbury be tried, and, if not, their reason why. That they deliver a State of the case. To give an account how the state of the person's claim to be E. of Banbury stands. Ordered that all the Judges of their Majesties' Court of King's Bench do attend on Tuesday next.

5 Dec. 1693.* House moved to hear the Judges as to what was done in the pretended Lord Banbury's case. Holt, C. J. heard: Ch. Knowles was in November accused of murder. He moved for a certiorari. We granted a certiorari in general. We arraigned him at the Bar by [the name of] Charles Knowles. We expected an answer. He came with a special Plea and a Patent, and derives himself from that Patent. We must receive any Plea. The Attorney-General replied: The proceedings [are] before this House. He has demurred to this, and we can go no further.

The matter next came before the House on 22 March 1693-4, when the House was moved that an account should be given of the business of the person claiming the title of E. Banbury. Moved that the Attorney-General give the House an account of it. The Attorney-General was heard: This matter stands upon a demurrer in the King's Bench. The matter ought to have been forwarded by him, and so the Attorney-General was to take it up and not (sic) it is appointed Hilary term. At the desire of Mr. Knowles the Court have granted another argument to be next term. Moved that the Attorney-General give this House an account in writing of the proceedings in this case in the Courts below. Ordered accordingly. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 401.)—On 11 April 1694 the Attorney-General delivered in the account (L. J., XV. 413-14 In extenso), after reading which, the House ordered the Judges of the King's Bench to attend on the 14th inst. (MS. Min.).—On 13 April 1694 they were ordered to attend, instead, on the 16th (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 415).—On 16 April 1694,† Holt, C. J. was heard as to the proceedings in the King's Bench and stated the case (MS. Min.; no entry in L. J.); after which the House adjourned.

On 27 Nov. 1694,† after debate, Question put: Whether the Attorney-General shall give this House an account what proceedings there have been in the Court of King's Bench since the 11th of April 1694, in relation to the person who claims the title of Earl of Banbury? Resolved in the Affirmative. Ordered accordingly, as in L. J., XV. 436.—On 4 Dec. 1694 the Attorney-General gave the House an account that the cause was argued by one counsel on either side in Easter term. The Court gave their opinion in Trinity term last. He reads the Rule of Court for the Judgment and the Bail, and the Copy of the Record of the Bail. The proceedings in the Journal of 17 Jan. 1692 were read out of the Journal. Moved, that the Record be brought into the House. Moved to adjourn. After debate, Question put: Whether the House Resolved in the Negative. Ordered that the proper officer in the Court of King's Bench bring before the House to-morrow the Record of the Indictment of Charles Knowles, who claimed the title of E. Banbury, and the proceedings of that Court thereupon. Debate adjourned till to-morrow. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 438).—On 5 Dec. 1694 the officer of the King's Bench was called in. Mr. Harcourt at the table delivered the Record. Moved to have the Record read. A debate arose whether the Record shall be now read. Said debate adjourned to 12 Dec. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 439). On the 12th the debate was further adjourned to the 24th Dec. (L. 635. Dec. 17. E. Aylesbury's Privilege (R. Noyes).†—Case of Mr. Robert Noyes, servant to E. Aylesbury. John Gosse, of Sarum, Wm. Gesford, of Worden, John Marshman and Charles Wills, of Neitherhaven, Bailiffs of the Sheriff of Wilts, by virtue of an execution against Noyes at the suit of Vincent Head, of Stowell, Wilts, yeoman, and Richard Watts, alias Waterman, junior, of Patney, Wilts, yeoman, on 14 June last entered into the Earl's house at Tottenham Park and seized Noyes' and the Earl's goods. The bailiffs, being informed of the breach of privilege, sent to Plaintiff's attorney, Mr. Richard Hayes, of Amesbury, who came with the Plaintiffs, Head and Watts, to the Earl's house and there promised to defend the bailiffs against the Earl as far as 500*l.* would go, which can be proved by Noyes and Humphrey Norborne, of Chute, Gent. Noted at foot: Humphrey Norborne and Robert Noyes sworn. L. J., XV. 150.

636. Dec. 17. Hurt v. Attorney-General of the Duchy of Lancaster, at the relation of Eyre.—Petition and Appeal of Nicholas Hurt, Esq., and Elizabeth, his wife, sister and heir of John Low, Esq., deceased, who was son and heir of John Low, who was son and heir of Edward Low; and of George Nevill, Esq., son and heir of George Nevill, Esq., deceased, and grandson and heir of Richard Nevill, Esq., deceased. This Appeal is identical, except in adding Nevill as an Appellant, with the one presented on 23 Nov. 1692 (No. 606). Thomas Eyre is here stated to have been retained as Counsel for John Low, the father, touching the Milkey,—a statement which appears to have been erased in the former Appeal. L. J., XV. 151. [The appeal was heard and dismissed on 12 Jan. 1692–3. The Solicitor-General and Sir Thomas Powys were heard for Appellant. Mr. Ward (for Respondent): Must the King neither have his rent nor his land? Mr. Dodd (for Respondent) was also heard. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 180.)]

Annexed :—

- (a.) 21 Dec. Petition of Thomas Eyre, Esq. Their Lordships, on 14 Dec., dismissed the former Appeal for want of a proper Appellant, a mistake which has cost Respondent 50*l*. Prays that the Appellant Hurt and his wife may be ordered to reimburse him. L. J., XV. 160.

- (b.) 29 Dec. Answer of Edward Northey, Esq., their Majesties' Attorney of their Duchy of Lancaster. Identical with his answer to the former Appeal (No. 606 (a.)). Endorsed as brought in this day. Countersigned Godfr. Thacker.

- (c.) 29 Dec. Answer of Thomas Eyre, Esq. Identical, for the most part, with his Answer to the former Appeal (No. 606 (b.)). Adds that the Appellant Nevill produced no other evidence below to prove the King's covenant but his grant, which Respondent has reason to believe he now fears to produce. Neither Nevill nor his ancestors ever paid a penny rent for the premises for above 43 years. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (d.) 7 Jan. 1692–3. Petition of Appellants, that the hearing, appointed for the 12th inst., may be put off for a fortnight, their Attorney, Mr. Bagshaw, being in Derbyshire. Endorsed as read this day, nothing done on it. No entry in L. J. or MS. Min.

637. Dec. 20. Hastings v. Lady Churchill.—Petition of Caroletta Hastings, the widow and executrix of the late Col. Anthony Hastings, deceased. Petitioner's late father, Sir John Churchill, on his marriage with Susannah, daughter of Edmond Prideaux, Esq., settled on her the manor of Churchill, co. Somerset, for a jointure after his death, with remainders to issue male, and created a term of years in trust to raise portions for daughters. No provision being made in that deed for their daughters, if Sir John married again after her death, leaving sons and daughters, Sir John executed another one, covenanting before 30. Nov. 1655 to purchase and settle other lands in Somersetshire upon the like trusts, or, failing his doing so, to pay certain sums for such daughters' maintenance, and Sir John accordingly purchased the manor of Backwell and other lands in Somersetshire. He died in 1685 without issue male, all his daughters being married in his lifetime except Petitioner, to whom he devised the manor of Backwell, after payment of the incumbrances thereon. After his death, Petitioner having married Col. Hastings, Dame Susannah brought a Bill in Chancery to charge the manor of Backwell and Sir John's real and personal estate with 100*l.* a year during her life, besides her jointure. Petitioner and her husband insisted that the covenant was only given to secure a maintenance for daughters if Dame Susannah had died in Sir John's lifetime, and was never intended to increase the jointure. The Lords Commissioners, however, on 16 Dec. 2 W. & M., decreed to Dame Susannah the 100*l.* a year since her husband's death. Col. Hastings, who commanded the Sandwich, was killed in the summer's engagement with the French fleet, and has left Petitioner his executrix. Prays that the decree may be reversed and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant, Countersigned by Ge. Paunceforte. L. J., XV. 159. [The Cause was heard and the Decree reversed on 7 Feb. Mr. Finch and the Solicitor-General were heard for Appellant, and Sir Ambrose Phillipps and Mr. Vernon for Respondent. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 219.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 11 Jan. 1692–3. Answer of Dame Susanna Churchill, Widow and relict of Sir John Churchill. Sir John, who received 2,500*l.* with his wife as her marriage portion, covenanted to settle lands worth 100*l.* a year on her in addition to her jointure. Respondent and her trustees, never doubting that he would perform this covenant, and expecting that he would make still further provision for his widow, being a man very eminent and a great gainer in his profession, never pressed him for a settlement in his lifetime. Prays that the decree may stand. Signed Susan Churchill. Endorsed as brought in this day.

638. Dec. 22. Sir J. Wentworth's Estate Act.—Amended draft of an Act to enable Sir John Wentworth, Bart., an Infant under the age of 21 years, to make a jointure out, and settlement, of his manors and lands in the Counties of York and Westmoreland. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; Royal Assent 20 Jan. 1692–3. L. J., XV. 161, 192. 4 W. & M. c. 6. in Long Calendar. The Lords' Amendments, made in Committee 30 Dec.,* after an adjournment eod. die. for the attendance of Sir J. Wentworth's brothers, are purely verbal (Com. Book), as also are the Commons' Amendments, which were agreed to by the Lords. (C. J., X. 771.)]

639. Dec. 22. Ruddle v. Cass.—Petition and Appeal of Robert Ruddle. Appellant, a merchant living in London, being requested to purchase some houses at Port Royal, Jamaica, for his correspondent there, Jeremiah, brother of Sir James Tillie, Kt., was applied to in 1690 by Respondent, who claimed them as purchaser for 400*l.* from Elizabeth, executrix and devisee of Rainsford Waterhouse, their owner. Appellant, on Tillie's behalf, agreed to pay Respondent 800*l.* for them. On the deed being prepared, Respondent's title appeared defective, but he prevailed on Appellant's scrivener to advance him 100*l.* upon it. Search being made at Port Royal, the conveyances to Rainsford were found not to have been enrolled, and by the law there defective, and Appellant was directed not to proceed with the purchase. Respondent thereupon claimed the purchase money and, without Appellant's knowledge, sealed a conveyance to Tillie. Failing to recover the 700*l.*, residue of the purchase money, at law, he brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant and the two Tillies for the sum. Sir James having demurred, and Jeremiah being dead, the cause was heard against Appellant alone on 12 Dec. last, when the Court decreed that the agreement should be performed and that Appellant, who acted only as Jeremiah's agent, should pay the 700*l.* with interest, the conveyance made by Respondent to Jeremiah to stand, if Respondent's title were found good and Jeremiah living when it was made, otherwise the conveyance to be made by Respondent to Appellant. Prays that this Decree may be reversed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Jo. Tremayne and Wi. Williams. L. J., XV. 161. [The Cause was heard on 25 Jan. 1692-3. Sir W. Williams (for Appellant) opened the case. Mr. Ward (for Appellant): We have lost both our title and our houses to now. Sir Ambrose Phillipps (for Respondent) was heard. Mr. Finch (for Respondent): At the hearing of the cause a good title did appear. In Jamaica whosoever has possession of an estate, has a good title to it. It appeared at the hearing the full title, and then we ought to be decreed the money. There is no proof; but the title good there ought to be absolute. They read a receipt for the 100*l.* Counsel withdrew and the Speaker reported. After debate, Appeal dismissed and Decree affirmed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 199.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 2 Jan. 1692-3. Answer of John Cass, Esq. Respondent sold the houses as he bought them, and was only to secure against Mrs. Waterhouse, or procure her to join, in case her conveyance to him was not recorded in Jamaica. Appellant accepted a conveyance to the use of Jeremiah Tillie. Appellant has not proved the title defective, and has Tillie's purchase money in his hands. Prays that the Decree may stand. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by R. Thornhill. Endorsed as brought in this day.

640. Dec. 22. Boevey v. Dame Anne Smyth and others.—Petition and Appeal of James Boevey. Appellant's mother Joanna, wife of Andrew Boevey and afterwards of John Abeel, having purchased in 1634 some lands and houses in Upper or Little Chelsea of Thomas Wood, the latter conveyed them to William Boevey, Thos. Waterhouse, Simon Dring and Henry Faldoe, in trust to convey them to such persons and uses as she should appoint, and, failing such appointment, to the use of Appellant, her son, and her four daughters, Joanna Clarke, widow, Mary Boevey, Elizabeth Le Mott, Widow (afterwards Elizabeth Bex), and Anne, wife of David Bonnell, and their respective heirs, in equal shares. By her will she gave the premises to her four daughters, and in case of any of them dying, her share was to go to her sister's children. After her death, the trustees, in breach of their trust, conveyed them to the use of the four daughters only. These, after levying fines among themselves, sold the premises to the trustee William Boevey, who devised them, with a personal estate of 30,000*l.*, to Respondent Anne, his widow, afterwards Dame Anne Smyth, for life, and after her death to their son John and heirs. The four daughters, who had only a life-estate, being dead, Appellant, as Andrew's son and heir, claimed the trust of the inheritance, and in 1676 brought a Bill in Chancery against Dame Anne Smyth and William Boevey's son John. On 17 Oct. 34 Car. II., the L. Chancellor Nottingham declared that the fines being levied to parties who claimed by Joanna Abeel's will and who knew of the trust, could not bar the trust, and that William

Boevey's conveyance of the inheritance to the daughters was a breach of trust. He confirmed this decree on a rehearing on 14 Nov., save as to one point, which he reserved, but died before determining; but on 5 March 35 Car. II. the L. Keeper North, on a rehearing, dismissed the Bill. *Since this dismissal, part of the estate is come to Henry, Lord Capell and Richard Garth, trustees for Elizabeth, John Boevey's wife, and part to Thos. Lownes and Elizabeth, his wife, for little or no consideration, who had notice of Appellant's claim.** Prays that the dismissal may be reversed. Signed by Appellant. Countersigned by Will<sup>m</sup> Watts and W. Thomson. L. J., XV. 161. [The Cause was first heard on 4 March 1692-3, Mr. Finch and Sir Thomas Powys being heard for Appellant, and The Solicitor General and Mr. Ward for Respondents. After debate, dismissal reversed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 275).—On 6 March, the House being moved that the Judgment may be respited, "for that Mr. Lownes and his wife may be included therein, who were no parties in the Appeal," ordered that Lownes and his wife and Mr. Boevey should be heard by one Counsel of a side. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 277).—On 7 March Counsel were called in. Mr. Ward (for Lownes): This Bex is the wife of Lownes and no party to the decree. Mr. Finch: It is true there is a child living, but, however, that does not make it an estate tail, and will not affect Mr. Boevey. Wild's case is not in this matter. Mr. Ward heard in reply. Mr. Finch: We cannot execute this Deeree to the prejudice of Mrs. Lownes. Counsel withdrew. Ordered that the Judgment be amended by adding the words ["but the same is to be without prejudice unto the other Respondents Lownes and his wife's right, by virtue of the Will of Joanna Beale,† to the premises in question, or any part thereof; who are at liberty at any time to defend the same, as they shall be advised"]. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 278).—On 10 March, the House (on motion) ordered one Counsel on each side to be heard whether the words ("by virtue of the Will of Joanna Beale") should stand. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 283).—On 11 March, Counsel were called in. Mr. Ward (for Petitioner, against the words): For this reason, Lownes and his wife were no party to the Deeree below. Mr. Finch heard for the words to stand. Counsel withdrew. Ordered that all the words in the end of the Order after the word ("reversed") be left out. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 285.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 11 Jan. 1692-3. Joint and Several Answer of Dame Anne Smyth, widow, and John Boevey, Gent. Appellant released his title to the premises and the personal estate of his mother, in submission to an award of arbitrators. Respondent John, on his marriage, transferred his interest to Sir Henry Capell, K.B., and Richard Garth, in trust for his wife's jointure. Elizabeth Beex, suggesting that she had mortgaged her two-thirds in 1658 to her sister Joanna, and that the latter had sold them to William Boevey, who devised them to Respondents, brought a Bill in 1683 against Respondents, disputing Joanna's right to sell, as being merely a mortgagee, and the Court decreed the redemption to her on payment of 764*l*. She dying before the money was paid, her daughter Elizabeth Lownes brought a new Bill against Respondents and John Boevey's wife Elizabeth and her two trustees, and L. Jeffreys on 23 Dec. 1687 decreed that all the parties should join in a fine and conveyance of the premises, limiting the use of so much as was in the possession of Dame Anne Smyth to her and her son John Boevey for their lives, then to Sir H. Capell and Garth in trust for John's wife Elizabeth. A fine was levied accordingly, so that Respondents now claim but part of the premises, worth 50*l.* a year. Signed by Respondents. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (b.) 26 Jan. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. It appears by the Answer, that since the dismissal, part of the estate in question is come to the now Right Hon. Henry, Lord Capell, and Richard Garth, Esq., as trustees for the wife of the Respondent John Boevey, and other part to Thomas Lownes and Elizabeth his wife, the daughter and executrix of Elizabeth Bex, deceased, the Petitioner's sister, and that one Jacob Lucy and Thomas Crispe are parties to the Deed. Prays that Lord Capell, Garth, Lownes and his wife, Elizabeth, wife of Respondent John Boevey, and Lucy and Crispe may be added as Respondents. L. J., XV. 202.
- (c.) 6 Feb. 1692-3. Answer of Thomas Lownes and Elizabeth, his wife. The trustees conveyed to Joanna's four daughters in pursuance of the will. The matters in difference between Appellant and his three sisters (Mary Boevey being then dead) were referred in 1653 to three arbitrators, viz., Derick Host, William Crosse and George Morgan, of London, Merchants, on whose award, confirmed by the Court of Chancery, all the parties executed mutual releases to each other. Respondent Elizabeth, on her mother's death, became entitled to the redemption of her two thirds, and L. Jeffreys decreed the premises other than those in the possession of Dame Anne Smyth to the use of Thomas Lownes, who on executing the fine and conveyance was to pay Dame Anne Smyth 250*l.* and give a mortgage of the premises limited to him to Lord Capell and Mr. Garth for security of 500*l.* and interest at 5 per cent. Lownes complied with this decree, and has been put to the expense of about 700*l.* in connection with his share of the premises. Pray that the decree may not be reversed. Signed by Respondents. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (d.) 9 Feb. 1692-3. Answer of the Right Hon. Henry, Lord Capell and Richard Garth, Esq. John Boevey, in consideration of his wife's parting with 2,000*l.*, settled upon her marriage, towards payment of his debts, conveyed the premises to Respondents in trust to raise 1,100*l.* by sale for his wife's separate use, the rest to the use of himself. Lownes and his wife having brought their Bill for the equity of redemption of part of the premises, L. Jeffreys decreed as stated above, and a Fine was levied, the uses whereof were declared by all the parties, and Lownes demised the premises, so limited in use to him, to Respondents. Respondents are only concerned as trustees, and were no parties to the decree complained of. Pray that the Decree may not be reversed. Signed by Respondents. Noted at the foot, "The uses of the Fine abovementioned are by Deed limited to the effect in the Answer set forth. R. Freeman, 8 Feb. 92." Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (e.) 15 Feb. 1692-3. Petition of Appellant. The Respondent Elizabeth Boevey has been served with their Lordships' order to answer, as appears by the Affidavit annexed to the Petition. Prays that she may be ordered to put in her answer forthwith, without which Petitioner is advised that he cannot regularly

For the more effectual [extirpation] suppression of all superstitious trusts and uses, which are yet too much continued and kept up by secret gifts, grants and provisions to and for such trusts and uses, and for the more express and plain declaration of the law touching the same; Be it [declared and] enacted by [their] the King and Queen's most excellent Majesties, &c., That all and every superstitious use and uses, trust and trusts, intents and purposes, of what name, nature or quality soever they are, for the maintenance or support of any of the superstitious rites, ceremonies and errors in the Church of Rome, that have been devised, covenanted, made, declared or raised before the passing of this Act, or that at any time hereafter shall be devised, covenanted, made, declared or raised, shall be and are hereby declared, enacted and adjudged to be forfeited to their Majesties, their heirs and successors, Kings and Queens of England. And it is further enacted and declared, That averments and proofs by parol shall and may be admitted to be made or given of any such use and uses, trust and trusts, intents and purposes against and out of any conveyance or assurance whatsoever, be the same by matter of record, deeds or deed or last will and testament, or otherwise howsoever, which at any time have been made, passed or suffered, or which at any time hereafter shall be had, made, passed or suffered, and although there be no writing specifying or declaring such use or uses, trust or trusts, any law, statute, usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; to be read 2<sup>a</sup> and the two Chief Justices to attend. (L. J., XV. 162).—On 4 Jan. in C. W. H. (Bishop of Salisbury in the Chair) the above amendments were made. Holt, C. J., being heard as to the word ("declared"), said: "It is a new law, and therefore it may be left out." On Report, stating that the Committee had found some difficulties in the Bill, and were of opinion that it should be given to the Judges to consider of it, the House ordered accordingly, the Judges to consider of what amendments were fit to be made, and to bring the same to the House on the 7th (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 173).—On 7 Jan. the C. W. H. was put off till the 11th (L. J., XV. 175), on which day it was again put off till the 13th (ib., 179). No further proceedings. J., XV. 167).—On 2 Jan. the Record was brought in and read. Moved, that L. C. Justice Holt be heard. Holt, C. J.: Desires time, if he must give an account of the whole evidence. Moved, to ask him whether the Duchess was concerned in the Action, and whether adultery was proved, and, if so, whether the Duchess was a party? Holt, C. J.: The Duchess was no Party, neither Plaintiff nor Defendant. It was between the Duke and Germaine. Moved, to ask him whether the Duchess could be made a Party? Moved, that the Counsel be called in, to hear them give an account of the verdict in the King's Bench. After debate, proposed to call in the Counsel and ask them for the Duchess, Whether the Duchess of Norfolk was asked to waive her privilege; whether, if she was, she would have done it? and the Duke's Counsel asked, Whether there were any new matters of fact urged in the Court below? After debate, the Counsel for the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk were [called in] and asked, (1) Whether the Lady Duchess was ever sent [to] to waive the privilege? Sir Cresswell Levinz says he does not know. (2) Whether, if she had been sent to and desired to waive her privilege, she would have done it? Sir William Williams: I believe she would have done it, for she gave her Counsel order to waive it, if the Duke would, and that she would do it. Counsel withdrew, and the Speaker gave the House an account. Question put: Whether the Bill offered to this House on the behalf of the Duke of Norfolk for dissolving of the marriage between the said Duke and his Duchess shall be read? 649. Dec. 30. Warre v. Praed.—Petition and Appeal of William Warre. Daniel Gates, a merchant in currants, sent in 1680 the ship Old African of London, of which he was the owner, with great sums and effects in her to Zante and the Morea, to bring home a cargo of currants, and consigned her to John Praed, a merchant then residing in those parts, with directions to buy and load the currants for Gates' account. Praed did so, and one Pindarves, his partner, paid for them. Gates received the currants and sold them, but never accounted to Petitioner, a partner in half the cargo, for his moiety. Petitioner having made good to Gates whatever was due on account of his partnership, and never having employed Praed as his factor for the cargo, is no ways liable to Praed, who bought on Gates' sole account, and never made any claim against Petitioner until after Gates' death, when, about two years ago, he brought a Bill in Chancery against Petitioner and Agnes, Gates' administratrix. The Court on 5 Dec. 1691 decreed Petitioner and Agnes Gates to account and pay, with costs of suit, and on 25 Feb. last refused their application for a Commission abroad to examine witnesses. Prays that the Decree and Orders may be reversed and proceedings stayed. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Tho. Powys and Rich. Holford, who certify that there is just cause of Appeal. [Read this day, and proceedings below stayed. (L. J., XV. 167.) The Cause was heard on 27 Jan., Sir Ambrose Phillipps and Sir Thos. Powys being heard for the Appellant, and the Solicitor General and Mr. Ward for the Respondent. Decree affirmed with 20*l.* costs. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 204.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 13 Jan. 1692–3. Answer of John Praed. The cargo of currants cost about 20,000 dollars, of which Respondent received only 1,100. The bills of lading were not, as alleged, in Gates' name, but "for account of whom they concerned." Respondent could not bring his Bill earlier, as Appellant caused his books, &c. to be taken away from him at Zante. The application for a Commission was frivolous. Prays that the Appeal, which is merely for delay, may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Hen. Penton. Endorsed as brought in this day.

650. Dec. 31. Bowtell and another v. Appleby.—Petition and Appeal of William Bowtell and Godfrey Webster. The Petitioner Bowtell fitted out at London in 1687, at the expense of 760*l.*, the ship Unity, afterwards called the Asia Minor, for a voyage to Algiers, with a cargo of above 3,000*l.* value, consigned jointly to Lionell Crofts and Respondent, the latter of whom he made master and super-cargo, instructing him to call at Malaga on his way home with wheat and barley, and bring thence his effects from one Robert Swaile, and giving him a bond to pay him out of the cargo what Crofts owed him. Respondent arrived at Algiers in June, but having there inveigled Crofts to sign his accounts, on promise of the cargo, he refused afterwards to admit Crofts with him in disposing of it, according to the consignment; and so quarrelling among themselves, the Government seized a great portion of it for Crofts' debts, and restitution being denied, Respondent thereupon, taking a certificate from the British Consul, prolonged his stay at Algiers unnecessarily till October, and did not return to London till after 17 months, having refused to take in goods tendered to him on Appellant's account, which the latter was bound by contract to deliver in London, but bringing two horses for the Duke of Grafton and coffee on his own account. On his return he brought a Bill in Chancery against Bowtell and the other Appellant Webster, who had bought the ship, for the expenses of the voyage, besides cargo, &c. Bowtell brought a cross-Bill for his cargo and for discovery of breach of orders. The Court, on hearing both causes, made a Decree on 19 Dec. 1690 and subsequent Orders, which Appellants pray to have reversed, assigning reasons. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by William Squibb and Edw. Ward. L. J., XV. 169. [The Cause was heard on 23 Jan. Mr. Finch and Mr. Ward were heard for the Appellants, and the Solicitor-General and Mr. Penton for the Respondent. On question, whether the Decree shall be reversed, Resolved in the Negative.* Contents 13; Not-Contents 18. Tellers, V. Weymouth and L. Cornwallis. Decree affirmed accordingly. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 196.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 9 Jan. 1692-3. Answer of Stephen Appleby. In 1686 Lionell Crofts, being owner of the ship Asia Minor, employed Respondent as her master, to take her from Algiers to London. On his arrival there in September, the Appellant Bowtell, Crofts' uncle, undertook to fit out and load the ship for a return voyage to Algiers. The cargo for this voyage, so far from costing 3,000*l.*, did not cost much over 1,000*l.* Respondent, being owed 150*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* for wages, &c. for the previous voyage, only consented to go as master to Algiers on obtaining a bond for payment thereof by Crofts, but, the sum being left blank, the bond was worthless, as Bowtell well knew. Bowtell pretended, before parting with Respondent, that Crofts had embezzled a previous cargo, bought with public money, which he had sent him for the ransom of English captives, and had forged certificates under the English Consul's hands, of the redemption of several slaves, who had never been redeemed, and several others were only hypothecated to Leghorn for their ransom money, which was also kept by Crofts, the captives being left in slavery, as King James was informed. Bowtell further told Respondent that if he did not take another cargo to redeem these slaves, he was ruined; that Crofts owed him large sums, and would assign to him the ship on a bill of sale, which was accordingly prepared. Matters being thus settled, Bowtell carried Respondent to Whitehall before the Council, and there made a speech how happy it was for him and the poor slaves at Algiers that he had met with such an honest master as Respondent to carry the said cargo for their redemption, and withal assured the Council that all things should be complied with and the slaves redeemed, as the King expected, and by this means, and not till then, Respondent found the second cargo was none of Bowtell's, but was bought with money paid to him by the King and the Bishop of London, collected by charity throughout the kingdom, for the redemption of poor English captives at Algiers. The ship being at Gravesend, ready to sail, Bowtell gave Respondent two lists of captives to be ransomed, and some orders in writing to get the bill of sale signed by Crofts, to make strict scrutiny, name by name, for the captives demanded by the Lords and those on the Bishop's list, and bring back any he found, on the cheapest terms he could, out of the proceeds of the cargo, and to free Bristol and Barker of Weymouth out of any surplus. He was then to load up with rice, coffee, brooms and Malaga wax for England, or anything else more advantageous for Bowtell's interest, but to touch at Marseilles or Leghorn with what captives he brought off, full powers of discretion being left him as to the voyage home. Bowtell would have no partner in the ship nor in the cargo, and no other orders were given to Respondent. On Respondent's arrival at Algiers, Crofts signed the Bill of Sale, and Respondent delivered the cargo on shore, which was at once seized by the Governor and Bassaw, on pretence of a debt from Crofts to that Government, and not upon any quarrel or difference between Respondent and Crofts. Respondent, being in great distress, consulted the English Consul who advised him to stay there till the Duke of Grafton's arrival, and that was the only reason why he remained there so long, doing his best, in the meanwhile, but unavailingly, to recover the cargo, which Bowtell had sent colourably, to pacify the King and Council, knowing well it would be seized, and with the object of getting Respondent seized and kept in slavery, and thus concealing his wicked dealings. The captives to be released were about 48. On the arrival of D. Grafton, L. Berkeley and Sir Cloudesley Shovell before Algiers, with a squadron of men-of-war, in order to treat with that Government about confirming the former peace, the Duke sent L. Berkeley and Sir C. Shovell on shore, to go with the Consul to the Governor and demand the cargo, which they accordingly did; but the Governor refused, and called Respondent "dog" and bade him begone. Respondent then sought the Duke's protection, but, going on shore to get his clearings, was seized and dragged a prisoner into the town, and the natives were coming down to seize the ship also, but L. Berkeley, having notice of it, leapt off the mole into his boat and put off to Respondent's ship, calling for what firearms they had, and with the help of the ship's crew, cut the anchor cable and defended themselves against the natives and got the ship off to the Duke, who manned his boat and put out a flag of truce and sent to the Governor demanding the surrender of Respondent and the cargo. This so alarmed the country, that they gave up Respondent, but not the cargo, and Respondent was forced to leave without redeeming any of the slaves, several of whom are since dead, and with only 80 dollars to keep himself and men. Prays that the Appeal, which is vexatious, may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Hen. Penton. Endorsed as brought in this day.

652. Jan. 3. Ward and others v. Turnor.—Petition and Appeal of James Ward, Esq., Roger Jacson, Christopher Cratford, John Adams and others. Sir Edward Turnor, Knt., owing 16,000*l.* on mortgages, &c., applied for a loan to the Petitioner Adams, who agreed to furnish him with the money at 6 per cent. interest on an assignment of his securities, and thereupon Sir Edward in 1687 conveyed the premises to Petitioners as security for 13,000*l.*, and afterwards made a conveyance for 3,000*l.* more, both defeazanced for payment of the 16,000*l.* with interest at 6 per cent. The money lay ready to pay off the incumbrances on the estate as Sir Edward could get the incumbrancers to receive their moneys and assign their securities; but Sir Edward neglecting to get some of them to do this, part of the 16,000*l.* lay dead for some time in Adams' hands, though afterwards paid, and on Sir Edward's failing to pay either principal or interest, Petitioners brought their ejectment and obtained judgment. Sir Edward then brought a Bill in Chancery to redeem the estate, and the Court, on 30 June 1691, decreed him redemption on payment of principal and interest at 5 per cent., and that not from the time when the conveyances were sealed, but only from the times when the moneys were paid to take in the incumbrances, which it was incumbent on Sir Edward and not on Petitioners to procure. Sir Edward is thus discharged from paying interest on 6,000*l.*, which lay in Adams' hands to pay off the debt of one of the incumbrancers, Sir William Gosling, and Adams, who was only the Agent who provided the money, is to pay

- (a.) 19 Jan. 1692-3. Answer of Sir Edward Turnor, Knt. Adams agreed in 1687 to procure for Respondent, on the security of his estate, 20,000*l*. at 5 per cent., that being the highest rate of interest then, as now, generally paid for moneys lent on mortgages, and especially for considerable sums. Respondent treated with Adams alone, and Appellants Jacson and Cratford have declared that they lent no money, and that Adams used their names without their privity. The decree is only against Adams, who oppressed Respondent, and refused him counterparts or copies of the conveyances. Respondent thereupon applied to Sir Robert Clayton, who agreed to advance him 20,000*l*. at 5 per cent., if Mr. Ewer, who had passed the conveyances for Adams, would approve the title. Adams refused to show the deeds, and incited Respondent's creditors to prosecute him. Adds further details which appear in next Paper. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by P. Bowes. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (b.) 18 Jan. 1693-4. Petition of Sir Edward Turnor. Petitioner having agreed with John Adams, a scrivener, one of the Appellants, for a loan of a considerable sum, executed on 28 May 1687 an absolute conveyance, dated the 6th of the preceding April, of a great part of his estate to such persons as Adams nominated, in consideration of 13,000*l*. upon an agreement for a redemption thereof, 6,000*l*. of which was acknowledged by the deed to be paid to Sir William Gosling, one of Petitioner's creditors, and the remaining 7,000*l*. was mentioned to be paid to Petitioner, but by another deed of the same date it was declared that the 7,000*l*. should be paid by Adams to the rest of the creditors, according to their priority. Petitioner, being greatly imposed on by Adams in his accounts, there being only 100*l*. paid when the deed was sealed, and 3,700*l*. in thirteen months after by several payments, while Adams charged Petitioner with interest on the whole 13,000*l.* from 15 April 1687, being 700*l.* too much, brought a Bill in Chancery against Adams, as well as James Ward and Christopher Lethiculier, Esqrs., and Roger Jacson and Christopher Cratford, Gents., for redemption of his estate, and against Adams for his demand of 6 per cent. interest, and the Court, on 30 June 1691, decreed that he should redeem on paying 5 per cent. interest from the times each sum was advanced. This Decree was generally reversed by the House on 10 Feb. last, but it remained doubtful on what terms Petitioner should have the redemption and reconveyance of his estate. Prays their Lordships for a declaration, and for a short day for hearing both parties. L. J., XV. 346. [On 26 Jan. 1693-4, after hearing Sir Thomas Powys for Petitioner and Sir Bartholomew Shower for the Appellant Ward, the Judgment was explained with directions. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 353.)]

(c.) 24 Jan. 1693-4. Petition of Respondent. The suit in chancery which came up on Appeal to the House, was instituted in consequence of Adams having caused declarations of ejectment to be delivered for the mortgaged estate, which was worth between 40,000*l.* and 50,000*l.* Respondent gave a judgment upon the ejectment, subject to the order of the Court, whereupon an injunction was awarded to stay proceedings at law, which was continued by the Decree in Chancery. In May 1693, the Appellants moved that a Reeiver of the estate might be appointed, and the injunction dissolved, but the Lord Keeper decided that he could do nothing. Appellants then took out execution on the judgment in ejectment, which forced Petitioner to bring a Writ of Error. Appellants have required from the Sheriff a return of the Scire facias for Petitioner to assign error, and even since notice of their Lordships' order to hear Counsel on the 25th inst., their attorney has taken the return away from the Sheriff, as appears by the Sheriff's letter annexed, and threatens to turn Petitioner out of the estate. Prays that all proceedings in ejectment and Writ of Error may be stayed pending the hearing of Respondent's last Petition. L. J., XV. 349.

653. Jan. 3. Macclesfeild v. Macclesfeild and another.—Petition and Appeal of Ralph Macklesfeild, Gent. Petitioner's grandfather, Peter Macklesfeild, died in 1656, being seized in fee of the manors of Chesterton and Mare, and other lands in Staffordshire, worth 300*l.* a year. Being a Recusant, to shelter his estate from sequestration, he vested some estate in Chesterton in Andrew Vize and Thos. Clayton, and mortgaged for some inconsiderable sum or conveyed the manor of Mare to Charles Chapman, as trustees for himself and heirs. After his death, his second son, Thomas, Petitioner's uncle, procured conveyances of the manors, in the case of Chesterton, to the use of his wife Mary, the Respondent, and in the case of Mare, for himself, for little or no consideration. Appellant brought a Bill, and afterwards a supplemental Bill, in Chancery for discovery against Mary and her son

Peter, then an infant, but his Bills were dismissed on 28 Jan., 33 Car. II., on the ground that Appellant was illegitimate, notwithstanding the proof to the contrary. The conveyances were fraudulent, and Respondents had full knowledge of Appellant's title before they were made. Prays that the decrees may be reversed. Signed Ralph Mackellsfeild; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and Jo. Danyell. L. J., XV. 171. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed with 20*l.* costs on 9 Feb., the Solicitor-General and Sir William Williams appearing for Appellant, and Sir Francis Winnington and Sir Thomas Powys for Respondents. Sir Thomas Powys: After two dismissions and fines, and two jointures, he is come hither. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 221.)]

Annexed:--

(a.) 20 Jan. Answer of Mary Macklesfeild, widow, and Peter Maeklesfeild, her son, by Thomas Maeklesfeild, her late husband, deceased. Peter, the grandfather, sold the manor of Chesterton, after the determination of a lease to one Badely, which expired in 1673, to Vize and Clayton, who sold it, also on valuable consideration, to Respondent Mary's late husband, who, in consideration of 800*l.*, part of her marriage portion, settled it on William Woodfeild, Thomas Lyon, and Thomas Barret, in trust for himself and his wife for their lives, and after them, for their son and his heirs. The manor, &c. of Mare descended to Respondent Peter, as son and heir of Thomas, who bought the inheritance expectant on the determination of a lease then in being from one Charles Chapman for 500*l.*, to whom it had been sold in 1631 for the same sum. Appellant's first Bill was dismissed on 27 Nov., 30 Car. II., and the second Bill was dismissed, with a conditional order for costs if he brought a further Bill. Respondents mortgaged the manors to John Jackson, of Wolverton, co. Stafford, and Richard Thorley, near Stafford, for 600*l.*, to defray their expenses of the suit, and paid off these mortgagees out of 1,100*l.* borrowed from Humphrey Perry on Chesterton alone. The Respondent, Peter, on his marriage with Margaret Bell, who brought him a considerable portion, vested both manors, which he held by purchase and inheritance, in trustees for himself, his wife and their children, and had borrowed money upon the premises; and the Appellant had taken no action for 11 years after the last dismission. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs, as vexatious. Signed by Mary Macclisfeild and Peter Macclesfield; Countersigned by Fra. Winnington. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 28 Jan. Petition of Appellant for a day for hearing. Signed Ralph Maeklesfeild. L. J., XV. 206.

654. Jan. 3. Pitt's Estate Act.—Amended Draft of an Act to enable Trustees to sell part of the lands and tenements of Mathew Pitt, Esq., and Robert Pitt, Gent., for the payment of debts and to settle the rest of their lands upon the said Mathew and Robert, and the wife of the said Robert, and their issue. The Lords' Amendments* are to read ("Henry Wallis") instead of ("William Wallis"), and ("1,000*l.*") instead of ("2,200*l.*") as the debts on bond of the two Pitts; to add ("Charles Raymond") to the names of Trustees; to give Matthew Pitt the elder ("40*l.*") instead of ("60*l.*") yearly rent; to substitute for ("ease and determine") at the end of the section dealing with the

655. Jan. 5. Popham's Estate Act.—Consent of Alexander Popham, brother of Sir Francis Popham, K.B., to the passing of the Act to enable Alexander Popham, Esq., to settle a Jointure upon his wife, and to make provision for younger children, upon receipt of 12,000*l.* Portion, to be applied for payment of his debts. Dated 14 Dec. 1692. 656. Jan. 7. Nicoll v. Keigwin.—Petition and Appeal of Humphrey Nicoll, Esq. Petitioner's father, Anthony, being seized of the manor of Trelill, co. Cornwall, and other lands there, and also of the reversion of certain lands called Upton alias Tupton, expectant on a lease granted to Dorothy, wife of Thos. Hutton, Clerk, conveyed in 1652 the said manor and other lands to John Nicoll, Gent., and others, in trust to pay his debts and portions to his younger children, by demise or lease of the premises for any term not exceeding 21 years or three lives, reserving the ancient rents and services, and after such payment, to the use of Anthony and his heirs, with a proviso to be void on tender of 1*s.* to the Trustees. On Anthony's death, the reversion of Upton descended to Petitioner, his son and heir, then a minor. William Keigwin, having an estate next to Upton, bought in Dorothy's lease, and falsely pretended that he had agreed with John Nicoll for a conveyance to him of Upton, as being part of the manor of Trelill and consequently within the trust, although the clause in the deed, giving the Trustees power to sell, is interlined and inconsistent with the context, and pursuant to this alleged agreement John Nicoll in 1662 granted him the inheritance of the estate. William Keigwin died, and left his son John his heir and administrator, and the term for 99 years in Upton being expired, Petitioner brought his action to recover the lands. John Keigwin, being conscious of his defective title, brought a Bill in Chancery in 1685 to compel Petitioner to confirm the conveyance of Upton, which he pretended had been fairly purchased; and on 11 Feb. last, though it appeared that the trustees had no power to make the sale, the Court decreed against Petitioner with costs. The estate was not within the trust, nor was the pretended purchase money applied to the trust. Prays that the Decree may be reversed, and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Humphrey Nicoll; Countersigned by Edw. Ward and Jonath. Gorstelowe Snow, who certify that there is just cause of Appeal. L. J., XV. 175. [The Appeal was dismissed with 40*l.* costs on 21 Feb., no Counsel appearing for the Appellant. (MS. Min. ; L. J., XV. 241.)]

- (a.) 27 Jan. Petition of Respondent for further time to answer, Respondent and his papers being almost at the Lands End in Cornwall. L. J., XV. 203.
- (b.) 8 Feb. Answer of John Keigwin, Esq. The reversion of Upton did not descend to Appellant, being part of the manor of Trelill, and so conveyed to the trustees, who were Anthony's brother, John Niccoll, and his friends John Pincombe, Phillip Lower, and John Barrett. The trustees sold the inheritance of Upton for 147*l.* to Respondent's father, the purchaser of Dorothy's lease, by whom the estate was conveyed to Respondent. Knows nothing of any interlineation. On Appellant's coming of age, the trustees reconveyed to him the lands remaining unsold, and Appellant gave security by bond in 3,000*l.* to confirm all the sales made by them. Appellant brought his action after all the trustees were dead, and he had got all the deeds, showing Respondent's title, into his possession. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Counter-signed by Chich. Yonge. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (c.) 11 Feb. Petition of Respondent for an early day for hearing. L. J., XV. 224.
- (d.) 4 April 1694. Petition of Margaret, the relict, and James Keigwin, Esq., son and heir of Respondent. Respondent last June, through Samuel Hutchins, his servant, demanded payment of his costs, pursuant to their Lordships' order, but Appellant refused. Respondent dying the same month, left Petitioners his residuary legatees, who have taken out letters of administration. Appellant did not enter into any Recognizance. Prays that he may be compelled to obey their Lordships' order. [An expunged entry in MS. Min. of date states that the Petition was read this day. No order was made. No entry in L. J.]
- (d<sup>1</sup>.) 4 April 1694. Affidavit of Sampson Hutchins, of Burgan, co. Cornwall, stating that he served their Lordships' order of 21 Feb. 1692-3., on Appellant and demanded payment and produced a receipt ready for him, but that Appellant refused to pay. Sworn 29 March 1694, at Truro, before John Foote, Extraord. 657. Jan. 9. D. Northumberland's Privilege (John Smith).—Affidavit of John Smith, hunting groom of the stables to D. Northumberland, as to his arrest on 15 Aug. last, at the suit of John Sawyer, by Richard Best and Thos. Bishopp, bailiffs to the Sheriff of Middlesex, who took no cognizance of the Protection he produced. Deponent was kept 14 days in Newgate, and had to remove himself by Habeas Corpus to King's Bench Prison, before he could obtain his liberty. Sworn 6 Dec. 1692 before Rob. Legard, Master in Chancery. L. J., XV. 176. [Smith, being sworn this day, said the affidavit was true, and that he was a menial servant to the Duke. Asked whether he received wages, he said no. The Duke owned that he gave no wages. Ordered that the parties be attached (MS. Min.). On 11 Jan. the MS. Min. have

658. Jan. 11. L. Mohun (Murder of Mountford).—Petition of Charles, Lord Mohun. Petitioner, after voluntarily surrendering to the constable, was on 10 Dec. last carried before the Justices at Hicks' Hall touching the supposed murder of Mr. Wm. Mountford, where three of the Justices took the examinations of 13 witnesses, none of which could charge Petitioner with the murder, but it appeared that Mountford was killed by one Capt. Hill, who is since fled for it, whereupon the Justices took Petitioner's bail. Since then, a fresh warrant is out against him, and to avoid a chargeable imprisonment, he withdrew himself, but knowing his innocence, is willing and ready to surrender to the House. Prays for a speedy trial at the Bar, and to be admitted meanwhile to bail. [Read this day, and referred to the Committee for Privileges, with the assistance of Holt, C. J. (L. J., XV. 179). The proceedings consequent on this Petition were as follows:—

13 Jan. In Committee for Privileges, M. Halifax in the Chair, the Order of Reference and the Petition are read. [Agreed] to report, that they do not find any Precedent that a Peer was tried at the Bar of this House, but in Westminster Hall. Concerning Bail:—E. Lincoln's case cited. The Book was read in this case. E. Pembroke's case read, 22 March 1677. Proposed to consider the time he can be tried, and to send for what is found against him by the Coroner or otherwise. Agreed, that the Coroner's Inquest be sent for. Proposed, to consider what time he may be tried. [Agreed], That a convenient time be set for L. Mohun's trial, and that he be sent to the Tower of London. (Priv. Book.)—The same day the House was informed that L. Mohun had surrendered. Ordered that he be committed to the custody of the Black Rod until further order (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 182).

On Report on 14 Jan. (L. J., XV. 183) the House made several orders (L. J., XV. 184), before which the MS. Min. have the following cancelled entry: "Holt, C. J., heard as to the Coroner's Inquest or Indictment before the Grand Jury. Moved, that the Coroner's Inquest be sent for in relation to Mr. Mountford's death. After debate, Question put, whether the Coroner shall be" (sic).

The Committee appointed on 20 Jan. to inspect precedents of methods to be used at the Trial (L. J., XV. 193) met on 23 Jan., E. Bridgewater in the Chair, when the proceedings at the trial of E. Strafford, 19 March 1640, and in E. Pembroke's case, beginning 1 March 1677, were read. After ordering to report, a Petition of Sir Thos. Duppa, the Black Rod, complaining that he could not have goods of the Wardrobe for furnishing the House in Westminster Hall, according to the King's warrant, was read, but nothing done on it (Com. Book).—The Report was made on 23 Jan., after which the House made several further orders (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 196).

On 25 Jan. the MS. Min. have the following, not in L. J.—"House moved that the number of tickets that are to be given out for placing of Peer's wives . . . (sic). That the Surveyor-General be heard as to the number of places. Ordered that the Surveyor-General attend. Ordered to alter the order.*

* The House on 23 Jan. had ordered that every Peer should have 8 tickets for places (L. J., XV. 196). See also Ib. 206.

On 26 Jan. the MS. Min. in giving the order as to Peer's eldest sons going next after the Judges to the Trial (L. J., XV. 202), add "as formerly in the Lord Stafford's trial." This seems to be a mistake for "Strafford."

The proceedings and speeches of Counsel,* &c., at the Trial in Westminster Hall are printed in extenso in Howell's State Trials, Vol. XII., pp. 950-1050. With regard to the proceedings in the House, the MS. Min. supply some particulars in addition to what appears in the printed journals.

31 Jan. After the Bishops had delivered their Protestation and withdrawn, it was "Moved, that all the Lords now present shall attend the House to-morrow, and if any Peer shall be absent to-morrow, he shall be sent to the Tower. After debate, Question put, whether this House shall now go on? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 30; Not-Contents 50. Tellers: E. Rochester and L. 1 Feb. The House having resumed, after adjourning to robe, it was "Moved that the Judges do not come up with the Lords again. Moved, to know what penalty shall be on the Lords absent at the call of the House. Ordered that the debate of the Lords fined for being absent yesterday be adjourned till after the Trial is over."‡ Then follows the order respecting Peers absent this day, &c., as in L. J., XV. 211. The House being then called over, all the Lords were found present who were present yesterday.§ Then the House resumed the debate as to the presence of the Judges, and they were directed to withdraw into the Court below. Then the House went into debate of L. Mohun's case. After debate, Moved to ask the Judges, how far an accessory without malice prepense can be distinguished from the principal of the murder? After debate, Question proposed:—

Where a murder has happened, whether the law requires a premeditated malice against the person murdered in all the parties concerned, to make them all guilty for the same murder? Noted in margin "L. C." [? Lord Chamberlain].

That in case of a murder, where persons have been present, circumstances have been such, that the accessories or persons present have not been found guilty. Noted in margin, L. P. [? Lord President].

The following Question to be asked the Judges in Westminster Hall, was then proposed, and after amendment agreed to,|| viz.:—In a case where [there shall be a principal in murder], a man shall murder another, whether those who are in [the company of the said principal] his company at the time of the murder, are so necessarily involved in the said crime [with the principal], that they may not be separated from the crime of the said [principal] person, so as in some cases to be found guilty only of manslaughter. Ordered, &c., as in L. J., XV. 211.

3 Feb. After leave had been given, on motion, to the Judges to go to the Courts below, there being many Causes depending, "and the term near ending," the House went into debate of several Questions to be asked the Judges in Westminster Hall (L. J., XV. 211). Moved, that every Peer ask what question he pleases of the Judges in the Hall. Proposed, that every Lord shall propose the Question he intends to ask below in the House, to be agreed to, and then ask it below as his own Question. The following Questions were then proposed:—

Whether in the eye of the law the Lord Mohun was aiding and abetting in the murder of Mr. Mountford? Noted in margin: "E.r." [? L. Willoughby Eresby].

If a man kills another out of malice prepense, how far a man that is in his company at the time of the death is said in law to be aiding and assisting? Noted in margin: "L. St." [Lord Steward].

Whether a person having no express malice . . .? (sic). Noted in margin: "War." [? E. Warrington].

A, conscious of an animosity between B and C, A accompanies B in that place where B kills C. Whether A, without any premeditated malice to C, be guilty of murder? Noted in margin: "E. Mon." [E. Monmouth].

A, conscious of animosity between B and C, A accompanies B in a place * where C happens to come, and B kills C. Whether A, without any malice to C, or any actual hand in his death, be guilty of murder? Noted in margin: "E. Monmouth." Agreed.

If A [happens to] be in company with B, where C happens to come, [when] B kills C, A knowing before that B had a prepense malice against C, how far is A guilty in point of law, though without any prepense malice of his own? Noted in margin: "L. Steward. This Question was not put, the L. Steward desisting."†

"Whether, if A hear B threaten," etc., as in Howell, p. 1027. Noted in margin: "E. Scarborough." Agreed. Agreed, that these questions be proposed in the Hall by the several Lords, and the Lord High Steward to put them to their Lordships. Agreed, that Counsel of either side may [altered from "shall"] be heard to the Questions before the Judges answer thereunto.

The House then adjourned to Westminster Hall, and certain of the questions agreed to were asked of the Judges, &c., as in Howell (pp. 1,015 sqq.), and a further question, not previously agreed to, being proposed by E. Kingston, the Lords adjourned back to their House to consider it.‡ After debate, Agreed, that the L. High Steward tell the Court below that every Lord may ask what question he pleases, &c., as in L. J., XV. 212.

House adjourned again to Westminster Hall, and, after concluding the Questions§ to the Judges, the Lords adjourned back to their House, when it was "Proposed to go on with the business. Proposed by some others to adjourn" (MS. Min.). Ordered as in L. J., XV. 213.

‡ This appears from MS. Min. and Howell. The Lords' Journal records the adjournment, but not the reason.

§ In L. Cornwallis' Question the MS. Min. read ("will make William equally guilty with Thomas") instead of ("will make William guilty with Thomas") as in Howell, p. 1042.

There was a call of the House on 31 Jan., before adjourning to Westminster Hall, and the Lords Temporal then answering to their names, constituted the Court, which was called over on Feb. 1, 3, and 4, according to the next Paper (L. J., XV. 211, 212, 214). This Call on 31 Jan., was pursuant to an Order of 26 Jan., ordering all the Peers to be summoned to attend the trial who were "in town, or within 20 miles thereof" (Ib. 202).‡ The 41 Peers, above referred to,

* No mention of this Order appears in L. J., and no proceedings are recorded in Com. Book. It was, no doubt, merely a motion.

† Two of these 85, viz., E. Sussex and L. Sidney, were found absent on 3 Feb., but excused the next day (L. J., XV. 214). The remaining 83 were those who voted at the Trial. Garter's Roll of this Session (4 Nov. 1692), gives a total of 163 Temporal Peers, including L. Mohun.

[This Bill, which according to Ralph * was brought in by the Earl of Shrewsbury, was read 1<sup>a</sup> this day. (L. J., XV. 181). In Committee of the Whole House the following proceedings are recorded:—

16 Jan. L. Cornwallis in the Chair. The Bill was read through. The Title and Preamble read and postponed.

First Enacting Clause read. Statutes 4 Edw. III. c. 14., 36 Edw. III. c. 10., and 16 Car. II. c. 1., read. Then this Clause and the next one were amended as shown in the text above. On considering how to fill the first blank in Clause ii., it was Proposed to alter the Clause: That Parliaments sit every year, a new Parliament every three years; No compulsory Clause in the Bill; A time set for the determination of this Parliament, and a Committee to draw up this Clause. Ordered to report accordingly. After debate, Question put: Whether the House shall be now resumed? Resolved in the Affirmative. Contents 32; Not-Contents 26. Tellers: D. Somerset and the Lord Steward.

House resumed, and L. Cornwallis reported as in L. J., XV. 185. Report agreed to, and Select Committee appointed to prepare a Clause accordingly, with the assistance of Mr. Justice Rokeby (MS. Min.).

In Select Committee on 17 Jan., E. Stamford in the Chair, a Clause drawn by Mr. Justice Rokeby was read and afterwards by paragraphs and agreed to be reported † (Com. Book).

18 Jan. E. Stamford reported the Clause, which was committed to a Committee of the Whole House forthwith. In C. W. H., Bishop of Salisbury in the Chair, the Clause was read through.

1st and 2nd Enacting Clauses agreed to.

The Clause for determining this Parliament. (Par. iv. of Annex (a) below) read. A debate was upon the time to be settled for determining this Parliament, and filling the blank. Question put: Whether the blank shall be filled up with ("the 1st day of January, which shall be in the year of our Lord 1693")? Resolved in the Affirmative. Then the Clause, as filled up with the date above, was read. Moved to name a Committee to word the Clause. The Clause, as worded, agreed to, and the last Paragraph in the Clause drawn to be inserted.

Then the Paragraphs in the old Bill read. The Bill read rejected. The 2nd Clause read rejected. The 3rd Clause read rejected. The Preamble read in the old Bill rejected. Title read. Amended by adding ("and to prevent the too long continuance of").* In the Title, after ("for") add ("the"), and after ("frequent") add ("calling and").

House resumed, and Bp. of Salisbury reported the Bill with Amendments and Provisos.† The Amendments read. Title read, and amended, and agreed to. The whole Bill read and agreed to, with an Amendment in the Preamble. Then a Paragraph agreed to the other day by the Committee was read and laid aside.‡ Ordered that the Bill be engrossed as amended, and read 3<sup>a</sup> on 21 Jan. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 189).

20 Jan. The MS. Min. have the following entry, not in L. J.: "Agreed at 12 o'clock to read the Bill for frequent Parliaments, and the Cause to be sent out, if not over."§

21 Jan. Bill read 3<sup>a</sup>. An Amendment made at the Table by altering ("is") to ("shall be"). Bill passed and sent to the Commons (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 194), who amended it as stated in the Notes to Annex (a) below.|| Royal Assent refused 14 March. See No. 736.]

Cholmeley, Bart., deceased), and Elizabeth Cholmeley, eldest daughter of the said Sir William Cholmeley and the said Dame Katherine; and (3) Sir Hugh Cholmeley and John Savile, Esq., and the Hon. John Strode, Esq., Sir Edward Dering, in consideration of a marriage to be had between his son Edward and Elizabeth Cholmeley, and of her marriage portion of 6,000*l.*, settled the manor of Northwood Chastners in Kent to the use of himself for life, without impeachment of waste, and after his death, to the use of Dame Mary, his wife, for her jointure, and after their deaths to the use of his said son and his heirs male, remainder to the use of himself, his heirs and assigns for ever. After Sir Edward's death, his widow, on 27 May 1689, released to her said son, then Sir Edward, all her right to the premises, and accepted of a rentcharge of 70*l.* a year, chargeable on some other lands. Sir Edward the younger suffered a common recovery, and on 14 June 1689 by his will bequeathed the premises to his brother, Thomas Knatebull, Esq., William Brockman, of Richborough, Esq., Major Ralph Buffkin and Roger Paine, Esq., of Otterden, as Trustees, to be sold for payment of his debts, the surplus to be invested in land to be settled in the same way as his capital, mansion-house, and park in the parishes of Pluckley and Little Chart, co. Kent. It appears by a Deed of 25 May 1685, that Dame Mary and her said son jointly conveyed the premises to Henry Dering for one year, to make him tenant to the Præcipe, in order to the suffering a common recovery, and the deed of release upon the same

663. Jan. 17. Ashby v. Crawford.—Petition and Appeal of Champion Ashby, of London, Merchant. The late John Swanson in 2 Jac. II. brought a Bill in Chancery against Petitioner, a dealer to Barbadoes, to account for the profits of a cargo of stuffs and perpetuances, of the value of 150*l.*, bought from Swanson and shipped for Guinea on board the pink "William and Betty," under an agreement that Petitioner should pay Swanson for the goods on his return, and have half the clear profits for himself. Petitioner answered by setting forth an agreement, whereby the goods were not to be accounted for till 30 days after the pink's return, which never was, being lost or broken up at Barbadoes on her voyage back. The Master of the Rolls on 11 Feb. 1687-8 referred the account and Swanson's agreement to a Master, who reported that no certain number of bales were shipped on Plaintiff's account. Swanson dying, the cause was revived by Respondents, who put in exceptions, which were allowed on 1 July 1692 by the Lords Commissioners, and Petitioner was directed to be charged with 222*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*, with interest and costs, having thereout an allowance for a moiety of the clear profits. The Master accordingly has reported charging Petitioner with 353*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.*, which the Court on 3 Dec. has decreed him to pay by the first day of Hilary Term. Prays that the said Orders and Decree may be reversed, and that Henry Crawford and Anne his wife, and William Meadows and Katherine his wife may be ordered to answer, and a day appointed for hearing. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Tho. Strode and E. Ward. L. J., XV. 186. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed with 10*l.* costs on 9 March. Serjeant Strode (for Appellant) opened the case. Mr. Ward (for Appellant): We assign two causes, (1) that there is no ground of evidence to charge us, (2) that what we have sworn the Chancery has decreed against upon a believing witness. Sir Thomas Powys (for Respondents): We bought the goods, he to have the half of the clear profit. Mr. Filmer (for Respondent) is heard. Counsel for Appellant heard in reply. J., XV. 189).—On 19 Jan., on consideration of this Report, an expedient was proposed, that a Conference be desired and agree and tell them at a Conference that the House cannot agree with their Reasons. Moved, That the House be put into a Committee for freedom of debate. The Standing Order read. House put into a Committee accordingly, and after a long time spent therein, L. Cornwallis in the Chair, the Lords went on with the former debate. Moved to recede for this reason, because there is more in the Proviso than was intended by this House. Moved to name a Committee to draw what shall be offered at a Conference with the House of Commons. Moved to refer it to the Committee for Privileges. After debate, Question put (sic): Whether this matter shall be referred to the Committee for Privileges? Question put: Whether it is the opinion of this Committee to report to the House that this matter be referred to the Committee for Privileges? Resolved in the Negative. Contents 36; Not-Contents 50. Tellers, E. Mulgrave§ and E. After debate, House resumed. Question put: Whether the House shall be now adjourned? Resolved in the Negative. Leave to Protest. Question put: Whether this matter shall be referred to the Committee for Privileges? Resolved in the Negative.||

* An expunged entry here adds, "Agreed to have 25 first named," after which it was at first proposed to name a Committee to draw the Clause, and then referred to L. Godolphin.

† These reasons are given in extenso in C. J., X. 780 and in a paper pasted into the MS. Min. of 18 Jan. opposite the entry of the Report of the Conference by the Clerk.

‡ The L. Steward was proposed as a Manager (MS. Min.). His name is not in L. J., XV. 189. Ralph has a curious statement that the Lords had no sooner sent down the Bill with the Provisos, than they went on the hearing of Lord Banbury's claim of Peerage, in order to frustrate the Commons' demand for an instant Conference, and while that business was depending, the Commons' messengers could not be admitted (ii. 398). The Conference desired was "a Conference," not a "present Conference," and there is nothing in either L. J. or C. J. to show that Sir Thomas Clarges, who had been ordered on the 17th to take the Message desiring it (C. J., X. 780), went to the Lords the same day and was not admitted; and, if so, he certainly did not mention it in his Report on the 18th (Ib. 782). As for the Banbury Peerage claim, the debate, etc., on the 17th had been already fixed by adjournment from the 14th (L. J., XV. 183).

§ Mulgrave supported this motion "to examine precedents" in a speech of several hours, which Burnet says was the finest he ever heard in Parliament. He adds (IV. 188) that the motion was made for delay, in the hope of putting a stop to the Bill.

|| The Clerk had here entered the words "Cont. Not. Tellers, E. Mulgrave and E. Rochester," but afterwards expunged them, as no division took place.

Leave to Protest. Question put: Whether the House shall recede from the Clause in question? Resolved in the Affirmative. A Committee appointed to consider of what shall be offered at the Conference. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 190).—On 20 Jan. this Committee met, E. Rochester in the Chair, and agreed on the Reasons (Com. Book) which were reported the same day, and agreed to, after being altered.* A Message was then sent for another Conference, which was had, and the House resumed. The Lords not having insisted on their Provisos (C. J. X. 784), the Bill received the Royal Assent the same day. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 192.)]

[Read 1st this day; Notice to be given to Trustees or Guardian of L. Jeffreys and Counsel ordered. (L. J., XV. 190.) On 17 Feb. Counsel on both sides were called in. Sir William Thompson and Sir Thomas Powys were heard for L. Jeffreys against the Bill, and Sir William Williams and Sir Creswell Levinz for E. Pembroke in favour of it. Counsel against the Bill heard in reply. David Thomas, [Reyland] Hughes, and Marmaduke Gibbs sworn and examined. Counsel withdrew. Judges heard. *Holt, C. Jeffreys. David Thomas sworn, and being asked by L. Jeffrey's Counsel at the Bar if he knew of any Dedimus Potestatem, said: "I do know there was a Dedimus sued out for a fine." Q. Was there a Dedimus to the Recovery? A. I verily believe there was one. I know not what became of it. I verily believe it was returned. It was arraigned in Court. Q. Was Herbert Salladine a Commissioner? A. I believe he was. I filled up the names. I filled up that of the fine. Philpott sworn. In 1683 E. Pembroke sent for the copy of a Recovery. He found out a fine and one Recovery, and there was a rasure for the Dedimus of the Recovery. I saw none. Herbert Salladine he saw in a rasure in the Dedimus for the fine, but not for the Recovery. He would have imposed the Dedimus for the fine upon me for the Recovery. I said I never saw the Dedimus for the Recovery. Anthony Guime said if I would say I saw the Dedimus for the Recovery, I should have 100 guineas. William Thomas sworn, and asked what has been told him of this? As to the reading of the Dedimus to him of the fine, for the Dedimus for the Recovery he spoke to me of it. Reyland Hughes sworn. I was surrogator of the fines. The Recovery was delivered to me, to enter on the Roll. I cannot say I saw the name of Herbert Salladine in the Dedimus for the Recovery. They withdraw. The Judges heard as follows. Holt, C. J.: Several errors are complained of, and are amended. The question is, whether they are amended according to law. It appears the Writ of Covenant bore date 27 Car. II. The Dedimus must [be] 26. If continued so, it had made a great error in the fine, and must have been reversed. I am of opinion this was not amendable. It is matter of substance, and by the Common law cannot be amended. There are two Statutes which allow amendments, that is, mistakes of the Clerk, but matter of substance or ignorance or default is not amendable. Gage's Case is reported to have been amended, because it was an amicable amendment. As to the other amendments, as names of towns, &c., they may be amended. Treby, C. J.: There are to be but two points. I am of the same opinion. The L. C. Baron not with the Judges, and gave no opinion. Dolben, J.: I am of the same opinion. Nevill, J.: I doubt in this case, and am of a different opinion. Gregory, J., Rokeby, J., Eyres, J., and Powell, B. of the same opinion as the Chief Justices. Judges asked if there was any remedy but by an Act? Holt, C. J.: The fine being amended, there is no remedy but by Act of Parliament. Q. Suppose a purchaser had bought under this fine, [whether] it had not been a good purchase? Holt, C. J.: No question but all is safe, and the purchaser will be so and others, until the Legislature intercedes. The Bill was then read 2<sup>a</sup> and committed to C. W. H. tomorrow. Petition of Serjeant Geers* read, and Counsel for Petitioner ordered to be heard before the Bill is reported. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 241-2.)

In C. W. H. on 22 Feb., E. Bridgewater in the Chair, the Bill was read through. Title and Preamble read and postponed. 1st Enacting Clause read. Judges to draw a Clause with the two Errors in it to be amended and set aside. The other Clauses in the Bill read. Judges to draw a Clause to be added to the last Clause in the Bill, as the L. Privy Seal offered. Preamble read, and after some amendments made in it, progress reported as in L. J., XV. 244. (MS. Min.). Later on in the day, the House went into Committee again on the Bill, E. Bridgewater in the Chair. The Amendments as made by the House and Judges were read and agreed to, and the Committee went through the Bill. House resumed. Serjeant Geers was called in and told he was at liberty to say what he pleased, not only in his own behalf, but also against the Bill. He said: As to the Dedimus, if it appears there was a Dedimus, though lost, there may be a supply. As to the Teste of the Writ of Covenant which [is] amended, I had the concurrence of my brother Judge. As to delays, which is the first complaint, he was told the Bill was altered. In Hilary Term 1687 we were allowed Writs of Error, and we made a rule that at the next Great Sessions the Writs should be returned. The King's Bench called for the Writ of Error. I have my Brother's letter to me in this case. Mr. Marmaduke Guime (sworn), says he believes that to be Mr. Owen Wynn's letter read by the Clerk at the Bar. By the letter it appeared he had his Brother's consent. They withdrew. The Bill was then reported with the amendments, which were agreed to, and the Bill ordered to be engrossed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 244.)—On 24 Feb. a Rider, offered by E. Pembroke, was added, on third reading,* and the Bill was sent to the Commons (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 247), where, after hearing Counsel for E. Pembroke and L. Jeffreys and Lady Charlotte, his wife, a motion to commit the Bill was negatived on 6 March by 107 to 81, and a third reading refused without a division. (C. J., X. 844.)]

Annexed:—

- (a.) 21 Feb. Petition of Thomas Geers, Serjeant-at-Law. Counsel for the Earl, in drawing the Bill, have made several undue reflections on Petitioner, who was then one of the Judges of the Great Sessions for Glamorganshire, with Owen Wynn, Serjeant-at-law. Petitioner proceeded in the matter before him with great integrity and impartial justice. Prays to be heard at the Bar touching the aspersions upon him. L. J., XV. 241.
- (b.) 24 Feb. Petition of John, Lord Jeffreys and the Lady Charlotte, his wife. The Petitioner Lady Charlotte is sole daughter and heir of Philip, late Earl of Pembroke, and is legally entitled to several manors and lands in the counties of Glamorgan and Monmouth, and has no other provision made for her by her father than the inheritance of those lands, in satisfaction of 10,000*l.* portion received with her mother, now Countess Dowager of Pembroke. The said lands are charged with the jointure of the Countess and several debts of the Earl, amounting to 27,000*l.*, so that Petitioners have as yet received no benefit by the estate. Lady Charlotte's father, in pursuance of articles of marriage, suffered a fine and recovery of the premises, with design to vest the estate in Petitioners, and declared the uses thereof accordingly. In the fine and recovery there were some mistakes of the clerks which it was impossible for the Earl Philip to prevent, but which have since been amended in due course of law. Petitioners have many witnesses to prove that no indirect or undue practice was used in obtaining the amendments. Petitioner's Counsel had only been heard as to the illegality of the amendments, but not to the equity of the Bill, or of the new amendments made therein. Petitioners are both of them minors, and by some doubtful words of the Bill, the Privilege always allowed by law to infants under age may be taken away or brought into dispute. The Bill tends to the disherison of Petitioners and seriously affects all settlements. Pray to be heard by Counsel against the Bill. Endorsed as read this day before the reading of the Bill, but nothing done on

668. Jan. 20. Ditcher v. Finch.—Petition and Appeal of Nicholas Ditcher and Elizabeth, his wife, Lewis Newnham, Esq., eldest son and heir, and John Newnham, second son and Executor, of John Newnham, deceased. John Finch died in 1685 seized in fee of a messuage and farm called Hamer Lands, in Sussex, leaving the Appellant Elizabeth his only child and heir-at-law, who soon after married the Appellant Ditcher. Respondent, by his guardian, then claimed the premises under a pretended Will of Elizabeth's father, but the Will was disallowed in the Spiritual Court. Thereupon, John Newnham, the father, purchased the premises of Ditcher and his wife, together with the assignment of a mortgage to one Dr. Budgin in the name of William Prior, but before he had completed the purchase, Respondent brought a Bill in Chancery against Ditcher and his wife and John Cooper, deceased, claiming under the supposed Will, which he suggested was in Elizabeth's custody after her father's death, and the Court, upon a very slight and improbable hearsay testimony, decreed him the premises without any trial by jury whether a Will or no Will. Respondent afterwards, in June 1687, brought a Bill against Ditcher and his wife, and John Newnham, the father, and Prior, his Trustee, and others, to have the mortgage assigned, and, though Newnham proved that John Finch, deceased, had cancelled his will in his lifetime, the Court decreed him a redemption of the mortgage. Ditcher and his wife are thus stripped by the first Decree of 8 June 2 Jac. II. of their freehold and Elizabeth's inheritance, and the Appellants, the Newnhams, are defeated by the second Decree, of 6 Feb. 2 W. & M., of their father's purchase, without a trial at law. Pray that the Decrees may be reversed. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Ambr. Phillipps. L. J., XV. 192. [The Cause was first heard on 20 Feb. Sir Ambrose Phillipps and Sir William Thompson were heard for Appellants, and Serjeant Darnell and Sir Thomas Powys for Respondent. Counsel withdrew and Speaker reported. After debate it was referred to a trial at law whether the Will in question was revoked or not. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 240.) The Cause was again heard, after the trial at law, on 4 Jan. 1693-4. Mr. Conyers (for Appellants) opens the Cause, and moves for a new trial. Nath. Newnham (sworn) says the land is devised to him. David Maynard (sworn): I heard some of the Jurymen say, as far as they had heard, the land belonged to Finch. We are ready to pay costs to go to a trial. Serjeant Darnell (for Respondent): This has cost us more than the estate is worth. Sir Thomas Powys (for Respondent): Mr. Fane said the L. Chief Justice told him, if he had been on the Jury he would have given the same verdict. Counsel withdrew and Speaker reported. Appeal dismissed with 20*l.* costs. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 334.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 7 Feb. 1692-3. Answer of John Finch. Elizabeth's father, having all along a great kindness for Respondent, his near kinsman, and Elizabeth being infirm in body and understanding, caused Respondent to live with him, and by his Will, in Oct. 1684, devised the lands in question to him and his heirs male, on his reaching the age of 24, with divers remainders over, and left his other lands, called Little Gibbs of Ven in Sussex, and his personal estate of 500*l.* to Elizabeth, and the rents and profits of the lands in question till Respondent reached the age of 24, he devised to Wm. Cumber, Benjamin Page and Wm. Head, his Executors. The Will was drawn by one James Fowkes, and shown to several persons after his death, but was afterwards destroyed or concealed, and Elizabeth, by the means of one Cooper, who was aiding to its suppression, married the Appellant Ditcher, who, knowing the weakness of his title, contrived to sell the lands to Newnham, the other Appellants' father. Appellants in their answer to Respondents Bill in 1685 admitted a Will, but declared the Testator had afterwards destroyed it. Respondent brought his second Bill after discovering the mortgage on the premises, and that Newnham the father was contriving with Ditcher and his wife to take it in, and purchase the lands. As to the proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Court, they were taken by another John Finch, a remainder-man, and not Respondent, who desisted therein, being informed that the Court had not the cognizance of Wills relating to lands in fee. Prays to be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Will. Hancock. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 9 Feb. Petition of the Appellants. Respondent has not brought in his Answer till this week, endeavouring to delay the Appeal till this Session is ended. Pray for an early day for hearing. Signed by Nich. Ditcher and Lewis Newnham. L. J., XV. 221.

(c.) 23 Feb. Petition of John Finch. Their Lordships have ordered a trial at law in Middlesex as to the validity of the Will. It will be a great charge to Respondent, who prosecuted his suit in Chancery in formâ pauperis, to bring his witnesses, who live in and near East Grinstead, up to London. Prays that the Issue may be tried at the next Assizes for Sussex, and settled by L. C. Justice Treby, who goes that Circuit, and that the depositions of such Witnesses as are dead, which were read in Chancery, may be admitted as evidence upon the trial. Endorsed: Consent to alter the Order of 20th inst. (d.) 17 Nov. 1693. Petition of John Finch. Pursuant to their Lordships' Order annexed, a trial has been had at the Sussex Assizes in a feigned Issue before L. C. (e.) 28 Nov. 1693. Petition of John Finch. Their Lordships having ordered the Appellants to put in their Answers to Respondents' Petition of the 17th inst., Respondent has left copies of the Order at their dwelling-houses with their respective wives, having been unable to serve them personally. Prays that a further day may be appointed for the Appellants to answer, and that leaving a copy of the Order with the Clerk in Chancery who acts for them may be deemed good service. L. J., XV. 308.

Pray their Lordships to order a new trial. Signed by Appellants, except Elizabeth Ditcher. Endorsed as brought in this day.

669. Jan. 23. Gardner v. Royal African Company.—Petition and Appeal of John Gardner, Merchant, and Dame Letitia Bawdon, Widow and Executrix of Sir John Bawdon, deceased. The Appellant Gardner and the Testator Sir John Bawdon, being interested in several Plantations in the West Indies, sent several ships to the coast of Africa to trade there and take in the necessary negroes. The Company's Agents there, pretending that the Company had the sole trade, seized their ships and goods, and refused to let them trade for negroes, unless they paid 30 and 40 per cent. for permission money, and took a licence from the Company to trade in Africa, to be granted only on condition that they should take the Company's goods here at such rates as should be imposed. Gardner and Sir John were forced to submit, and accordingly in June 1688 took a cargo of goods from the Company to trade with to Africa for negroes in the ship John, for which the Company demanded 425*l.* permission money, and obliged them to enter into a bond with sureties of 3,000*l.* for payment of 1,504*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.*, including the permission money. The Company, better to colour their designs, take Charter-parties from the persons to whom they give licence, and insert what facts they think fit, and have also exacted other sums for permission to trade. Sir John having died, Appellants brought a Bill in the Exchequer for a discovery and account of the ships and goods seized, and particularly of the ship whereof George Nanter was master, and for relief against the bond and an account of the permission money; but the Court on 7 May 1692 allowed the plea of the Statute of Limitations as to the seizure, although the matters in demand were transacted beyond seas, and were matters of account between merchants, and as to the rest, on 24 Nov. 1692, refused to interfere with the permission money, and decreed Appellants to account for the whole sum. Appeal from the said Orders and Decree. Signed by Appellants; Counter-signed by Wi. Williams and Sam. Dodd. L. J., XV. 195. [The Cause was heard on 15 Feb. The Appellant, Mr. Gardner, heard in person. The Solicitor General (for Respondents) is heard. Mr. Ward (for Respondents): There is nothing in the Appeal, and we hope to have costs. I would have Mr. Gardner speak one word why he should not pay the money. He consented to everything himself. Mr. Gardner heard in reply, and reads. The Solicitor-General heard also. Mr. Ward: The Company is at 15 per cent. charge, and they delay us. Mr. Gardner is asked whether he appears for the Lady Bawdon, and he says, Yes, and that she and he are partners, and [she] will be concluded by him. Mr. Gardner and Counsel withdrew, and Speaker reported. and Sir John Bawdon touching the ship John, of London, whereof William Portlock was Master, for a trading voyage to Africa, and an account was adjusted, before the ship left Gravesend, concerning the cargo bought of the Company, amounting to 1,504*l.* 16*s.* 7*d.*, for payment whereof in 18 months Gardner, Sir John and Portlock gave a bond of 3,008*l.* 13*s.* 0*d.* Only 500*l.* has since been paid, and that not before August 1690. Sir John having died, and Appellants refusing to pay the rest, Respondents sued Gardner upon the bond, and obtained judgment. Appellants then brought their Bill in the Exchequer. The Court, after allowing Respondents' plea of the Statute of Limitations with regard to the ship whereof Nanter was master, proceeded to hear the Cause on 13 June, and referred it to the Deputy Remembrancer to certify what was due upon the bond, and to take a distinct account of the elephants' teeth and gold laden on the ship Swan. The Report, being heard, was ordered to be reviewed by allowing Appellants their share in some gold, which was the produce of part of the windward cargo of the Swan outwards, and saving Respondents harmless against the other owners and partners of the ship in that respect. The Deputy Remembrancer accordingly certified 777*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* due to Respondents, and the Court on 24 Nov. confirmed his Report and ordered payment. The Orders and Decree are just and equitable. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Sealed with the Company's seal. Endorsed as brought in this day.

670. Jan. 23. Kelynge v. Sandy.—Petition and Appeal of Charles Kelynge, Gent. Appellant, having served 7 years as a Clerk under one of the Six Clerks in Chancery, and thereby qualified himself for a seat as Sworn Clerk, made an agreement in May 1691 with John Rayner, a Sworn Clerk in the division of Shem Bridges, one of the Six Clerks, whereby Rayner undertook, on payment of 200*l.* and 20 guineas, to resign and procure the place for him. Respondent, having notice of this, told Appellant that he and Rayner were bound in two bonds for payment of 50*l.* each to one Sparrow and one Shalmer, of which Rayner's share was 42*l.*, and desired Appellant to help him to the said money, and Rayner, being informed of this, agreed that Appellant should pay the 42*l.* to Matthew Hall, another Clerk in the office. On Rayner coming to an account with Bridges as to office fees, it appeared that Rayner owed more than the purchase money amounted to, and Bridges refused to admit Appellant unless all the purchase money were paid him, whereupon Rayner, by a note acknowledging the receipt of 100*l.* from Appellant, directed him to pay the balance to Bridges, and acquitted him, on payment, of all demands. Appellant informed Respondent of this countermand and also of the time appointed for his being sworn, but Respondent did not attend to object, and Appellant on 13 June was accordingly sworn in and admitted, and paid the balance to Bridges, who thereupon cancelled the agreement and note. Respondent then brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant, Hall, Rayner, Sparrow and Shalmer, suggesting that Appellant was in the nature of a trustee for him as to the 42*l.*, and ought not to have paid all the money to Rayner and Bridges. The Lords Commissioners on 14 June declared that Appellant, by consenting to the cancelling of the agreement, had disabled Respondent from having any benefit of it, and thereby committed a breach of trust, and ordered him to pay 41*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* to Hall, to be disposed of according to the agreement, together with interest and 5*l.* in lieu of costs, adding that whatever Appellant paid, should be repaid him by

(a.) 2 Feb. Answer of Roger Sandy. Rayner agreed that his seat should stand charged with the 42*l.*, and desired Respondent to find a purchaser, whereupon Respondent acquainted Appellant, who promised not to treat with Rayner till the debt was secured out of the purchase money. The Agreement of May 1691, which was drawn by Respondent, and approved by the parties, stipulated that Appellant should pay to Hall out of the 221*l.* 10*s.* purchase money, 41*l.* 10*s.* for the use of Sparrow and Shalmer. A question arising whether Appellant or Hall would be safe in applying the 41*l.* 10*s.* according to the Articles, after the same were delivered up and cancelled, it was agreed and endorsed on the part of the Articles executed by Rayner, that after his surrender of the seat, Appellant should still retain that part of the Articles in his custody and not deliver it up. Respondent knows of no Articles between Rayner and Appellant whereby all the purchase money was to be paid to Rayner or his order, nor of any Articles other than those mentioned. It was at Appellant's own request that Respondent did not oppose his being sworn. Appellant's alleged debt to Bridges is put forward to give colour to the fraud, for Appellant, though entrusted by Respondent with the custody of the Articles, gave them to Bridges to destroy, with a view of preventing the other demands. Denies that Appellant ever told him that Rayner had directed him to pay any of the purchase money to Bridges or otherwise than according to the Articles, till after Appellant was sworn, or that he ever gave him notice to oppose his being sworn. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs as vexatious. Signed by Respondent. Countersigned P. Crawford. Endorsed as brought in this day.

672. Jan. 24. Sir S. Husbards v. Bigg.—Petition and Appeal of Sir Samuel Husbards, Knt. Respondent on 7 Nov. 1685 agreed with Appellant, the owner of a brickfield at Shalford, in Essex, to make and burn 500,000 bricks every year for three summers then ensuing, if the season should permit, at the following rates for every 100,000, viz., for digging and casting earth 5*l.*; for moulding 12*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, and for setting and burning 7*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, being in the whole 25*l.* for finishing and burning. Appellant covenanted to find all tools and materials, and to enclose and fence the earth, and to pay Respondent at the above rates when enough earth was dug to make 50,000 bricks, and so for every 50,000 as the said works of casting, moulding and burning should be done, and paid 5*l.* upon the first entrance upon the work. At Respondent's request, this agreement was cancelled and a new one made, whereby Appellant was to pay 8*s.* per 1,000 bricks for making and burning, allowing 1*s.* per 1,000 for the earth, Respondent finding all materials, and if Appellant should advance or lay out money towards finding materials, Respondent was to deduct the same out of the 8*s.* per 1,000. Appellant accordingly paid to Respondent and disbursed by his direction several sums towards the work and materials, but being informed that Respondent's workmen did not do their work well, he stayed his hand from paying all that was demanded, and in Dec. 1687 came to an account with Respondent, under the second agreement, and on the latter affirming that he had made and burnt 400,000 bricks (most of which then stood in clamps untold), and that they were good and merchantable, agreed to pay him 25*l.* 19*s.* 0*d.*, and paid him 10*l.* on account. Appellant, finding afterwards that the bricks were brittle and useless, owing to the carelessness of the workmen, and that there were at least 60,000 short of the 400,000 claimed, refused to pay the 15*l.* 19*s.* 0*d.* balance. Respondent then brought a Bill in Chancery, suggesting that he had carried on the work under the first agreement, but taking no notice of the second one, and stating that, although enough brick earth had been dug to make the 500,000 bricks, he had been prevented from making more than 360,000 and burning more than 340,000, by the want of the materials, which Appellant had undertaken to supply, whereby his workmen had been kept idle for at least 60 days. The Court decreed that the second agreement should be set aside, and the Master, who was ordered to take an account, reported 85*l.* due to Respondent for making and burning 240,000 bricks, and 3*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* for digging and moulding 20,000 more that were not burnt, and for digging up earth for 140,000 more, and also 36*l.* for the pretence of the men's lying idle, and 5*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* more gain that Respondent might have had, if he had had sufficient materials for the whole 500,000, thus making Appellant a debtor in the sum of 154*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*, not including 148*l.* and upwards paid for materials. Prays that the Decree may be reversed, the matter being one purely of damages and only to be ascertained by a jury. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Will. Killingworld and R. Thornhill. L. 673. Jan. 24. Marston v. Marston.—Petition and Appeal of William Marston. Appellant's youngest brother, the Respondent Joseph, brought a Bill in the Exchequer against him in 1691 for a legacy of 12*l.* a year for life and another of 230*l.*, which he alleged had been charged by their father Joseph on his lands in Marston Moretaine, which he left to Appellant, his eldest son. Appellant brought a Cross-Bill against Joseph Marston and William Bristow, insisting that his father was only seized of the premises in right of his wife and could not charge them with the legacies, and claiming to enjoy them as his mother's eldest son and heir. The Respondent Joseph, in his answer to the Cross-Bill, alleged that his parents in 1677 levied a fine to Bristow to the use of the father and his heirs, with a power of revocation to the survivor, and that the father survived and by his will gave Joseph the said legacies and all his estate in Ayott St. Lawrence; that he proved the will and possessed himself of all his father's estate, but never had the custody of the deed of uses. Bristow answered that Joseph and one Mr. Sykes told him in 1686 or 1687 that he was a Trustee, and that the deed was cancelled, and offered to deliver it to him, but he refused to take it unless it were sealed again, and did not have it until it was defaced and endorsed. The Court on 22 June 1692, on hearing the original Cause, ordered Appellant to pay Joseph the legacies, with arrears and interest, reported by the Deputy Remembrancer to amount to 258*l.* 16*s.* 0*d.*, which report was confirmed on 7 Nov., when the Court decreed that, on default of payment, Joseph should have possession until the sum decreed was paid, and afterwards hold so much of the estate as should satisfy the legacy of 12*l.* a year. The Cross-Bill was dismissed the same day. This Decree is erroneous, because (1) it is not stated where the lands are, which are intended to be charged; (2) the Original and Cross-Bills should have been heard together, in which case it would have appeared that the lands were the inheritance of the mother, and that the deed is cancelled; (3) it was not proved that the lands were the inheritance of the father; (4) the Decree upon the Report charges the premises with the legacies, which is not prayed in Joseph's bill nor so decreed upon the hearing; (5) if the legacy ought to be paid, Appellant by the will has an election to pay the 230*l.* either to Joseph or his heir male, and Joseph has a plain remedy for the lands at law, where the validity of the deed would properly be tried, which is the great question in the case; (6) the 230*l.* are decreed with interest, to which he is not entitled by the Will; (7) there are several other legacies charged by the Will upon the premises, as Joseph has confessed, and the premises are worth only 25*l.* a year, or less than Joseph's legacy alone amounts to. Prays that the Decree and dismissal may be reversed, and Respondents ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by John Charlett and John Smith. L. J., XV. 198. 675. Jan. 26. E. Sussex's Estate Bill.—Draft of an Act to enable the Right Honourable Thomas, Earl of Sussex, to sell part of his manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments of inheritance, and to settle other part thereof upon the Right Honourable the Countess Anne, his wife, for her jointure. Whereas Thomas, E. Sussex in his minority agreed, in consideration of 20,000*l.* promised him by Charles II. as portion of the Lady Anne, his wife, to settle his estates in Sussex and Kent upon her for life for her jointure, and upon his issue male by her, and in default of such issue, for raising portions for their daughters; and in regard part of those estates was then in jointure to his mother, the late Countess of Sheppey, and his grandmother, Dorothy, Lady Daere, yet living, his other estates of inheritance in the counties of Cumberland, Westmoreland, Cambridge and Lincoln were agreed by him to be settled by way of supplement until the said jointures should determine; and Whereas no part of the 20,000*l.* has been paid, nor is likely to be paid, to him, but, nevertheless, some doubt is made whether he can dispose of, or charge the premises without being subject to the agreement, whereby he is disabled to raise money for the discharge of his debts, amounting to about 20,000*l.*, partly contracted by his late father Francis, Lord Daere, and partly occasioned by the great expense he has been put to by his marriage with the said Lady Anne; the Bill therefore, on the Earl's Petition, enacts that the manors of Hurstmonceaux, Old Court, Gothams, Buekholt and Ingrams, and all other his estates of inheritance in Sussex, shall from 2 Jan. 1692 be vested in him in fee simple, freed of the said agreement; And that the manors or lordships of Chepsted, Chevening and Brasted, parcel of the premises in Kent wherein Dorothy, Lady Daere has a life estate for her jointure, be likewise vested in him

George, Lord Viscount Grandison, Sir John Baber, Knt., William Campion, of Cumwell, co. Kent, Esq., and John Nicoll, of the Inner Temple, London, Esq., for 200 years, without impeachment of waste, upon trust to raise 10,000*l.*, by sale or mortgage, for the portions of Lady Barbara and Lady Anne (at present the only children of the Earl and Countess) and of any other daughters and younger sons of theirs, in such proportions as the Earl shall appoint, and failing such appointment, to be paid to such daughters and sons share and share alike, such shares to be paid to the sons at the age of 21, and to the daughters at the age of 21 or at marriage; and upon further trust to pay them, after their parents' death, such yearly maintenance as shall seem meet, not exceeding 5 per cent. interest of their respective shares; and after the said term of 200 years the premises shall be vested in the Earl, his heirs and assigns of an estate of inheritance, in fee simple. If any of the children die before their shares become payable, such shares shall go to the survivors equally; and if all of them shall die before any of the shares become payable, their portions shall cease and not be raised for the benefit of those who are next in reversion or remainder. No sale or mortgage shall be made until some or one of the portions shall become payable. When the portions and maintenance shall be paid, or in case all the children shall die before any of their portions shall become payable, the said term of 200 years shall cease and be void. If the Earl shall give or leave to any of his children any money or lands for their advancement, the same shall be accounted as part of their shares, unless the Earl shall declare the contrary in writing. 677. Jan 27. Stydolfe v. Hull and others.—Petition and Appeal of Sigismund Stydolfe. In 1678 Petitioner brought a Bill in Chancery against the Executors of Thomas Bostock, Scrivener, during the minority of his children William and Mary, and against the said children and others for an account of profits received by Thomas of certain trust lands of Petitioner's under a settlement made by Petitioner's father, and for an account of the personal estate of Petitioner's father come to Thomas' hands. On 28 July, 31 Car. II., the Lord Chancellor Finch decreed an account, but before it was taken, Thomas' son and heir William died, leaving his cousin Thomas Bostock, Gent., his executor, and the Cause being revived against him, the Master on 31 May 1682 reported 2,176*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* due to Petitioner. This Decree was confirmed on a rehearing by the Lord Keeper North on 11 Dec., 35 Car. II., but before the money was paid, Thomas the executor died, leaving the Respondent Hull's wife his executrix, and charging all his so-called estate (which really belonged to Thomas the scrivener), after payment of 200*l.* a year to his wife, with payment of his debts, the overplus to go to Respondent Langhorne and his wife. The Cause being revived against all the Defendants, the Master reported 2,416*l.* 18*s.* 0*d.* due to Petitioner, which Report was afterwards confirmed. Petitioner in 1687 brought another Bill in Chancery against Hull and his wife and executrix, Langhorne and his wife, the executors of Thomas Bostock, the scrivener, and Francis Leigh, Gent., who claimed 500*l.* East India Stock, part of Thomas the scrivener's estate, by an alleged assignment from Thomas Bostock, Gent., reciting that William and Thomas Bostock, Gent., had wasted Thomas the scrivener's estate to the value of above 20,000*l.*, and that the estate charged with the debts of Thomas Bostock, Gent., was descended to Langhorne, and praying satisfaction of his debts out of the estate of the said Thomas, and to be relieved against the assignment. The executors of Thomas Bostock, Gent., likewise brought another Bill against Leigh and others for relief against the assignment. These two Causes being heard on 20 July 1688,* the Lord Chancellor Jeffreys declared that Thomas Bostock, Gent., having wasted the estate to more than the value of Petitioner's debt, and having subjected his estate for payment of his debts, had made Petitioner's debt his own debt, and decreed Hull and his wife to account for the personal estate, and Langhorne and his wife to account for the real estate of Thomas Bostock, Gent., since his death, the real estate to be sold, to pay Petitioner's debt, and the overplus to be paid to Langhorne, the heir-at-law. In the Cause wherein Hull and his wife were Plaintiffs, the Court declared the assignment good, and dismissed the Bill. This dismissal was confirmed, on a rehearing, by the Lords Commissioners Keck and Rawlinson on 3 April 1690, and Petitioner moved the present Lords Commissioners to have the lands sold pursuant to the decree. Their Lordships, however, upon Langhorne's Petition, granted a rehearing of Petitioner's cause, and on 2 March 1690-1 declared that the real estate ought not to be liable to any more than what the personal estate would fall short to answer of what Thomas Bostock, Gent., had wasted of Thomas, the scrivener's, estate, and decreed an account of the personal estate in Hull's hands, and also that Leigh should account for the East India Stock which he had received by virtue of his said Decrees, and discharged all orders for staying the rents of the real estate in the tenants' hands. Prays that this last Decree may be reversed, and the real estate forthwith sold according to the Decree of 20 July 1688 and the money applied to pay Petitioner's debt, and that Thomas Hull and his wife, Luke Langhorne and his wife, and Francis Leigh may be ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by J. Somers and Tho. Filmer. L. J., XV. 204. [The Cause was heard on 23 Feb.* Sir William Whitelocke (for Appellant) opened the case. Mr. Finch (for Appellant): They order Stydolfe to go against Leigh, whom the Court has found not liable. We have a demand against them all. That we should go about is hard on us. Upon this rehearing, notwithstanding the dismissal, you shall try what you can do with Leigh. (The Will of Thos. Bostock, Gent., is read.) We can find no assets for our money. The Solicitor-General (for Langhorne and his wife) is heard. Sir Thomas Powys: This is a most just and righteous decree. Mr. Finch reads the Decree. Mr. Ward (for Mr. Leigh): We ought to stand as we are, and not to be prejudiced by Mr. Stydolfe. We ought not to be drawn into this account. We are drawn in here to pay Bostock's debts. He was told he was not before the Court, except they are Appellants. Counsel withdrew upon this point, whether Leigh can be heard. Agreed that Leigh's Counsel be not heard. Speaker reported. Decree reversed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 246.)]

(a.) 6 Feb. Answer of Luke Langhorne and Susanna, his wife. Thomas the executor manifestly conceived he had sufficient personal estate to answer his debts, for he left 500*l.* to the Respondent Susan out of it, and willed that if his personal estate were not sufficient, the lease held of the Salters' Company should be last sold. But inasmuch as he only subjected his estate to the payment of his own debts, and Appellant's demand was a debt due from Thomas, the scrivener, his real estate, which has come to the Respondent Luke in right of his wife, the sister and heir-at-law of Thomas Bostock, Gent., ought not to be liable, or at least not beyond answering such waste as the personal estate does not suffice to answer, as to which waste no proof has been given. Neither the alleged assignment to Leigh, nor any consideration for the same was ever proved, and it was therefore in trust, nor in the other Cause, wherein Hull and his wife were Plaintiffs, did the Court ever declare the assignment good against Respondents, who were no parties to the suit. By the Master's report on 4 Dec. 1691 there remained in Leigh's hands no less than 1,283*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.*, above payment of the debt and interest, being a surplus so great that no account of waste was deemed necessary. Leigh was privy to all the proceedings in the Cause, being Solicitor for William and Thomas Bostock, nor has he proved any valuable consideration for the assignment. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed. Signed by Respondents; Countersigned by R. Bretland. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (b.) 16 Feb. Answer of Francis Leigh, Gent. Thomas Bostock, Gent., being entitled to 500*l.* East India Stock, assigned it on 9 Nov. 1691 for good consideration to Respondent, and afterwards, with fraudulent intent to avoid it, brought his Bill against him in 1685. Before the Cause was heard, he died, leaving Penelope, his widow, and Robert Raworth his Executors. Penelope, having proved his will, brought a Bill of Revivor and then married the Respondent Hull, who brought another Bill of Revivor and revived the said Cause, which was heard on 20 July 1689, together with the one in which Appellant was Plaintiff. The East India Company not having been made a Party to either Cause, Respondent was forced to bring another Bill against them and Appellant to have a transfer of the Stock and to compel the Company to pay the dividends then due, which was decreed accordingly on 3 Sept. 1688 (sic). Hull and his wife then petitioned the Lords Commissioners for a rehearing of both the said Causes, and Langhorne obtained a rehearing at the same time of the Cause wherein Appellant was Plaintiff. All the said Causes were heard by the Lords Commissioners on 9 Dec. 1689, and Hull's Bill was dismissed and the Decree in the Cause wherein Respondent was Plaintiff, was confirmed. Langhorne and his wife, since then, procured another rehearing on 2 March 1690, although his Bill of Review was not then, nor is yet, determined. Respondent insists on the several dismissals and decree in affirmation of his title to the Stock. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Simon Harcourt. Endorsed as brought in this day.

678. Jan. 27. Baron v. Sir W. Haward.—Petition and Appeal of Christopher and William Baron, Administrators with the Will annexed, of George Baron. The Water-house and Water-work at Broken Wharf, London, being mortgaged by one John Burrough to Appellants' Testator for 5,000*l.*, and being in lease to one Barrington, Ramsey and Norwood for 21 years at 800*l.* a year, besides a ground-rent of 282*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* payable to certain lessees of the City of London, Respondent, Sir Wm. Haward (Plaintiff below), exchanged for Burrough's interest an estate in Surrey, and covenanted to pay the mortgage, but neglecting to do so, made an agreement on 26 March 1684 with the Testator, George Baron, granting, for 1,000*l.* more, a rent-charge on the Water-works for 500*l.* a year to Testator, who released his mortgage, the rent-charge being payable to him before anything was to be paid to Respondent. The tenants neglecting to pay the rent-charge or the ground-rent, Testator brought his ejectment against Barrington and his co-lessees, and recovered judgment in 1684, and being liable to pay a large sum for ground-rent and other charges about the Water-works, and his own 500*l.* a year being in arrear, took an assignment of some debts from Barrington for his security, to which Respondent was privy. Testator then managed the Water-work himself, and laid out above 16,000*l.*, of which sum, and of the arrears of his rent-charge, amounting to above 4,000*l.*, he has not received a farthing. Respondent brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant and others for an account of the profits of the Water-work, and on hearing the Master's Report, the Lords Commissioners on 21 Nov. 1691 declared that Baron's entering and avoiding the lease ought not to prejudice Respondent, but that he ought to have his 300*l.* a year during the term in the avoided lease, and decreed payment to him of the arrears and growing rent, before Appellants should receive any part of their 500*l.* a year. The Master, who was directed to take an account, reported that Appellants' and Testators' expenses on account of the Water-work exceeded their receipts. Since then, the Court on 24 Jan. has ordered the Master to appoint a Receiver and Manager of the Water-work, and that Appellants should deliver their books to Wm. Terry, Respondent's Accountant. Appeal from the last-named Decree and Order, and pray that Sir Wm. Haward may be ordered to answer. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Wm. Dobyns and Jo. Hungerford. L. J., XV. 204. [The Cause was heard on 23 Feb., Mr. Finch and Mr. Dobyns being heard for Appellants, and Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Filmer for Respondent. Counsel for Respondent stated that the Water-work yielded between 900*l.* and 1,100*l.* a year. Decree affirmed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 245.) For further proceedings see Notes to Annex (b) below.]

Annexed:—

- (a.) 15 Feb. Answer of Sir William Haward, Knt.—The Testator, by combination with one Edward Hemings, John Burroughs and others, drew Respondent into an exchange of a good estate in fee simple in Tandridge Hall, Surrey, worth 600*l.* a year, for the Water-work, subject to a yearly ground-rent of 282*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*, and several incident charges, and afterwards, to regain the Water-work, avoided a lease made by Testator and Respondent, to Abraham Barrington, William Ramsey, and Edward Norwood, whereon a further rent of 800*l.* a year was reserved, whercof 500*l.* a year was to be paid to the Testator, and 300*l.* in Respondent. Respondent suffered the whole of this 800*l.* to be reserved to Testator, being then ignorant of his designs, but on Testator's avoiding the lease, brought his Bill to be relieved against the fraud. If the expenses of the Water-work devoured the profits, it was due to mismanagement. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Unsigned by Respondent. Countersigned by Tho. Powis and Tho. Filmer, whose signatures are copied. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (b.) 28 Jan. 1697-8. (Appeal lately depending.)—Petition of Christopher and William Baron. Repeat the contents of their Petition of Appeal above, and add that, since the dismissal of their Appeal by the House on 23 Feb. 1692-3, the matter having come before the Court below, in respect of the profits only, the L. Chancellor on 3 Nov. 1697 ordered Petitioners to pay 100*l.*, with leave to apply to the House for an explanation of the Order of 21 Nov. 1691. Pray their Lordships to declare whether the said Order was intended to oblige Petitioners to answer the 300*l.* a year to Respondent otherwise than out of the profits of the Water-work, and to appoint a day for hearing. Signed by Petitioners: Countersigned by P. Crawford and Jo. Hungerford.

In Committee on 4 Feb., the original Petition of Appeal and Answer and Judgment of 23 Feb. 1692-3 were read, together with the above Petition. Mr. Dobyns (for Petitioners) opens the Case. The two Orders of Chancery, of 21 Nov. 1691 and 24 Jan. 1692, are read. He quotes Dodd v. Burroughes, and the case of Sir Edward Turner,* where the Lords explained their Orders. Mr. Jennings (for Petitioners): We desire not a rehearing on the merits, but to explain your own Order. Sir Thomas Powys (for Sir Wm. 679. Jan. 27. East India Company v. Attorney-General.—Petition and Appeal of the Governor and Company of Merchants of London trading to the East Indies. The Company at their vast charge established a trade to the East Indies, much to the honour and public benefit of this Kingdom, and erected factories and built forts and castles, wherein they kept soldiers for the defence of their trade and privileges, granted to them by the Mogul or King of that country, and by Charters of Charles II. and James II. had full power to make war or peace with any of the heathen princes within the limits of their trade, without any reservation to the Crown or Lord High Admiral of England of the tenth or any other part of prizes, and continued to enjoy their trade and liberties until of late, by the unwarrantable trading of interlopers, and greatly by their means and procurement, their factories, servants and goods were unjustly seized and large sums extorted from them. They refrained, however, from any hostile act, until the Moors, by their barbarous murder of an Englishman, and assaulting the rest at Hooghly, began the war and became the aggressors. The particulars of their injuries were then faithfully represented to his Majesty in Council, who was pleased to direct them to make war against the Great Mogul, which was done, and his Majesty granted commissions to several Captains of his ships-of-war to assist the Company, requiring the Captains to take care that the tenths of all prizes taken and condemned should be paid to the Crown. The whole expenses of the war, which continued for some time, were paid by Appellants, who paid the King the tenths of all the prizes, amounting to 1,361*l.* 13*s.* 1*d.*, taken and condemned in the East Indies, being all of which they had any notice. But Walter Whittfeild, John Earle and Thomas Killner, pretending that more prizes were taken than those accounted for, and having got a Privy Seal for the tenth part of all that were taken, prevailed with the Attorney-General, at their relation, to exhibit a Bill in the Exchequer against Appellants for an account. The latter answered denying that they were accountable, or that they took any ships as prize, and insisting that the ships stayed during the war were only stayed in order to make an honourable peace, and that by the Articles of Peace they are obliged to restore them, except such as were sent to England, or destroyed and plundered by the soldiers, for which Appellants, as was stipulated, have paid. Two of Appellants' ships, the Charles II. and the New London, arriving, after this, with goods from the East Indies, the Relators endeavoured to charge Appellants with all their cargoes as prize goods, though a great part was bought by Appellants' factors in the East Indies, and most of the rest belonged to other merchants, leaving very little, if any, prize goods, and what there were, never condemned, as Appellants could have fully proved, had a Commission been allowed them to examine their witnesses abroad. The Court, after hearing the Cause, made two Decrees on 25 Jan. and 1 Feb. 1691, ordering Appellants firstly, to account for the tenth of all prizes condemned in Bengal and of the prize goods brought to England in the two ships, and secondly, to make a general account of all prizes whatsoever taken in the war. The Remembrancer reported prize goods on the two ships to the value of 90,000*l.*, and a tenth thereof, or 9,000*l.*, to be due to the Crown, the report being grounded on the evidence of only one positive witness, one Jeremiah Bonneale, which was contradicted by Appellants' Answer, and as to 179 bales of goods by some of Appellants' witnesses. The Court, on hearing exceptions, referred it to a trial at law whether the said bales were prize goods or not, and a jury found that they were not. The Court, however, on a further hearing of the exceptions, and without any further evidence, on 29 Nov. 1692 confirmed the Report, discounting 1,060*l.* for the tenth of the said bales, and decreed the remaining 7,940*l.* to be paid by Appellants, and though by a later Order of 6 Dec. a Commission has been granted to Appellants to examine witnesses in the East Indies as to the general account, Appellants are not allowed to examine to any matters relating to the two ships. Pray that the Decree of 29 Nov. 1692 may be reversed, and the Attorney-General and Relators ordered to answer. Signed in the name and by order of the Company by Robt. Blackborne, Secretary; Countersigned by James Smyth and Will. Coke. L. J., XV. 204. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed on 14 Feb., Mr. Finch and Mr. Ward being heard for Appellants, and The Solicitor-General and Sir William Williams for the Crown. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 229.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 6 Feb. Answer of Sir John Somers, Knt., her Majesty's Attorney-General, as well for and on behalf of their Majesties, as for and on behalf and at the relation of Walter Whitfeild, John Earle and Thomas Kilner, Relators. As to the so-called Interlopers, or the provocations given by the Moors, or the representations made by Appellants to the King or Council, Respondents know nothing. James II. granted several commissions to Captains of the Company's ships to assist the Company in the war, with directions to keep note of all prizes and send accounts to the Secretary of the Admiralty, and bring all prizes to some Court of Admiralty in India, without breaking bulk or wasting them before judgment, and taking care that the Lord High Admiral's tenths should be paid. It was fully proved that Appellants took several other prizes to a considerable value and industriously kept off all Courts of Admiralty, which could only be held by their order, to avoid the tenth due to the Crown and the seamen's sixth promised by the Company. The Privy Seal of 28 Feb. 2 Will. & Mary gives the Relators power to sue for the tenths, and keep one-third thereof for their pains and charges. Tobias Eden, Deputy to the Remembrancer of the Exchequer, reported, after full proof, that the prize goods on the two ships were brought to England for the Company's service, and part of them sold publicly at the East India House on 30 Oct. 1690; as was admitted by Francis Boyer, their Accountant, who valued the part sold at 38,070*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.*, and another part, not mentioned in Boyer's account, but amounting in value to 51,930*l.*, sold by private contract. The applications for a Commission to examine witnesses were made merely for delay. Appellants by their Agents tried to conceal the prize goods by altering the marks and parcels in their warehouses. Bonneale had been a servant of Appellants during the war, and came over with the prize goods, and his evidence was supported by good proof. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by J. Soñers. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(b.) 8 Feb. Petition of John Bush, late of the City of Dublin, Merchant.—The late Thos. Horton, of Iford, in the County of Wilts, Merchant, was seized of certain lands in and adjacent to Iford, of the yearly value of 500*l.*, which are lawfully descended to Petitioner, as his right heir at law, he being son and heir of Paul Bush, who was son and heir of James Bush, son and heir of Walter Bush and Maud, daughter and one of the coheirs of Thomas Horton, who in 1530 enfeoffed the said estate on his nephew Thos. Horton and his heirs male, failing whom, on the heirs male of Anthony and Henry Rogers, failing whom, on his own right heirs. Petitioner served summons of ejectment on the tenants about two years past and had proceeded to take rules for a trial, but was debarred by Henry Baynton, Esq., of Spy Park, co. Wilts, who was then in possession and claimed privilege as a Member of Parliament. Baynton then obtained leave in the Commons to bring in the present Bill, which, if passed, will obstruct, if not defeat, Petitioner's title. Prays that his right may be determined before the Bill passes, or that a saving may be introduced in his favour. [Read this day in Committee. Com. Book.]

682. Jan. 28. L. Stawell's Estate Bill.—Draft of an Act for payment of the debts of John, Lord Stawell, lately deceased. The Bill is to the following effect:—

§ i. Whereas the said debts are very great, and cannot be satisfied except by sale of his real estate, for which an Act of Parliament is neeces-ary, as Anne, his only child and heir, is an infant, not yet one year old; the Bill therefore enacts that all the estate and interest which the late John, L. Stawell had, and William, L. Stawell and his brother Edward, now have, in certain manors, &c. in Somerset, Dorset and Wilts, or elsewhere in England, shall be vested in (blank), in trust to sell the same (except the manor, &c. of Cotheleston, mortgaged to Lady Graee Pierrepoint) or so much as shall be sufficient for the purposes of the Aet; to apply the money so raised, and all the rents, &c. received until such sale, (1) first in reimbursing the charges of the Trustees, and next (2), in paying a yearly sum of (blank), payable half-yearly, as maintenance to Anne Stawell; (3) to satisfy with interest all debts due by John, L. Stawell, first, upon mortgage (except 6,000*l.* due to Lady Grace Pierrepoint), next, upon statutes, &c., and lastly, all his remaining debts; (4) to pay to Margaret, Lady Stawell, his widow, the sum of (blank); and (5) to pay the residue remaining in their hands to Anne Stawell, her heirs and assigns, for whom the Trustees shall then stand seized, in trust, of the premises unsold.

§ ii. And whereas Margaret, Lady Stawell was or is entitled to a portion of 10,000*l.* by the provision of her father the late James, E. Salisbury, whereof only 254*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* has been as yet reeeived, and 5,273*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* remains now in the hands of Sir Edward Desbouverie, Knt., and the remaining 4,472*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* remains to be raised by an Act of this present Parliament for the better securing the portions, debts and legacies given and owing by James, late Earl of Salisbury; And whereas John, L. Stawell, before his marriage with Margaret,

* It appears from the original Roll that the Committee, instead of adding the above Proviso, inserted in the general Saving Clause the names of Clottworthy Skeffington, and Rachell his wife, and their assigns. From an entry in MS. Min., it appears that the Committee was revived on 28 Jan.

Lady Stawell, who was then under 21 years of age, agreed to settle a rent-charge of 1,500*l.* a year upon her for her jointure, in consideration of the said portion and in lieu of her dower, but his incumbrances and death prevented his performing that agreement, and in regard the encumbering the estate with such a rent-charge will extremely prejudice the sale thereof, the said Margaret, Lady Stawell is therefore content to accept of an equivalent satisfaction for it, the Bill further enacts that Lady Stawell's said right of dower and claim to rent-charge or jointure shall cease, and that, in satisfaction for the same, she shall receive the said sums of 5,273*l.* 10*s.* and 4,472*l.* 10*s.* free of all claims, and also the sum of (blank), hereinbefore limited to be raised and paid to her by the said Trustees.

§ iii. And whereas by Indenture of Mortgage, dated 6 August 1690, between John, L. Stawell and Lady Grace Pierrepont, the manor, &c. of Cotheleston and L. Stawell's other lands there, and in Kingston and Bishopps Lydiard, in Somersetshire, were granted to Lady Grace for 500 years, without impeachment of waste, under a Proviso that John, L. Stawell should re-enter on payment of 6,300*l.* at certain times, and also 5,000*l.* with interest, and it was agreed that the mortgage should stand as a security for payment to her of the other 5,000*l.* and interest, and L. Stawell entered into a bond of 12,000*l.* to Lady Grace for payment of the 6,000*l.* and interest and performance of the covenants in the mortgage; it is enacted that the said (blank) Trustees shall forthwith sell so much of the manor, &c. of Cotheleston as shall suffice for the performance of their trust, viz. to apply the moneys so raised, and the rents received until such sale, in paying, first, all their charges, &c. as Trustees, and next, the said sum of 6,000*l.* with interest; or, in case Lady Grace shall receive anything, in satisfaction of her debt, out of L. Stawell's personal estate, or any of the said lands (except the manor, &c. of Cotheleston), then in trust, to reimburse (out of the moneys to be raised out of the manor, &c. of Cotheleston), towards satisfaction of L. Stawell's debts and for the benefit of Anne Stawell and her heirs, so much money as Lady Grace shall so receive; and lastly, in trust to stand seized of so much of the manor and premises as shall remain unsold, in trust for William, L. Stawell and Edward Stawell, his brother, and their heirs male and the right heirs of John, L. Stawell for such estates, and subject to such charges (other than the 6,000*l.* and interest), and in such manner as if this Act had not been made, and after such sale, to make conveyances of what shall remain unsold accordingly.

§ iv. Provided that every person to whom the said (blank) Trustees shall by virtue of this Act sell the premises hereby vested in them, shall hold the same free from all the trusts hereby limited, so as the sum to be paid on such sale be applied towards discharge of any of the said trusts in manner before appointed.

§ v. And whereas John, L. Stawell, dying intestate on 30 Nov. 1692, Dame Margaret Stawell has obtained letters of administration of his personal estate, it is enacted that it shall be lawful for her to retain to herself thereout to the value of (blank), and that all the rest shall be applied according to the rules of law and equity, with power to her, nevertheless, to deduct her payments for her husband's funeral and debts, and her charges of administration, she accounting for whatever else she shall receive out of the real or personal estate, other than such part as she shall retain to her own use by virtue of this Act.

§ vi. And to the end that the said real and personal estate may be under the same management, it is enacted that from and after (blank) Lady Stawell's letters of administration shall cease, and that the Judge of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury may grant letters of administration of the personal estate not administered by her to the Trustees.

§ vii. Saving to the Queen, &c. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day. (L. J., XV. 206.)] In Committee on 9 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, Sir Thomas Powys (for Mrs. [Lady] Stawell) desired there might be an estimate of the arrears of rents, of renewing leases and of a mortgage of a great sum due to the late L. Stawell, and of the rest of his personal estate. The L. Stawell's debts are nearly 80,000*l.* Mr. Leigh's mortgage and the L. Stawell's personal estate will be nearly 40,000*l.* The filling up lives may make 8,000*l.* The Lady's fortune still unpaid is about 9,700*l.* This makes together 57,000*l.* and some hundred pounds. Sir William Williams (for the Bill): The debts are about 80,000*l.* The whole estate will be cumbered with these debts. Without an Act, 20 years will not clear the estate. The personal estate will not be more than 2,000*l.* We know nothing of Leigh's lease; it is merely imaginary. Fines will come in by leases, perhaps 8,000*l.* Mr. Dobyns (for the Bill): This Act is no more than a general settlement. We pretend not to the personal estate. We know not what my Lord's debts were. Sir Thomas Powys desires that the Counsel on both sides may meet and peruse the Stewards' Books and inform themselves, as well as they can, concerning the personal estate. Mr. Dobyns: The mortgagees have the whole estate. Mr. Reding says he has the mortgages, and the account between L. Stawell and Col. Leigh. Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Reding open Mr. Shale's and Mr. Shelden's case as to the 5,200*l.* mentioned in the Bill. Counsel for L. Stawell desire to be heard at the next meeting. Ordered accordingly.—On 11 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, Mr. Dobyns (for the Bill) says that the Solicitors on both sides have spent much time in perusing the Books. They say that the Quit-rents are 525*l.* per annum, and the demesnes are 435*l.*, and Awbery 350*l.*, and the Parsonage of Halse is 80*l.*, and the other demesnes are 500*l.*—in all 1,890*l.* Cudleston [Cotheleston] demesnes are 400*l.*, and chief rents 16*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* The total of fines for 20 years is 48,315*l.*, which is about 4,000*l.* a year. The personal estate is 21,700*l.* and some goods unappraised. Sir Thomas Powys: The fines are 2,400*l.* per annum; the demesnes 1,365*l.* per annum, and the Quit-rents 525*l.* per annum; Mr. Leigh's mortgage 14,000*l.*; from Sir William Bassett 1,100*l.*; two shares in Bermudas Back (sic) 400*l.*; from Mrs. Cole 500*l.*; on several bonds 600*l.*; part of the personal estate already appraised 5,000*l.*; part thereof not appraised 5,000*l.*; Lady Stawell's Portion 9,746*l.*; lives now fallen 7,000*l.*:—Total 43,346*l.* The debts are about 72,000*l.*, which is more than the personal estate by 28,654*l.* [Of the debts there are portions to the L. Stawell's three sisters not yet payable 20,000*l.*]* Serjeant Thompson (for L. Stawell) says the manors of Cotheleston and Bishopps Lydiard are come to the present L. Stawell. Prays this Bill may not relate further to this Estate than the taking of 11,000*l.*, which is charged on them. Agreed, That there be a power by the Bill to Trustees to sell, with restraint to them that they abuse not their power, and that the overplus of the money raised by the sale shall be laid out in purchase of lands for the infant. That 5,000*l.* may be raised by the sale more than the 28,654*l.* debts. That the Trustees be agreed by the several Parties against the next meeting. The Lady Dowager Stawell desires to have her part in money.—On 14 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, Mr. Filmer (for Lady Grace Pierrepont) says she desires no Trustee. Sir Thomas Powys proposes that the personal estate and fines for leases pay off the mortgages.

Mr. Conyers (for Mr. Adams) : We must have our whole sum together. Sir Thomas Powys proposes that all moneys raised by the Trustees be kept in their hands till they can pay off a whole mortgage. Mr. Dobyms : This matter must be left to Trustees, under the direction of the Chancery. Mr. Conyers proposes that the money raised do in the first place pay all interest. Mr. Dobyms : This method of payment will ruin the estate. Nothing but a power to sell the whole will do. Sir Thomas Powys says that the 20,000*l.* to the children and the 6,000*l.* to the Lady Graee Pierrepont need not be quickly paid. He proposes that land at a distance in Dorsetshire, to the value of 13,000*l.*, may be sold, viz., Chilfroome, Wraxall, &c. That, if this be not sufficient, then the annual profits till the child's age of 21 years should go towards the payment of the debts. That the lease of Gamesham may be sold for 1,100*l.* That the Trustees have not only a power to receive profits, but to sell what they think fit of the estate, if all debts be not then paid. He offers a Clause, which enacts the premises.* The Clause is read. Mr. Dobyms says he has not seen it, so cannot speak to it at present. Desires time to consult Counsel in it, for it overthrows the whole Bill. They withdraw. The Parties and Counsel are called in again and told that the Committee are of opinion that the personal estate shall entirely go in satisfaction of the debts, as has been proposed, and that they would have a Clause drawn to that purpose. That there is no value to be set on the personal estate. That their Lordships will take particuar care of my Lady. Mr. Dobyms desires that the Creditors, who are numerous, that have no other fund but the personal estate, may be heard; which will be a work of time, for many of them are in the country. We insist that the whole 10,000*l.* portion is my Lady's own money. Ordered, That the Counsel meet and draw a Clause to the effect aforesaid against the next meeting

On 16 Feb., L. Cornwallis in the Chair, Sir Thomas Powys acquaints the Committee that the Counsel have met and agreed to some amendments and a Clause. The Clause is read.† Mr. Gibbins (for the Bond Creditors) desires that they may not be postponed till the mortgages be paid, but that they may be paid out of the personal estate. Mr. Dobyms (for the heir-at-law) : We are willing all debts shall be paid, and do not oppose the Clause. The whole Estate is in mortgage, and pays interest for 80,000*l.* Sir Thomas Powys : The only question between us is, whether the Trustees shall sell such part of the Estate as your Lordships shall direct, or such part as the Chancery shall direct. Mr. Dobyms : If the Trustees may not have power to sell the whole, we retract our consent of taking any money for my Lady, and will withdraw our Bill. My Lady will rely on her dower, which will affect all the Estate, execept that for the children's portions, for her Ladyship's marriage was before the mortgages. Mrs. Stawell says it is her desire that all the Creditors be paid. Sir Thomas Powys desires a day's time to consider of it. Mr. Reding (for L. William Stawell) says he has prepared a Bill which he desires leave to bring in. Nothing more was done. (Com. Book.) The Bill, accordingly, dropped in Committee, but a Bill with the same Title and corresponding largely with the above, received the Royal Assent on 16 April 1694. (L. J., XV. 417. 5-6 W. & M. c. 34. in Long Calendar.)]

Thereupon Respondent brought a scire facias against Beale, as executor de son tort, upon the judgment of 4,000*l.*, to which Beale pleaded fully administered. It being agreed to refer all differences to the now Justice Rokeby and Serjeant Belwood, Beale entered into a bond of 1,000*l.* to stand to the award, if made by the 29th September following. Notwithstanding this agreement, and although all the matters were transacted in Yorkshire, Respondent proceeded to an ex parte trial upon the scire facias, and obtained judgment for 637*l.* Beale, after failing to get the judgment set aside in a Court of law, brought a Writ of Error and a Bill in Chancery, and obtained an injunction, but the suit abating by Beale's death in their Majesties' service beyond sea, Respondent renewed his proceedings at law, and took out execution for 1,274*l.* against Appellant, who had been bail for Beale in the Writ of Error, whereupon Appellant took out letters of administration of Beale's estate and revived the cause in Chancery. After a hearing on 26 Nov. last, the Lords Commissioners, in regard the matter of the irregularity of going to trial had been examined in the Common Pleas, declared they could not relieve Appellant further than as to his standing in Beale's place, and decreed an account touching the debts for which Respondent was co-surety with his father, and ordered the 637*l.* to be paid into Court. Prays that this Decree may be reversed, at least so far as to allow a new trial, and Respondent ordered to answer. Unsigned by Appellant; Countersigned by J. Soñers and Ambr. Phillipps. L. J., XV. 216. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed on 10 March, Sir Ambrose Phillipps and Mr. Finch being heard for Appellant, and Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Ward for Respondent. (MS. Annexed:—

(a.) 11 Feb. Answer of Toby Humfrey. Respondent was bound for debts of his father amounting to above 3,500*l.* Beale, on his father's death, possessed himself of all his personal estate, under pretence of being his executor. Beale proposed the reference, and Respondent never entered into any bond to abide the award, nor does he know that any bond was entered into by Beale. The award not being made by the time agreed on, Respondent gave Beale due notice of his proceeding to trial. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tho. Powys. Endorsed as brought in this day.

686. Feb. 6. Alnage (Customs Collection) Bill.—Commons' En-grossment of an Act for transferring the Collection of the Duty of Alnage to the Custom House, and for giving a recompense to the Crown for the same. This Bill differs from the Bill of 20 Jan. 1691-2 by omitting Clauses 4 and 8, and also the words of that Bill inserted here in square brackets, and by adding the words in italics, viz.:—

Clause 1.

. . . Collector of the [subsidy or duty] duty and subsidy of Alnage . . .

691. Feb. 8. Lomax v. Lomax.—Petition and Appeal of Joshua Lomax, Esq. Appellant's father, the late Joshua Lomax, Esq., settled on his other son Thomas, on his marriage in 1681, a capital messuage and lands called Shenley, in Hertfordshire, of about 170*l.* a year, for life, with remainder to his wife Mary for life for her jointure, remainder in tail to Thomas, with remainder in fee to himself and Anne, his wife, and their heirs. By his Will in 1685 he devised his lands in Bovington and Northchurch to his wife, in trust to sell what she thought fit for paying his debts and legacies, and dispose the rest among his children, failing which disposition, he gave the residue equally to Appellant and his younger brother Thomas for their lives, with remainder by moieties to their sons in tail, and failing male issue, to his daughter Elizabeth and his grandson Henry Appleton and their heirs. By Articles of Exchange made in 1686 between Anne, his widow, and Appellant and Respondents (his younger brother Thomas and Mary his wife), it was agreed that Respondents should convey the Shenley lands to Anne, subject to the same trusts as the other lands were subject to by the Will, and that Anne and Appellant should convey certain parcels of the Bovington estate, to the value of 170*l.*, to Respondents to the like uses as are limited by the marriage settlement of the Shenley estate, and Thomas was to have all the timber of the Bovington estate, worth 1,000*l.* more than that on the Shenley estate, and if Anne at her death should leave 1,000*l.* worth of land undisposed of, Thomas and his wife were to release all their right therein to Appellant. Anne and Respondents made conveyances in 1687, in pursuance, as is pretended, of these Articles, but in reality of other and more lands and to different uses. In 1691 Appellant and Thomas agreed to divide the timber on the Bovingdon and Shenley estates equally between them. After Anne's death, Respondents brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant for specific execution of the Articles, and an account and distribution of the personal estate of his parents. The Lords Commissioners on 29 June last decreed that the Articles should be confirmed and Anne's deed executed by Appellant. This Decree and a subsequent Decree of 6 Feb. inst. upon a Bill of Review are erroneous. Anne had no power under the Will to make such conveyance, being a trustee only for particular purposes, and Appellant, being only tenant for life, should not be forced to execute a deed conveying a fee simple estate. Prays that the Decree may be reversed and Thomas and Mary Lomax ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and Mich. Newnam. L. J., XV. 220. Annexed:—

(a.) 11 Feb. 1692-3. Answer of Thomas Lomax. The Articles and Conveyances were drawn by Mr. Appleton, a lawyer, the Appellant's brother-in-law. The Conveyance of the Bovingdon lands was to the same uses as in the Shenley lands. Appellant released all his right to the timber in Bovingdon, but delayed to seal the deed of Bovingdon to Respondent, who thereupon entered and laid out above 3,000*l.*, and Anne entered on the Shenley lands and enjoyed them till 1691, when she died intestate. On the contest between Appellant and Respondent for letters of administration, they agreed that Appellant should seal the deed of Bovingdon and Northchurch which Anne had sealed, and have the Shenley and other lands of 192*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* a year, and the other lands of Bovingdon and Northchurch of 186*l.* a year, which were not comprised in Anne's conveyance; that Shenley manor and woods should be equally divided between them, and the timber on the three estates valued and allowed for by him that had most; that the naming of Austin's House in Anne's deed of the Bovingdon lands, instead of Whites in the Articles (representing the excess in the exchange of lands, alleged in the Appeal), should be no difference; that Respondent should have his share of the personal estates, and that the agreement should be confirmed in Chancery. On these terms Appellant obtained letters of administration, and possessed himself of all the personal estates, which done, he refused to seal the deed, or account to Respondent for his share of the personal estate. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed, as oppressive, with costs. Unsigned by Respondent. Countersigned by Jam. Stedman. Endorsed as brought in this day.

unless explained by their Lordships, the former part ordering Conveyances to be executed pursuant to the Articles of Exchange and Agreements, and the latter part directing Appellant to surrender to the Respondent Thomas and his heirs absolutely all the Bovington lands, as well those which were to be exchanged as the others, which were only to be divided by the Will and Agreement, and by the Decree, which is for a larger estate than agreed by the Articles or prayed by Respondent in his Bill. By the said Decree Respondent and Appellant were mutually to execute conveyances, and Respondent was to account for the moiety of their father's personal estate; but the Lords Commissioners and the Court of Chancery since have restrained and altered that part of the Decree, by ordering a suspension of all acts decreed to be done mutually by Respondent and Appellant, and requiring the latter fully to perform all things on his part, and then Respondent to do what the Court of Chancery shall direct. Prays that the Decree may be explained in these matters, and to have the benefit of the Decree so far as is consistent with their Lordships' affirmance. Unsigned by Appellant. Counter-signed by Mich. Newnham and Thomas Price. L. J., XV. 307. [Counsel for both sides were heard on this Petition on 9 Dec. Sir William Williams (for Petitioner): The Decree is inconsistent. By the Decree there are Articles between them. The limitation has a reference to the Articles preceding. The Decree says those Articles are to be executed on both sides. The other part of the Decree says that my client shall surrender the copyhold estate. The inconsistency is this, of conveying the copyhold estate contrary to the Articles. Speaks to the subsequent Order in March last. The Order is contrary to this whole matter. Mr. Price (for Petitioner): Here is a reciprocal Decree to be performed, and yet by this Order we are set at liberty. Counsel withdraw. Moved that they may not be let into the inconsistency of the Decree, which is affirmed. The House having affirmed the Decree, they ought not to be heard to it. Counsel called in and told that they are confined only to the subsequent Order in Chancery, and to showing how it is inconsistent. Mr. Price is heard. The Order complained of is read. Mr. Stedman (for Thos. Lomax): This Order is very regular. We have prosecuted to a commitment, and we come to the Court, and he has possessed that estate. We tell the Chancery how much we are grieved. We offer to be examined and do what the Court thinks fit, and this is to hinder us from the deeds and estate. Sir Thomas Powys (for Thos. Lomax): This Order is made only to have the matters confirmed according to the Decree. The younger brother has executed his part. He has had our estate; he has got a rehearing, and set up a new Bill by the tenant and borne all the suit. Five orders to commit him to the Fleet, and then he appeals. Counsel withdraw. Petition dismissed with 50*l.* costs, and Counsel who signed it, to attend on the 11th inst.—On 11 Dec. Mr. Price and Mr. Newnham were reprimanded by the Speaker for signing the Petition, and submitted and asked pardon of the House. Manufactures under the said Duchess and her trustees. Petitioner the Duchess has a legal right and title, in consideration as well of marriage as by purchase, to the duties for a long term of years yet to come, under a yearly rent payable to the Crown, and the other Petitioners are Farmers of those duties under the Duchess for a great fine and other valuable considerations and a great yearly rent for part of the said term. A Bill has been sent up from the Commons for taking away those duties and for laying rates on such part only of the woollen manufacture that shall be exported, as satisfaction for the duties so abolished. Petitioners' petition to the Commons to be heard against the Bill as to the point of compensation was rejected without a reading. Pray to be heard by Counsel at the Bar against the Bill, the rates being in no wise an adequate compensation. Signed by the Duchess and also by John Eyles, Joh. Hayes and A. Stephens. [Read this day and Counsel ordered to be heard on the 13th. (L. J., XV. 229.) Counsel were heard at the Bar on this and the annexed Petition on the 22nd (ib 243). Sir William Thompson (against the Bill)*: It has been an ancient right of the Crown these 300 years. This was worth 5,000*l.* per annum. Sir Thomas Powys (for Duchess of Richmond against the Bill): They have ordered no officers to receive this at the Custom House. There is no fee for such officer, nor any way for us to come at it but by infinite suits. Mr. Ward (for the Farmers against the Bill): She has made a good estate to these men. Sir William Williams (for the Merchant Exporters against the Bill) is heard. Mr. Crispe, Common Serjeant (for Merchants against the Bill) is heard. Mr. Darnell (for the Bill): We make no doubt but there is a duty of Alnage and the Duchess has a right to it, and yet we hope to answer it all. The Customs will not be at an end. There are many thousands oppressed in this case. There is 2,000*l.* added by this Bill to the duty of Alnage. Sir Bartholomew Shower (for the Bill †): The Collectors spend great sums in the country. It is for the benefit of the King to have it at the Custom House. The King's interest is preserved. The Duchess will have a greater interest than now. There is 800*l.* or 900*l.* per annum more than the Farmers make of it. Counsel against the Bill heard in reply. Edward Cooke, Nicholas Harding and Tho. Lowe sworn to the truth of the Papers delivered, as an account of the Custom House and the account of the Farmers. Counsel withdrew, and the Bill was then read 2<sup>a</sup> and committed to a Select Committee. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 243.) There is no record in Com. Book of the Committee having met. The Bill dropped with the Session, though the Commons sent two Messages on March 4 and 10 to remind the Lords of it. (ib. 274, 283.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 13 Feb. Petition of divers Merchants, Exporters of Woollen Manufactures, on behalf of themselves and others. The subsidy and duty of Alnage is by the law expressly imposed on the maker of cloth or first seller, as appears by the several statutes relating thereunto, and no other person is by those statutes made liable to pay it. The Bill to transfer that duty to the Custom House, there to be paid by the Merchants, imposes a new tax on Petitioners and, contrary to the rules of trade, clogs the export and eases the home consumption. The exportation of woollen manufactures, which constitutes the greatest part of the trade and wealth of the Kingdom, has much decayed of late

693. Feb. 8. Outlawries Bill—Corrected * Draft of an Act for the relief of the Subject against vexatious arrests upon Outlawries and Writs of Quo minus.

§ i. Whereas divers persons have been unjustly vexed and oppressed by undue and irregular prosecution to the outlawry and by being arrested upon the writ or process commonly called a Quo Minus out of the Court of Exchequer. For remedy whereof Be it enacted by the King and Queen's most Excellent Majesties, &c., That from and after all sheriffs and other officers and ministers of Justice to whom the execution of any writs or process doth belong or appertain, shall let out of prison all manner of persons by them or any of them arrested or being in their custody by force or virtue of any writ of Capias utlegatum for any utlary upon any process to answer to any personal or popular action, indictment or information, for any offence or crime (except treason, felony, misprision of treason, misprision of felony and Præmunire), upon reasonable sureties of sufficient persons to appear at the day and place of return of the said writ of Capias utlegatum; And if any Sheriff or other Officer or Minister do return upon any person Cepi corpus, then he shall be chargeable to have the body of such person at the day of the return of the said writ in such form and manner as he should have been if he had returned Cepi corpus upon any mesne process before the making of this Act.

§ ii. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons so outlawed upon mesne process in any personal action, shall be admitted to appear by Attorney to reverse such outlawry, he or they having first put in sufficient bail to prosecute the reversal of the said outlawry and to appear in a new action, to be commenced by the plaintiff for the cause mentioned in the first Action, and also to pay the condemnation, if the plaintiff shall commence his suit against him before the end of the next Term after the reversal of such outlawry, and also to pay such costs as the Court shall think fit to assess for the charges and expenses which the plaintiff was put to by prosecuting him or them to the outlawry.

§ iii. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons that shall be outlawed upon [mesne] process [sued upon] to answer to any Indictment or Information (except as is before excepted) he or they may appear by his or their Attorney to assign Errors to reverse such outlawry, he or they first putting in bail in some reasonable sum to prosecute his or their Writ of Error with effect; and after the reversal of the said outlawry, if he or they do not confess or demur to the said Indictment or Information to plead thereunto and to try it at his or their costs and charges, if the matter be tryable in London or Middlesex, before the end of the next Term, and if the matter be tryable in any other County, at the next Assizes after the reversal of such outlawry.

* § iv. And whereas Writs of Quo Minus, issuing out of the Court of Exchequer, have been oftentimes abused by Attorneys and Solicitors, by insisting upon great bail where no bail by law is required, the said Writs being general and not expressing the cause of Action. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of Easter term, if any person or persons be arrested by any writ or process called a Quo Minus issuing out of their Majesties' Court of Exchequer, That the certainty or true cause of action shall be expressed in the said writ or process, and in default thereof the party or parties so arrested shall not be compelled to give security or to enter into bond with sureties for his or their appearance at the day or place in such writ or process mentioned or contained in any penalty or sum of money exceeding the sum of forty pounds, conditioned for such appearance, but upon giving such security, the person or persons so arrested shall be discharged out of custody, and his or their appearance by Attorney at the day or place in such writ or process mentioned or contained shall be a sufficient discharge of such bond without putting in any bail. devised all the lands descended to him from his father and grandfather, (subject to annuities to several of his servants and 5,000*l.* to his sister, charged on the Rutland lands, and half a year's wages to his other servants), to Appellant, the Earl, in tail male, remainder to John Noel in tail, remainder in fee to his two daughters, and charged the Rutland lands also with all his debts at the time of his death, and soon after died possessed of a personal estate of above 10,000*l.*, and indebted about 20,000*l.*, leaving above 2,000*l.* a year inheritance to descend to his two daughters. Respondent proved the Will without making any claim to the personal estate otherwise than as Executrix, but in 1691 brought a Bill in Chancery * against Appellants for the personal estate, suggesting that Testator's lawyer had omitted, by fraud or negligence, to insert in the Will a devise of it to her, and praying that the debts might be paid out of the real estate in Rutland. Appellants answered that, besides the annuities and the 5,000*l.* and such of Testator's debts as his personal estate would not suffice to pay, the premises devised to them were subject to a rent-charge of 2,000*l.* a year to Respondent for life, and 400*l.* a year to one Mr. Boyle in fee, that the two daughters also claimed 200*l.* a year for maintenance till the age of 12, and afterwards 400*l.* a year till 18, and 15,000*l.* for their portions, that, even if the personal estate were in the first place applied towards payment of the debts, little of the real estate would remain, and that no averment, foreign to the Will in writing, ought to be allowed to impeach it. The Lords Commissioners on 28 Jan. last decreed the real estate to be charged in the first place with the legacy and debts, the residue wanting, if any, to come out of the personal estate, and that Respondent should be reimbursed what she should pay Testator's creditors out of the lands devised to Appellants, but pay Testator's other legacies and funeral charges out of the personal estate. Pray that this Decree may be reversed and Respondent ordered to answer. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by J. Soñers and T. Vernon. L. J., XV. 223. [The Cause was heard on 27 Feb. Mr. Ward and Mr. Finch heard for Appellant, and the Solicitor-General and Sir Thomas Powys for Respondent. Several Depositions read. Counsel withdrew and the Speaker reported. Statute of Frauds and Perjuries read. Judges asked whether there is any latitude, contrary to the Statute, for personal estate? Holt, C. J.: I am of opinion, before this Statute, it did not (sic). Treby, C. J.: I am of the same opinion. Eyre, J.: There is no difference between a Will for lands and personal estate. [Atkyns], C. B.: As for the point in law, I am of the same opinion with my Brethren, and for this case, it binds in equity as well as law. After debate, Counsel were called in, and told; and they were told that the Depositions must be read, which were read before. Newsham's Deposition read. Depositions of Jones, J. 696. Feb. 11. Mainstone v. Mainstone.—Petition and Appeal of John Mainstone, Gent. Petitioner's late uncle, William Mainstone, of Woodberry Hall, Cambridgeshire, on his marriage with Penelope, Sir Thomas Jones' youngest daughter, with whom he was promised a portion of 600*l.*, settled upon her the manor of Woodberry, worth 600*l.* a year, which he had purchased from the late Sir John Jacob, Bart., with intent that it should come to Petitioner, if there were no children. Penelope and her friends, however, induced him to give a bond of 10,000*l.* to Sir Thomas, on 19 Jan. 1673, conditioned to leave to her, if she survived him, a real or personal estate, or both, of the value of 3,000*l.* He died intestate, leaving a personal estate of 1,200*l.* and a real estate much encumbered. Petitioner being then an infant, administration was granted to William Clough, Esq., who possessed himself of the personal estate. In 1688 Sir Thomas and Penelope brought a Bill in Chancery against Petitioner, the mortgagee, and Clough, praying for satisfaction of the bond by a sale of the real estate, and alleging that Mainstone could not at the time of the bond make a settlement upon his wife, by reason of an extent due from Sir John Jacob to Charles II., and other incumbrances. Petitioner then brought a Bill against Penelope, Clough and others, for a discovery and account. On 26 Nov. 1689 the Lords Commissioners, although the marriage portion was never shown to have been paid, and the extent was paid off by Mainstone after the settlement, which payment should protect the real estate against the bond, decreed to Penelope the 3,000*l.* in full, with interest out of the manor at 6 per cent. from her husband's death, computed to 1,305*l.*, the manor to be sold for payment thereof and of Mainstone's debts, and of 1,100*l.* to Clough, and dismissed Petitioner's Bill barely on Penelope's and Clough's offering to be examined on Interrogatories. Petitioner, the heir-at-law, will thus be left not 500*l.* to support himself and family, his uncle's debts being about 8,000*l.*, besides the extent and Penelope's claims. The Court have decreed above 4,300*l.* to be paid her in consideration of 600*l.* not proved to be paid, and 1,100*l.* to Clough, though a great part thereof is but debt on simple contract. Although in some cases Courts of Equity have decreed a just bond debt to be paid out of a real estate, they have never charged a real estate with the payment of a book debt, such as that of Clough. Prays that the Decree and Dismission may be reversed, and proceedings stayed, and Penelope and Clough ordered to answer. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wm. Whitelocke and Tho. Goodinge, who certify that Petitioner has just cause to appeal. L. J., XV. 224. [The Cause was heard on 2 March, Mr. Ward being heard for Appellant, and Sir Thos. Powys for Respondents. Decree affirmed, with 40*l.* costs. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 256.)]

Annexed:—

(a.) 17 Feb. Answer of Penelope Mainstone, Widow. Respondent's father was the late Chief Justice, and her late husband was a merchant in the East Indies, who married her on his return. The portion was duly paid to him, and he entered voluntarily into the bond, by which he promised to leave a real estate worth 3,000*l.* to her and to their children, if any, two-thirds of the rest of his estate at death, if she survived him, and if not, two-thirds of his entire estate. He afterwards mortgaged the lands for 6,000*l.* for 500 years, leaving the reversion in fee to himself, and having no children, he intended his real estate should be sold to pay his debts, and that Respondent should have the rest in recompense for her portion, and accordingly, by his Will of 10 March 1681, devised to her all his real and personal estate and made her his Executrix, but before executing it as required by the late Act he died, and administration was granted to Clough, one of his creditors, who possessed the personal estate, and the mortgagee entered on the real estate. Respondent's husband, finding on his return to England that his brother was dead, having married a servant maid, by whom he left a son, the Appellant, and that Appellant's mother was married again to a country tailor, maintained Appellant as an act of charity and apprenticed him to a surgeon in Cambridge, but so far from intending to leave him his estate, he gave him only 200*l.*, half to be paid him when he was free of his trade, and the rest when he married and set up. On his death, Appellant left his master before serving his time, and by agreement with the mortgagee, entered into the lands and took profits amounting to above 2,000*l.*, without paying anything to the creditors. Respondent, not having received a penny out of her husband's estate since his death, brought her Bill for an account and satisfaction of the bond. Appellant submitted to the Decree by contracting for sale of the estate for 12,500*l.*, and agreed that the 11,942*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, reported by the Master, should be paid out of the purchase money, and the rest paid to himself, with which arrangement he declared himself content. Prays that the Appeal, which is frivolous and vexatious, may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tho. Powys. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (b.) 17 Feb. Answer of William Clough, Esq. Appellant's uncle induced Respondent to become bound with him for debts amounting to above 700*l.*, but died before anything was paid. Respondent was forced to administer his estate, as Penelope declined to do so. Respondent was examined on Interrogatories, and gave a full discovery and account, and the Master reported 84*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* due to him out of the real estate, which sum is not for any book debts or debts on simple contract, as pretended. Appellant has already had far more out of the estate than he was entitled to. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Tho. Jones. Endorsed as brought in this day.

697. Feb. 13. Danby's Estate Act.—Consent of Joseph Danby, Esq., to the passing of a Bill for the settling a Jointure on the wife of Anthony Danby, Esq., and for making provision for his brothers and younger children, and for payment of his debts. Dated 18 Dec. 1691. Attested by Robt. Laton, Thomas Cust, and William Danby. [Read in Committee this day. (Com. Book.) The Bill was brought from the Commons 17 Jan., and read 1<sup>a</sup> on the 26th; Royal Assent 14 March. (L. 698. Feb. 14. Sir E. Smith v. Welch.—Petition and Appeal of Sir Edward Smith, Bart., and Edward Smith and others. Thomas

1692-3.

Pepys, Esq., under whom Petitioners claim, being seized in fee of Merton Abbey House and certain lands on both sides of the river of Merton Abbey, and also of three mills called Merton Mills and the stream, with all rights of fishing, &c., leased the mills on 10 May 1669 to the late Jonathan Welch for 51 years at 50*l.* a year rent. The inheritance of the premises and the rent reserved upon the lease came to Petitioners, who, with all those under whom they claim, have time out of mind enjoyed the rights of fishing, making erections, &c., so far as their lands extended, so as the same did not hinder the stream coming to the mills. Respondents alleging that a stone bridge over the water and an engine for catching fish, both of which were there when the lease was made, obstructed the stream, Petitioners removed both at their own expense, and afterwards built a small mill of their own a quarter of a mile from the said three mills. Thereupon Respondents in 3 Will. & Mary brought an English Bill in the Exchequer to hinder their building the new mill, pretending they had lost the original lease, and praying that a copy might be taken as evidence. The Court, on 30 May last, ordered an Issue to be tried at the Surrey Assizes whether Respondents were damnified. A verdict having passed for them with 60 marks against the Petitioner, Edward Smith, who was ordered to take the whole defence upon him, the Court on 26 Jan. last decreed the new mill to be pulled down and an injunction to issue against building in the future. The Issue directed ought to have been, whether enough water was left for the old mills, after building the new one. Pray that the Order and Decree may be reversed, and Jonathan and Joseph Welch ordered to answer, and that proceedings may be stayed. Signed by above-named Appellants; Countersigned by Tho. Trevor and J. Smith. L. J., XV. 228. [The Cause was heard on 3 March. Mr. Ward (for Appellant) opens the Case. There were ancient erections in the river, which were pulled down. Solicitor-General (for Appellant) is heard. Sir Bartholomew Shower (for Respondent): We had a verdict; then they would have a new trial. The Court gave it them on the same issue, but that they would not do. Mr. Finch (for Respondent): We are hindered from using as much water as we had before. Counsel for Appellants heard in reply. Decree affirmed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 272.)]

Annexed:—

- (a.) 21 Feb. Answer of Jonathan Welch and Joseph Welch. Respondents' late father was possessed for a long term of years of the Three Mills, one of them being a Brazeile Mill, another a Cullin Mill and a third a corn Mill, under a lease from one Ellis Crispe, deceased, and spent large sums in repairing them. Crispe afterwards conveyed the reversion to Pepys, at whose instance Respondents' father surrendered his old lease and took a new one. The reversion and rent belong to the Appellant Edward Smith. Appellants, under pretence of erecting a small eel-gin, made preparations for building a fulling or other mill, which would obstruct the stream to the prejudice of Respondents, who have laid out at least 4,000*l.* on their mills. The issue was tried by a special jury of gentlemen of quality, and proof was given that Respondents, in consequence of the new mill, could not grind so much by at least 7 cwt. of log-wood a week, at 5*s.* a hundred, as they did before. The new mill does not stand on the sight of the former bridge, or nearly as far from Respondent's mills as is pretended. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs, and that proceedings may not be stayed. Signed by Respondents; Countersigned by Sam. Dodd and Rich. Turner. Endorsed as brought in this day.

- (b.) 21 Feb. Petition of Respondents for a day for hearing. L. J., XV. 241.
 (c.) 2 March. Petition of Respondents for an earlier day for hearing than the 9th inst. L. J., XV. 256.

699. Feb. 14. Bishopric of London (Fulham Estate) Act.—Amended Draft of an Act for exchanging of several small parcels of land in the parish and manor of Fulham, belonging to the Bishopric of London, and part of the Bishopric of London, for other lands of the like value to Charles, Earl of Monmouth and his heirs. The Lords' Amendments, so far as material, were to insert in the spaces left blank the names of the trustees,* the situation of the lands to be exchanged,† and the names of those who were to approve of them; to omit in the trust a part directing the trustees, after the exchange should be effected, to convey the premises to the Earl, and to add a provision requiring them to lease them, as the Bishop should direct (Sect i.); to fix three years as the period for the Earl to convey other lands in exchange (Sect. iii.), and to add the Clauses corresponding with Sections v. and vii. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day (L. J., XV. 228). Amended in Committee‡ on Feb. 22 (E. Rochester in the Chair) and Feb. 23 (E. Stamford in the Chair). The Commons' two Amendments (C. J., X. 841) are purely verbal. Royal Assent 14 March (L. J., XVIII. 289). 4-5 W. & M. c. 38. in Long Calendar.]

Annexed :—

- (a.) 23 Feb. Draft, marked ✠, altering the terms of the trust in Sect. i. by substituting the words from ("Upon the trust following") to the end of the Section. [Agreed to in Committee 22 Feb. (Com. Book), and reported this day (L. J., XV. 246).]
 (b.) 23 Feb. Amended Draft of Clause, marked A, empowering the Bishop to let Great Hurlingham Field for building. As amended, it forms Sect v. of the Act. [Agreed to in Committee 22 Feb. (Com. Book) and reported this day (L. J., XV. 246).]
 (c.) 23 Feb. Amended Draft, marked B, of two Saving Clauses. The first of these, a general Saving Clause, forms Sect. vii. of the Act; the second, which relates to Hellbrooke Common, and forms Sect. viii., is a redraft of the last Clause in the Bill. [Agreed to in Committee and reported this day. (Com. Book; L. J., XV. 246) In Committee this day Mr. Robert Linpeny, John Plucknet and John Storer informed the Committee that they had had a vestry, and desired the drawing of the Hellbrooke Clause,§ as being for the advantage of the poor. Parchment Collection.—[Brought from the Commons this day, read 1<sup>a</sup> on 18 Feb. and 2<sup>a</sup> on the 20th and committed to a Select Committee * (L. J., XV. 229, 235, 237), which met on 21 Feb. (E. Stamford in the Chair); on 22 Feb. (E. Rochester in the Chair); on 24 Feb. (M. Halifax in the Chair); on 27 Feb. and 6 March (E. Bridgewater in the Chair), but each time only to adjourn; and again on 7 March (E. Bridgewater in the Chair), when the Bill was read by paragraphs. Mr. Trevannell and others are heard to the first enacting Clause. Part of the Act 1 Jac. II. is read. Mr. Harbord's Report, 25 Aug. 1689, to the Commissioners of the Treasury, concerning Cock's tenement, is read. They withdraw. Then the first amendment noticed above was made. Mr. Williams speaks against the last Clause, which abates the Officers' Fees. Then the last three amendments noticed above were made, and the Bill was ordered to be reported. (Com. Book, 7 March.) It was reported with these amendments, read 3<sup>a</sup> and passed, and returned to the Commons the same day. On 8 March the Commons agreed to all the Lords' Amendments except the second, to which they disagreed, and appointed a Committee to prepare Reasons (C. J., X. 845). Of the four Reasons reported by this Committee only the last was agreed to by the House (ib. 847); and at a Conference with the Lords on 10th March, the latter insisted on their amendment, and appointed a Committee to prepare Reasons (L. J., X. 283-4). No further proceedings.]

Annexed:—

- (a.) Clause endorsed "A Clause for reducing the usual fees of twenty pounds taken for the passing a lease in the County of Cornwall to ten pounds." It is a copy of the Clause in the Commons' Engrossment corresponding with Section v. of the Act, and is marked where the amendments proposed in Annex (b) are to come in.
- (b.) 27 Feb. Clause endorsed, Mr. Bertie's Clause, to be added to the Bill at the Committee 27 Feb. 1692. Identical with preceding, but embodying three proposed amendments, for which see footnotes to text above.
- (c.) 7 March. Lords' Amendments to the Bill. The second one is noted "disagreed" and the rest "agreed." See notes to text of Bill above. Endorsed are the words: "Parl. Rot. 6, 16 R. 2." [Made in Committee and reported this day (Com. Book; L. J., XV. 278).]
- (d.) 10 March. Commons' Reason for disagreeing to the Lords' second amendment, concerning fees to Officers, L. J., XV. 283. In extenso. [Reported from the Conference this day. (ib.)]
- (e.) 10 March. List of Lords' Committee appointed this day to draw Reasons for insisting on said Amendment. Noted: Conference. The List differs from that in L. J., XV. 283 in omitting the Lord President.

in the same Court. They are to add at the end of the Title the words ("and also for reforming of abuses by Writs of Quo Minus"), and to add at the end of the Bill a Clause (Annex (a.) below) for that purpose. [Reported from C. W. H. this day. (L. J., XV. 231.) The Bill was brought from the Commons on 5 Jan., and read 1<sup>a</sup> on the 10th. (Ib., 173, 178). It was referred on 14 Jan. to a Select Committee (ib., 183), which does not appear to have met, and on 10 Feb. the Bill was considered in C. W. H. (E. Stamford in the Chair), after the House had been in Committee on the Outlawries Bill (No. 693) and resumed. The Title and Preamble having been read and agreed to, progress was reported. (MS. Min; L. J., XV. 223.) On 14 Feb. an order was made for the House to be put into Committee on the 18th, and C. J. Holt and some other Judges to attend (ib., 229); but the C. W. H. was resumed, on motion, on the 15th, L. Cornwallis in the Chair. The first enacting Clause read. L. C. Baron (heard to this Clause): I have heard great complaints in this business. Powell, B.: I think the scope of this Bill is very well, but in some cases it is otherwise. The Clause agreed to. 2nd and 3rd Clauses read and agreed to. Judges heard. The other Clauses read and agreed to. A Clause read,* to be added to this Bill out of the Quo Minus Bill,† and the Judges heard on it. We think it a very good Clause. The Clause agreed to. Title read and amended. House resumed and Bill reported, with the amendments (MS. Min.), which were agreed to (L. J., XV. 231). The Commons disagreed to these amendments (C. J., X. 822), and, after a Conference, the Lords on 14 March agreed not to insist upon them, and the Bill received the Royal Assent the same day. (L. J., XV. 288.) 4 W. & M. c. 18., Fol. Ed.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 15 Feb. Engrossed Clause, marked A, being Clause iv. of the Outlawries Bill (No. 693). [Reported to be added to the Bill this day.]

702. Feb. 15. Judgments Discovery (Docket) Act.—Petition of Thomas Gooding and Simon Folks, Esquires, Custos Brevium et Recordorum of their Majesties' Court of King's Bench and their Under Clerks. The Bill for the better discovery of Judgments in the Courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer at Westminster will take away from Petitioners the searches, fees and profits of their office anciently and of right due, and give them to another office, and will also make public all judgments, to the great discredit of all borrowers of money and disadvantage of trade. Pray to be heard against the Bill. L. J., XV. 231. [The Bill was brought from the Commons on 10 Feb., and read 1<sup>a</sup> the next day. (Ib., 223, 225.) In Committee on 21 Feb., E. J., XV. 289.) 4 W. & M. c. 20., Fol. Ed.]

Annexed :—

(a.) 21 Feb. Petition of Robert Warter, Clerk of the Doggetts [Dockets] in the Court of King's Bench. Petitioner has for many years docketed the judgments into Parchment Books in an approved method for the ease of the Attorneys searching, being paid only fourpence a term, whereby he cannot make above 30*l.* a year, with daily attendance and great trouble. Prays their Lordships to consider that the method set forth in the Bill will take up four times the parchment, which amounts to more than one-third of the profits and at least six times the labour in entering, besides the heavy penalty in the Bill. 703. Feb. 16. Butter and Cheese (Searching and Weighing) Act.—Petition of several Cheesemongers of London on behalf of themselves and others trading in Butter and Cheese. Pray to be heard against the Bill to prevent the abuses committed by the traders in Butter and Cheese, which will be very prejudicial to Petitioners and of ill consequence to the public. Signed George Harvey, John Moore, John Boys, Rob. - (a.) 18 Feb. Amended draft of Proviso forming the last Section of the Act. The concluding sentence relating to security for costs is added in the handwriting of Chief Baron Atkyns. [Added in Committee this day at the end of the Bill. (Com. Book.) It forms a separate Schedule annexed to the Roll.]
- (b.) 18 Feb. Clause as follows: And for prevention of undue practices committed by divers Coopers in this Kingdom in making unlawful butter firkins, some weighing twelve pounds, some fourteen pounds, and some sixteen pounds weight, many of them being also made of green and unseasoned timber, to the decaying of such butter as hath been packed up therein, to the great damage of farmers making the said commodity and to all other dealers in the same, Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every Cooper and Coopers within this kingdom making and exposing to sale any empty firkin or firkins, half firkin or half firkins, to any dairyman, farmer, or other person or persons whatsoever packing up, or that shall hereafter pack up, butter therein, shall from and after the commencement of this Act, make all and every such firkin or firkins, half firkin or half firkins, for the purposes aforesaid, of sound, dry and well-seasoned timber, and shall immediately, as soon as the same is made, set upon every such firkin and firkins, and half firkin and half firkins, a continuing visible mark of the just weight of every such empty firkin or firkins, half firkin or half firkins, together with the two first letters of his and their name or names, that no such firkin whatsoever, made for the purpose aforesaid, shall not (sic) exceed the weight of ten pounds, nor any half firkin exceed the weight of six pounds, upon pain and penalty that every such offender or offenders, that shall make for sale, for the purpose aforesaid, any such firkin or firkins, half firkin or half firkins, of any green or unseasoned timber as aforesaid, or not truly tared as aforesaid, or exceeding such weight as aforesaid, being thereof convicted as an offender against this Act in manner aforesaid, shall forfeit for every such respective firkin the sum of _____, and for every such respective half firkin the sum of _____, to be levied in manner as aforesaid. [Offered this day in Committee by Counsel for the Cheesemongers, and read and rejected. Com. Book.]
- (c.) 18 Feb. Clause as follows: Provided also and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons, who shall at any time hereafter pack or put up any butter into firkins, or other casks or pots for sale, shall expose the same to sale and sell the same in some public market or fair within this kingdom and not elsewhere; and all and every person and persons that shall otherwise expose to sale or sell any such butter, shall be still subject and liable to all and every the penalties and forfeitures in the said recited Act of the fourteenth year of the said late King mentioned, to be imposed and recovered as in and by the said Act is provided, Anything

(d.) 18 Feb. Proviso as follows: Provided that nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to any warehouse which now is or hereafter shall be within the County of Gloucester and the City and County of the City of Gloucester, nor to any vessel or boat at any time belonging to, or that shall come into, any the ports or havens of either of the said Counties. [Offered to the Committee this day by Sir Miles Cooke and read and rejected. Com. Book.]

(e.) 18 Feb. Petition of several Masters of hoys and vessels trading from Suffolk to London. The Bill tends greatly to discourage Petitioners in their employment by depriving them of the liberty to contract for the freight of their own vessels at home, and to encourage the Cheesemongers of London to send vessels from thence to freight by Charter-party, while Petitioners' vessels must lie still and the trade be swallowed up by strangers. Pray to be heard by Counsel against the Bill. Signed Humphrey Lindsell, John Friend, Thomas Almond, James Cordy, Titus Grafton, Richard Horne, John Lambly, Wm. Westhorp, William Fidler, Thomas Gall, James Deane and John Cock. [Read this day in Committee and rejected. Com. Book.]

(f.) Letter from John Kennesley to Sam. Palmer at the "Cheese" in Honey Lane. Has bought one parcel of cheese at 22s., but finds "that good cheese will not be had so now, for, as we use to say, it is gotten in the hucksters' hands. Here is 23s. 6d. and 24s. bidden by our great men here, and is refused by some, that so it will not now be bought for 22s. per cwt.; and I have sent to Ince and Fradsom to see if I can get any freight there, for I was denied at Chester, and Potter said that the wholesale men designed no retailer should come in. I suppose they are about to engross all into their own hands. A waggon and cart did promise to load for me this day, but I doubt have deserted me. Wages is 5s. 2d. and 5s. 3d." Dated 1 June 1691.

(g.) Letter from Same to Same. Finds that he cannot get any freight at Ince or Fradsom, for the wholesale men are engrossing all into their own hands, and will not allow the retailers to come in, and unless they can be prevailed on to do so, no good will be done here. Adds particulars as to purchase, &c. of some cheese. Dated 5 June 1691.

(h.) Letter from Edmund Duncalfe to same. Is loth to act in his own name for the Retailers, because the Wholesalers are striving against them, and have bound up their business to four men in Hull, of whom he is one. This may happen to be of some consequence, so he cannot be blamed for doing the best he can for himself; and therefore, till he sees what the event will be, he desires Palmer to address his letters to Robt. Richardson, Carver, in Hull. Dated Hull, 23 July 1692.

(i.) Letter from Thomas Blake. Regrets he cannot examine his ware and ship it. Dated Ipswich, 11 Oct. 1692. The address is torn off.

(k.) Letter from Tho. Gren to Mr. Edward Domvile, Cheesemonger, over against the Hospital, Southwark. Being now at Woodbridge, he finds that D. H. durst not ship any goods for Domvile, nor durst the writer buy, for his "whole" employers

704. Feb. 17. Berry and others v. Yate.—Petition of Wm. Berry and Apollina, his wife, Wm. Giffard and Ellen, his wife, and Anthony Dowdall and Rebecca, his wife. Dr. Thos. Yate, late Principal of Brazenose College, Oxford, by his Will of 21 July 1678 gave his estate to his brother Jonathan and his nephew Thomas Yate, son of the Respondent Samuel Yate, and shortly after died. In Jan. 1681 his nephew also died, leaving his brother and sister, Samuel and Elizabeth, Executors of his Will. Some disputes arising about Dr. Yate's personal estate, Jonathan and Respondents agreed on 27 Feb. of that year that Jonathan, on paying 1,000*l.* to the Respondents Samuel and Elizabeth, and Dr. Yates' debts not exceeding 360*l.*, should have all Dr. Yate's and his nephew's personal estates. Jonathan by his Will of 21 July 1687 made Sir Thos. Pinfold, Knt., and others Executors in trust for paying his debts and legacies, and gave several legacies to Appellants, and soon after died. After the nephew's death, his father Samuel carried away from his chamber at the College, with other gold and silver, 300 guineas in a purse and a large number of gold rings, which he concealed from Jonathan and converted to his own use, and after Jonathan's death, sued his Executors for 300*l.*, which he pretended he had paid for Thomas' debts. The Executors refusing to pay Appellants their legacy, till the matter was determined, the latter brought a Bill in Chancery against them and Respondents, for a discovery, and the Lords Commissioners on 18 July 1690 decreed an Account to be taken of Jonathan's and the nephew's estates, and the Executors to pay what was left due of the 1,000*l.* or 360*l.* The Master reported that the 1,000*l.* and interest had been paid by Jonathan, but that 527*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* remained due to Samuel for sums paid by him for Thomas' debts. Appellant's exceptions were overruled and the Report confirmed in December last, and costs were awarded against him by an Order of 13 Jan. Prays that the Report and subsequent Orders may be rectified. Signed by Wm. Berry; Countersigned by Rich. Holford and Tho. Filmer. L. J., XV. 234. [The Cause was heard on 4 March, the Solicitor-General and Sir William Williams being heard for Appellants and Sir Thomas Powys and Mr. Ward for Respondent. Decree affirmed with 20*l.* costs, and Counsel who signed the Petition ordered to attend on the 6th (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 275). No further proceedings.]

Pinfold and one Richard Stevens, Gent., Executors of his Will in trust for the Appellants, his daughters. The Respondent Samuel the elder, with Dr. Edisbury and one Mr. Hatton, Senior Fellow of the College, entered 'Thomas' study after his death, and found some money and some gold rings, which by Dr. Edisbury's direction, were numbered and left with Hatton, who handed them over to Jonathan, except the rings, which the latter allowed him to keep. The Decree is just, and the Respondent Samuel the elder being almost 80 years old, Appellants use all means of delay. Countersigned by Tho. Powys. Endorsed as brought in this day.

707. Feb. 17. Fitch v. Fitch.—Petition and Appeal of Dame Anne Fitch, Widow and Administratrix of Sir Thomas Fitch, Knt. and Bart., deceased. Sir Thomas, after lending the Respondent John Fitch large sums to relieve his necessities, was prevailed on, a few days before his marriage, to give him a general release, leaving him a debtor, however, for 1,000*l.* on two bonds, and in 1677 made him partner in the work of building fortifications at Chatham, Portsmouth and other places for Charles II., and continued the partnership till his death in 1688. John wanting money, Sir Thomas advanced all that was necessary for carrying on the work, and expended so much on his particular account, that John in 1678 gave him a bond for 1,650*l.* A dividend was afterwards made, and John received 1,000*l.* as his moiety, besides a further 500*l.* at a second dividend in 1681, when, being found to owe Sir Thomas 3,006*l.* on his private account, he assigned to him his moiety of a talley for 3,065*l.*, the whole of which talley Sir Thomas then assigned to one Henry Lamb, a Goldsmith, as security for 700*l.* A third dividend was made in 1685, and in 1690 Sir Thomas, desiring to settle something on John's daughter, Alice, entered into a bond of 4,000*l.* for a portion of 2,000*l.* to her, if she married, and if not, the same to go to John, and to arise out of his moiety of 4,998*l.* then due from the Ordnance Office, all of which was afterwards received and spent upon the works. A fourth dividend was made in 1687, reciting a receipt for 5,000*l.*, being the whole of John's share of the four dividends. In 1688 Sir Thomas died intestate, leaving Sir Comport, Thomas, Anne, Melior and Christian his children, the eldest about 12 years of age. Differences arising as to the talley, the 2,000*l.* on the bond, and 1,000*l.* paid on the last dividend, Appellant brought a Bill in Chancery against John for a general account and for relief against the bond of 4,000*l.*, and John brought a Cross-Bill for an account of the receipts from the partnership and of Appellant's receipts as administratrix, and for relief against the assignment of the talley. The Court on 1 March, 2 W. & M., decreed separate accounts of the partnership and the moiety due on the private account, and that Appellant should account for her receipts since Sir Thomas' death. After a rehearing, and a report from the Master, Appellant's exceptions to which were overruled, the Court decreed that the 1,650*l.* bond was the consideration for the assignment of the moiety of the talley, and that the 4,000*l.* bond should stand as a charge on Sir Thomas' estate. Prays that this Decree may be set aside. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by J. Soñers and Tho. Trevor. L. J., XV. 234. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed on 3 March, the Solicitor-General and Mr. Blackerby appearing for Appellant, and Mr. Finch and Mr. Ward for Respondents. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 272.)]

- (a.) 23 Feb. Joint and Several Answers of Sir Comport Fitch, Bart., Thomas Fitch, Gent., Anne, Melior and Christian Fitch, Infants, by Lancelot Johnson, Esq., their Guardian. Sir Thomas lent large sums to the other Respondent John Fitch, and purchased his moiety of the talley, and gave a bond for payment of 2,000*l.* to him as a portion for the other Respondent Alice, endorsed to arise out of John's share of the money then due from the Ordnance Office. Hope that the suits in Chancery will not prejudice their interest in their father's estate. Signed by La. Johnson. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (b.) 27 Feb. Answer of John Fitch, John Saunders and Alice Fitch. The Commissioners treated with the Respondent John Fitch for the work, and proposed to advance 3,000*l.*, if he undertook it. Sir Thomas, knowing that John was skilled in such work, and not in such low circumstances as is suggested, having an estate of inheritance in Dorsetshire, of 300*l.* a year, importuned him to be admitted as partner. Sir Thomas in 1677 received the 3,000*l.*, and never advanced any of his own money for the work, which was managed entirely, and at great expense by John, his partner meanwhile residing in London, and taking fraudulent advantage of the money passing through his hands. The 2,000*l.* on the bond was for part of the 5,000*l.* due to John, as his moiety of the four dividends, Sir Thomas making up the rest in notes, including one drawn on Lamb for 1,000*l.* Respondent released his interest in the moiety of the talley, in consideration of Sir Thomas' delivering up the bond, which he never did, but by surprise, in Respondent's absence, got the assignment from a Mr. Russell, with whom the release had been left, until the bond was delivered up to be cancelled. Pray to be dismissed with costs. Signed by above Respondents; Countersigned by T. Vernon. Endorsed as brought in this day.

Clause 1 (in both Bills).

Forasmuch as the Cities, Corporations and market towns from all parts of the Kingdom have complained that, by reason of some defects or difficulties in the execution of the present laws, the inhabitants and settled traders of the said cities, corporations and market towns are so undermined and forestalled by the unlawful practices of pedlars, hawkers and other wandering persons, who in all parts do carry about, sell and expose to sale from house to house and place to place divers deceitful, prohibited and uncustomed goods of all such kinds as they, the said settled traders and shopkeepers, do deal in, by which means the [consumption and values of the said goods are much hindered] life and substance of trade is impaired and carried away by strangers and horse and foot pack-men, and true workmanship discouraged, to the great prejudice of the English manufactories, both at home and abroad, and to the discouragements and ruin of all the fair and legal traders in the said cities, corporations and market towns, and to the falling of the rents and profits in and about the same; For remedy whereof be it enacted by the King and Queen's Most Excellent Majesties, &c., That from and after the [first] nine and twentieth day of September [next], which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand, six hundred, ninety [three] four, no pedlar or person or persons whatsoever, either on foot or with horse, horses or otherwise, (except as hereafter in this Act is excepted) shall carry about and sell or expose to sale, or cause to be carried about and sold or exposed to sale, any goods or wares made of, or mixed with, any woollen, linen, silk, cotton, hair, metals or leather, or any such goods or wares as are usually sold by drapers, mercers, haberdashers, grocers, stationers or glass-sellers in any city, town, borough, village, hamlet or any other place whatsoever, within the Kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, except it be in open [fair] fairs or marts or in open markets, in such manner and by such persons as hereafter is herein limited and provided, or in his, her or their own shop or warehouse, where they usually inhabit, or in the open market of [such] any city or town, [in which he, she or they do reside and dwell] upon pain to forfeit and lose, for every such offence committed contrary to the intent hereof, the several sums following (that is to say), every horse-chapman, pedlar or other wandering person the sum of forty shillings, and every foot-chapman, pedlar or wandering person the sum of ten shillings, whereof one moiety to be to the use of such person or persons, who shall seize or procure to be seized such offender or offenders, and the other moiety to the use of the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed or commodities [shall be] seized, to be levied as hereafter is provided.

Clause 2 (in both Bills.)

And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons shall and may detain any such offender or offenders for such reasonable time, wherein he or they may give notice to any constable, headborough, tithingman, churchwarden, overseer of the poor, or any other parish officer or officers from time to time and at all times from and after the said [first] nine and twentieth day of September, upon any offence committed contrary to this Act, which officer and officers, upon such notice, or otherwise upon their own view or knowledge, are hereby empowered and required to seize the goods, wares and commodities so carried about [or] and exposed to sale as aforesaid contrary to this Act, and hold and detain such goods and commodities for any time not exceeding the space of ten days, within which time, [as] so soon as conveniently may be, the person or persons so seizing shall repair to one of their Majesties' Justices of the Peace of the county, riding, city, town-corporate or division, where such seizure was made, which said Justice shall have power, and is hereby required, to hear and determine the said matter, upon due proof, by the oath of one or more witnesses (which oath he is hereby empowered and required to administer), and upon acquittal or discharge of the person or persons whose goods shall be so seized, the said Justice or Justices shall cause the said goods to be restored to the owner or owners thereof; but on finding and adjudging the persons to be guilty of the offence aforesaid, in manner as aforesaid, the said Justice or Justices shall, by warrant under his or their hand and seal, to be directed to the constable or other officer or officers aforesaid, cause the said goods, wares and commodities to be sold for raising the said penalties, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient for raising the [said penalties by this Act imposed for every such offence committed as aforesaid] same, unless the said offender or offenders shall, within the said space of ten days next after [such seizure and] conviction made [as aforesaid], pay or satisfy to the said prosecutor or prosecutors the said several sums of forty shillings and ten shillings respectively, for every such offence by him, her or them committed as aforesaid, and in default thereof, [then it shall and may be lawful] to and for the said constable and other officer and officers, as aforesaid, of the hundred, parish or place where such seizure shall be made (who are hereby required to be aiding and assisting therein), by virtue of a warrant from the Justice of Peace as aforesaid, to cause the said goods, wares or commodities so seized, to be appraised by two sworn appraisers, (whom such Justice of the Peace, constable, or other officer or officers is hereby empowered to swear), to appraise the same truly, according to their best understanding, and after such appraisement shall and may lawfully sell the goods, wares or commodities so seized and appraised, or such part thereof as shall be sufficient, for the best price that can be gotten for the same, within six days, towards satisfaction of the penalties and forfeitures aforesaid, and of the charges of such [appraisements] appraisement and sale, restoring the said party or parties offending the overplus thereof, if any be.

* Clause 3. (No. 10 in later Bill.)

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons shall [be] at any time be sued for putting in execution any of the powers contained in this Act, or for doing anything pursuant thereunto, such person or persons may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence: and if the Plaintiff be nonsuit, or a verdict pass for the Defendant, or if the Plaintiff discontinues his action, or if, upon demurrer, judgment be given for the Defendant, every such Defendant shall have [double] treble his or her costs.

† Clause 4. (No. 3 in later Bill.)

Provided that this Act shall not extend to hinder any person or persons residing and dwelling in the Kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, who are the real workers and makers of any goods or wares, or his, her or their children, apprentices or domestic servants, from selling or exposing to sale any of the said goods or wares of his, hers or their own making [on] in any market [day], fair or mart in the open markets [of all cities, corporations and other market towns whatsoever, in as free, large and ample manner as they, or any of them have, or lawfully might have, done, before the making of this Act] or within fifteen miles of the place of his, her or their habitation, nor any such workers as aforesaid from selling their own manufactures, nor any other person whatsoever selling by wholesale only to any shopkeepers who sell the same by retail, nor to restrain any tinker or other persons usually employed in mending or repairing of any kettles or household goods whatsoever, from going about and carrying with him or them materials for mending the same, this Act, or any other Act or Acts heretofore made to the contrary, in any wise notwithstanding.

Clause 5. (Not in later Bill.)

[Provided also that any person or persons residing and dwelling as aforesaid, who are the real workers and makers of any goods or wares whatsoever, either of English or foreign materials, may at any time sell and expose to sale any of the said goods or wares of his, her or their own making, to any person or persons whatsoever inhabiting in the said city, town or place where such maker doth reside and dwell, or within ten miles of the same, as freely and lawfully as they or any of them have, or might have, done before the making of this Act.]

† Clause 6. (See Clause 3 of later Bill ad fin.)

[Provided also, that any tinker or other persons usually employed in mending or repairing of any kettles or other household goods whatsoever, may go about and carry with him or them materials for mending the same as lawfully and freely as they, or any of them, have or might have done before the making of this Act.]

Clause 7. (No. 4 in later Bill.)

Provided also, and be it further enacted, that any pedlar or pedlars, or other wandering person or persons, who have been [occupied and] employed for and during the space of seven years last past in buying and selling any of the goods and wares usually dealt in by any of the shopkeepers aforementioned, giving security to

Clause 8. (No. 5 of later Bill.)

Provided also that this Act shall not extend to any person or persons for selling of glasses or earthenware out of the cities of London and Westminster, or suburbs thereof, [or any other city, borough or corporation whatsoever] and out-parishes within the Bills of Mortality.

* Clause 9. (No. 6 of later Bill.)

Provided further that this Act or anything therein contained shall not extend to prohibit any person or persons from selling any Acts of Parliament, Forms of Prayer, Proclamations, Gazettes, licensed Almanacks, or any other public papers licensed by authority.

Clause 10. (No. 7 of later Bill.)

Provided also, that no pedlar, petty chapman or hawker, who shall be punished by virtue of this Act, shall suffer or be punished for the same offence by any other Act or law whatsoever.

† Clause 11 (in both Bills.)

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any constable, head-borough, or other officer or officers aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect (upon due notice) to be aiding and assisting in this Act, every such officer, being thereof convicted by the oath of one or more witnesses before any Justice of the same county, riding, city, town-corporate or liberty, (who are hereby authorized and required to hear and determine the same) shall forfeit for every such offence [the] any sum [of] not exceeding forty shillings nor under twenty shillings, to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods, by warrant under the hand and seal of such Justice of the Peace, to be distributed, the one half thereof to the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed, and the other to the informer, and the overplus thereof, if any be, to be returned to the party so offending.

Clause 12. (No. 8 in later Bill.)

Provided always that if any person or persons shall think him, her or themselves aggrieved by the determination of any Justice of the Peace, who shall at any time act in pursuance of the powers to him given by this Act, it shall and may be lawful to and for such person or persons to appeal to the next General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, to be held for the county, riding, city or town-corporate where the said offence shall be committed, the determination of which Justices shall be final and conclusive to all parties.

Clause 13. (No. 9 in later Bill.)

Provided nevertheless, that no person shall be capable of bringing any such Appeal at the Quarter Sessions, who shall not, after such determination of the [Justice] Justices of the Peace, and before the sale of the said goods, enter into recognizance, with one or more sufficient sureties, before the said Justice of the Peace, who made the said determination, to answer the said penalty to the informer and poor of the parish, together with [double] treble costs, in case the Appeal shall be adjudged against him, her or them so appealing by the said Justices at the Quarter Sessions, or the major part of them.

Clause 14. (Not in later Bill.)

[Provided always, that nothing in this Act shall extend to certain persons called packers or traders, who carry woollen or any other manufactures of this Kingdom from town to town, to be sold to shopkeepers only, or at fairs, for any such manufactures they shall so carry, so as such packers or traders do not sell the same by retail to any other person or persons than such shopkeepers or at such fairs.]

Clause 15. (No. 12 in later Bill.)

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this Act shall continue in force for the term and space of [five] seven years, and from thence to the end of the next Sessions of Parliament and no longer.

The Bill of 1694 concludes with the following clause, which is not in this Bill, viz.:—Clause 13. Provided that nothing in this Act contained shall extend to give any liberty to any tinkers to do any work in the cities of London or Westminster, or borough of Southwark, or any other city or corporation town, which they could not do before the making of this Act, anything in this Act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

710. Feb. 18. Offices (Buying and Selling) Bill.—Draft of an Act to explain the Statutes against Buying and Selling Offices.

§ i. Whereas there cannot be a due administration of Justice or any right application of the public treasure, unless persons worthy and meet and none other be advanced to offices and places of trust, according to the true intent and meaning of the laws made against buying and selling offices, And whereas the honour, wealth and safety of the nation chiefly depend on the due and impartial execution of the laws in force, It is absolutely necessary to make such provision, that the Judges and Officers entrusted or to be entrusted with the administration or execution of Justice may not, under the umbrage of a proviso in the statute made in the fifth and sixth years of King Edward the Sixth [5 & 6 Edw. VI. c. 16.*], buy and sell offices, seeing that proviso for the Judges to give and grant offices as they might have done ought not to be construed for them to sell, by reason the laws before that time made in the eighteenth and twentieth years of King Edward the Third and in the twelfth year of King Richard the Second [18 Edw. III. stat. 4.; 20 Edw. III. c. 1.; 12 Ric. II. c. 2.] remain in full and perfect force; Be it therefore Enacted by, &c., That from and after the day of every Chief Justice, Judge of Assize or other, who shall buy or sell any office, shall incur all and every of the penalties and forfeitures in and by the laws made against buying and selling offices provided, ordained and appointed.

§ ii. And for the better execution of the laws, Be it further Enacted That every Chancellor, Keeper or Commissioner of the Great Seal and every Judge and Baron, at or before he enter upon the execution of his office, shall take an Oath upon the Holy Evangelist to the effect following:

I, A.B., do swear that I have not by myself or other, directly or indirectly, given or promised to give anything to any person for the office of and to which I am now admitted, and that I will to the best of my skill lawfully counsel their Majesties in their business, and will not counsel or assent to anything which may turn to their Majesties' damage or dishonour by any manner of way or colour, and that I will to the utmost of my power remedy such things as I believe doth in any wise tend to the dishonour or disprofit of their Majesties and their people, or make the same known to their Majesties, that they may be redressed; and that I will do equal law and execution of right to all their Majesties' subjects, rich and poor, without respect of persons; and that I will not by myself or other, directly or indirectly, privately or openly, take any fee, gift or aught of value may turn to my profit of any person upon any account whatsoever for any matter or thing to be done by me in any wise relating to my office, but will content myself with such salary as their Majesties think fit to allow and grant me; and that I will not deny common right to any, but will execute the laws as faithfully as I can, to promote their Majesties' honour and the comfort, safety and prosperity of their Majesties and their people.

§ iii. And be it further enacted, that every person, before admitted to the execution of any office, shall besides the usual oaths, take an Oath upon the Holy Evangelist to the effect following:

I, A.B., do swear that I have not by myself or other, directly or indirectly, given or promised to give anything to any person or persons whatsoever for the office of and to which I am now to be admitted, as God help me.*

§ iv. And whereas Oaths and penalties have hitherto proved ineffectual to make good and wholesome laws be duly observed, by reason the Judges and Officers, who dispense with divers of them, be entrusted to reform themselves and correct others; Be it therefore enacted That any person at his or her election shall upon petition have a Commission, which shall be granted by the Court of Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, or any of them, directed to special Commissioners of good credit of the Petitioner's nomination, to inquire of any Judge or Officer's breach of Oath and duty by a substantial jury, duly to be returned by the Sheriff of that city or county wherein the offence is suggested to be committed; And the Inquisition, duly taken, returned and filed in that Court, out of which the Commission is or shall be issued, shall be a judgment by default, if the fact found be not traversed and tried according to the directions of the Statute made in the first year of King Henry the Eighth [c. 10.], and after judgment by default or verdict upon trial of the traverse, the Judge or Officer convicted of breach of any condition in law, which by his oath and duty he is obliged to perform, shall forfeit his office and suffer punishment as in the case of perjury; and the office forfeited, after judgment and conviction aforesaid, shall be granted to the prosecutor during his good behaviour, if he desire the same and be well qualified for it, or otherwise the prosecutor shall have so much duly paid to him in money out of the Exchequer as the full three years value of the office forfeited shall be valued or reputed to be worth at one entire payment, as his reward for the great trouble and expense he must necessarily be at in serving the public.

§ v. Lastly, it is Enacted that the due fees belonging to every person in any office or employment shall be fairly written in paper or parchment,† and shall be hung up in every of the respective Courts and in some one

711. Feb. 20. Castell v. Stephens.—Petition of Richard Castell. Petitioner, being possessed of four leases for lives of several houses, lands and mills and the Stewardship of the Fairs and a coney warren in Blockley, in Worcestershire, and also seized of freehold lands in Burton, Gloucestershire, in the whole about 150*l.* a year, mortgaged the same for 1,050*l.* to Anthony Arnold in 1665. Arnold having entered and received 8 years' profits, before the mortgage was forfeited, Petitioner brought a Bill against him in Chancery for an account and redemption, and in April 1673 obtained a Deeree to redeem the same, and 390*l.* was then reported due to Arnold. One Francis Stephens having agreed to assist Petitioner to pay off this debt, Petitioner in February 1673 conveyed the premises to him for 1,250*l.*, out of which it was agreed that Stephens should pay the said debt to Arnold and the rest to Petitioner, but (by a private agreement) to reconvey the premises, on Petitioner's repayment of the 1,250*l.* and interest. Petitioner never received more than 60*l.* of Stephens, who shortly after the conveyance, combined with Arnold and procured him to convey the premises to him, and then refused to account with Petitioner for the remainder of the 1,250*l.* or suffer him to redeem. Petitioner, thereupon, brought a Bill against Stephens, who answered denying the agreement to reconvey, but submitted to a redemption on payment of the 1,250*l.* with interest, and insisted that he was an absolute purchaser. On 2 March, 4 Jac. II., the Court decreed that Stephens should account with Petitioner for the whole 1,250*l.*, and pay what was due, which was reported to be 578*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* An Order for rehearing having been obtained but afterwards discharged, the Deeree was enrolled and Stephens prosecuted to a sequestration, but Petitioner's Clerk in Court having by mistake drawn up the Decree without taking notice that witnesses were examined, Stephens brought a Bill of Review, and obtained, on the ground of this omission only, a reversal of the Decree and a dismissal of Petitioner's Bill, and Petitioner is advised that another Bill of Review does not lie. Prays that the Cause may be heard, and all the enrolments laid open, and for leave to proceed on the Report. Signed by Appellant; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and Wm. Dobyns. L. J., XV. 237. [The Cause was heard on 5 Jan. 1693-4. Sir William Williams (for Appellant): We desire

* See No. 700. The Committee on each Bill consisted, as appears from MS. Min., of the Lords then present, i.e. at the commencement of the Sitting. It appears from MS. Min. that E. Bath, L. that the enrolment of the dismission of our Bill may be taken off. This estate was mortgaged to one Arnold. We have not received but 100*l.* of our estate. We have been out of our estate ever since 1675. This was reheard before L. Jeffreys. Mr. Dobyns (for Appellant): We only desire that the enrolment may be set aside, so that we may be reheard. The question is, whether a mortgage or a purchase. They remain accountable to us for the purchase money unpaid. Sir Thomas Powys (for Respondent): He says he has received nothing. Now we have actually paid Arnold, and we have his deeds and conveyances and his receipts for the purchase money. He has received 1,150*l.*, and we have paid Arnold. This man made no pretence during Arnold's life. The Master reports the whole purchase money paid. Bourne v. Stone; he cites the same case with this, which your Lordships dismissed with a sort of reprimand. Mr. Vernon (for Respondent): We hold distinct acquittances and discharges, and we have actual possession and quiet enjoyment for 10 years. Decree affirmed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 335.)]

- (a.) 3 Nov. 1693. Answer of Francis Stephens. Appellant was possessed of certain houses in Blockley, and certain lands called the Warren and the Woods, under some leases from the Bishop of Worcester, and of certain lands in Bourton, which he and his wife conveyed to Arnold for 150*l.* without any proviso of redemption. In 1673 Appellant and Arnold agreed with Respondent for his purchase of the premises, and Appellant and his son assigned to him for 275*l.* their interest in the houses in Blockley, and conveyed to him for 625*l.* the Warren, and for 350*l.* the lands at Bourton. The Court on 9 June 1686 declared Respondent an absolute purchaser of the Warren for 625*l.*, but there being no proof of the payment of the 625*l.* for Blockley and Bourton, Respondent was ordered to account, and to be allowed what he had paid Arnold out of the purchase money. The Master reported all the 625*l.* paid for Blockley and Bourton, but Appellant having taken exceptions, Respondent was ordered to account for the whole 1,250*l.*, and afterwards to pay 578*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.*, though not a penny was due. The Cause being reheard, on a Bill of Review, on 30 May 1690, the Court, on reading the receipts for the purchase money, dismissed the Bill of Appellant, who has all along prosecuted his suit in formâ pauperis. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent. Endorsed as brought in this day.
- (b.) 20 Nov. Petition of Appellant. Parliament was prorogued before Appellant could serve their Lordships' Order to answer on Respondent. Prays that the Appeal may stand revived, and that Respondent may be ordered to answer on an early day. Signed by Appellant. L. J., XV. 302.
- (c.) 1 Jan. 1695-6. Petition of Respondent. The Appeal was dismissed by their Lordships on 5 Jan. 1693-4, but never mentioned the date of the Order appealed from. The date given in their Lordships' Order, as drawn up, is 2 March, 4 Jac., which is a mistake, the Appeal being from the Order of 30 May 1690, which dismissed the Bill. Appellant, by reason of that misrecital, insists that the Decree of 2 March is affirmed, and under that pretence has troubled Respondent in the Courts below. Prays that the Order may be rectified. Signed by Respondent. [Read and Judgment ordered to be amended accordingly this day (L. J., XV. 625). See also Id. 335.]

712. Feb. 20. Felony (Sureties for Persons pardoned) Bill.—Amended * Draft of an Act to repeal the Statute made in the Tenth year of King Edward the Third, for the finding of sureties for the good abearing by him that hath a Pardon of Felony. Identical, after amendment, with the Act of 1693-4 (5-6 W. & M. c. 13., Fol. Ed.) except in the following passages, where the Act omits the words in square brackets and adds those in italics, viz.:—

§ i. . . . Which Statute hath been found very inconvenient in relation to divers people, who have been esteemed fit objects of mercy, and therefore the said Statute hath been seldom put in practice, but for the most part hath been dispensed withal in the Charters of Pardon that were granted in former reigns, and forasmuch . . . .

§ ii. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any Charter of Pardon be pleaded by any person for any [murder or other] felony, the Justices, before whom such Pardon shall be pleaded, may at their discretion remand or [continue] commit such person [in custody] to prison, there to remain until he or she shall [find] enter into a recognizance with two sufficient sureties for his or her being of the good behaviour for any time not exceeding [two] seven years. Provided that if any such Charter of Pardon be pleaded by a fem Covert or infant, such fem Covert or infant may find two sufficient sureties, who shall enter into a Recognizance for him or her being of the good behaviour as is aforesaid. [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day (L. J., XV. 237). The Amendments in C. W. H. are not recorded in MS. Min., but are marked on the Draft. The Bill was rejected after a first reading in the Commons on 23 Feb. (C. J., X. 824).]

713. Feb. 21. Churches' Repair Act.—Draft of an Act to make parishioners of the Church united contributors to the repairs and ornaments of the Church to which the union is made. Identical with Act (4 W. & M. c. 12., Fol. Ed.) [Read 1<sup>a</sup> this day; Royal Assent 14 March. (L. J., XV. 241, 289.) Com. Book, 23 Feb.]

714. Feb. 21. Privilege of King's Servant (Sir J. Ashfeild).—Petition of Sir John Ashfeild, Bart. Petitioner, one of his Majesty's servants of the Privy Chamber in Ordinary, is in the custody of the Marshal of the King's Bench, having been arrested during the time of Parliament, without the leave or knowledge of the Lord Chamberlain. Prays for his discharge. [Read this day and ordered as prayed. L. J., XV. 242.]

715. Feb. 21. Dowager Lady Mohun's Privilege.—Petition of Phillips [Philippa], Lady Mohun. Petitioner's late husband, Charles, Lord Mohun, settled on his marriage certain lands on Arthur, late Earl of Anglesey, for a jointure for Petitioner. Since his death, about 15 years ago, the greatest part of his estate being in the possession of his mother Katherine, Lady Mohun, as her jointure, and there being great debts and encumbrances upon the rest of the estate, Petitioner has been forced to live in straits to support herself and her children Charles, now Lord Mohun, and Elizabeth Mohun. Katherine dying about April last, the lands in her jointure on her death, by the said marriage settle-

* The Amendments, as shown by the numbers in the margin of the Draft, are to add the words ("and by the authority of the same") after ("assembled") in § i., and to read ("for any time not exceeding two years") instead of ("for the time not exceeding two years") in § ii.

ment, devolved on Petitioner as part of her jointure. But Petitioner's son, by the assistance of one Reynold Couch, an Attorney, has seized the said lands and all the rest of the estate and, by menacing the tenants, has received the rents and profits, leaving Petitioner without support for a year and a half, and threatens her with privilege of Parliament and to keep her out of all these seven years to come. Prays their Lordships to order the Lords Commissioners to issue out their letter enabling Petitioner to proceed in the course of justice, the Commissioners being reluctant to do so without an Order from the House, lest they should commit a breach of privilege. Signed: Mohun. Endorsed as read this day; nothing done on it. No entry in L. J. [The House, after reading this Petition (MS. Min.), made the Standing Order declaring that Minor Peers and Widows of Peers shall not be allowed privilege of Parliament, saving their right of Peerage. L. J., XV. 241.]

716. Feb. 21. Minshull v. Carter.—Petition and Appeal of Richard Minshull, Esq., and Anne Minshull, Widow, his mother. The Commissioners of Charitable Uses in April 1691 decreed that Appellants, the executors, administrators, and assigns of the impropriate tithes of Bourton, should pay to the bailiffs of Buckingham 332*l.* 11*s.* 0*d.* arrears of certain charities in Buckingham, Beachampton, Calverton and Stony Stratford, for distribution as appointed by the Will of Sir Simon Bennet in 1631, the Decree being grounded on the supposition that testator was seized in fee of the said tithes and of three yard land of glebe, and had devised them for the Charities, and that the trustees for the Charities had leased the tithe and glebe in 1634 to Sir Richard Minshull, then lord of the manor of Bourton, for 500 years at a yearly rent of 100*l.*, which lease had been enjoyed by Sir Richard and his son Richard Minshull, Esq., and by Appellants. Appellants filed Exceptions in the Court of Chancery, and the Court on 16 Jan. last affirmed the Decree with interest and costs, although it was shown that Appellant's father, Richard Minshull, held the tithe by lease determinable on his life, and that his widow, in the infancy of the Appellant Richard, held the same by another lease from the trustees, and no proof was given that there was any such lease for 500 years, or any glebe. Appeal from this Decree. Signed by Appellants; Countersigned by Wi. Williams and Edw. Ward. L. J., XV. 242. [The Cause was heard and the Decree affirmed with 10*l.* costs on 4 March, Sir William Williams and Mr. Ward appearing for Appellants, and Mr. Finch and Sir Thomas Powys for Respondents. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 275.)]

- (a.) 27 Feb. Answer of Richard Harris and Henry Jones, on the behalf of the Poor and other Charities within the parishes and towns of Buckingham, Beachampton, Calverton and Stony Stratford. In 1631 Sir Simon Bennett, Bart., settled the impropriate rectory and tithes of Bourton, then leased to one Wells at 102*l.* rent, upon trustees for the benefit of the poor and other charities in the said parishes and towns. After his death the trustees received the rent till the end of Wells' lease in 1638, when they let a new lease for 500 years at 100*l.* a year to Sir Richard, the Appellant Richard's grandfather, to enable him to enclose the manor of Bourton, of which he was seized in fee, and which he thereby improved from 500*l.* to 1,000*l.* per annum, which he could not otherwise have done, the glebe lands belonging to the Rectory lying in the open fields and intermixt with the lands of the manor. Sir Richard paid the rent till 1645, when the boundaries and landmarks of the glebe-lands being confounded and destroyed, he took advantage of the troubles of the times and refused further payment for several years, and a Commission was awarded in 1648 to several gentlemen of the county, who found on Inquisition, among other things, that there were certain parsonage lands in Bourton called Hingewell, and that 523*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.* was due and in arrear to the Charities, which they decreed to be paid with the growing rents. This Decree was confirmed by the Court of Chancery on 15 June 1650, after hearing Exceptions taken by Sir Richard, who accordingly paid the arrears, and continued to pay the growing rents till his death, when he left the lease to attend the freehold and inheritance of the manor. His son Richard, the Appellant Richard's father, paid the rents, and so did Appellants after his death till 1686, when they refused to pay any longer, and thereupon another Commission was awarded, and the Decree made which was confirmed in Chancery last January. The two pretended leases were fraudulently taken by Appellants of a person who was not a trustee and had no power to grant them. Pray that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondents; Countersigned by Tho. Powys and Jo. Bowes. Endorsed as brought in this day.

717. Feb. 23. Buttons (Importation) Act.—Petition of Humphry Simpson, of London, Merchant. Petitioner having long dealt in Hair Buttons, a great part of his estate consists in such as are already imported by him, and such as were ordered and contracted for in Holland before the Bill was brought in. The time limited for sale of all foreign buttons, which is 25 March next, is so short that it is impossible to sell those already imported. Prays to be heard against the Bill. L. J., XV. 245. [The Bill for prohibiting the importation of all foreign Hair Buttons was brought from the Commons and read 1<sup>a</sup> on 22 Feb. (Ib. 244). In Committee on 24 Feb. the Bill having been read by paragraphs and agreed to, Mr. Filmer (for Petitioner) says the Act allows a time of bringing in buttons, but no time afterwards of vending them, which no Bill ever did before. We have contracted for above 4,000*l.* worth of buttons in Holland, which will lie upon our hands. This law is in effect a retrospect. He offers a Proviso, which is read. Mr. Phipps: The reason that hair buttons were not prohibited by the former Act was that there was then no such thing as hair buttons. Our horse-hair is exported to make buttons to bring hither. Mr. Simpson offers a letter from his correspondent, which he desires may be read. They withdraw. They are called in again and told the letters are not to be read, but they may speak what they please. Mr. Filmer gives the substance of the letters, which is that 4,000*l.* worth of buttons were contracted for before the Bill came in, and he cannot get off of his bargain. Mr. Phipps: He may sell his buttons in Scotland, Ireland or Spain, for we send such thither. They withdraw. The Proviso is read again. They are called in again, and asked, whether, when buttons are prohibited, the merchants will sell as good and cheap. Mr. Phipps: We sold as cheap when buttons were prohibited, as now. Now hair being exported, we cannot sell so cheap as when we kept it here. Mr. Simpson: I sold dearer after the prohibition by 20 per cent. than before. Mr. Phipps: Our buttons were ever judged better than foreign. Mr. Simpson: The English makers have 50*l.* per cent. advantage of me. Mr. Phipps: We will take off his hands all the buttons he has by him. They withdraw. After debate, the Proviso was rejected by 15 to 5 (Com. Book).

—On the third reading on 25 Feb., another Petition of Simpson* was read and rejected, and a Proviso being offered,† on Question whether this Rider shall be read a third time, it was resolved in the Negative by 26 to 16. (MS. Min.) The Bill then passed without amendment, and received the Royal Assent on 14 March. (L. J., XV. 249, 288.) 4 W. & M. c. 10., Fol. Ed.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 25 Feb. Engrossed Proviso as follows: Provided always and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall at any time after the passing of this Act sell or dispose of any such Hair Buttons at higher or greater rates or prices than the same have within four years last past been usually sold for, he or they so offending shall, on due proof thereof, forfeit all such Hair Buttons as he or they shall be possessed of, one half thereof to be for the benefit of the Informer, and the other half for the poor of the parish wherein such offence shall be committed. Endorsed as rejected this day. [See Notes above.]

(b.) 25 Feb. Petition of Humfry Simpson, that he may be allowed to sell such buttons as are or shall be imported within the time limited by the Act at any time before the end of June next. [Read this day in the House and, on question, rejected. L. J., XV. 249.]

718. Feb. 24. State of Ireland.—List of Witnesses ordered to attend this day, as well as on the 25th and 27th, to give an account, as far as they know, of the State and Condition of Ireland. L. J., XV. 247, 249, 251. In extenso. [The House being moved this day to consider the condition of Ireland (MS. Min.), ordered the first six witnesses to attend on the 28th (L. J., XV. 247), to whom the others were afterwards added. On 28 Feb. House moved to call in the persons. Moved that when they are called in, they be told that the Lords have summoned them to come here to give an account, as far as they know, of the present condition and state of the kingdom of Ireland. Agreed to acquaint them with the Order. Sir John Magill and Sir William Gore were then examined, the latter adding to his Deposition in L. J. (XV. 257) the following: “I have not been injured by any person. Our greatest grievance was the quartering of soldiers. . . . We are under a great misfortune, and now there are three parcels of Rapparees on it. I request on my own behalf that I may be despatched to go to my own estate, there being great disorders in the country.” After an interruption to receive some messages from the Commons, Sir Francis Brewster was examined, and added to his printed Deposition (L. J., XV. 258) the following: “I know no great harm from the Justices . . . As for the City of Dublin there were complaints made to me of the Government’s making them choose what Mayor the Government pleased. They choose the Lord Mayor according to his antiquity. L. Ormond never put it upon us. Mr. Robinson got a letter from L. Sydney to choose the same man Mayor again, and now they are told this man shall be Mayor these seven years.” Asked concerning Col. Foulke’s soldiers, he says: “I know what was said of that. There are some without, I presume, can; the Bishop of Meath and Col. Fitzgerald. The Captain’s name was Pedor. Mr. Robinson, I have heard (sic).” Then, after an interruption to receive another message, the Lady

Ardglasse was examined, and added to her printed deposition (L. J., XV. 260-1) that Coy's troops gave her bills to 700*l*. . . . "I have never received sixpence satisfaction, though I abated prices from what was allowed." The Bishop of Meath came in and had the Order read to him, and said: "It is too difficult for me to give an account of the whole state. The Parliament grievances I shall represent; they are (1) The free quartering of the Army; (2) The disposal of forfeited lands and goods; (3) The exactions of fees by officers; (4) The matter of Protections granted. These are looked on as grievances. Of what the Commons did in those cases, I know of no particulars. As for quartering the Army, there has been much grievance. The Protestants murmur at the Protections. The sudden rising of the Parliament put a stop to all." Asked if he knows anything of Col. Foulke's soldiers being murdered, he says: "That his men were murdered is certain—that they were murdered by the combination of the people thereabouts, and I am of opinion they that suffered first, suffered very rightfully, though not perhaps according to the strict rules of law. The manner of their murdering was this: the men came scattering up and were decoyed into the Church, and there were a company of people that hanged them, one by one. The parties were examined and other evidences given in, and there was an Order by the Privy Council to execute them. I think the Order was given by the Lord Chancellor of Ireland. They were all hanged, the first in the Castle Yard, the others in the Market-place, in 1690 I think." Asked if he knew anything of the Additional Article concerning Limerick, he said: "I never knew anything of it." Mr. Sloane (See also L. J., XV. 261-5. In extenso): "I have a letter from Sir James Shannon's son." Reads a Petition, as it was presented to the Lord Lieutenant. "The dragoons now charge Petitioner's estate with their pay." Reads the Petition and Letter, which is dated the 3rd of this month. Mr. Pultney* was then examined (See L. J., XV. 267-71.) Mr. Kerne [? David Cairnes. See C. J., X. 833] was then called in and heard: "I have not been much in Ireland these four years. I was there a little. The King[dom] has laboured these four years under the calamity of war. The great complaint has been the subsisting of the Army; this was a great complaint. I have nothing of my knowledge, except as to the Parliament. We thought we had a good understanding with the Lord Lieutenant, and he with us. We were all friends to our country." (Not in L. J.)

On 1 March further witnesses were called in and examined as follows:—Lieut. Stafford: "I have resided in England 10 years only this war and action (sic). I was little there, and the state of the kingdom is above my sphere." Col. Robert Fitzgerald (See also L. J., XV. 266-7): "It is two years since I was in Ireland. I am ready to answer any questions, and I know nothing but by hearsay." Asked whether he heard anything concerning Col. Foulke's soldiers, he says: "Ten or twelve were put aside as most suspected of the murder. It appeared they were inveigled into the Church and hanged with withies. The two Lords Justices whispered together and then bade a provost be called, and a black Frenchman came in, and about an hour after he was hanged. He was not tried any other way. I went into the country, and when I came into the town, they told me Sweetman was to be hanged too, and his wife offered me his estate to save him. I said I could nor would do nothing in it. Sweetman is alive yet. I know not how he was saved, but one Mr. Culliford has his estate. I was a Commissioner of Forfeited Estates, and I reported it to the House of Commons." Col. Frederick Hamilton was then examined (See L. J., XV. 261.) Richard Barry: "I have been there but little these four years. I know little of it." Col. Ingoldsby: "I am another stranger to them. I have not been there this three years." Mr. Annesley: "I have not been in Ireland this three months. I will answer any question." Asked what he knows concerning quartering soldiers, he says: "Col. Echlin's regiment is quartered where I lived in the Barony. It would have come to 2 men to a ploughed land, and 6 were laid to me. I gave 5s. to each man for quarters. They said, when I complained, they had written to Dean Sing about it. The Dean was Deputy-Lieutenant of the County. The Dean would not take them off." Moved, That those who were here yesterday and this day do deliver in writing to-morrow what they said at the Bar,* and that they have notice thereof at their houses. Ordered accordingly. Sir Francis Blundell was then examined: "I have been out of the kingdom these nine years, until the last year. The quartering soldiers is the great grievance." (L. J., XV. 255; MS. Min.)

On 2 March, the Informations (Annexes (a) below) were delivered in by the Witnesses on oath. Sir Francis Brewster, having been sworn, was asked by the House what the "reasons" were that he said in his Paper (See L. J., XV. 258) he did not care to mention. He said the "reasons" were that several persons—Mr. Ivy, Quartermaster Flood, Mr. Haynes, Henry Davies and Mr. Corker †—were concerned in it, that were in the Government. "We look on what was done by the Justices [as] what was ordered by the Government." Question asked, whether he gave this Information in another place? He said, "No." He was ordered to put it in writing. Being recalled afterwards, he delivered in his additional deposition on oath. (Annex (a) No. 4 below.) Mr. James Sloane, having been sworn, was commanded to name those who said that, if money was not given, the Army must have free quarter. (See L. J., XV. 262.) [He says:] "Mr. Poultney and Mr. Davies. This was said in the House of Commons." Col. Fitzgerald, having been sworn, was asked what he knew concerning Sweetman? He says: "There came a woman to me; she said their relation, John Sweetman, she was afraid, would be hanged, and if I would save his life, I should have his estate, real and personal. I would not have to do with it. I heard his estate was in the hands of Mr. Culliford." Asked how many were hanged, he says: "I went out of town. There were four or five hanged. I presume they had some trial. I know not Gafney was not tried. This was before Limerick was taken." Ordered that he put in writing what he has said. Being recalled afterwards, he delivered in his Information on oath (Annex (a) No. 10 below).‡ House moved to consider of what has been heard, and what is fit to be done in this case. Agreed and Ordered, That upon Informations taken in this House upon Oath, it doth appear that within these four years last past, as well since the Peace as before, there have been exorbitant abuses, great mismanagement, and many arbitrary and illegal proceedings in the public affairs of Ireland. Ordered that the consideration of the state of Ireland shall be resumed on the 4th inst. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 271.)

4 March. Order read for considering the state of Ireland.—L. Mayor of Dublin; Hanging soldiers; Article of Limerick; Forfeited Estates; Free Quarters.

- (b.) 2 March. Paper endorsed "Oath given to the Gentlemen concerning Ireland." After a proposed form of words, as follows: "The contents of the Paper he believes to be true," the question agreed to be put to the witnesses is as follows: "What is mentioned in this Paper (to be of your own knowledge) is true, and what is upon hearsay, you verily believe to be true." Underwritten are the following names: Hen. Davis, Mr. Corker, Mr. Ivy, Mr. Haynes, Flood. [See Notes under date to first Paper.]

- (c.) 3 March. Petition of Henry Lord. Petitioner is committed by their Lordships to the Gate-house for giving abusive language to a gentleman at the door of the House, who has since been pleased to grant him his pardon. Prays the House to pardon him and discharge him from custody. [Read this day (endorsed wrongly 3 Feb.), and Lord discharged. L. 719. Feb. 25. D. Somerset's Privilege (T. Heron).—Paper stating (1) that Mr. John Smith will be called to prove that Heron told both Watson and Hall he was the Duke's servant, when he, namely, Thomas Heron, of Corbridge, Northumberland, Gent., Bailiff to the Duke of Somerset, was arrested at the suit of John Watson, of Westminster, Scrivener, on 20 Jan. 1692, and taken into custody by Isaac Hall, an officer of Wood Street Compter, who detained him, though told he was a servant of the Duke, until he gave security to Watson; and (2) Edward Mason and Tho. Morly to prove that Heron was arrested on 8 Feb. at the suit of George Dent, Innholder without Bishopsgate, who was his security to Watson, by order of William Harrison, a Solicitor, and taken into custody by John Cooke, a Sheriff's bailiff, who detained him, notwithstanding he told them he was the Duke's servant, until he gave bail to the action. L. J., XV. 248. [It appears from MS. Min. that Mason and Morly were Heron's bail, and were examined on oath this day, and further that Smith was examined on the 27th.]

720. Feb. 25. L. Baltimore v. Blakiston and another.—Petition and Appeal of Charles, Lord Baltimore. Sir William Blakiston, Bart., on his marriage with Mary, a daughter of Cecil, L. Baltimore, Appellant's father, whose portion was 2,000*l*., agreed to settle on her, for her jointure, the manor of Gibside, Durham, free of all incumbrances, with remainders in tail on her issue, with a covenant that the jointure estate was 300*l*. a year and all the estate to be settled was 600*l*. a year, and that L. Baltimore should, in lieu of the portion, convey to Sir William and his heirs the sixth part of the Hundred of Christchurch and Westover, co. Southampton. The jointure estate, however, being found to be greatly encumbered and not of such yearly value, and Sir William's creditors having got possession of his whole estate, L. Baltimore maintained him and his family for several years, and Dame Mary, after much ill usage and for want of necessaries, was constrained to return to her father, with whom she continued till her death, and L. Baltimore having paid large sums to and for Sir William, it was agreed that the sixth part of the Hundred of Christchurch should be settled to the use of his Lordship and his heirs until Sir William had discharged all incumbrances on his estate and his Lordship was reimbursed what he had paid for Sir William or his Lady or for their maintenance. The said sixth part was accordingly sold in 1665 for 2,333*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*., which his Lordship received, and let Sir William and his Lady have 300*l*. of the purchase money, and also, to secure some part for the maintenance of Dame Mary, settled the manor of Danby Wiske, worth 300*l*. a year, and the advowson of Danby for securing the 2,000*l*. portion, to the use of himself and heirs, till Sir William discharged his incumbrances and repaid what his Lordship expended for him and his wife, with a proviso to be void on payment of 2,000*l*. within three months after such discharge and repayment, and the profits of the 2,000*l.* were to be disposed as Dame Mary should direct for her maintenance. L. Baltemore for some years kept the 2,000*l.* in his hands, in hopes Sir William would discharge the incumbrances and make a settlement, according to the Articles, and so receive the portion, and in that time paid various sums for him and the growing interest of the 2,000*l.* to his Lady. Sir William, falling into some misfortune, whereby his life was in danger, from which he was delivered by his Lordship's endeavours, made a settlement of Gibside, by which Dame Mary was to receive 200*l.* a year out of the same, but could not receive it by reason of the incumbrances. Sir William never discharged the incumbrances, and his Lordship paid the profit of the 2,000*l.* to Dame Mary or her order till her death in 1671. His Lordship had before, in 1663, settled Danby Wiske on Humphrey Weld and others to the use of himself for life, and after to Mr. Weld and other trustees for 99 years, and then to Appellant in tail male, the remainder in fee to him. The said term was declared to be in trust, after his Lordship's death, to pay such legacies as he should leave by his will, and for payment of 2,500*l.* to his daughter Elizabeth, and his Lordship by his will appointed the payment of that sum to her and 160*l.* a year till payment thereof, and 120*l.* a year to one Burk and Pearson for 99 years after his death, and declared the premises to be in trust for payment thereof. In 1675 his Lordship died, Sir William owing him 400*l.* for moneys expended for him, and above 1,500*l.* for other moneys paid for his debts. Appellant, by consent of the trustees, paid the 2,500*l.* to Elizabeth and all the arrears of the 160*l.* and 120*l.*, and was thereby a purchaser for a valuable consideration. In 1678 Sir William brought a Bill in Chancery against Appellant for the 2,000*l.*, but Appellant, after putting in a plea, went to Maryland and did not return till 1684. After some irregular proceedings by the Plaintiff, the Cause was heard ex parte on 27 June 1679, and Sir William obtained a Decree and Report for payment of 3,844*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* and costs, without any allowance for the interest of the 2,000*l.* paid to Dame Mary or for what his Lordship had paid for Sir William, and Appellant is foreclosed of redemption of the manor of Danby Wiske for non-payment of the sum reported due. Sir William, after the Decree, took possession of the said manor, and since his death, Sir Francis Blakiston and Thomas Moore, Junior, have received the rents, as his heirs or devisees or assignees, and threaten to sell the premises. Appellant after his return to England, brought a Bill of Review, which was dismissed. Prays that the Decree and Dismission may be reversed, and an account taken with proper allowances, and that Respondents may be ordered to answer. Signed by C. Baltemore; Countersigned by Tho. Powys and Edw. Ward. L. J., XV. 249. [The Cause was heard on 6 March 1693-4. Sir Bartholomew Shower (for Appellant): This dismission was irregular, and so was the first decree. Mr. Gibbons (for Appellant): We have an instrument of a special appointment. Mr. Filmer (for Respondents) is heard. Decree affirmed. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 386.)]

Gibside, and on the Respondent Moore, sworn 2 May 1693 before Thos. Bendlowe, Extraordinary Master in Chancery. [Appended to preceding.]

(b.) 9 Jan. 1693-4. Petition of Same. Respondents have been served with the Order to answer, as appears by the Affidavit annexed, but have not complied with it, More pretending that he does not dwell at his father's house, where the Orders were left for him, and refusing to discover his place of abode. Prays that Respondents may be ordered to answer, etc. L. J., XV. 337.

(b<sup>1</sup>) 9 Jan. Paper containing (1) Copy Order of 17 Nov. 1693, and (2) Affidavit, referred to in preceding, of Leonard Robinson, of Scorton, Yorkshire, sworn 28 Nov. 1693 before Thos. Bendlowe. Deponent states that he served the order on the Respondent Moore's brother Zacharias, and his father Thomas at Loftus; that then, having been informed by the Respondent Sir Francis' steward, William Ridley, at Gibside, that Sir Francis was at Sir William Rowes' at Streatham Castle, he served the order there on Sir William, who communicated it to Sir Francis. [Appended to preceding.]

(c.) 19 Jan. Petition of Thomas More, Gent. Petitioner, on receiving their Lordships' Order on the 14th inst. at York, prepared at once to come to London, as appears by the annexed Affidavit, to have his Answer drawn, and hopes to arrive there by the 20th. Prays for further time to answer. Signed by Marmaduke Norcliffe, by order of Petitioner. L. J., XV. 347.

(c<sup>1</sup>) 19 Jan. Affidavit of Thomas More, referred to in preceding Petition, stating that he received on 14 Jan. a letter from George Bowes, of the Middle Temple, acquainting him with the order to answer, upon which he started at once for London. He had had nothing served on him since the Prorogation. Sworn 14 Jan. 1693-4 before Geo. Prickett, Extraordinary Master in Chancery.

(d.) 26 Jan. 1693-4. Several Answer of Sir Francis Blakiston, Bart. Respondent's late brother, Sir William, died seized of an estate in fee in the manor of Danby Wiske, with the advowson, &c., which he left by will to his nephew Thomas More, subject to the payment of his debts and certain legacies, and More has, since his death, been in possession. Sir William died without issue, and Respondent is his brother and heir-at-law, but was no ways privy to or made acquainted with any of the matters in question, which relate to a time long before he came into possession of any part of the estate, and which he leaves to the other Respondent to answer. Prays costs for this causeless prosecution. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Geo. Bowes. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(e.) 26 Jan. 1693-4. Answer of Thomas More, Gent. Respondent does not know that Sir William's estate was encumbered, and does not believe that L. Baltimore maintained him or his family, or disbursed any sums for him or his wife, unless he did so out of Sir William's own estate, the rents, &c. of which, amounting to 1,200*l.* a year, his Lordship received, as a trustee. The manor, &c. of Danby Wiske, which were settled for securing the 2,000*l.* portion, fell far short of 300*l.* a year, as at present. Sir William discharged all incumbrances, and settled his estate according to the marriage agreement, but L. Baltimore failed to pay the 2,000*l.* and interest according to the terms of the mortgage or security of Danby Wiske, whereupon Sir William brought his Bill for payment or foreclosure, and obtained a Decree from L. Chancellor Nottingham. On the Bill of Review before L. Chancellor Jeffreys it appeared that L. Baltimore died indebted above 6,000*l.* to the estate, besides the 2,000*l.* upon the mortgage, but Appellant refused to go to an account, as a condition of re-opening the decree, which was thereupon affirmed. Sir William, being duly in possession, after Appellant was debarred of the equity of redemption, devised Danby Wiske in trust to be sold to pay legacies of above 1,050*l.*, the profits to be applied to discharge the interest of them in the meantime, and the surplus in trust for Respondent, being his sister's son. The settlement of Danby Wiske in 1663 by the late L. Baltimore was made with power of revocation, and is apparently fraudulent and void against purchasers, otherwise it would be hard to give a good account of the late L. Baltimore's mortgaging the same to secure the marriage portion, to which mortgage, moreover, Appellant was privy. The rest of the Appeal does not concern Respondent. Prays that the Appeal may be dismissed with costs. Signed by Respondent; Countersigned by Sam. Dodd. Endorsed as brought in this day.

(f.) 27 Feb. 1693-4. Petition of Appellant. Respondents, after many delays, have answered. Prays for a short day for hearing. L. J., XV. 379.

721. Feb. 27. Goodwyn's Estate Act.—Consent of Thomas Bouchier, Principal of Alban Hall, in the University of Oxford, Doctor of Law, and Thomas Fetherston, of Packwood, Warwickshire, Esq., the Trustees of the marriage settlement, to the passing of the Bill to enable Thomas Goodwyn the younger to sell lands for the payment of debts, and making provision for his wife and children. Dated 18 Nov. 1692. Signed and sealed, but not attested. [Read this day in Committee (Com. Book). The Bill was brought from the Commons on Feb. 20, and read 1<sup>a</sup> the next day; Royal Assent 14 March. (L. 723. Feb. 28. Sea-water Freshening (Walcot's Patent) Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Act for the making Sea-water fresh, clear and wholesome. The Bill, which is to restore to William Walcot, Esq., his rights for 14 years under the Letters Patent of Charles II. in 1675 in respect of an invention for making putrified and salt water fresh and fit for use, which had been interfered with by some persons who obtained other Letters Patent in 1683, is substantially the same as the Act of 1694 (6-7 Will. III. c. 40. in Long Calendar) except in allowing Walcot a term of 14 years from 25 March 1693, instead of 31 years from 10 April 1695, and making the penalty at the end of Sect. i. five shillings instead of five pounds.

Parchment Collection. [Brought from the Commons this day and read 1<sup>a</sup> on 2 March (L. J., XV. 252, 256). The Com. Book contains the following:—6 March (E. Bridgewater in the Chair). The Bill is read by paragraphs Mr. Walcot and Counsel are called in. Ordered that all persons concerned be heard tomorrow, as well the Petitioners as the Company of Stationers. 7 March (E. Bridgewater in the Chair). The Bill is read by paragraphs. The Parties are called in. Sir Thomas Powys produces a letter from Col. Fitzgerald, who was to have notice and to be heard, wherein he desires two or three days longer time, since his Counsel is gone on circuit. He was heard in the Commons. The Committee then ordered the Bill to be reported without amendment. The Report was made the same day, when leave was given to Robert Fitzgerald on his Petition* to be heard against the Bill (L. J., XV. 278). On 8 March the Committee was revived, to meet the next day (MS. Min. No entry in L. J.), and in Committee, on 9 March, E. Bridgewater in the Chair, the Parties were called in. Sir Bartholomew Shower (for Mr. Fitzgerald) says that Mr. Walcot's Patent is expired. He desires no right to be confirmed, but a right to be given him. We have the testimony of the College of Physicians that we make salt-water fresh. We pray a saving of our right to our invention. Mr. Holles: We have expended great sums, and we have five or six years yet to come. He produces an Order of Council, dated 31 Oct. 1683, for vacating Mr. Walcot's Patent, which is read. We have Patents from France and Denmark. Sir Thomas Powys (for Mr. Walcot): We have the Certificate of the King's Master Builder of the usefulness of our invention. They can make no water that is good. We have Patents from the States General. The invention must be totally lost if we have not an Act. The King can grant no further time, and no man in England can do it but Mr. Walcot. A Certificate under L. Chandos' hand of his having kept some of Mr. Walcot's water sweet for 7 years [is read]. They withdraw. Ordered, that Col. Fitzgerald have leave to bring a saving of his right, to be considered tomorrow. On 10 March (E. Stamford in the Chair) the Parties were called in. Col. Fitzgerald refuses to offer any Proviso, as was yesterday directed, but offers a Proposal, which he says was made to Sir Thomas Powys. The Proposal was read and given him back. Ordered to report matter of fact.

724. March 4. Expiring Laws (Licensing Act, &c.) Continuance Act.—Petition of several Booksellers, Bookbinders and other dealers in books and printing. Pray to be heard against the Bill, brought up from the Commons, for the reviving, continuing and explaining several laws therein mentioned, which were expired or near expiring, one of which is an Act for Regulating of Printing, &c.,* containing some Clauses which Petitioners conceive to be very injurious to trade, and an encouragement to monopolies and other grievous oppressions contrary to equity and justice. Signed, on behalf of themselves and divers others, by Charles Brown, Joshua Waterhouse, Robert Crofts, John Allen, John Ford, Sam. Cook, Robert Terry, Samuel Hurst, Peter Parker, Francis Robinson, Edward Moore, Paul Griffith, Peter Richmond, William Hull and John Browne. [Read this day, and referred to the Committee on the Bill (L. J., XV. 275). The Bill was brought from the Commons on 28 Feb., and read 1<sup>a</sup> on 3 March (L. J., XV. 252, 271). A Select Committee had been appointed by the Lords on 12 Dec. 1692 to inspect such Acts as would expire at the end of the Session (L. J., XV. 144). This Committee was “revived” on 15 Dec. (MS. Min. No entry in L. J.), and met on the 16th, with the Bishop of London in the Chair, but only to adjourn till the next day. (Com. Book.) No further proceedings are recorded.† In Committee on the Bill on 6 March (E. Bridgewater in the Chair), the Bill was read by paragraphs. First enacting Clause postponed. A Clause relating to poor Prisoners is offered. A Clause relating to Quakers taking Administration, &c.

* With reference to the libel “King William and Queen Mary Conquerors,” which had been licensed by Bohun, the Censor appointed by this Act, the MS. Min. supply some new particulars. On 20 Jan. 1692-3, information being given of the Book, Bohun and Baldwin, the printer, were ordered to attend. (L. J., XV. 192.) On 23 Jan. 1692-3 Richard Baldwin was called in, and asked if he was printer of the Book. He says: “About 17 days since, one Bentley sent me the book in manuscript, and he said, if I could get it licensed, I should have half the profit. I carried it to Mr. Bohun, and left it with him. He called on me the next day, and said he had read it, and it was a very good book, and he longed to have it printed, and he would license it, and he did license the printed book. I procured it to be printed by Mr. Bohun’s license. I desired the title might be altered. He said ‘No; it will invite the Non-Swearers to read it.’” (MS. Min.) Ordered that he be discharged. Ordered that Bentley attend this House tomorrow at 10 o’clock. (L. J., XV. 195)—On 24 Jan. Bentley came to the Bar, and being showed the book, he said: “I know the book. I did not print it. I received it in a letter from the Stamford carrier. The original I have. I sent it to Mr. Baldwin, and Mr. Bohun licensed it, which is all the security we have.” He reads the title out of his papers. The print is according to the manuscript; he says it is. He says he knows not who wrote it. The letter received with the book is read. A debate arose concerning burning the book. A book mentioned of this kind. An Answer to Ashton’s [?] Speech. Ordered that the book shall be burnt by the hands of the Common Hangman tomorrow, between the hours of 12 and 1 o’clock. House moved that a Vote be made in relation to this Case; this a Declaration contrary to the title of the book. [These words in italics are expunged.] Select Committee appointed, as in L. J., XV. 197, to draw a Resolution upon the debate. [The proceedings of this Committee are not recorded.]—Eod. die. E. Shrewsbury reported from the Committee the Resolution, which the House agreed to and ordered to be communicated to the Commons, to whom a Message was sent desiring a Conference for that purpose. (L. J., XV. 198.) The further proceedings are given in L. J., XV. 199, 200.

† A similar Committee had been appointed in 19 and 30 Car. II. (L. J., XII. 120, and XIII. 228), but in the latter case without any report being made.

On 7 March (E. Bridgewater in the Chair), the Booksellers and Bookbinders are called in, as also the Company of Stationers. The paragraph relating to continuing the Printing Act is read. Mr. Atwood (for the Booksellers): This Clause is the grossest injury to property that ever was passed in an Act. He offers Affidavits of Peter Parker,† John Guy,‡ and John Ford§ concerning the abuse of printing, which are read. He offers a Clause to be added to the Bill, which is read.|| They withdraw. Question: Whether to pass the paragraph? Contents 9; Non-Contents 1. Resolved in the Affirmative. The Bill was read 3<sup>a</sup> on 8 March, when a Rider was offered to be added, concerning searching Peers' houses, but rejected, the Contents being 21, and Not-Contents 25. Tellers: E. This Proviso was also rejected; Contents 18, Not-Contents 26. Tellers as before. The Bill was then passed, on question, without a division, but with a Protest against rejecting the Provisos, signed by 11 Peers, of whom E. Shrewsbury was one. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 280.) Stationers' Company for several entries of books he had caused to be made therein, the property whereof he had by purchase, license and entry lawfully acquired, viz. (1) Supplications of Saints; (2) Christ's famous Titles; (3) A Cabinet of Jewels; (4) Christ's voice to London, he failed to find the same, but found several leaves rent out of the Register-book about the date or time of the entry of most of the said copies, as appeared to him by the precedent and following entries. Deponent also saw several of his copies entered again to other persons, viz. some of them to Jonathan Robinson, and, as Deponent remembers, another of the books was again entered to Robert Horn. Deponent has been informed, and believes it true, that several Popish books and other scandalous books are now standing entered in the said Register-book. Sworn 6 March before Rob. Legard. Endorsed: Peter Parker's Affidavit about the Register-book. [Read in Committee this day.]

(c.) 7 March. Affidavit of John Ford, of London, Stationer, that about two years since he bought and received from Mr. Hill, Warehous-keeper to the King's Printing Office, many Cans [? Caen] Bibles and many books of Psalms, which he believes, and has been informed, had been formerly seized by virtue of the Letters Patents to the King's Printers and the Company of Stationers, supported by the Act for Printing. Sworn 4 March 1692 before Ad. Ottley. Endorsed: John Ford's Affidavit about the selling of seized books by Patentees. [Read in Committee this day.]

(d.) 7 March. Provisos relating to printing as follows:—"Provided nevertheless that neither the said Act nor anything therein contained shall extend, be deemed or taken to give force or confirmation to any Letters Patents to the prejudice of the property or properties of any person or persons in any book, pamphlet or paper already printed or hereafter to be printed, and that no owner or owners of any book, pamphlet or paper shall lose his right by reason of any false entry or entries in the Register-book of the Company of Stationers in the said Act mentioned. Provided also that no Bible, Common Prayer Book or Psalms, at any time past seized by virtue of the said Act and sold by the seizor or seizors, or any other person or persons with his or their privity, shall be liable to any farther or other seizure or penalty." Endorsed as read this day. [See notes above.]

725. March 4. Privilege of King's Servant (R. Hargrave).—Petition of Richard Hargrave, Esq. Petitioner on 16 Jan. 3 W. & M. was sworn and admitted as one of the Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber in Ordinary to his Majesty, as appears by the L. Chamberlain's certificate, and has ever since so continued. He has been arrested, within the time of privilege of Parliament, at the suit of Robert Richardson, Eliz. Thomas and Charles Napier. Petitioner has had to procure bail for his appearance in the suits of Richardson and Napier, and by force of his arrest in the suit of Eliz. Thomas he is now a prisoner in the Fleet. Prays for his release and for the discharge of his bail. [Referred this day to the Committee for Privileges. L. J., XV. 274. No further proceedings.]

726. March 6. Lotteries Prohibition Bill.—Commons' Engrossment of an Act for the prohibiting the use of all Lotteries. The Bill, which consists of one Clause, is identical with the first three Sections of the Act of 1698 (10 Will. III. c. 23., Fol. Ed.), except that the Act omits the words of the Bill included below in square brackets, and adds those in italics,* viz. :—

Sect. i. of Act.

Whereas several [covetous and] evil disposed persons, for [about thirty] divers years last past, have [for their own private gain and advantage] set up [several] many mischievous and unlawful games called Lotteries, [and] not only in the Cities of London and Westminster and in the suburbs [of] thereof and places adjoining, but in most of the eminent towns and places in England and in the Dominion of Wales, have thereby most unjustly and fraudulently got to themselves great sums of money from the children and servants of [the] several gentlemen, traders and merchants, and from [all other sorts of] other unwary persons, to the utter ruin and impoverishment of many [persons, their estates and] families, and to the [prejudice and affront of their Majesties, their] reproach of the English laws [good subjects] and government, [and that some of the said persons, the better to cover and perpetuate their said evil practice, have, in the reign of King Charles the Second and since, obtained], by colour of several Patents or Grants under the Great Seal of England for the said Lotteries or some of them, [and more particularly for one Lottery called the Royal Oake Lottery, more grievous and mischievous than any of the rest, all] which said Grants or Patents are against the [law of the land and against the] common good, trade, welfare and peace of [their Majesties'] his Majesty's Kingdoms [and Dominions, many riots and murders having been committed by reason of quarrels happening at the said unlawful games,] For remedy whereof, Be it enacted, adjudged and declared, and it is hereby enacted, adjudged and declared by the [King and Queen's] King's most excellent [Majesties] Majesty, etc., That all such Lotteries and all other Lotteries are common and public nuisances, and that all Grants, Patents and Licences for such Lotteries or any other Lotteries [and games of the nature of Lotteries] are void and against law.

Sect. ii. of Act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid that from and after the [five] nine and twentieth day of [March] December, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand, six hundred, ninety [three] nine, no person or persons whatsoever shall publicly or privately [erect] exercise, keep open, show or expose to be played at, [thrown at, or] drawn at, or thrown at, or shall draw, play or throw at, any such Lottery or [game of the nature of] any other Lottery, either by dice, lots, cards, balls or any other numbers or figures or any other way whatsoever; and that every person or persons that shall after the said [five] nine and twentieth day of [March] December, exercise, expose, open or show to be played, thrown or drawn at, any such Lottery, Play or Device or [Game of the nature or kind of a] other Lottery, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered by information, bill, plaint or action at law in any of [their Majesties'] his Majesty's Courts at Westminster, wherein no essoigne, wager of law nor [no] more than one imparlance shall be allowed, one third part thereof to the use of [their Majesties] his Majesty, [their] his heirs and successors, one other third part thereof to the use of the poor of the [parishes] parish where such [offences] offence shall be committed, and the other third part thereof, together with [full] double costs, to the Party that shall inform and sue for the same, and the said Parties so offending shall likewise be prosecuted as common rogues, according to the [Statute] Statutes in that case made and provided.

Sect. iii. of Act.

And be it further enacted that every person or persons, that after the said [five] nine and twentieth day of [March] December, shall play [at], throw [at] or draw at any such Lottery [or game of the nature of Lottery] Play or Device or other Lotteries, shall forfeit [and pay a fine or penalty not less than forty shillings and not exceeding twenty pounds] for every such offence [(proof thereof being first made before some Justice of Peace upon oath, which oath the said Justice is hereby empowered to administer)] the sum of twenty pounds, to be recovered by information, bill, plaint or action at law in any of his Majesty's Courts at Westminster, wherein no essoigne, wager of law nor any more than one imparlance shall be allowed, one

* The Act, which passed without any amendments in either House, added also a Proviso (Sect. iv.) for the remainder of the term in the Royal Oak Lottery, and another (Sect. v.) for the Charitable Adventure for the benefit of Greenwich Hospital.

third part thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, one other third part thereof to the use of the poor of [such] parish [or place] where such offence shall be committed, and the other third part thereof, together with double costs, to the Party that shall inform and sue for the same [such fine or penalty to be levied by warrant under the hand and seal of any Justice of Peace of any county, riding, city, town or place where such offence shall be committed, and for want of sufficient distress, such Justice shall and may commit such person to the common gaol for any time not exceeding the space of thirty days, there to remain, unless he or she shall within that time pay the said fine or penalty, not under forty shillings and not exceeding twenty pounds, to the use aforesaid.]

Parchment Collection. [Brought from the Commons this day, and read 1<sup>a</sup> the next. (L. J., XV. 276, 277.) The Bill was read 2<sup>a</sup> on 9 March, without hearing the Petitioners against it, as previously ordered on their Petitions;* but the commitment and third reading were then negatived, on question, without a division. (M.S. Min.; L. J., XV. 281.)]

727. March 7. Lotteries Prohibition Bill.—Petition of Henry Acourt, Joseph Arnold, Charles Fitzherbert, Henry Wellington, William Deane and Thomas Chambers. Petitioners have taken a grant of lotteries at a considerable yearly rent for no less than a term of eleven years, and in pursuance thereof have already beforehand paid into the Exchequer for their Majesties' use a great sum of money, and have likewise been at other great charges, so that if the Bill for prohibiting Lotteries should pass, it would not only be to the great loss and detriment of Petitioners, but also of several poor indigent officers, whose support and maintenance depends upon the same. Pray to be heard by Counsel against the Bill. [Read this day and Petitioners ordered to be heard by Counsel. L. J., XV. 278.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 8 March. Petition of the Lady Cary, the Hon. Col. Philip Howard, Sir John Osborn, Knt., the Lady Armstrong, Armstrong and Armstrong, her daughters, Col. Henry Eybank, and several other indigent officers and widows and fatherless children, on the behalf of themselves and others. Divers grants have been made to Petitioners of several particular annuities and sums of money charged on the yearly rent of 4,200*l.* payable to the Crown by the Farmers of the Royal Oak Lottery, some of which grants have been for valuable consideration and others as acts of charity. Pray to be heard by Counsel against the Bill. Signed by Philip Howard, John Osborn, Mar. Cary, Hen. Eybank, Edward Ogar, James Vosper, E. Armstrong and Mallet Slingsby. [Read this day and Petitioners ordered to be heard. L. J., XV. 280.]

(b) 8 March. Petition of Colonel John Vaughan. There being due from their present Majesties to Petitioner and tradesmen employed by him on their Majesties' account 3,050*l.*, for which he was sued by them in Westminster Hall and they recovered the same against him, and he is forced to pay the same out of his own estate and is now charged therewith, their Majesties, in consideration thereof, by Letters Patent of 21 May last, granted to Chas. Duncombe, Esq., in trust for Petitioner, an annuity or yearly pension of 300*l.* a year out of the rent reserved out of the Royal Oak Lottery. The Bill makes no provision for satisfaction of Petitioner's debt. Prays to be heard by Counsel before it passes. [Read this day and Petitioner ordered to be heard. L. J., XV. 280.]

728. March 7. E. Huntingdon's Privilege (Beesley).—Affidavit of John Peake, of Loughborow, in the county of Leicester, Yeoman, as to distraint by John Beesley of the cattle belonging to several tenants of the Earl of Huntingdon. Sworn 17 Oct. 4 W. & M. before Hugh Bateman. [Read, together with Annex (a), this day, and Beesley ordered to attend on the 9th. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 278.) No further proceedings.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 7 March. Similar Affidavit of Elizabeth Heanes, wife of Thomas Heanes of Loughborow, Wheelwright. States that Beesley, when remonstrated with, replied to Deponent, "You talk nothing. My Lord is in the Tower, and may have his head chopped off, and then where must I have my money?" Signed by Deponent, her mark. Sworn 17 Oct. 4 W. & M. before Hugh Bateman.

729. March 7. Sea-water Freshening (Walcot's Patent) Bill.—Petition of Robert Fitzgerald, Esq., James Bridgeman, Esq., and others. Petitioners having Letters Patent from King Charles II. for the invention of making Sea water fresh, which Letters Patent are not yet expired, one Mr. Walcott is endeavouring to procure a Bill for the said invention for his own use. Petitioners were served only yesterday with the Order annexed, and have not had time to instruct Counsel, and the Lords Committee have this morning gone through the Bill. Pray to be heard at the Bar before the Bill passes. Signed by Rob. Fitzgerald. [Read this day, and Petitioners to be heard in Committee on the Bill. L. J., XV. 278. See No. 723 and notes thereto.]

Annexed:—

(a.) 6 March. Order of Committee, made this day, appointing tomorrow for the further consideration of the Bill, and directing notice to be given to Col. Fitzgerald and other persons concerned. [Appended to preceding.]

730. March 8. Trade with France Prohibition (Privateers, &c.) Act.—Petition of Thomas Chambers, John Frank and Samuel Lockley, on behalf of themselves and others concerned in privateers. The Bill for continuing the Acts prohibiting all trade and commerce with France, and for the encouragement of privateers, will be very prejudicial to Petitioners and greatly discourage the English privateers. Pray to be heard by Counsel against it. Signed by above-named and also by Tho. Doughty, Jno. Clayton, James Durnford, Hugh Reason, Jno. Bateman, Tho. Smith, Hump. Simpson, John Barber, W. Collier, Mich. Fallet, Francis Minshull, James Smith, James Clarke and Samuel Eyre. L. J., XV. 280. [The Bill was brought from the Commons on 6 March, and read 1st the next day (L. J., XV. 276, 277). In C. W. H. on 9 March, L. Godolphin in the Chair, Counsel were called in. Sir Bartholomew Shower (for Petitioners): The Bill provides that, if a ship be taken, it shall be no prize. Now this is worse than before, and this prize comes to the King, and that they may have the advantage of the capture, though in port. If an English ship be retaken, then it shall be restored, paying the salvage. Recaption gives it the title of prize, if it has been 24 hours in the enemies' hands. It gives but half to the privateers of all Owlers and Woollers, and now they have the whole. Mr. Walter Hochen [?] (for the Privateers): It is now placed in the Exchequer, which were in the Admiralty, and the Admiralty sits every week, and the Exchequer but in Term time. Dr. Oldish [appears] for the Admiral that his jurisdiction should not be hurt. Though there is no Admiral now, yet there may be. Counsel then withdrew, and the Committee then agreed to the Bill, with amendments, to the end of Sect. xi.—On 11 March the House went again into Committee. Moved to call in Sir Charles Hedges as to this point—the two-tenths to the Lord High Admiral.* [House resumed, and L. Godolphin reported that the Committee desired the direction of the House whether Sir Charles Hedges shall be heard. Ordered that he may attend to be called in, if the Committee think fit. House again in Committee.] The remainder of the Bill was then agreed to. Moved, to add a Clause concerning the price of wine. House resumed. Bill reported with amendments, which were amended and agreed to; Bill read 3<sup>a</sup> with the amendments and passed and returned to the Commons. (MS. Min.; L. J., XV. 285.)

The Lords' Amendments, which are set out in extenso in C. J., X. 849, were to omit the words in square brackets, and to add those in italics, in the following portions of the Act, viz.:—

(1.) Sect. i., Line 8 (Fol. Ed.) . . . shall continue and be in force during the term of three years, if the present war with France shall so long last, to be accounted from . . .

(2.) Sect. ii., Line 15 . . . until such time as the same shall be adjudged lawful prize, except where it shall appear to the Judge of the Admiralty that the goods taken are perishable, in which case the said Judge shall take bail for such goods, in order to the sale thereof, in the same manner † as he might have done before the making of this Act, ‡ yet so as to be subject to such distribution as is particularly provided by this Act.

(3.) Sect. xi., Line 7 . . . to be paid by the [Commissioners for Prizes out of their Majesties' share of Prizes] Collector of their Majesties' Customs in any port, § upon due proof made of the same before the Chief Magistrate of the said port.

(4.) Sect. xii. (added as Clause A) || :—Provided always and be it enacted that if the [Collector of Customs] Commissioners for Prizes shall not pay any sum or sums of money, or give a Bill or Bills payable out of the first money that shall come to their hands, to the persons interested in private men-of-war for the reward hereby given them of ten pounds a gun by the space of three days after the same ought, by the true intent of this Act, to be paid and demand thereof made, free of all charges, fees and deductions whatsoever, [or give a Bill payable upon the Custom House in London for the same] in such case the said [Collector] Commissioners shall be made incapable of any office in their Majesties' service for the future.

The Commons agreed to Amendment (1) without amendment, and to (2) and (4), with amendments, but disagreed to (3), with Reasons, which were delivered at a Conference on 14 March (L. J., XV. 288. In extenso). The Lords finally agreed to the Commons' Amendments of

The parchment, which formed originally the concluding portion—i.e. Press 2, line 9, ad fin.,—of the Engrossed Bill, as brought from the Commons, from which it has been cut, runs as follows:—

" . . . whereof, Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons within the Kingdom of England, Dominion of Wales, or Town of Berwick-upon-Tweed (except in London and Middlesex and other places within ten miles of London), against whom any judgment or judgments is, are or shall be entered in the said Court upon any indictment or indictments, information or informations in cases only fineable, shall find and procure any responsible person or persons on his, her or their behalf to come and appear in the said Court and then and there undertake to pay such fine or fines as the said Court shall think fit to assess and adjudge, that then no such person or persons shall be forced or compelled to appear in person in the said Court in order to be fined for such his or their said offence, nor shall any process be hereafter awarded against him, her or them for that purpose; And if any person or persons now outlawed, or hereafter to be outlawed in the said Court, for any of the causes fineable only as aforesaid, Then in such cases the person or persons so outlawed appearing by him, her or themselves or by such responsible person or persons in the said Court as aforesaid, and undertaking to pay such fine or fines as the said Court in that behalf shall assess and adjudge, shall and may by Attorney reverse such outlawry and outlawries in such manner as he, she or they might have done, if he, she or they had appeared in person before the making of this Act, any law, usage or practice to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

" And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any Sheriff who shall return any writ of Exigent or proclamation, not having caused proclamation to be duly made as is hereinbefore required, shall forfeit to the party grieved the sum of forty pounds, together with costs of suit, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information in any of their Majesties' Courts of Record, wherein there shall be no essoine, protection or wager of law, and no more than one imparlance." Endorsed: "Left out as an Amendment* to the Bill for regulating proceedings in the Crown Office, and agreed to by the Commons, 13 March 1692."

Parchment Collection. [The Bill was brought from the Commons 7 March, and read 1<sup>a</sup> on the 9th (L. J., XV. 278, 281). It was amended in C. W. county of Worcester, and the rivulets and brooks thereto adjoining. The Bill is to the following effect:—

§ i. Whereas by an Act of 13 Car. II., for the making navigable the Rivers of Stower and Salwerpe, and the rivulets and brooks running into the same, in the counties of Worcester and Stafford, power was given to George, E. Bristol, Thomas, L. Windsor and Thomas Smith, Esq., their heirs and assigns, to make the said rivers navigable, and whereas it was proposed that the making navigable the river Salwerpe would be of great advantage to the salt-works in Droitwich, as well as to the public, by importing coals and exporting salt at much cheaper rates than either then or now, and the proprietors of the salt-works were accordingly prevailed upon to allow salt-water, to the value of 2,000*l.*; to the said Undertakers, who expended some moneys, though much less than the sum given, in preparing locks, in order to the navigation, but without proceeding any further, or bringing the same to any perfection, and so it remains to this day; the Bill therefore enacts that the said powers, touching the river Salwerpe only, shall be repealed.

§ ii. It shall be lawful for Charles, E. Shrewsbury and Thomas, L. Coventry, and either of them, their heirs, assigns, &c., to do all things necessary for making navigable the river Salwerpe, at their own costs and charges, and to make use of all the materials remaining in the river, provided by the former Undertakers, without rendering any account for the same in any other manner than is hereafter mentioned.

§ iii. And for that the work of making the river navigable may not prejudice any persons, &c., having any lands or tenements adjoining, the following, viz.: Sir Henry Littleton, Sir John Packington, Sir Walter Kirkham Blount and Sir Francis Russell, Baronets; Sir Rowland Berkley, Sir John Talbot, Sir Thomas Street, Sir Francis Winnington, Sir Thomas Haslewood and Sir John Sommers, Knights; Samuel Sandys, William Bromley, Henry Herbert, Henry Jeffryes, Thomas Foley, Robert Berkeley, Thomas Jolliffe, Francis Sheldon, Henry Townshend, Gerard Danett, Thomas Lowe, John Bearcroft, Edward Bull, Charles Cocks, Thomas Chetle and Thomas Stevens, Esquires; Samuel Hunt, Thomas Hammond, George Atwood, Arthur Bagshaw, Giles Trimmell, Thomas Savage and Henry Toy, Gentlemen; the Right Hon. Richard, Earl of Bellomont, of the Kingdom of Ireland, the Hon. Thomas Coventry, Esq., the Hon. John Gray, Esq., the Hon. William Ward, Esq., Sir Walter Wrotchley, Bart., Sir Henry Goff, Knight, Richard Dowdeswell, Phillip Foley, Edmund Letchmere, Robert Foley, Thomas Foley, jun., Salwa Winnington, Samuel Pitt, William Walsh, Thomas Lench and Thomas Foley, of Stoake, Esquires, are appointed Commissioners, with power to examine witnesses on oath, and to determine by the majority what compensation shall be made (in case the Undertakers under this Act shall not have agreed beforehand with, and satisfied, the parties) for any loss or damage sustained through the undertaking.

§ iv. The said Commissioners are empowered to hear and determine all controversies and questions whatsoever touching the premises, and their determinations shall be binding on all parties concerned, and, after being signed and sealed, shall be taken as good evidence in any Court of Record.

§ v. The said Undertakers, and no others, shall employ barges, boats, lighters and other vessels on the river, etc., and receive all the profits due for the carriage of coals, salt, iron or any other commodities, to be divided and proportioned in such manner and into so many shares as they shall appoint, in consideration of their charges in making and maintaining the river navigable.

HOUSE OF

§ vi. Provided that Charles Baldwyn, Esq., and Sir Timothy Baldwyn, Knt., their heirs and assigns, shall retain whatever interest or shares they had under the former Act, and that they, their executors and administrators, shall be paid pro rata all charges incurred in making the river Salwerpe navigable, and providing materials for that purpose; and on failure of the Undertakers to assign and confirm to them such interest and shares, and pay to them such charges before 24 June 1694, they, their heirs and assigns, shall enjoy all their interest and claim under the former Act, as if the present Act had never been made.

§ vii. When any of the Commissioners shall die, or otherwise be disabled from acting, or shall signify his wish to retire, the majority of the remaining Commissioners shall elect another in his stead, who shall have equal powers with the rest.

§ viii. And whereas the passage from the river Severn up the river Salwerpe is against the stream, so as all vessels used there must of necessity in some places be pulled, towed, or drawn up by strength of men, lines, ropes, winches, engines or other means convenient for that purpose, it shall be lawful to have and use a foot-path for that purpose on one side only of the river, on giving to the persons, &c., injured thereby, such satisfaction as the Commissioners shall think fit.

§ ix. And for the better maintaining the navigation and the locks, wears, turnpikes, pens for water, cranes, wharves, ways and passages, the Commissioners are required, upon request made to them by the Undertakers, to appoint a time and place for their meeting, giving ten days' previous notice to all persons concerned, and they may adjourn or meet thereafter as they shall see cause; and if the Undertakers or any other person shall refuse, upon due notice given, to appear or to submit to their determinations, they may proceed to hear and determine ex parte, and the person grieved by such non-obedience shall recover the matter or thing decreed by action of debt or in the case in any Court of Record to be grounded on this Statute.

§ x. The Undertakers shall defray all the reasonable expenses of the Commissioners in the execution of this Act.

§ xi. The Undertakers shall not begin any of their works on the lands of any person, &c., until a full agreement and satisfaction with the respective lords, owners, or occupiers of the said lands be first had and made by the Commissioners, who shall not give to any person under the rate of 25 years' purchase for lands, or 20 years' purchase for mills taken or destroyed by the Undertakers, the same to be first paid or so secured as the parties therein concerned shall accept, unless in some cases where the lords, owners or occupiers shall refuse to appear before the Commissioners or submit to their decrees, in which cases the Undertakers, after first tendering to such persons so refusing the satisfaction or recompense ordered by the Commissioners, are empowered to commence and carry on their works.

§ xii. The Undertakers shall not do anything to the river or lands adjoining to the damage or prejudice of the salt-springs in the borough of Droitwich.

§ xiii. The Undertakers shall furnish the salt-works in Droitwich and the inhabitants of the borough with coals at not more than 9s. 6d. per ton, or at a price to be settled by the Commissioners, in case, by reason of the raising of the price at the coal-pits, coals cannot be so afforded at the said borough.

§ xiv. The Undertakers or any other person sued or indicted for anything done in pursuance of this Act, may plead the general issue and give this Act in evidence.

HOUSE OF
LORDS MSS.

§ xv. The Commissioners shall, before acting, take a prescribed oath before two Justices of the Peace of the county of Worcester, to execute their powers without favour or affection, on pain of forfeiting 20*l.*, half to go to the Crown and half to the person suing.

§ xvi. Anything done in pursuance of their powers by any eleven or more of the Commissioners shall be good, valid and effectual.

§ xvii. No person shall act as a Commissioner, who is an Undertaker or sharer in the navigation. The names of all persons having any share or interest in it shall be entered in a register, to be kept by a person appointed by the Commissioners, and open to inspection gratis by all persons concerned, and any person having such share or interest, upon the reasonable request of the owner of any lands or mills adjoining the river, shall within 40 days after such request made, procure a meeting of the Commissioners, in order to make an allowance for any damage done, and in case the person so interested shall neglect or refuse to procure a meeting, the said owners may stop and detain all vessels on the river, together with the goods on board them, until such satisfaction shall be made.

Parchment Collection. [Brought from the Commons this day, and read 1<sup>a</sup> on the 11th (L. J., XV. 282, 284). In Committee on 13 March, L. Chandos in the chair, Sir Timothy Baldwyn's Petition (No. 732) being read, the Parties were called in. The Proviso in the Bill for saving Sir Timothy's and Mr. Baldwyn's rights is read. Sir Thomas Powys (for Petitioners): The clause does not indemnify them from suits. This makes us accountants to the new Undertakers, and they may proceed before they pay us pro rata. Mr. Harrington: This devests an inheritance out of the Petitioners. Mr. Harris (for the Bill): Mr. Baldwyn's Counsel drew the Proviso, and Mr. Parker, the Solicitor, consented to it. Mr. Parker says he had no power to consent, and never consented otherwise than that he said he would not oppose it. Mr. Baldwyn wrote to him not to consent to anything.—On 14 March, E. Stamford in the chair, the Bill was agreed to as far as Press 6, Line 4 (Com. Book). Nothing further recorded. The Bill, accordingly, dropped in Committee with the Session.]

733. March 13. Salwerpe River Navigation Bill.—Petition of Sir Timothy Baldwyn, Knt., and Charles Baldwyn, Esq., son, heir and executor of Sir Samuel Baldwyn, Knt., deceased. Since the Act of Car. II., giving powers to George, E. Bristol, Thomas, L. Windsor and Thomas Smith, their heirs and assigns, to make navigable the Rivers Stower and Salwerpe, the Petitioners, Sir Timothy and Sir Samuel Baldwyn purchased from E. Bristol all his rights in the rivers for 1,450*l.* Sir Samuel also purchased some part of Smith's rights, and several other persons purchased the rest. Petitioners since then have expended about 4,000*l.*, besides several thousand pounds laid out by others, and more would have been laid out had the late Earl of Plymouth not died. The Bill, which was brought into the House of Commons in the names of E. Shrewsbury and L. Coventry (who are only nominal trustees for others) tends to make void the former Act as regards the river Salwerpe, and to take away Petitioners' rights and also all the materials in the river without any account or satisfaction. The Proviso added in Committee of the Commons, on the Petition of Charles Baldwyn, is not sufficient to protect Petitioners, but leaves them in a worse condition than before, and may expose them to many suits. Petitioners and the present E. Plymouth, who is an infant, are not the only persons concerned in the river Salwerpe. Pray to be heard by

1692-3.

Counsel before the Bill pass. [Read this day and referred to the Committee on the Bill (L. J., XV. 286). See No. 733.]

734. March 14. L. Abergavenny's Privilege.—Petition of George, Lord Bergavenny. On the 13th inst., about 6 a.m., one Joseph Godlington, pretending to be a constable and accompanied by one Yates, Dun, St. Leger and others unknown to him, came in a riotous manner to his house, and threatening to break open the doors under pretence of searching for highwaymen, without any legal warrant, rushed into Petitioner's chamber, who was then in bed and asleep, to the great dishonour and scandal of Petitioner and against his known privilege as a Peer. Prays that Godlington and the others may be ordered to appear. Signed Bergavenny. [Read this day and rejected. (L. J., XV. 288.) The MS. Min. add that witnesses were examined this day on the Petition. John Coales: Yesterday about 6 o'clock came a man to my master's house,—Mr. Smith's, an upholsterer's house. My Lord hires the whole house but the shop, and they said they came to search for a highwayman. The man they enquired for had not been there for two or three weeks. I saw Frank East in my Lord's house; he used to come thither. I told him "The man you speak of has not been here three weeks." They told me they must search the house. Dominick Burke: He asked for Frank East. I told him he had not been here for three weeks, and then there came three or four more. The constable desired me to acquaint my Lord with it. I went to see if my Lord was awake, and the constable and all came into the chamber. I am my Lord's servant. (MS. Min.)]

735. March 14. Triennial Parliaments Bill.—Lords' Engrossment (as amended on third reading and afterwards by the Commons) of an Act for the frequent calling and meeting of Parliaments. Marked "Le Roy et le (sic) Reyne se avisarunt." Parchment Collection. [Royal Assent refused this day. (L. J., XV. 289). For the contents of this Engrossment see No. 660. Annex (a) and notes thereto.*]

Annexed:—

(a.) 10 Feb. Commons' Amendments to the Bill. [Agreed to by the Lords this day. (L. J., XV. 223). See notes to No. 660. Annex (a).]

736. March 14. King's Speech.—His Majesty's Speech on proroguing Parliament this day. L. J., XV. 290. In extenso.

737. May 2. Prorogation.—Commission for further proroguing Parliament to 19 Sept. next. Dated this day. Parchment Collection. L. J., XV. 291. In extenso.

738. Sept. 19. Prorogation.—Commission for further proroguing Parliament to 3 Oct. next. Dated this day. Parchment Collection. L. J., XV. 292. In extenso.

739. Oct. 3. Prorogation.—Commission for further proroguing Parliament to 26 Oct. inst. Dated this day. Parchment Collection. L. J., XV. 293. In extenso.

740. Oct. 26. Prorogation.—Commission for further proroguing Parliament to 7 Nov. next. Dated 24 Oct. Parchment Collection. L. J., XV. 294. In extenso.

* This Engrossment is verbatim the same as the Bill introduced in the Lords on 1 Dec. 1693, except as to the date for the determination of the existing Parliament. Comp. 6 & 7 W. & M. c. 2., Fol. Ed.
